LONDON (Reuters) — Four-year-old Caron Rawnsley today seemed to have won a battle with British officialdom over the grave of his two white mice.

The blue pottery marker was back on his pets' resting place in Caron's Hertfordshire garden. Caron was free to decorate the grave with a pecked orange and a cornflower, the violet in the heart's content—so the mice would be happy forever.

A civic employee responsible for the upkeep of the gardens chased the boy away Saturday when he found him burying his two dead mice. The man quoted bylaws on littering public places and removed the grave decorations.

A policeman called to the scene by Caron's father backed up the park keeper.

But Caron had all the determination four-year-olds are famous for. He remembered that his mother had given him fruit after rescuing him from drowning in a pool. He buried the mice.

Since that treatment revived him, he should do the same for the mice, he reasoned.

He scrounged up the prized pets should at least come back to life as flowers if they got enough nuts, berries, vinegar and chokeberries. notes scattered on their grave.

Caron's mother took him back Sunday. He found the grave despite the absence of the pottery tombstone and heaped it with fruit, nuts and flowers. The flowers he watched from a distance.

Later in the day the attendant made a quick trip to the grave site. When he left, the flowers were gone. And the tombstone was back again—to welcome Caron when he returned today.

Slugs Companion, Then Places Girl In Trunk Of Car

Armed Man Holds Up Couple Parked on Lonely Road

TORONTO (CP) — A provincewide search began today for a 17-year-old girl and a man reported to have kidnapped her, carrying her off in the trunk of a car.

Police of suburban Scarborough township said they were told that Marion Joan MacDowell was taken at gunpoint from her boy friend's car on a lonely sideroad Sunday night by a masked man. The boy friend, Samuel Wilson, 19, said he was slugged by what he thought was a gun butt.

Wilson was treated later in hospital for head injuries. Police questioned him most of the night and said they have no reason to doubt his story of the abduction.

STOLEN WALLET FOUND

Officers said robbery was also involved in the abduction near Danforth road and Eglinton avenue on the city's eastern outskirts. The car Wilson was parked in was stolen.

Wilson was forced to hand over his wallet, containing about $10, which was later found near the scene. Police said the girl was about five feet eight inches tall, dropped it in his getaway.

About 1:30 p.m. Monday, a masked man pulled the door of his car open, levelled a gun at him and ordered him out. The youth stepped out, was forced to give up his wallet and ordered to turn around.

The youth was then slugged on the head from behind.

When he recovered consciousness he said, he was in the back of the car with the girl bundled in on top of him. Wilson said the man who slugged him drove the car to abandon it several laneway.

FUR GIRL IN TRUNK

The bandit stopped the car, went through the boy's pockets, then took her out of the car and placed her in the trunk of another car. He drove away while the youth, dazed and helpless, was unable to offer any resistance.

After he had been questioned by police and given first aid, Wilson told reporters that he had been out on a date with Miss MacDowell when he took over two girl friends.

He said after they had been on the sideroad for about an hour and a half, "a man wearing a blue jacket, plaid shirt and helmet, over his face opened the door and ordered me to get out.

"I sat there for a few seconds ignoring the man, then I turned to the girl and the man pointed a gun at me and ordered me out of the car."

Wilson complied, was robbed and slugged.

"When I came to, I was in the back seat of the car with the girl. The motor was running and Marion, who bundled on top of me. I think he was standing on the floor and moving. . . ."

He dragged the girl out of the car, put her in the trunk of another car which was parked about four feet away . . . the man drove off through a narrow lane.

Police said Marion and Steve, who had been in a daze, I raced home as fast as I could get there."

Meanwhile the girl's father joined in the search. He scoured roads in the district for hours.

Wilson was back for a photo-engraving firm in Toronto, is five feet three inches tall, weighs 130 pounds, has blonde hair cut short and is round-faced.

Watson told police this was the second attack on himself in the last few weeks. He said several weeks ago he was sitting in a car with Marion and a man named Agincourt when a band of teenagers tried to assault him but he got away from them.

"There's something fishy about the whole thing," he said of Saturday night's incident. "There were several cars parked in the lane. Why did he pick mine?"

Things Were Not As Driver 'Thunk' Bottle Turns Out To Be a Skunk

Henry (Hank) Canning never liked cats. In fact he wouldn't have one around the house.

Now he wishes he had taken more interest in the felines, even to the point of developing their ability to see in the dark.

Hank, in his role of before-dawn milk distributor has been on the job so long, he doesn't bother to turn on the headlights of his delivery truck as he approaches a house stretches out a hand, takes the bottle and money—and that's it.

From now on, Hank will add a flashlight, and deodorizer to his standard morning equipment.

It happened this way.

This morning the genial Hank approached a verandah of a house on the west hill, and as was his custom reached out in the darkness for the bottle.

It was the first milk bottle Hank had ever encountered that wore a fur coat.

The "coat" was a neat black-and-white job with a broad white ribbon extending up the middle.

As Hank's "horny" hand clutched it, the "bottle" galvanized into life. A shower of eau-de-skunk rose in the morning air as Hank "blew his top" and the kitty vice-versa.

Later, Hank mournfully buried his clothes. If he is not around together tomorrow morning his customers will know he forgot to take them off.

Minor Hockey

Maple Leafs and Black Hawks emerged winners in the Saturday morning Belleville Minor Hockey Association bantam league triple-headed with Bruins and Canadiens battling to a two-all tie. Leafs collected a 3-2 win while the Hawks blanked the Red Wings 3-0.

Gord Fuller sent the Bruins out front on a pass from Doug Morgan but Ron Keller and Kovarsh shot "Les Canadians" into the lead with a pair of fast markers. Lucas assistor on one. With just a few seconds to go in the game Cord Fuller once more found the range and that's the way it ended.

Ivo Regent provided the scoring punch for the Black Hawks as he scored all three goals in the shut-out for Joe Meldrum in the Hawk nets. Ted Murphy has two helpers while Gary Rowbotham had one. Meldrum turned back the Red Wings on several occasions and Gary Lewis looked good on defence.

The Maple Leafs and the Rangers put on the best show of the morning with a 4-3 victory for the league leading Leafs. Earl MacDonald scored the first attack with 2 and 1 while Brennan and Garrison got a goal and assist each. Brennan got the winner just before the final bell. Dave Coe from Dick Hurst, Denyes and Kellar were the Ranger markers.

Alberta Mother And 3 Children Die in Explosion

EDMONTON (CP)—A 33-year-old mother and three of her four children died in a gas explosion and fire Sunday which destroyed their farm home 8 miles from Whitecourt, last behind Edmonton's southwestern limits.

Mrs. Robert S. Blair perished along with her daughter, Marlene, 13, and five-year-old twins, David and Donna.

The father, 43, a plumber employed by an Edmonton firm, escaped and saved an 11-year-old son, Donald, but was unable to re-enter the blazing frame building.

The fire was believed started by an explosion in an oil-burning heater.

Blair suffered a three-stitch cut on a hand. Donald, unhurt in the blaze, was sent to stay with relatives in Calgary.

Inside of him is silence,
His name I oft recall.
There is nothing left to answer
But his picture on the wall.
— Ever remembered by son Albert, daughter-in-law, Florence, and grandchildren, Mary and Albert.

IRENS — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Frederick Arthur Irens, who passed away December 7th, 1952.
Down the lane of memories
The light is never dim,
Until the time we shine
We will remember him.
— Sadly missed by daughter, Belle, son-in-law, Albert Irens, granddaughter Betty Lou Harvey.

BELCH — In fond and loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. George Belch, who went to rest December 7th, 1952.

Dwells a wonderful mom of ours,
When we look on as a treasure,
Whom we cherished so divine.
Until the time we shine
Deep in our hearts is a yearn,
God alone knows how much we miss her.
As we journey down life's weary road
We never remembered by daughters Helen, Edna and Marjorie.

Siamese Twin Holding Her Own After Operation

LONDON (AP)—Baby Boko had a good night and was more than holding her own today.

The robust three-month-old Siamese twin, whose sister Tomu died shortly after the operation separating them three days ago, was reported "progressing favorably" at Hammersmith hospital.

Dr. Ian Aird, 47-year-old surgeon who performed the delicate operation, cautioned that though the Bantu baby was "very well" this morning she was "not yet free from risk of complications." She is still being kept in an oxygen tent most of the time.

The twins' Nigerian mother, 24-year-old Mrs. Veronica Davies, is a patient in another room at the hospital. She collapsed from nervous strain and grief on the death of Tomu, but now has regained most of her composure.

Hunt for Slayer Of Six-Year-Old In Saskatchewan

OGEMA, Sask. (CP)—All available RCMP officers combed southern Saskatchewan today for the sex slayer of Irene Mooney, blond six-year old who was sent to a store for ice cream Saturday night and was raped and slain on the way home.

RCMP set up roadblocks over a wide area in their quest for a young man who left the store immediately after Irene. A police dog was brought from Regina, 76 miles north of here.

Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Art Mooney of Edgeworth, 10 miles north of Ogema, was found shortly after midnight, only 300 feet from the home of the grandparents she was visiting.

Death was caused by strangulation. The child also received a severe blow on the head. There was evidence of criminal assault.

The suspect was described as in his late 20s or early 30s, with sideburns narrow at top and wide at the bottom.

Pamela-Martin Leaves Tokyo Heading Home

TOKYO (CP)—Pamela Martin took off at 3:32 p. m. (1:32 a. m. EST) today for Vancouver in a Canadian Pacific Air Lines plane in her effort to set a commercial speed record around the world.

The pretty 23-year-old brunette from Chicago hopes the faster Canadian plane will cut down her flying time on the Tokyo-Vancouver hop from 17 to 13 hours and will enable her to skip her scheduled stop at Shemya, Alaska.

The commercial round-the-world record is for starting and finishing caps in 99 hours. Miss Martin now hopes to make her trip in 96 hours or rather, then her original estimate of 91 hours and 25 minutes.

Korea Situation In Critical Stage Chinese Declare

HONG KONG (Reuters) — The Chinese prime minister, Chou En-lai, has sent a message to the United Nations General Assembly warning that the situation in Korea now has reached "critical stage," Peiping Radio announced today.

The Communist broadcast said a seven-point letter had been sent to the U. N. secretary-general, Dag Hammarskjold, and Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, president of the United Nations Assembly.

Miss Bentley Cannot Recall Any Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP)—Elizabeth Bentley, admitted former Soviet spy, said Monday she was unable to recall whether she had given Senate investigators any testimony about Canada's external affairs minister, L. B. Pearson.

Statements recently have been made in Canada that the Senate internal security sub-committee might name Pearson as one of several Canadians accused of supplying information to a Red spy ring in Washington during the Second World War.

David Croll, Liberal member of Parliament for Toronto Spadina, charged, as did the Toronto Star, that an attempt was being made to "blackmail" the Canadian government into agreeing to let the sub-committee question Igor Gouzenko, former Soviet code clerk in Ottawa.

Robert Morris, sub-committee counsel retorted that the naming of Pearson had never been contemplated by the Senate probers. He declined comment, however, on published reports that the sub-committee received closed-door testimony from Miss Bentley in 1951 naming Pearson as a wartime source of information.

CAN'T REMEMBER

Miss Bentley was asked Sunday on the NBC television program, "Meet the Press," if she had given such testimony about Pearson, who was minister-counselor of the Canadian embassy here during the Second World War.

"I'm sorry," she replied, "I can't remember all the testimony I have given."

Pressed further for any recollection of testifying about Pearson, Miss Bentley said she was unable to say "offhand what testimony she had given.

Pearson, when asked about the matter recently, said "I need only to say that insofar as it refers to the department of external affairs or myself, it is false to the point of absurdity."

PICTON

20,000 Visit County Town To View Parade

PICTON — Population of Picton was at least quadrupled on Saturday, when the 1953 version of annual Santa Claus parade was held, under the sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce. Long before the parade time, more than a mile of the main street was lined many deep and every vantage point was crowded. According to Sgt. George Pitt, it was the largest crowd ever to congregate in Picton in recent years. While the weather was cool and overcast, the crowds did not miss a minute of the parade which took 30 minutes to pass a given point and which included 52 floats and bands along with walking characters.

INCLUDE AREA REPRESENTED

The whole Bay of Quinte area was literally represented in the parade of the Picton parade has spread. General comment was in effect that it was the biggest yet. Committee in charge included Phil Dodds who has been associated with the parades since inception, Sam Gentile, Boyd Chalmers, Ken Hall.

After the parade, Santa greeted the children at the auditorium and nearly 4,000 bags of popcorn, a toy and an orange were given out, even to small percentage of the children in town crowding into the building as they had seen Santa on his beautiful float with eight prancing reindeer.

HOUR LONG SHOW

An hour long show, featuring singers, dancers, comedians, a magician, along with singing of Christmas songs, was presented with Bill McLean as M.C.

Evergreens decorated each street light standard and other decorations made a gay setting for the event.

Heading the parade were three flag bearers in black with gold stripes, and a group of girls with cartwheels.

Some of the floats were: Picton Brownies, shoemaker and the elves; Picton Cub Pack, camp scene; Picton Hughes Guides, Pussy's in the Well; Picton Girl Guides, Christmas greeting card; Three Little Kittens who lost their Mittens; C.G.I.T., the nativity scene; Picton Oddfellows band in scarlet uniforms; a Pirate Ship complete with cannon and chests of treasure; Queen of Hearts; Frosty the Snowman, Jack-in-the-Box, Capt. There were 75 clowns and other characters.

Parade moved slowly so all got a good look and there were no accidents despite the tremendous amount of traffic.

DENY ATTACK

LONDON, (Reuters) —British military authorities in a message to the war office in London today denied that British troops attacked the village of El Queis in Egypt on Saturday and Sunday.

The British version simply said that 14 shots were fired from the outskirts of the village at a mobile patrol carrying out routine taksmen near Telel Kebir on Saturday evening.

There were no casualties.

HAPPY MOTORING, KIDS

Do you like a T intersection trumpet type interchange?

How does channelization suit you?

Now wait a minute, Buster, don't rush away. We are not discussing some style of boogie-woogie trumpet-playing, nor is that gobble-de-gook word "channelization" a term tossed around by electronic specialists. We are talking about something of great importance to you, and your family—your driving habits.

A T intersection trumpet style interchange and channelization are just two of the ten different styles of interchange being constructed by the Ontario Department of Highways to connect four-lane roads with two-lane roads. You are going to meet up with all ten types in the future, so you had better take a chair and pay attention.

Gone are the days of the simple clover-leaf. Other interchanges, besides the two already mentioned, are the three-ramp interchange, the T interchange rotary, the two ramp interchange, the two-ramp interchange with service stations, the cloverleaf interchange, the combined three-ramp and four-ramp interchange, the Y intersection direct connection type interchange and the four-ramp direct connection type.

Copies of traffic interchange charts showing these ten designs have been supplied on request to most of the secondary schools in the province. The Department of Highways says that its engineers "hold that youths now attending Ontario secondary schools will in a few years be driving automotive vehicles on provincial highways which will function increasingly as part of four-lane controlled-access expressways." Careful study of this statement has led us to the conclusion that the engineers are correct. We are amazed at the deep insight which has enabled them to predict the future in this matter. But perhaps we are giving them more credit than is their due. To them goes the glory for designing ten different types of interchanges. The sublime language in which their achievement is reported in the work of a publicist. And what the hell is a publicist? Today's high school students will soon be driving cars! Isn't that astounding?

After the study of the traffic interchange chart, though, we are willing to bet unanimous consent that, if those with secondary school education are allowed to drive, results will be disastrous. In this age of rapid technological development, the Department of Highways engineers would soon be able to develop both the quantity and quality of their interchange styles to the point where a university education will be imperative for all drivers. We can give them a hint as to how to do it. The key is in that combined three-ramp and four-ramp interchange. Now, look fellas, what's wrong with a combined T intersection ramp and Y intersection direct connection type interchange with trumpet style channelization and typical service station layout. That ought to mess up traffic for a while.

THE WAY TO REDUCE TAXES

One of the best editorials we have had the privilege of reading came to our attention the other day.

It was not printed in the editorial columns of any great newspaper—but was published as an advertisement by a firm which manufactures machinery. We shall note later the significance of that fact.

"You and I have no right to object to taxes until we object to the way taxes are spent," the advertisement commences.

Well, a lot of people complain bitterly about the way taxes are spent, but few understand there are still many qualified to criticize high taxes.

But the advertisement lost no time in making its point. It continued:

"People are always writing their representative demanding price support or a pension or a harbor dredging, or a new plant or something else they want in their area. . . . Have you ever written your member refusing such 'gifts'?"

There is the key to reduced taxation. It is to reduce the demand for those things, each of which must be met out of taxes. Almost everybody is eager and willing to have other people reduce their demands, but how many are willing to eliminate their own pleas?

Those who make demands on governments for services may reply that others are making demands and that if they refuse to join in the clamor they will merely have to pay without receiving.

Unfortunately there is an element of truth in this argument, but if taxes are ever to be reduced spending must be reduced and if spending is to be reduced the demand for services must be reduced.

Somebody to take the initiative in reversing the present cycle of increased demands resulting in higher expenditure, necessitating higher taxes, leading to more demands for a share of the benefits made possible by this increased tax revenue. Somebody to get the ball rolling, perhaps it would retrace its path. The way to start is by moving in reverse is for somebody to refuse a benefit offered.

Nobody would ever do that? Oh, but the firm which published that advertisement sells machinery, construction machinery. What industry could have more to lose by urging that people write refusing "a harbor dredging, or a new plant or something else they want in their area?"

The ball has been started! Keep it rolling!

BE KIND TO GRANDPA

Ellen Elizabeth, twinkling of eye,
Now gives me a kiss when she opens the door.
And gives me a kiss when she's saying good-bye.
If I should request them she'd give me come more.

I also get kisses from sweet little
June
And hugs and a pat or two right on my cheek.

Of affection like this I'm not one to complain.
I'd like to be loved every day,
every week.

This is the time to a campaign assigned.
And it always occurs as the Christmas draws near.
I call it the month of: "To grandpa be kind."
And I wish it could come more than once in a year.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

DECEMBER 7, 1933.

The re-election of Mayor Geo. O. Tice for a third term in the City Council has not been duplicated during the past twenty-six years, it was revealed today by a check of the records at city hall. Charles N. Sullman served three terms when he filled the office of mayor during the years 1905, 1906 and 1907. Since his time until now no mayor has held the office for a third term. The feat of J. W. Johnson in holding office for four consecutive years has, it is believed, created a record for continuous service as Chief Magistrate. He was mayor during the years 1897, 1898, 1899 and 1900. R. J. Graham served three years, 1901, 1902 and 1903. Prior to this time J. E. Walmsley served as mayor during the years 1888, 1895 and 1896. In earlier days F. McAnnany, afterwards Sheriff McAnnany Simcoe Island, served as mayor during the years 1857, 1858 and 1859, and W. A. Foster, after whose family Foster Ward and Foster Park were named, served as mayor during the years 1875, 1876 and 1877. The list of mayors serving two years is larger and includes those they are listed as follows: Henry Corby 1867 and 1868; J. W. Bunden 1884 and 1885; Rufus Belden 1864 and 1865; Charles Ponton 1880 and 1881; D. E. Campbell 1918 and 1919; George A. Reid 1930 and 1931; J. F. Wills 1913 and 1914.

Finds M. C.'s Seldom Please

(Windsor Star)

In the past decade or so a new vocation has developed, and we think it a bit of humor, but we didn't intrude himself on the program. He didn't consider he had to be part of the act. He let the entertainers do the entertaining.

Nowadays a master of ceremonies has to act, or seems to think he has as a prerequisite chairman, cheer leader and clown. Usually he is a poor chairman, an ineffective cheer leader and an indifferent clown. He is a rather pathetic figure even when he thinks he is being a success.

Seem people go to hear an entertainment, they shouldn't be subjected cruelly to the raucous voice, exhibitionism and inanity of a master of ceremonies. We suppose he is the local newscaster or auctioneer at a side show, but he is no credit to the original.

We would favor abolition of the job of master of ceremonies and would make those engaged in it earn a more honest and decent living.

Do Not Snub Our Dollar

(Truro, N.S. Daily News)

A recent news despatch in "Time" magazine describes the Canada-U.S. import problem as the "touchiest" issue between the two friendly nations.

We disagree. We think the touchiest issue between Canadians and Americans is—

Nothing—repeat, nothing—riles a Canadian as much as to have his money termed "no good in this country" by American business men.

And for years this has been going on. Either the U.S. dollar, Canadian dollar, on the world market, was worth more than the U.S. dollar, many people in the U.S.A. refused to accept Canadian bills or silver.

The least known but unanswered border, and the fact that American and Canadian are the same "way of life" and similar ideas about the defence of democracy.

Yet when Jack Canuck goes to visit Uncle Sam he is made to feel when he produces his Canadian money that he is a foreigner from a far-off land. Indeed many Americans don't even know what a Canadian dollar is, or look like. They peer at it and examine it, and it is obvious that the currency is entirely new to them.

This humiliation which Canadians has been going on for many years. And in spite of all the articles in American magazines to the effect that Canada is "growing up" and is "coming of age" and, even more, Canadian money is still snubbed in the U.S.

If our friendly neighbor wants to squelch a really touchy issue between us, there is a very simple manner to make Canadian money not only recognizable, but negotiable throughout the United States.

Rough Juniors

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

There is a big difference between junior and senior hockey, the latter being much cleaner and more scientific as a rule. Juniors are full of enthusiasm and prepared for anything. Senior players have learned that the fellow who plays will in due time get, and that dirty play scores no goals.

Education Of Adults

(Sudbury Star)

People interested in extending the scope of education in Canada must applaud the ideals in education set before "Canada's Tomorrow" conference at Quebec by Dr. Norman A. Mackenzie of University of British Columbia.

In his four objectives for the education of the Canadian citizen, Dr. Mackenzie gave first place to the need of preparing the young to make a living but included other objectives which too many are apt to forget. These include the preparation for enlightened citizenship in a democracy, the refinement of the "emotions, intellect and taste", and the extension, through the student, of the "cause of love" among men.

Education in Canada has become a deeply controversial matter. Many are dissatisfied with present-day education and claim that it is materialistic trend. Some want to go back to the days of the "little red school house" and the four Rs. The enlighted ones know we can't go back but that we must press forward especially to the spiritual and cultural side of life if we are not to create in the future a nation of omnilterate barbarians.

Education in Canada is going to need more money, not less. Dr. Mackenzie is right in stressing this and in reminding us that the assistance of all good governments, "including our federal government," will be needed.

Queer Tongue Is English

(Gall Reporter)

That the English language is a strange thing and difficult for people to learn and understand, has been an admitted fact for a very long time. There are so many inequities and so sometimes surprising that people who have English as their native tongue and is said to have assisted sixty million people to add. He would like to see a general revision of the people's spelling.

The truth of the matter is, of course, that English is under almost constant revision. Dictionary revisions are not necessarily designed to simplify spelling.

Proper English usage and English spelling have been under discussion ever since the American influences tend to break down many of the standards which were once regarded as sacred.

Words such as colour, honour and humour, are now almost always spelled without their "u's". So widespread has this become that it is now a rarity to find them spelled in the English way.

A case of speed and simplicity can, of course, be found in the dropping of the "u," but the trend could be carried too far and many other letters dropped, thus completely changing or affecting their spoken sound. The ultimate result could easily be chaos.

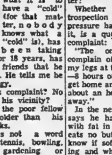
THE RACKETEERS WILL

Dr. Brady

Here's a man aged 60 who weighs 25 or 30 pounds too much for his height, still has his own teeth, is a confirmed bachelor, has good health, is a bit gray, but not gray, very good looking, a good job, doesn't know what it is to have a "cold" (for that matter, nobody knows what a "cold" is), has a keen liking for taking the ladies ration for 18 years, has been told by his friends that he looks 42 years old. He tells me he has plenty of energy.

Well, what's his complaint? No bowling green in his vicinity?



No. I'm afraid the poor fellow is really a bit older than his friends say he looks.

Notice he says not a word about his golf, tennis, bowling, fishing, hunting, gardening or other hobby, avocation or sport. If the man had a normal interest in any activity apart from his job, work or occupation it would be normal for him to refer to it when he speaks of having plenty of energy.

It is dangerous, I think, for any man or woman to enter middle age without avocation or hobby that completely turns one away from regular work.

But let this misguided young man continue his sad story.

It seems he has a blood pressure of—who cares? Only three millimeters of mercury? The trick specialist who supplied the custom-day and wouldn't be stuck with anything as useless as .15 of a shoe.)

The Russians, moreover, were better off than communist China, where a family of four averaged only .004 of one pair. Canadian leather shoes being worn there by practically every man, woman and child. The significance of this report is found in the department's note that from buying it has little to living conditions. And poor as the record looks, it seems that world output of leather shoes has been increasing year by year. From 895 million pairs in 1930, production soared to more than one and a quarter billion in 1952.

We hope next to hear that stairways have finally caught up with custom and discovered that shoes are usually worn in pairs, so that there will be left a single shoe occasionally—with only .004 of a shoe.

Statistics —A Shoe In

(Christian Science Monitor)

We have never seen anyone going around wearing .15 of a shoe on his foot, however, so the fault in statistics can be believed. And this is not the meanest way to point out that the delicate toeless, heelless shoes for which his wife pays a large price like just about .15 of a shoe to him.

Americans, the Commerce Department reports, bought an average of 3.15 pairs of leather shoes last year, while the Russians purchased an average of one shoe apiece. Canadians are given an even statistically—with only .004 of a shoe.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the basic differences between women and men is revealed in the way they get onto an escalator. The women, as a rule, step up to the escalator, whether it is going up or going down, and steps aboard with hardly a downward glance at the steps.

But five out of ten women, maybe more than that, if you count those who are married and those who are familiar with escalators, approach with obvious hesitancy, pause, stumble, stagger and go at it with a jerky skip and hop. Some of them pause a moment and then reach for the rolling hand-rail. Then they skip and stumble.

They were now entering the next escalator. I took the liberty of seizing her elbow and steadying her as she made the jump.

"I suppose you think we women are pretty dumb," she enquired as an escalator. There isn't really much to it, after all. It's not unlike the rapidly ascending steps of the escalator, I gallantly assisted her over feet, and in exact time to the up an escalator. There isn't really much to it, after all. It's not unlike her hat and snatched up the parcels as though they were trying to get away from her.

"I hate these things," she said. "At the moment you step behind the end of the first floor ascent, and she had to devote her mind and body to the problem at hand. This involved a stagger or two.

"You should take the elevator, ma'am," I suggested.

"I hate them worse," she said. "Oops!"

"Oops!"

"I just had a feeling that I was going to step into the machine as meat is drawn into a meat grinder, and my lungs deflated.

The lady ahead of me, as we approached the escalator, made the main floor to proceed to the second, did a sort of rumba before embarking. She shifted a couple of parcels from hand to hand while making up her mind to take the leap. When she took it, it was what, in jumping and swimming and diving, we used to call a belly-whacker. Her parcels flew from her grasp, and she found herself kneeling on

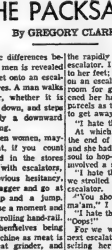
TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

OUR BETTERS

It is a very intelligent idea to look around those who are more successful than we have, or who have attained eminence, as people worth our notice and careful study. The runner in a race seeks to pass the man in front of him. He looks upon him as a better man until he can pass him.

Our betters are our text-books. We need to study them. The man who is able to inspire us is a better man or woman and we owe it to ourselves to find out their secret. We can get many a cue from each, and without envy, I recently listened to a successful author and lecturer of ceremonies and a young athlete. He was asked what his ambition was, and he replied—"To beat the Champion!"



I once talked to a champion tennis player, and she told me that she learned more in her daily practise with someone who was better than herself. I feel complimented when given the opportunity to talk with someone whom I know is better informed than I am. I like to be associated with those of something that I did not know before. Are we here to grow otherwise?

If we didn't have our betters about us all the time, how could we hope to become adventurers? Fresh sources of magic could be inspired with an unbeatable imagination? We need these betters of ours in books, periodicals, and through meeting them personally. They are the spark. We listen, and that starts the fire burning within us, and we take a step higher by putting to work what we have learned. They were never meant to be neglected, or to cry up!

To every one's another's success gets some of us anywhere, but to the one how that success came about is a wise idea. Let us praise the worthy and give encouragement to such. It will reflect back to us. Nothing is so self-destroying as jealousy of another's success or happiness. We ought to keep an alert eye open for our betters. There are teachers all about us and we should "step, look, and listen!"

CIVILIZATION AND EDUCATION

Comparatively few readers of this column would recognize the name of Dr. Frank C. Laubach. Yet this man—a Christian missionary—is one of the most distinguished persons in the world citizens. He has taught sixty million (yes, million) people in sixty-eight countries to read and write through an original technique which he has devised. His triumph and the extent to which he can be credited with helping adults to read have them reading within a few weeks, sounds like a fairy tale. In a recent interview with Dr. Laubach said: "The most bruited people on this planet, the naked, the fallen-among-thieves, the sick, the impaired in mind and soul, are the 1,200,000,000 illiterates. More than half of the human race, hungry, dirty, diseased, as well as uneducated men in this world and of course in the next."

There is no way of this vast untold civilization of ours which leaves half the world's population in this state? What are we to say about education in the light of Laubach's words that if one were to speak kindly to one of these illiterates he would probably be the first educated man who ever looked at him with a sympathetic eye.

In modern man really civilized is he educated?

Paul Takes The Stage

CHAPTER 14.

Already Paul and Barnabas were at work among the Gentiles in the mighty Syrian city of Antioch.

Barnabas was an able teacher, full of gentle and earnest conviction. But Paul was a human volcano, erupting with fires that rose from some inner caldron of the soul and exploded in light. Soon Peter and the other apostles heard of Paul's extraordinary eloquence and the converts he was winning. And for the first time, they heard a new word on the world's tongue. In Antioch, the followers and converts were given a new name:

"And the disciples," Luke reported, "were called Christians first in Antioch."

A man named Agabus from the Jerusalem center, gifted with some degree of prophecy, had journeyed with friends down to Antioch. Moved by this spirit of prophecy, Agabus stood before Paul and Barnabas and the throng of Christians to foretell a famine in the world.

Although it would be some time before the prophecy of Agabus was indeed fulfilled in the reign of Claudius, his listeners in Antioch accepted it literally. No matter how distant the tragic crisis might be, the Christians of Antioch, wanted to help their less fortunate brothers.

Paul urged them on in their charity. To him, fellowship was all-embracing. Perhaps he was the first to express the truth that the Church was universal, that Christians everywhere were tied by bonds of charity and love, literally brothers the world over.

For the rest of his life Paul would charge local church members with the responsibility of contributing from their own wealth and blessings to the needs of the whole Church. He would carry vast collections of money from his own missions to the headquarters in Jerusalem, earthly evidence of unity in the faith.

The first of these collections Paul raised in Antioch, after the prophecy of Agabus.

With a bag jingling with copper, silver, and gold, Paul and Barnabas made their way to Jerusalem, bringing this first big collection, proof that provincialism had no place in a Church where the suffering of one part was the suffering of the whole.

"Let no one detain the vigorous little scholar from Tarsus or the august bearded islander from Cyprus."

In the years lying ahead of the Christians, Paul of Tarsus was to move in such spectacular journeys that wherever men talked of Jesus they also spoke of the tentmaker.

But of Peter, the man of rock, not so much is known.

Soon his long residence in Jerusalem would come to an end. After his farewell appearance at Mark's house, Peter was hidden in "another place." Luke is no more specific than those two words in his report. Nor does he give any account of Peter's subsequent activities; there are only brief references in certain episodes in his later life. Many think that the ever-present fear that publicity might endanger his safety kept Christian silent on his wanderings. The curtain which fell upon his life has been pierced only by theological research, tradition and legend.

Peter and Paul would meet again. But until that time it is the tentmaker, the ex-persecutor, the man who once hated Christians, who takes the stage for Christ.

Paul's great call came soon after he and Barnabas returned from Jerusalem and settled again in Syrian Antioch.

That city, on the banks of the Orontes, Antioch, called "the Great" and "the beautiful" was soon recognized as the mother-church of Gentile Christianity, nursery of missionary efforts that would penetrate the mainland of Europe.

Those first Christians in Syrian Antioch were a strange and multicolored crew. Jews, some of them fugitives from persecutions in Palestine, some of them born Syrians, mingled with the fair-haired Greek converts whom Barnabas had been sent to instruct. Adventurers from the island of Cyprus prayed shoulder to shoulder with dark-skinned men from the northern coast of Africa.

In the Christian assembly at Antioch, as elsewhere, were men who were veritable prophets, endowed by the Holy Ghost with the power of revelation. And in these days a special message concerning Paul and Barnabas came to three of those gifted souls.

One was Simeon Niger, a member of that original band of seventy-two disciples sent by Jesus Himself in His own lifetime to preach the Gospel. Another was Lucius, an African from Cyrene who had wandered to Syria in quest of truth — and found faith as well.

The third was a man named Manaen, a nobleman with a strange and dramatic history. Manaen was the foster-brother of the gruesome Herod Antipas. He had been raised with that ugly tyrant, pampered as he was, fawned on by slaves and courtiers, high priests and Sadducees. He had seen the head of John the Baptist carried on a silver platter before the nose of his foster-brother, and had fled in horror.

Manaen had left Herod's court to follow the Christ, a convert like so many of that royal household, including Joanna, the steward's wife who wept at Jesus' tomb with Mary the mother of Jesus. Manaen had tossed aside pomp and prestige, and stayed in Jerusalem with Peter and the apostles — until the day when the murderous Captain Saul had lunged with fire at the fledging Church.

Then Manaen went to Antioch in Syria, fleeing from the persecution after Stephen's death.

Now, fourteen years later, Manaen, together with Lucius and Simeon Niger and looked at Paul, the man from whom he had once fled. And the Holy Ghost spoke through Manaen and the two other prophets this divine message:

"Seperate Me Paul and Barnabas, for the work whereunto I have taken them."

Profound meaning lay wrapped in that brief supernatural instruction. Paul and Barnabas were specially chosen for a unique mission designed by the Holy Spirit! Let no one detain the vigorous little scholar from Tarsus or the august, bearded islander from Cyprus. Let them not ask it why, or how — but set them apart to follow the direction they will surely be given.

Together, in strong and manly comradeship, Paul and Barnabas rose before their brethren. Simeon Niger and Lucius of Cyrene and Manaen, the ex-princeling, prayed eloquently for blessings on the travelers, and, blessing them, sent them away.

Paul and Barnabas took Barnabas' young cousin Mark with them. They needed someone as an amanuensis, a combination secretary and traveller-companion, and the ordinary experience should prove invaluable to Mark as well. The young man's eyes were ageless with pride and excitement as they set out, a rugged trio.

They turned their backs on Syrian Antioch, the farewells of the brethren ringing in their ears. The three travelers bargained with the master of a sailing ship poised for departure, and finally strode aboard. The ship's destination, and theirs, was Cyprus, the island where Barnabas was born.

Barnabas expanded, his eyes softening with nostalgia as, with an arm around his cousin's shoulder, he talked to his two companions about his homeland. Back into his childhood he delved for memories of life on that gentle isle, peaceful at last under Roman rule in the person of a proconsul. And he reminded Paul and Mark that some Christians were living in Cyprus, worshipping secretly, too fearful of repression by the authorities to seek new converts.

All through that smooth passage across the Mediterranean fair winds blew, and the three men talked and prayed. But once the mountains of Cyprus hove into view, they pressed close to the rail, afire with eagerness to get ashore. Here in this bustling business capital of Cyprus they were to start their dangerous work.

It was Paul's usual decision to head straight for the synagogue. Paul was an ex-Pharisee, a theologian, and he thought of the holy place of God as the natural pulpit for the message of redemption.

Across all the island of Cyprus, sometimes on foot, sometimes alternating rides on a borrowed donkey, Paul, Barnabas, and Mark made their way, preaching the word of God in every community. They intended to make their headquarters in a large town, and chose Paphos, political capital of the province and the dwelling place of the proconsul.

And there, for the first time, Paul, the convert Jew and citizen of Rome, ran headlong into black magic. He found himself confronted with Bar-Jesus, the sorcerer, also called Elymas, which meant "strong."

This spell-juggler was a fellow of obscure origin who had lifted himself by conjuring, slight of hand, and hoodwinking to a powerful political position. By the time the three travelling Christians reached Paphos, Bar-Jesus was permanently attached to the retinue of the Roman boss of the town, the proconsul Sergius Paulus, a rich man, proprietor of great lands, appointed to represent the majesty of empire.

Sergius Paulus was more than a soldier who had well fought-for his governmental nest. He had a keenly curious mind, interested in the mystery of life. Hence his attraction to this Bar-Jesus, who seemed to possess the dark secrets of nature, who even could command her forces to do his will —or so it appeared when he performed his tricks under the guise of miracles. But the ruler's restless quest for the spark of life also led Sergius Paulus to wish to meet the Christians.

Bar-Jesus grumbled when Sergius Paulus invited the strangers to instruct him in the new faith, but the Roman waved aside his sorcerer's protests. These visitors had a new doctrine, and Sergius Paulus was determined to learn about it. They carried no amulets or potions or tools of witchcraft, but only the historic promises of Christ. Let us hear these men!

Bar-Jesus claimed to be a diviner, to read the future. Perhaps if he could have read his own he would have worked harder to keep the missionaries away from the door.

Even so, when Paul and his friends arrived at the palace, Bar-Jesus stamped his foot and railed against the interlopers. He denounced them as false prophets; he spat and spat on the floor before them.

Sergius Paulus sat back in his gilded and purple chair, watching to see how this attack would be met. He saw a man inspired. The compact figure of Paul seemed to grow visibly taller as he was filled with the Holy Ghost. Looking straight at the infuriated magician, Paul spoke with the calm, contained grace the comes only from a supernatural source:

"O full of all guile and of all deceit! Child of the devil, enemy of all justice, you cease not to pervert the right ways of the Lord!

"And now behold, the hand of the Lord is upon you, and you shall be blind, not seeing the sun for a time."

Instantly darkness fell upon the pretender. He began to moan as he groped helplessly across the room, hoping for someone to lead him by the hand.

Bar-Jesus was blind.

And the man by whose words darkness had fallen on the sorcerer was the man the Lord Himself had blinded on the road to Damascus, fourteen years before!

Sergius Paulus was too intelligent not to have had some suspicion of the ingumatagry of Bar-Jesus. But now he knew beyond doubt that he was in the presence of an indisputable miracle — the first ever performed by Paul.

The devastating tornado struck suddenly, causing millions of dollars' damage in minutes — a fearful example of the power of nature.

Most fire insurance policies provide protection against windstorm damage for a nominal additional premium. Wind damage in Canada is not uncommon, and Fire and Casualty insurance companies pay many windstorm claims each year. Tornadoes such as at Sarnia are fortunately rare.

Claims paid resulting from the Sarnia tornado totalled approximately $3,000,000 — an example of how the small contribution by the many who want protection provides full indemnity and compensation for those who do suffer loss.

Weddings

BAMFORD—FITT

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Saturday evening, November 28, by the Reverend J. F. Lane, when Carol Evelyn Pitt, of Madoc, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Pitt, of Madoc, became the bride of Carson Elvyn Bamford, of Highland Grove, Ontario.

COULBY—SAUNDERS

Tall white standards of white chrysanthemums lined the chancel rail, and white bells the altar in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, on Saturday, December 5, at 11:00 a.m., for the marriage of Jean Myrtle Saunders, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Douglas Saunders, to William George Coulby, of Oshawa, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Coulby of Belleville. The Reverend William Robinson, rector of the Church, officiated; assisted by the Reverend Charles Staples, rector of Fiersan Anglican Church.

The wedding music was rendered by Professor Ernest Wheatley, church organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of white silk velvet, fashioned with fitted basque having lace insets at the neck and long sleeves ending in "V" points over the hands. The full-length skirt fell into a graceful chapel train. Her embroidered finger tip veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet encrusted with seed pearls and bugle beads, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white feather mum petals centred with white roses and trailing ivy.

Miss Dorothy Little, of Toronto, was bridesmaid, attractively gowned in moonstone blue in a bockital length, made on princess lines with sweetheart shirr and three-quarter sleeves. She wore a bandeau of silver lame leaves and carried a bouquet of three-toned pink carnations.

Mr. William L. Bowman, of Toronto, fellow graduate of Queen's University, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Allan D. Saunders, of Belleville, brother of the bride, and Mr. R. G. Freeman, of Barrie, also a fellow graduate of Queen's, acted as ushers.

The reception was held at Glidden Arms Inn, Kingston Road. Where the bride's mother, attired in teal blue crepe with corsage of feathered mist-pink carnations, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore cocoa brown crepe and corsage of Talisman and Gloria roses with pink petals, received.

For travelling to New York and Washington, D.C., the bride donned a forest green wool crepe dress with fitted pencil skirt and slim sleeves. In navy and pink, gold and turquoise it's sized from 32" to 52" and costs little more than $1.

Many British parents have been grumbling that children's play clothes in smart styles cost more than average families care to pay in summer wear. As a result this firm has styled a wide range of serviceable-priced clothes that will cover most playtime necessities for both sexes.

Prices range from £1 for colored denim jeans and/or shirts to a teen-age nylon dress with V neck, four-gore gathered skirt and gathered sleeves, costing nearly £6.

The trend of junior beach wear is as casual as the latest Palm Beach styling for parents. Stripes are used in conjunction with plain fabrics in dresses like the one for an eight-year-old that is a "miniature of mummy's." Frocks With Victorian Influence Will Be Christmas Wear for Kindergarten Set

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Paisley, frilly party frocks with Victorian influence will be Christmas wear for scores of Britain's kindergarten set.

A Swiss voile dress with frilled centre panel in skirt, puffed sleeves and big back bow might tempt any shy three-year-old from her doll collection. As embroidered petticoat shows beneath the hem of crown-up style. The outfit costs about £4.

This was one of many pretty party numbers shown recently in London at a children's juvenile show. Staged by a well-known cotton firm that supplies the dress trade with moderately-priced cotton dresses for her round-the-world tour, the industry's sheer fecundity is nearly spring and summer outfits.

SMART AS PARENTS

It seems that British tots this summer can make quite a splash in the British and continental beaches, in casual outfits costing just above £1. Young men with a habit of collecting cigarette cards in the dirt there is no reason can be dressed in a palm beach shirt over tiny bermuda shorts. The shorts cuff matches the shirt.

In gay reds, blues, white, orange and green, this outfit would be like a flutter and cost between £1 and £2 depending on size.

Women's taller sister might choose a smocked candy-striped frock with frilled pockets and sleeves. In navy and pink, gold and turquoise it's sized from 22" to 32" and costs little more than £1.

Lily James Keeps 40-Year Vow to Make People Happy

By KINGSLEY BROWN Jr.
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP)—In a dingy dormitory of this city's "poor house," Lily James would be dedicated to life to making unfortunate people happy.

That was more than 40 years ago, when the pretty girl in the straightlaced, ankle-length dress hurried to the City Home daily to tend to a blind woman.

Since then Lily James has done a pretty good job of living up to her vow.

She has cared for the sick, opened her home to out-of-work teen-age boys, formed clubs for displaced persons, and become a "mother away from home" to seamen.

For the last 12 years she has operated almost single-handed the Mission to Seamen, a hostel financed by the Church of England but open to all denominations.

The "flying angels" mission, as sailors call it because of its initials, is a big, three-storey building near the waterfront.

It has high ceilings, long halls, steep stairs, 24 rooms and 16 beds. Miss James makes all the beds, dusts and waxes the floors, paints the pillow cases, runs the canteen, looks up her seamen's clothes and finds time to crack a joke.

Her day starts about 9:30 a.m. and usually ends 14 hours later.

That's a lot for a woman who stands more than 100 pounds and isn't far away from her old age pension.

ENJOYS WORK

"But I love every minute of it," she says. "I do it because it makes me happy. And I've been blessed with good health."

Miss James' cheeks are naturally rosy, her movements as quick as her smile and her hair is not grey.

She's done such a wonderful job in welfare circles that George Nowlan, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Digby-Annapolis-Kings, referred to her last week in the Commons.

He mentioned her work and said that it was wrong that the Order of the British Empire should be awarded only to members of the armed forces.

After his speech, reporters asked if he would identify the woman. "Certainly," he said. "She's Miss Lily James."

Pr. Wales H-S Assoc. Sponsors Talent Night

Prince of Wales School was the scene of a successful "Talent Night" on Friday. Numerous selections were provided by the pupils, many of which were taught by adults. Mr. Bestey acted as chairman for the occasion.

Following is a list of the children who won prizes: instrumental numbers: piano, Lois Bailey, 1st prize; guitar, Arthur Bartlett, 2nd; vocal numbers, Colleen Gray, 1st prize; Carol Zaccarian, 2nd; Connie Spencer, 3rd.

Tap dancing, Jane Gray, 1st; Joanne Twining, 2nd.

Recitations, Marina Bongard,

Tabernacle M. Band, Explorers Hold Christmas Party

On Friday afternoon, the Tabernacle Mission Band and Explorers held their Christmas party in the Sunday School auditorium. The mothers of the children came as guests and there were even a couple of fathers on hand.

Mrs. I. E. Tinkess at the piano, conducted some familiar Christmas music while the children and their guests were coming in. Mrs. N. Howard welcomed everyone on behalf of all the leaders.

Sharon Garlepy offered a welcome from the Mission Band and Explorer members in the form of a recitation. Mrs. Tinkess led a Christmas sing-song.

DECORATION FAMILY

Seven members of the Mission Band then took their places on the stage, dressed in white garments and each carrying a symbol of the Nativity, marched in a semi-circle around a small Christmas tree, they told in one voice that they were the "Decoration Family." Each "Decoration" added and recited his or her part in the Christmas season.

Beryl Brown favored with a piano solo entitled "The Winds." Seven members of the Explorer group sang "While Shepherds Watched Their Folks By Night" with Gloria Rowley and Margaret Howard doing solo parts. The offering was taken up by Linda Wright and Sharon Garlepy.

A Christmas film entitled "The Littlest Angel," was shown and much appreciated, especially by the younger set.

Since Santa Claus is always such a popular person this time of year, and will be visiting Tabernacle Mission Band next Friday night, there were two happy children who came to do his job for him. Every face was turned toward the door when it was announced that Santa Claus had arrived.

One, who couldn't seem to manage his feet, fell flat on the floor, and turned somersaults. The clowns then passed out oranges and bags of candy to the children.

The party ended by the Mission Band Boys forming a circle at the front and saying their usual closing credo, "I believe in making this world a better place to live in and I will do my part."

1st prize; Linda Dickens, 2nd prize.

Duet, Judy Moore and Catherine Rose, 1st prize.

Magic tricks, Alan Martin, 1st prize.

Appropriate books were presented to the successful winners.

JUDGES

The judges for the evening, Mr. Bill Gander and Mrs. W. Benger, commented on the difficulty in selecting winners because of the outstanding ability of all the contestants.

The adults contributing to the program were, Bill Saleen, accordion; Mrs. Pete Parry, elocutionist; Mrs. M. Badgley, solo; Ted Burch, solo, and Miss Betty McCormick, school music instructress, piano solo.

The children were accompanied by Mrs. M. Badgley and Miss Betty McCormick.

The "Talent Night" was sponsored by the Prince of Wales Home and School Association and was well attended by about 250 people.

The proceeds of the evening went towards the purchase of playground equipment.

'What Does W. I. Do?' Topic at Pine Grove

The November meeting of the Pine Grove Women's Institute was held at Mrs. F. Heasman's home with the president, Mrs. H. Dellor, presiding and a good attendance of members.

It was decided to give donations to the Belleville Community Chest, and to the "Bazaar for Overseas Fund."

Mrs. D. Finkle gave the Current Events.

Mrs. A. Tanner, convener of Community Activities and Public Relations, took charge of the program.

She read an article on "Town and Country", showing how one had been able to help the other.

DISTRICT PRESIDENT

The convener introduced Mrs. John Reid, district president, or the West Hastings' District Women's Institute, who quoted the late President Roosevelt, who said of speaking, "Be sincere, be brief, and be seated."

She also spoke on the topic of the evening, "Community Activities, and Public Relations." "What do we do? Would our branch be missed if it were not there? The Women's Institute is a training ground for leaders, a worthy leader must develop the spirit of love and good-will. Give new members something to do. Do not feel that you have no time. The past is gone. The future has not come. You have only 'Now'.

"The Women's Institute should get things done. For example, the brush on the cross-roads should be cleared away. Concentrate on one certain thing. Avoid long range financial burdens. The needs of the branch, such as life memberships, and expenses to provincial conferences, conventions and district annuals should come first, followed by the needs of the community.

"Remember that the Extension Service courses offered includes everyone, not just Women's Institute members. If there are any new Canadians in your community use their talents."

Mrs. A. Tanner thanked Mrs.

Chapter 55 O.E.S. Holds Yuletide Party

The Belleville Chapter 55, O.E.S. Christmas party was held Friday evening in the auditorium of the Masonic Temple.

The spacious hall was beautifully decorated for the festive season with the traditional Christmas trees and colored lights, Santa Claus, and all the trimmings.

Approximately 250 members and friends sat down to a bountiful banquet.

Worthy Patron, Mr. "Hap" Tompkins, welcomed the guests and extended the season's greetings to one and all.

The program included solo, Mrs. Rogers Riedel, "Jesu Bambino."

Mr. John Good, introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. A. Marshall Laverty, B.A., B.D., padre of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont. His subject "The Man Who Missed Christmas" taken from the "Gospel of St. Luke", was most humorous and inspiring.

Mrs. Riedel favored the guests with the solo, "An Old French Carol."

Mr. Earle Wilson, on behalf of the Chapter, extended sincere thanks to Mr. Laverty's fine philosophic address and to Mrs. Riedel for her lovely solos. Mr. Wilson also added thanks to the decorating committee; to the refreshment committee; to Mr. and Mrs. Johnston for his help and to the pianist for her lovely music.

Santa Claus, (Mr. Everett Liddle), came and distributed gifts to one and all. Everybody an enjoyable evening to a close.

Reid for her interesting talk.

A contest on words was won by Mrs. J. Reid, Mrs. H. Dellor and Mrs. H. Coulter.

Refreshments were served and a social half-hour enjoyed.

The December meeting will be held at Mrs. F. Campbell's home on December the tenth in the afternoon with a Christmas program under the convenership of Mrs. L. Finkle and Mrs. E. Clare.

Girls Advised to Sprinkle Selves With Metallic Dust

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the world's most famous beauticians is advising girls to sprinkle themselves with metallic dust. She explains:

"All the excitement of a season (Christmas) when sparkling things are bound to happen is reflected in this star-dusting for eyes, lips, anywhere."

Especially for holiday use, she is merchandising her sparkle dust in gold, silver or multi-color particles, promising a "starry-eyed evening" for the girl who dusts it on over "striking blue" or "striking green" eyeshadow. She also suggests sprinkling your fingernail polish with sequins while it is still wet.

A bit of sequin dust on your lipstick may not be kissable, but it's bound to attract attention.

Certain hair preparations now come packaged with gold or silver dust to be sprinkled on the hair and held in place by lacquer.

A girl who wants to go all out for Christmas may buy tiny Christmas bells to wear as earrings—they tinkle like regular jingle bells. Or she may wear small Christmas tree balls strung together for a necklace or made into earrings.

REINDEER SKIRTS

There are tremendous felt skirts this year on which are everything from Christmas trees to reindeer.

Some of the more daring milliners regularly concoct holiday hats on which are mounted small Christmas trees, angels and champagne glasses, all suitably swathed in sequined veiling.

The seasonal giddiness is not confined to women, either. If shops and ad writers have their way, every male will be decked out in a red velvet vest with brass buttons this Christmas.

Red flannel nightshirts and nightcaps are presented as standard attire for the whole family on Christmas morning. And of course there is the usual crop of necklaces that light up in the dark.

Personally, I advocate leaving the tinsel on the Christmas tree, the bells on the sleigh and the whiskers on Santa Claus.

'NATO BRIDE' ARRIVES

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto's first bride of a NATO soldier serving in Europe arrived Friday night. She is Mrs. Jack Radford, formerly of Lancashire. The couple met in Germany, where the 23-year-old blonde bride was serving in the British Army.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HER HUSBAND WANTS MONEY —SHE WANTS HIS COMPANION-SHIP

Letters from wives who complain that their husbands won't work are far from unusual. What is unusual is the letter telling of a husband who won't stop working.

One wife who has this problem realizes that it's a switch on the more common version, and puts it this way as she begins her story:

"There are some men who are just plain lazy and won't work to support their families. My husband is just the opposite. He insists on working all the time, having one job during the day and another one at night.

"We live in the suburbs, so he is always off in the morning at 7:30 to get to his job in the city by 8, where he works until 5 o'clock. Then he is home at 6:30 for dinner and goes out again at quarter of eight to work at a job here in town until 10:30. You can see how much time that leaves him for his family.

"He says he is working extra so we can have money in the bank, but I'm not the kind of wife who keeps nagging at her husband for bigger and better luxuries. I'm much rather take things as they come, save a little 'and get extra comforts and conveniences from time to time as we are able. We have no debts, and his regular salary pays enough for us to live in comfortable, decent style, enabling us to put a little aside regularly.

"All this is not only affecting my husband's health but my own, because I am getting so nervous about being alone at night and having so little companionship, while he is nervous because he doesn't get enough rest and relaxation.

"Do you think I am selfish in wanting my husband to give up his night job so we can live a more real life?"

NOT SELFISH

I can't imagine anyone thinking this wife is selfish in her attitude. While, as she says, some wives do nag at their husbands to make more and more money, I believe their number is very small in proportion to the wives who prefer their husband's companionship.

But there are men of the anxious type who, obsessed with a fear of the future, want to make their hay and store it away in the barn while the economic sun shines. If their wives object, most of them are genuinely puzzled, some hurt and resentful. Far from thinking that they're neglecting their families, they believe that their very eagerness is proof that they're centering all their attention on them, to an effort to make their future secure.

I doubt if this wife is going to succeed, through argument or pleading, in having her husband out of his present way of life and into another. Without doubt, he feels he knows what is best for his family.

If there is some older relative to whom he might listen, and who could be depended upon to do it diplomatically so that he would not become angry, she might get this relative to present her side of the situation to her husband. Or, if she could get the family doctor to make her husband see that his health may well be impaired by such a heavy schedule so that he might in time be unable to provide for his family at all, that might help.

One of these approaches to the problem might get results. In any event, by talking it over with someone who knows more or them, this wife might get some ideas that would show her an effective way of handling it.

TIPS ON ADDRESSING CHRISTMAS CARD ENVELOPES

Your Christmas card envelopes bear your handwriting. . . you should be proud of the way they wear it. Those envelopes of yours should be so carefully and pleasantly addressed that they will smile your Christmas greetings to your friends even before your Christmas cards speak your greetings.

Here are 5 tips on how to give your envelopes the well-groomed look they should have:

1. Write in your "very best" handwriting. Carefully. Legibly. Legibility gets you nowhere . . . and, alas, too often gets your letters in exactly the same place. "Address your Christmas card envelopes legibly" is the ever-hopeful plea of the Post Office Department. Practical advice, this, thrifty advice too for carelessly-addressed envelopes may very well mean (a) that they will come to a forlorn end among other forlorn, undeliverable letters; or (b) that they may be futilely detouring about the country in an effort to find out what in the world you did mean by some of the illegible and abbreviated screwls scribbled in the address area. Write carefully, dear writers . . . your friends want to receive your Christmas cards.

2. Do not abbreviate. Only exceptions: "Mr." and "Mrs." Abbreviating is a lazy person's way of writing, a careless person's way. Pleasant thought: It takes only a second or two to write a word in full . . . just about as long as it takes to make the period after the abbreviation. Try it!

Warning: Abbreviations are the chief reason for mishaps to envelopes. Particularly in the names of states and provinces. So often is so difficult to know whether it is N.J. or N.Y.; Mo. or Me. or Md.; Neb. or Nev.; Cal. Col. Ontario takes only a spill second more than Ont.; Alberta is so much more charming-looking than Alta.

North, South, East, West should be written in full. Street and Avenue too, and Road, Square, Park. Please write "and . . . not the sign of and (sign for and) in Mr. and Mrs.

3. Do not write "City" or "Town" or "Local" as an address. The letter must be re-addressed. this leads to confusion.

4. Do not write any unnecessary curlicues . . . too often they cause misreading. No. "To" or "For" before the name. No "To" or before the street-address. No comma after the street-number—we mean in all that.

5. Use the Zone Number when ever possible. . . that's what it's for. And remember: the Zone Number should be written after the name of the city . . . not after the name of the state. And please no commas before or after the Zone Number.

Bon Voyage to your Christmas card envelopes . . . and so a Happy Landing for your Christmas cards!

Make Your Plum Puddings And Mincemeat Now

By Mary Moore

Bless my soul if somebody hasn't asked for a Christmas dinner menu and I haven't even given you recipes for mincemeat or plum puddings yet.

Because I forgot to remember for a moment that God's in His Heaven and all's well, I got myself into a tizzy because I thought the Bendix business on my starter had broken; then Pete wrote and said he was coming down with a cold on the eve of a hard examination; Marianne discovered she had to discard all of her shoes and buy new ones for nursing duty, for walking and dress, and one of my most precious friends had a coronary thrombosis attack.

But right now the sun is shining again, for it wasn't the Bendix on the car that was broken; it was a run down battery. Pete passed the exam. The doctor says he has patients who have had 100 per cent recoveries from thrombosis. But there are still Marianne's shoes, but she could go in her barefeet like the Indiana. Wouldn't she look cute in her nurse's cap and uniform and barefeet? She could paint her toenails. Horrors! I forgot about the supervisor.

Anyway I had to keep my mind on my business so I made mincemeat and in one batch I put real meat just to show I meant it.

MINCEMEAT (With Beef)

Four lbs. tart apples, 3 lbs. cleaned and dried currants, 2 lbs. raisins, 1 lb. finely chopped suet, 2 lbs. lean beef, 6 cups sugar, 1-2 lb. citron peel, 1 whole nutmeg grated, 1-2 teaspoon ground mace, 1 tablespoon salt, 3 each oranges and lemons. In as little water as possible simmer the beef until tender. Cool it and grind finely. Add the parsed, chopped or ground apples (or leave skins on if you wish), suet, sugar, currants, raisins, spices, grated lemon juice, grated rind of the oranges and grated rind of only one of the lemons, chopped citron peel, and salt. Mix well and cook slowly for 1 hour stirring almost constantly. Pour into sterile jars and seal. Store in cool place.

APPLE MINCEMEAT

This comes from Nova Scotia and their famous Bishop Pippins are recommended. Other tart apples may be substituted.

Four lbs. apples (preferably Bishop Pippins), 1 lb. suet. Put these two through medium-fine knife of chopper, then add the rest of the ingredients: 2 lbs. brown sugar and 1 lb. seedless raisins, and 1-2 teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves. (Increase these spices to 1 teaspoon each if you wish.) Cook all together over very low heat until mixture turns dark. Store in a clean crock in cold place. The suet rises to the top and forms a seal. Enough for at least 7 pies. Stir this almost constantly.

RICH PLUM PUDDING

(Serves eight.)

One-half cup each finely chopped suet, molasses, milk, currants, 1-4 cup each blanched chopped almonds, finely sliced citron peel, quartered candied cherries, 3-4 cup seeded raisins, 2 eggs, 1 tbsp. chopped candied orange peel, 2 cups stirred but not sifted all-purpose flour, 1-2 teaspoon each salt, soda, cinnamon, nutmeg, 1-4 teaspoon allspice, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Sift all of the dry ingredients together. Take out 1-2 cup and mix it with all of the fruits and the nuts. Mix together the suet, molasses, milk and beaten eggs. Add the sifted dry ingredients, then stir in the floured fruits last. Pour into large buttered mold and steam, covered for 3 hours. To store remove from mold and wrap in several thicknesses of wax paper, and place in covered airtight container.

SIMPLE CARROT PUDDING

Sift together 1 cup each sugar and flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon each salt and soda. Add 3/4 cup each finely grated raw carrot and potato, cleaned currants and raisins, and if desired (not necessary), 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg or cinnamon and 1-4 cup each candid mixed chopped peel and candied cherries. Pour into 2 buttered molds or 1 4-lb. honey pail, cover and steam two hours.

Senator Wants Red Atrocities Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Charles E. Potter (Rep. Mich.) said today he will seek early Senate action on a request for a full-dress United Nations investigation of Communist atrocities in Korea.

Potter concluded a three-day United States Senate probe of Red atrocities Friday night with an announcement that he could not "conceal my great disappointment in the resolution of censure and the expression of 'grave concern' passed by the United Nations."

He referred to the UN General Assembly resolution adopted Thursday, U. S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge pushed through the resolution over opposition of the Soviet bloc.

Potter said he will offer in the Senate, when it meets next month, a resolution to ask the UN to "appoint an impartial investigating commission in its next session to bring the Communists found responsible for these inhuman crimes to the bar of justice."

Little Benny's Note Book

I went in ma's room to ask her something, and she wasn't in there, and I picked up her white comb and started to bit imaginerce figs, with it, and all of a suddin it accidently broke in half, and I thought, Heck, ma probably thinks this is her best comb, there's no use making her suffer any sooner than necesserry.

And I hid one half of it under her bed and the other half in her button box under the bureau, thinking, Oh well, she's got other combs, maybe she wont miss it for a long while, or maybe she'll never miss it, or maybe by the time she finds the pieces, she won't even remember they used to be together.

Being exactly the opposite of what happened, on account of ma looking for it as soon as she walked in the room, saying, Now where is my comb, it was here a few minutes ago?

Do you mean the white one? I said and ma said, Yes, the white one.

The long narrow white one? I said, and she said, I only have one white comb for land sakes! Did you see it? she said.

When do you mean? I said, and she said, Now never mind the Sherlock Homes tecneek, you either know where my white comb is or you dont. So do you or dont you? she said.

I do, I said, and ma said, All rite, then where is it?

Partly under your bed and partly in your button box, I said, and she said, Now what kind of a nonsensical answer is that?

No kind, ma, I thought you mite have less of a shock if you didn't find both hunks at once, I said.

Not being quite the end of the subject.

'Hap-Less' Flyers Break Loss Slump, St. Mikes Trounce Citadelles 12-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hockey players are always being benched, but when a coach leaves himself at home during a road game, that's news—especially if the team wins.

That's what Hap Emms, coach of Barrie Flyers in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series did Saturday night. And the Flyers, coached by assistant George Storey, sports editor of the Barrie Examiner, came through.

The Flyers, last year's Memorial Cup champions, were in a slump, having won only one of their last six games before the week-end. Emms stayed home, Storey took over and the Flyers handed Galt Black Hawks a 4-3 defeat in Galt. It was the second defeat the Hawks have suffered on home ice.

In the other Saturday game, the league-leading St. Catharines Tee-Pees stayed one jump ahead of the second-place Toronto St. Michael's College Majors by thumping Hamilton Tigers 8-4 in Hamilton.

The Majors kept on their hot streak by thrashing Quebec Citadelles, the league's tail-sitters, 12-2 in Toronto Sunday. In the second half of the Toronto doubleheader Hamilton and Toronto, Marlboros battled to a scoreless draw.

MANY PENALTIES

Barrie jumped the Hawks for three goals in 10 minutes during the wild fray in Galt. Twenty penalties, including two majors and a misconduct, were handed out.

Arnold Smith led the Flyers with two goals and an assist. John Marstan and Bob White fired the others. Nick Colling, Ron Halstead and Minnie Menard clicked for the Hawks.

Referees also had a busy time in Hamilton where they handed out 17 penalties during the tilt between the Tigers and TeePees. St. Catharines took advantage of some Hamilton defensive lapses to run away with the victory.

Mexico City Possible Entry In International

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The International League, which according to present indications will have baseball next year in the United States, Canada and probably Cuba, may extend to Mexico by 1955, the Buffalo Evening News said Saturday.

Sports writer Cy Kritzer quotes Frank Shaughnessy, International League president, as saying Mexico City might be a possible entry if the plan to give Havana the vacant Baltimore franchise goes through.

MARMORA

Trenton, Pt. Anne Hockey Winners

MARMORA—In a pre-season T.V.L. double-header in the Marmora rink on Friday evening the Madoc team went down to defeat before Trenton by the score of 6-2. The game was more even than the score suggests with Madoc failing to get the breaks. Bales in the nets for Madoc and Hill, goal-tending for Trenton played sterling games to keep the score down.

Trenton showed superiority in the first period as A. Scott, O'Brien, McDonald and Jones tallied goals. Madoc scored through Nickle early in the second.

Trenton scored on the opening of the third as Turland and Bates on an assist from McGinnis. Madoc retaliated through Carswell, Brown giving him the assist. McDonald widened his team's margin soon afterwards and the game ended without further score.

The second game was expected to be the tussle it proved as Point Anne defeated Campbellford by the score of 7-2. Point Anne's second line had the greatest share in the score.

In the first period, Point Anne scored three goals before one was registered against them. Gilmour netted from Strahan to be quickly followed by Jacklin on assists from Gilmour and Strahan and Strahan assisted by Jacklin. One of the prettiest goals of the game was seen as the counter went to Blake of Campbellford on Herrington's assist.

In the second period Goyer added a further goal for Point Anne on assists from Hull and Mulholland.

Jacklin's efforts met with further success in the third as he scored from Gilmour's pass. Campbellford having their share of the rushes in this period, got another fine goal as Eadie netted on Herrington's assist. Just before the close, Goyer for Campbellford got the last goal of the game with the assist going to Hull. The attendance was estimated at three hundred.

Senators Top Quebec League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa Senators twice pasted Quebec Aces and took over the leadership in the Quebec Hockey League during the week-end. Saturday the Senators blanked Aces 3-0 to the tune of three goals and 28 points. Sunday they thumped the Quebecers 6-3 to move two points ahead.

Sherbrooke Saints moved from fourth place to third as they defeated Chicoutimi Sagueneens 6-3, and Montreal Royals dropped to fourth from second after a 3-3 tie to Springfield Indians.

The Indians managed to stay out of the league cellar by shading Royals after a 5-1 licking at the hands of last-place Valleyfield Braves Saturday.

At Quebec Sunday, Leo Gravelle scored three and Jack Giesebrecht, Gerry Foley and Al Ruski netted a goal each for Ottawa. Lodger Tremblay, Adam Brown, and Dan Nixon counted for Quebec.

ACES HELD SCORELESS

Saturday at Ottawa, Senators' goalie Ray Frederick confirmed his position as the league's top penalty killer by holding Aces scoreless. Gravelle, Foley, and Dusty Blair scored for the Senators.

At Chicoutimi, Eddie Stankiewicz netted a pair of goals and Moe Irving, Nelson Podolsky, Bob McLean and Bob Johnson connected for the Saints. Sherman White, Pete Thackuk and Gerry Glaude scored for Chicoutimi.

In Springfield's overtime win over the Montreal Royals Sunday in Montreal John Bobbie and Ed Leier gave Springfield a 2-0 lead but Orval Tessier fired two for Royals in the last three minutes of the third period. Doug McMurdy netted the winner.

Saturday at Springfield, Andre Corriveau scored three goals for Valleyfield. Gordie Haworth and Jean-Paul Bisaillon were the other Valleyfield scorers while Hal Tarala tallied for Springfield.

WOULD WELCOME TROOPS

BONN (AP) — Abdul Qayumm Khan, Pakistan's minister of industry, Thursday said his country would welcome the troops of any friendly country on its soil if a world emergency developed. He was commenting on the protests by Russia and India over reports that the United States is negotiating for military bases in Pakistan.

Racial Pressure Applied to Star Friend Charges

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Winnipeg Free Press in a newspage story Saturday quoted a friend of John Henry Johnson as saying racial pressure was applied on the Negro football star to get him to sign with San Francisco 49ers for the 1954 season.

The story says Roosevelt Johnson, no relation to John Henry, was in the same hotel room after the Grey Cup game in Toronto, when five men talked to the Calgary Stampeders star and asked him to sign with the National Football League team.

"They implied that if John Henry did not agree to sign, they could make it very tough for other Negro football players," said Roosevelt. "The implication was that they would encourage other club owners not to employ Negro players if John Henry didn't sign."

Roosevelt did not disclose what salary John Henry would draw but it isn't "within $2,000 of what he was offered in Canada if newspaper reports of the Calgary contract offers are anywhere near right."

John Henry, second draft choice of Pittsburgh Steelers last season, was chosen as the most valuable player in the Western Interprovincial Union this season.

Dutchies, Bulldogs Play Leap Frog In Battle for Senior A Top Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The two top dogs met in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series Saturday and if the result is any indication Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen may be heading for their second consecutive Allan Cup.

The Dutchmen broke a first-place tie with Windsor Bulldogs by defeating the Bulldogs 4-2 in Windsor and only the netminding of Windsor's two alternating goaltenders saved the score from reaching mountainous proportions. The Dutchmen rained 68 shots on the Windsor net.

Sunday the Bulldogs rebounded with a 5-4 victory over Hamilton Tigers in Windsor to move back up in a first-place tie with the Dutchmen.

In other Saturday games Stratford Indians downed Sarnia Sailors 7-3 in Stratford and Owen Sound Mercurys blanked Chatham Maroons 9-0 in Owen Sound.

DOUBLE VICTORY

In Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., North Bay Trappers scored a goal a period to down the Greyhounds 3-1 in their Northern Ontario Hockey Association contest. Pembroke Lumber Kings defeated Sudbury Wolves twice in Sudbury during the other Saturday NOHA games.

The Lumber Kings won the regular game 7-3 and played out five minutes of a curfew-ended game. In the shortened contest the Kings outscored the Wolves 3-1 to make the final score 8-2 in their favor.

Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians edged out the Trappers 4-3 in Michigan during the only NOHA game Sunday.

The Dutchmen had the edge all over the Bulldogs in Windsor Saturday and only the netminding of Nick Pidoudnoy and Monty Reynolds kept them from making it a runaway.

"WHERE PARKING IS NO PROBLEM"

Do farmers use nickel?

"They sure do. There's a lot of nickel right out there in that tractor of Uncle Jim's. I'd hate to think what would happen in rocky ground if that tractor's gears weren't made of nickel alloy steel. Yes, there must be dozens of tractor parts which contain nickel to make them strong and tough."

"What about trucks, Dad?"

"Well, you can see the nickel plating on the bumper, grille and headlights of that truck. Nickel is even more important in its gears and other parts that have to be strong and stand a lot of hard wear. Even small percentages of nickel in steel make it strong and tough, and help prevent rust."

TWO IN A ROW!

Mattery did not look too rosy for the Memos prior to the game with the Petes Saturday night when it was learned Vern Dwyer was not dressed (broken shaiste) and big Bob Taylor was forced to sit out that match sentence. Now, that cat quite a hole in the Memos' defensive power but the powers-that-be can pretend Jake Wade, and Tommy Schreiber with the keys to the city for an excellent job, as well as giving honorable mention to Jud Semark and Dewy Burdeck.

As a matter of fact Jake and Tommy took matters in their own hands and not only did a fine job behind the blue line but crashed the scoring records with fine efforts. Jake got himself a goal and an assist and Tommy helped himself to a marker and two helpers.

The Memos' 7-4 win didn't make much difference in the group standing but it clustered the lower bracket teams closer than a bunch of Spanish malagas. The Doran crew now boast eight points, one behind the Petes, while the surging Orillia Fontiacs, riding high on the crest of a victory wave, are comfortably ensconced in third place, with had who manage breathe warming the necks of the second-siot Goodyears.

The Fontiacs had the "Dodge Brothers" sign out in their hometown ballwick Saturday night and reared through for their third consecutive victory with a 7-3 win over last year's champions from Kingston. The Goodies could have been a trifle leg-weary for this wacky schedule called for them to play in Peterborough Friday night and then take the long trek to Orillia the following evening.

As matters stand now the Fontiacs have eleven points as against twelve for the Goodies and 12 for the pace-setting Oshawa Generals. Comes the week-end with nine to the good side with one less. There is one consolation for the Memos, they can only go one way, and that is up.

Memos Thwart Peterborough Petes' Bid For Third Place With 7-4 Victory

Stock Pile Five-Goal Margin Before Petes Score in Second In Speedy Senior 'B' Tussle

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Never looking back after unleashing a first period three-goal offensive, the Belleville Memos halted the Peterborough Petes' bid for a third-place spot in the Senior "B" group here Saturday night, with a 7-4 victory, their second in a row.

While the victory did not hoist the Memos from the cellar spot, it brought them to within one point of the fourth-place Lindsdale crew. Orillia's 7-3 victory over the Kingston Goodyears on the same night halted the Pontiacs into third place with 11 points, one in arrears of the former champions and seven behind the pace-setting Oshawa Truckmen. The Petes boast nine points and the Memos eight.

GRAB BIG LEAD

"Red" Doran's crew ripped into a 5-0 lead two-thirds through the second period before the Petes broke the scoring ice, with the period ending 5-1. The Petes staged a desperate third-period effort scoring two goals in 12 seconds but it was not enough although they added another the Memos nursed back with a pair to clinch the victory.

The game developed into a heavy-checking affair in the later stages with Referees Bill Reason and "Moon" Flanagan, of Kingston dishing out 14 penalties shared by the seven aides. Playing coach Ed. Redmond was lost to the Petes late in the first period when he was given a minor penalty too strenuously and drew a misconduct penalty. A few minutes later when Memos' goalie Rolly Sarrault was off for repairs, Redmond left the penalty box and picked up the argument again with Referee Reason. He was promptly tabbed with a match misconduct.

The Memos defence minus Vern Goyer and Bob Taylor came through with outstanding effort. Jake Wade starred going both ways and was credited with a goal and an assist. Defence mate Tommy Belleisle came up with a goal and two assists.

The high-scoring Memos line of the Duncan twins, Ed. and Erwin and Duke Doran ripped through for five points with, Erwin scoring twice, Ed once and Doran getting an assist. Ed Duncan also drew a helper. Playing coach "Red" Doran scintillated again scoring a pair to round out the Memos tallies.

Montgomery played outstanding hockey for the Petes, his goal a picture effort saw him rip through the entire Memos team to beat Sarrault. He helped with Fryia's third period tally. McMaster and Hill got the other Petes tallies. Both Dunlevy and Sarrault, especially the latter, played sparkling hockey turning back opposing attempts consistently. Dunlevy was the victim of a break in the second period when he apparently the puck was steered into the net when it struck his stick.

TOMMY GETS FIRST

Schreider's penalty in the first period paved the way for the Memos first goal. The defenceman had stepped back on the ice when he picked up a loose puck and zoomed through to beat Dunlevy.

The Memos added a wide edge to territorial play in the first period, key feeding in such forward thrusts. Petes defence and Jake Wade's zooming waist-high shot beat Dunlevy at the 10-minute mark. The Petes could not get organized it seemed and midway through the beat Schreider set up Erwin Duncan for the third Memos goal.

The same player cuts it 4-0 after a minute in the second period. The Petes were outclassed on not a few occasions plus fine work by Sarrault. A Petes hot shot hit the post, while Sarrault twice thwarted lone Petes attackers who had broken through.

McMaster got the gate and in the first Memo power play, the puck slithered into the net from a maze of players. It appeared to deflect off Dunlevy's skate with Ed. Duncan getting the credit. Crowley scored through on Sarrault's doorstep but the goalie outguessed him. "Red" Doran drifted at the other end of the rink.

McMaster scored the Petes first goal on a ganging play with Prentice and Belisle while Ed Duncan grazed the goal.

"RED" GETS ANOTHER

The Petes struck back savagely in the third period, benefiting the Memos in behind their blue line. Midway through the heat Montgomery scored his fine solo goal and twelve seconds later Hill took Collins pass to whistle the score to 5-3. "Red" Doran got one of them back with Duke Doran assisting but the Petes playing desperation hockey ripped back with Chum Fryia beating Sarrault. Play was fast and furious and the checking hard. "Red" Doran scored the insurance marker on a fine play with Peter Jones with two minutes to go.

Junior Dutchies Given Monday As Deadline

TORONTO (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts have been given until 6 p.m., Monday to decide whether they will continue operations in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Originally set for midnight Saturday, the deadline was extended by the association when a group of Kitchener citizens, said to be interested in buying the franchise back from Montreal Canadiens asked for more time.

The Canadiens bought the team last week for $15,000 and distributed most of the Kitchener regulars to Quebec teams.

Jim Orlik, attempted transfer for the players to move to Quebec, Frank Selke, Montreal manager, said he would sell back the team for $13,000. The players have not yet been returned to the Greenshirts.

Last week it was decided to ask Boston Bruins of the NHL to buy and sponsor the Shirts to keep them in Kitchener. The Bruins declined.

OMHA Moves to Curb Frisky Players; Doug Patterson Back on Executive

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Minor Hockey Association moved Saturday to put a curb on those of its 18,000 frisky young hockey players who have been kicking over the traces.

At its annual meeting, the OMHA which has jurisdiction over 1,087 clubs and terms itself the world's largest hockey body, ruled that from now on managers or coaches of the teams will be responsible for the conduct of their players on and off the ice.

The record number of 257 delegates, themselves mostly coaches and managers, agreed it was a necessary rule after secretary Jack Christie said the association was getting a "black eye" through the unruly behaviour of players on road trips.

In the past no one person has been held responsible and the buck had been passed around, he said.

Christie made it clear the managers and coaches would not be held financially responsible for any damage caused by players, but would be asked to answer to the association for their conduct.

EXECUTIVE RE-ELECTED

The five-hour meeting wound up by re-electing president O. M. (Mike) Weichel of Elmira, and his executive for another year. The seven-man executive committee also was re-elected.

Other major decision:

1. The executive was empowered to set admission prices of the association's final and semi-final games with Oshawa playing the semi-final games away from home to get a fair share.

3. Gave teams the choice of saying how many games they want to play in the play-offs.

APPROVE AYR REQUEST

Also endorsed was a request by the Ayr Minor Hockey Association for a government grant of $5,000 to help meet the cost of a new artificial rink under construction.

Referred to the incoming executive for study was a recommendation from the Oshawa Minor Hockey Association to set up an equipment pool to be drawn on by needy clubs.

The arena fire in Oshawa last October destroyed most of the club's own equipment.

Christie said the association's "total registration of players, the greatest in the world, was 18,665 with 5,000 of them taking part in OMHA."

Among those attending were: Fred C. Waghorne Sr., Toronto, life member of the OMHA and called "the grand old man of hockey"; Lorne Miller, Normandie, Que., secretary-treasurer of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association; Tony Gregg, Wingham, president of the Ontario Hockey Association, and William Hanley, business manager.

Civilian Plane Is Missing In Quebec Wilds

HALIFAX (CP) — A civilian aircraft with six men aboard is missing in northeastern Quebec, RCAF search and rescue headquarters reported today.

The plane disappeared after taking off from Ross lake at 8:12 p.m. EST Sunday for the 190-mile flight due south to Seven Islands, Que., on the Gulf of St. Lawrence north shore.

Ross lake is along the line of railroad being built to carry Labrador iron ore to Seven Islands.

The Anson aircraft was said to have been chartered by Hollinger Ungava mines, a company developing the ore deposits.

But weather held up the start of a search to be conducted by planes from Greenwood, N.S.

Names of those aboard the missing plane were unknown here.

AT THE CAPITOL—James Cagney with Anne Francis and Barbara Hale are the principal players in Warner Bros. AT THE McCARTHY—George Montgomery gives advice to Tab Hunter in this scene from the Technicolor action film "Gun Belt", which opens today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. 2nd feature is "Desperate Moment" with Dirk Bogarde and Philip Friend.

Detroit Lions Claw Bears

NEW YORK (AP)—The defending champion Detroit Lions clinched at least a tie for the western division lead by edging Chicago Bears 13-7 in the highlight of Sunday's National Football League action.

By winning, the Lions maintained their one-game lead over San Francisco 49ers, who downed Green Bay Packers 49-14. Each team has one game left to play.

In other games, the eastern division champion Cleveland Browns won their 11th straight without a setback by swamping New York Giants 63-14, Pittsburgh Steelers outscored Chicago Cardinals 21-17 and Washington Redskins blanked Philadelphia Eagles 16-0. Los Angeles Rams defeated Baltimore 45-21 Saturday.

Two field goals by Doak Walker, for 41 and 36 yards, and a Bobby Layne-to-Dorne Dibble Touchdown pass, gave Detroit its victory. Bruising line play by the Lions held the Bears in check until the final two minutes, when Chicago scored its only touchdown on an 11-yard pass from Tommy O'Connell to Ed Macon.

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A bridge playing punk is usually sunk. Or knocks himself into the creek. As past as he can be starts on the lam; afraid he will give up a trick.

South was declarer at three no-trump in this deal:

♦ 5 4 2
♣ A Q 8 6 4 2

WEST
♠ Q J 10 8 2
♥ A Q J

SOUTH

♥ K 10 7 4 3

North put him there instead of rebidding clubs. West doubled and south redoubled, believing north had the values promised. There was, of course, no way for south to know north was so shy of entries.

Having fooled his partner, north should have cancelled the south redouble by going to clubs. It was the least he could do after being responsible for getting his side into such a spot.

By saying four clubs over the redouble, north would warn partner as follows: "I was willing to have you gamble for a no-trump game. But not if the alternative is too big a loss if it fails."

West lied the spade queen that south won with the ace. A south club was won with dummy's queen when west played the nine. This was the wrong thing to do. Now there was no chance to make the contract.

A careful and skillful player could quickly see the only hope of making the nine tricks would be by taking plenty of clubs. No other way.

When west played the nine of clubs, south should have ducked in dummy. Now if west has the king of clubs the dummy clovers will stand up.

South then takes west's spade return with his king and leads his last club. Dummy's queen wins the finesse. he club ace is cashed and all the remaining clubs are good. Five club tricks come in that way.

This king of play takes courage, of course. But it is obvious that no other play has a game chance. So, it must be tried. A faint heart never wins a fair share of tough contracts.

SALZBURG THIRSTY

SALZBURG, Austria (AP)—Salzburg, a city of 100,000, is almost without drinking water as a result of the severe winter drought. Following an appeal by the Salzburg mayor, Lt.-Gen. William H. Arnold, United States commander in Austria, ordered an American camp's water supply turned into the Salzburg mains, but the heavy pressure caused the line to burst.

CHARGED WITH "RAPTO"

AGUA CALIENTES, Mex. (AP) A 17-year-old boy says an attractive woman kidnapped him, forced him to spend the night with her in a hotel, and then refused to marry him. The youth, Jose Luis Gonzalez, a carpenter, filed charges accusing the women of "rapto." That is a Mexican legal charge meaning both kidnapping and rape. . .

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, DEC. 8, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Time is precious; don't hesitate getting to the meat of things quickly. Waste no time with time-wasters, nor with petty matters. No fretting!

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Don't continue doing things in the same way you did in the past; it may be the wrong formula now. You may have to change tactics. Don't anticipate trouble. Analyze the news thoughtfully, carefully.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — An early beginning shouldn't be hard for you, but stopping where and when you should is something else again. Study your faults. This is a better day than it appears.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Planning your course ahead of time insures success. A disorganized mind makes for inefficiency, no matter how talented the person. You have talent; stabilize your system. Mind associations, appointments.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — A time for some planning; analyzing; reviewing. How can you improve or change for the better? Don't hesitate to make necessary changes. When you have the time, do some constructive reading.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Pay attention to your work and interests, and let others feed theirs. Note Gemini and Taurus now; your aspects similar.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—A day for getting after first things first. If you don't, you may have to retrace your steps—a course you probably wouldn't like. No fiddling.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Think twice before you act. And don't permit others to dissuade you from decisions you feel (after consideration) are justified. Give a helping hand, but don't let your efforts be misused.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Don't waste time; today is for doing. If talking is part of your regular work, then don't contribute more chatter. Remember those who have done you services in the past.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—A better day than you may think. Give credit where it is due. "Look before you leap" has prevented many an error. Join-ing true friends for an occasional social is healthful.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Your planets' vibrations much like Sagittarius and Taurus today. Heed advice to them. East sensibly. Day may have some ups and downs, but maintain a calm attitude.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Good things happen to you when you are in tune with your True self—which you should be always. You have much talent; develop, cultivate it.

YOU BORN TODAY possess a variety of talents and strong leanings. If you check yourself daily and critically and decisively. You will also be happy and have fine friends. Don't lose advantages by lack of system or doodling. You have perception, vision. Don't be impatient. Pray often and take regular periods of relaxation, diversion. You might do exceptionally well in statesmanship; as a teacher or artist. Birthdate: Historian Osman passed.

GOODNESS EXCEEDS MIGHT

NEW YORK (AP)—King Paul of Greece says the "fundamental goodness" of the American people contributes more to the greatness of the United States than does its armed might. The King and Queen Frederika sailed Thursday for home after a coast-to-coast good-will tour.

All-Canadian Gas Pipeline Will Help Boom

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A start on the all-Canadian gas pipeline may provide that extra push to put Canada's investment boom over the top in 1954.

Capital, investment key to the dynamic strength of the Canadian economy, has been rolling ahead at a record pace in recent years.

But there has been some doubt whether in 1954 the investment boom could be maintained at the 1953 peak of $5,600,000,000.

Capital outlays in basic material industries may now be on top. Initial development phases in Quebec-Labrador iron ore and British Columbia aluminum are expected to be completed next year.

In such industries as industrial chemicals, primary iron and steel and metals processing, the emphasis shifting from the creation of new plants to modernizing of existing facilities.

Investment seems to be turning more to housing, utilities, services and institutional construction.

OPEN NEW MARKETS

Alberta's decision to send part of its huge quantities of natural gas eastward if two competing companies can be brought together will open markets in eastern Canada and the Minneapolis area.

Thus a new $200,000,000 development project would be created, providing two years of heavy construction work. Trade Minister Howe says he hopes construction can start next year.

The full impact of this investment on the Canadian economy may be far greater than can be seen from the surface.

"As electricity did in the past," said Mr. Howe recently, "so natural gas promises to usher in yet another era in Canada's march to industrial maturity."

Kelly of Todmorden, president of the Elgin Co-Operative, was second, also producing 90.1 bushels from Clinton oats. He scored 254.2 points.

ROLL ON SUNDAY

Some weeks are miserable. You start off all wrong on Monday, feeling all washed up. And you go on feeling the same way. The only thing to do in a case like that is to toss up the sluggish system that's particularly at the bottom of that half-alive sensation. If you are not really ill then it's a good bet that lack of pep and joy of living is due to kidneys and bowels not functioning properly. That means that poisons are accumulating, causing headaches and a feeling of general misery. So do something about it. Try Kruschen.

That's your answer. In Kruschen Salts you get the minerals that are found in famous Mineral Spas. They'll help your body clear away waste very, very gently. Then you'll feel brand new all over. Just see. All it takes is about as much Kruschen as will heap on a dime. Take it in your morning coffee when you need it.

Seek Shelter At Police Station, Held as Suspects

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Two young Toronto men asked for shelter at the police station Sunday night and five minutes later were arrested as suspects in Friday night's $600 robbery of a beer store at Morrisberg.

Police said the men posed as transients and asked for lodging. They police at Gananoque, about 12 miles east of here, telephoned a description of two men they were seeking in connection with the robbery. Police looked at their guests and charged them with vagrancy.

Gananoque police said they had picked up another Toronto youth as a suspect in the robbery.

Morrisburg police took the men from Kingston to Morrisburg Sunday night.

Three men who entered the Morrisburg store five minutes before closing time Friday took the days' receipts plus $263 from manager William Prime and $110 from clerk Ted Smith. They fled after slugging two employees and a customer.

JEWELS STOLEN

OTTAWA (CP) — Thieves broke into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Justin Bogue during the week-end and stole $10,000 worth of jewelry. The loot consisted of necklaces, rings, bracelets, brooches, tie-pins and cuff links, ranging in value from $25 to several hundred.

"It was scored at Maple Leaf Gardens, March 4, 1933, by Newmarket Redmen and it eliminated Toronto Nationals 3-2 in overtime in the fifth and deciding game of the OHA Junior semi-finals for the championship. Newmarket's Don Willson fired a long shot that hit the wire screen behind Nationals' goal. The puck landed on top of the goal and slowly rolled forward. While the crowd roared warning, goalie Ginger Hall peered from side to side as the puck slowly toppled, struck his back, and trickled into goal. Newmarket went on from there to win the Canadian Championship".

Fifteen Persons Die Violently In East Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fifteen persons died violently in Eastern Canada during the week-end.

A Canadian Press compilation listed 12 fatalities in Ontario and three in Quebec. Nine of the deaths were in traffic mishaps, the others from a variety of causes.

ONE STABBING

Arthur Thibideau, 39, died in Toronto of stab wounds police said were suffered during a Saturday night drinking party argument. His brother, Roy, 37, was charged with murder.

Ontario traffic deaths: Ernest Hill, 34, thrown from a car in Toronto; William Muller, 26, in a car that hit a tree near Kingston; Sheila Ingram, 18, in an out-of-control car near Belleville; Ruth Genton, 10, in a fall from her father's car at Orillia; Arthur Favell, 71, hit by a truck in Windsor; Roman Gajda, 35, hit by a car while walking near Aylmer; Clayton Barrah, 41, of Sudbury, in a truck which crashed an abutment at Virginiatown, 36 miles northeast of Kirkland Lake.

Mrs. John Nesco, 31, was asphyxiated in her Toronto home. Randell Walters, two months, died of suffocation in his crib in the Toronto suburb of Minico. Mrs. Margaret Hill was drowned at Belleville when she fell from a railway bridge while running to escape a train. Roland Graham, 20, was fatally crushed in the collapse of an Ottawa sewer excavation.

Winds 76 MPH Lash NY State

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Winds of gale force carrying rain and hail lashed western New York state Friday night and early this morning, knocking down trees and causing power failures in some places.

Gusts up to 76 miles an hour were reported by the weather bureau.

Trees were uprooted in several places here and on nearby Grand Island, where traffic was reported blocked for a short time. A large display window in a Buffalo store was smashed by the wind.

A brief but violent electrical storm struck nearby Tonawanda, but no damage was reported. Brief power failures were reported in several centres, and water flowed curb-deep in some streets.

BOTH DEFEATS HYDE FOR MAYOR BY 435

Temple, Keegan Argue, Smith, Tice, Moxam, Safe Win

U. Lummiss Is Commissioner; Mrs. D. Tugnett Trustee

For the second time in a decade a practical newcomer to municipal government will occupy the chair of the chief magistrate of the city.

John Both, president of the Diamond Construction Company here is the mayor of the city for 1954, Mr. Both defeated the veteran alderman Charles L. Hyde after one of the closest mayoralty fights seen here in years. The mayor-elect polled 3,021 ballots as against 2,586 for his opponent, winning by a majority of 435.

Five veteran aldermen were re-elected to office with two new faces rounding out the quota of seven to be elected. Back in office are Aldermen Robert Temple, Arthur Keegan, William Argue, Bruce Smith, and Claude Tice. New aldermen-elect are Douglas Moxam and ex-alderman Ben Safe.

Defeated were Messrs. Bram Humphreys, Ralph Graham, Eric Cooper, Bert Robinson, Malcolm Burgess and George De Vuyst.

Public Utilities Commissioner Percy C. McGuire went down to a decisive defeat at the hands of "Sandy" Lummiss. Mr. McGuire polled 3,181 ballots as against 2,308 for the present commissioner. The Lummiss majority was 873.

In the fight for the school trusteeship of Baldwin Ward, Mrs. Dorothy Tugnett defeated Mrs. John Godwin by a majority of 191. Mrs. Tugnett polled 407 votes, Mrs. Godwin, 216.

The by-law designed to eliminate the sounding of whistle horns or the ringing of bells by trains within the city limits received a crushing defeat. Those voting against the by-law polled 2,169 while those in favor registered but 690 votes or a majority of 1,479.

NO RECORDS BROKEN

The election did not break any balloting records although the number of votes polled far exceeded those of the 1952 election when a new low record of some 1,500 votes went to the polls. This election 5,607 voters exercised their franchise approximately 40 below the all-time record polled in 1950.

Although the city hall council chamber was filled to capacity and with an overflow spilling out in the main upstairs corridors of the building there was little demonstration as the returns trickled in to tabulators Percy Jones, Ledgard Auditorium and George Whitman. An occasional "Ah" resulted as each of the candidates polled an exceptional vote, but on the whole the "spectators" were extremely undemonstrative.

JOHN BOTH, President of the Diamond Construction Co., Ltd., who was elected Mayor by a 435 majority over Alderman C. L. Hyde.

Schuman States Russia Will Try To Divide West

PARIS (AP)—Robert Schuman, who gave his name to the European Steel and Coal Community while serving as French foreign minister, today said the Soviet Union will seek to destroy European integration at the forthcoming four-power talks in Berlin.

In an interview with the evening newspaper Paris-Presse Schuman asserted:

"The Soviet Union is going to try to obtain in that conference (what it has failed to obtain by the cold war—the paralysis and then abandonment of our policy for European integration."

The former foreign minister, still a power in the Mouvement Republican Populaire, which also includes the present foreign minister, Georges Bodoult, said Russia's intention was evident in her agreement to meet with the West just at the moment when Western Europe in general and France in particular is on the point of making a decision on the European Defence Community treaty.

45-Day Interval Before Election Is Recommended

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's select committee on election laws Monday recommended a 45-day interval between the issue of writs for a provincial election and polling day. To make this and other amendments to the voters' lists act were also recommended.

As the election act now stands, the 'interval between issue of writ and polling day is 27 days in summer and 44 days in winter. The interval between nomination day and polling day also differs in summer and winter months. If the amendments are accepted by the House, the interval between issue of writ and nomination is 45 days, and between nomination day and polling day, 14 days, no matter what time of the year an election is called.

The committee also decided to ask the legislature to abolish provisions for the revision of rural lists by enumerators. Committee chairman Mel A. Hodgkinson, chief election officer, said this would save the province $75,000 in an election year.

Red Soldiers Mutiny

BERLIN (AP) — The anti-Communist "Information Bureau West" reported today that more than 50 Russian soldiers were arrested here, weeks ago following riots in the Soviet garrison at Bernau 10 miles north of Berlin.

The bureau, which collects information on events in the east zone, said the soldiers are being held in a Russian MVD (secret police) jail.

They were said to have refused to obey orders after an officer beat a corporal who had fallen asleep during a political lecture.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synoptic: Ukiks are now across southern Ontario today. However, a disturbance developing in Kansas this morning will bring cloud and rain to this area Wednesday morning. The mild weather is expected to continue.

In the north regions skies will remain cloudy with light snowflurries forecast for today and Wednesday.

TEXTILE INDUSTRY TO BE PROTECTED BY GOVERNMENT

Move Permits Boost In Valuation

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has implemented legislation to protect the Canadian textile industry against dumping of United States goods.

A bill plugging a loophole in the customs act was introduced Monday night in the Commons by Revenue Minister McCann.

The measure was given first reading. However, Dr. McCann said it becomes effective immediately, in the same manner as the many budget measures before enabling legislation is passed.

The move permits a boost in the valuation, for tariff and sales tax purposes, of imported goods sold at cut prices at the end of a season.

Dr. McCann announced that the valuation will be a "weighted average price" based on prices in the exporting country during a six-month period prior to the date of importation.

The customs act amendment was necessary "that the valuation procedures shall be such that the existing tariff rates receive their proper application."

The act gave the revenue minister power to set a valuation where imported goods were priced below the level existing in the exporting country.

ACT INADEQUATE

The minister said this is inadequate, however, to deal with practices "which, in fact, constitute a special kind of dumping."

It permitted the import of goods at prices which were "abnormally low" but which at the time, in some cases, were in the exporting country.

"In the textile industry for example, as the season abroad advances and as inventories of some items accumulate, certain lines are closed out and pushed on the market at prices substantially less than those previously effective."

POLICY DEPARTURE

Dr. McCann said the customs act change is not a departure from Canada's policy of working for lower trade barriers.

"It did not lower tariff increases or import quotas and was "fully consistent" with international trade agreements.

The problem facing the Canadian textile industry was first raised both inside and outside the House.

The Renfrew Woollen Mills plant in Dr. McCann's own constituency of Renfrew South announced Monday that it will close indefinite period.

Earlier tonight a delegation representing Quebec textile unions put the problem before the cabinet and asked for action on the matter.

Appeals for assistance to the textile industry were also made by members during the Commons throne speech debate which ended last week.

Harry O. White (PC—Middlesex) charged that the Canadian industry was being robbed by cheap labor. Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel) said the Canadian industry was in a precarious situation and might not be able in an emergency to reach top production in time.

Glasgow Miner Must Take Holiday Or Else His Mates Will Strike

GLASGOW (Reuters) — The 950 coal miners who work with Willie Farrell have all threatened to strike next month unless he takes a vacation—his first in 12 years.

They claim his habit of working a seven-day week 52 weeks a year is unfair labor practice.

Farrell, 60, explained that he hasn't been working 365 days a year since 1941 just for fun.

"I'm the father of 8 children and I need the extra money to pay for my household goods," he explained.

But his buddies tried to talk him into taking a vacation by pointing out that a principle is at stake. They said that their union fought hard for a two-week annual vacation and that Farrell should feel bound by it.

Willie didn't agree. "It isn't that I don't need a holiday," he told them. "I just feel I should be entitled to live my own life with no interference from you."

Then the boys called a union meeting and gave Farrell this ultimatum: "Take your vacation by Dec. 17 or we strike."

Willie grudgingly decided that he'd "probably" give in.

"I guess I'll have to take a holiday whether I like it or not," he sighed today. "I don't want to cause my mates a loss of wages over the Christmas season."

Hope Waning Fast for Safety Of Abducted Toronto Girl

TORONTO (CP) — Police said today hope is waning fast for the safety of Marion Lois McDowell, 17-year-old blonde Toronto kidnap victim.

At the same time the parents of the girl, snatched and kidnapped from a suburban lovers' lane where she had been parked in a car with a boy friend, issued an open letter to their daughter's abductor.

The hand-written appeal, published in a Toronto newspaper, read:

"We, the parents of Marion, make this appeal to the person who is responsible for the abduction of our daughter Marion — please come forward or contact us in the whereabouts of our girl. If you have any compunction, please, please relieve us from this terrible nightmare. Ross and Florence McDowell."

LOOKS BAD POLICE

"It looks very bad for the girl," said Inspector Harold Atkinson of Scarborough township police, "pretty nearly hopeless."

Working from slim clues found in the girl's purse and at the home of friends, police said the search is narrowed to three suspects, all employees of the girl.

Inspector Atkinson said he believed one of the three will prove to be a sex maniac.

Two detectives have been working on the case with only a few hours' sleep. Hours of questioning have persuaded detectives that the girl's companion, James Wilson, 19, told the truth in his story of a masked gunman slugging him and the girl with a gun butt and then shoving the girl into the trunk of the car while the kidnapper drove away.

Wilson said the gunman opened the door of the Wilson car about 9.30 p.m. Sunday, ordered him from the car and demanded his wallet, which contained $10. Then the man ordered him to turn around and smashed the gun butt down on his skull, the youth said.

When he partly regained consciousness, Wilson told police early Monday he found the gunman had placed him and the unconscious girl in the back seat of Wilson's car and had driven the car about half a mile from the scene of the attack in Scarborough township on Toronto's northeastern fringe.

FIND BLOOD

Police said that at the point where Wilson said the attack took place they found a large pool of blood. In the blood they discovered Wilson's wallet with the $10 still in it.

Detectives found the girl's blue topcoat, soaked with blood, in the back seat of Wilson's car, along with her blue cardigan and her purse.

Investigators questioned scores of friends of the missing girl.

Her father, Ross McDowell, worked with police in the search.

Allies Final Korean Offer Rejected in Hot Red Blast

By GEORGE McARTHUR

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Allies today made a new offer for a Korean peace conference, but the Communists rejected it outright in a scornful propaganda blast which the chief United States delegate termed "garbage."

Coincidentally, the Red action made somewhat a point that the Allied problem—South Korea's refusal to accept part of the U.S. proposal.

South Korea's delegate refused to attend the meeting as U.S. ambassador Arthur H. dean delivered the new plan, which called down loose ends of previous Allied proposals and suggestions.

"I told them (the Reds) this was it and we would stand on it," Dean told reporters. "This is our final offer."

The Communists, reading from a 16-page prepared statement, termed Dean's offering "absurd and ridiculous."

STOPPED NEGOTIATING

Dean's reaction was: "It is very obvious that they have stopped negotiating."

He said there was an implied threat in the Communist note "we will stay here for what we consider a reasonable time" but no clear indication how long that might be.

The diplomats meet again Wednesday.

Meanwhile, 30 more South Korean prisoners have refused to return home after talking with officers of their homeland, that made the interview score so far 190 to 0 in favor of communism.

The South Korean interviewers played a new record to the prisoners, a song featuring a dialogue between a young boy and girl and songs of "my lovely homeland (South Korea) . . . (where) life is enjoyable, free and beautiful in every way."

The records failed to move a single prisoner, but officers of South Koreans were called for interviews Wednesday.

At the present rate, the 138 remaining South Koreans will be processed by next week end when the 22 Americans and one Briton will be called.

RUSSIA COULD ATTEND.

Terms of the new U.S. proposal by Dean, presented at Panmunjom:

1. Russia could sit in without being labelled a belligerent or a neutral, but the Allies believed that she vote with the Communist side.

2. "Some or all" of the non-belligerent countries who have "current" experience in Korea could attend as "neutrals" without voting rights.

3. The meeting would open at Geneva within 28 to 42 days after the signing of armistice end.

4. Sessions would be open to the press except on agreement by both sides.

Reds Strengthen Coast Defences Opposite Formosa

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Red China is going to strengthen coastal defence against possible attack by Chinese Nationalist forces based on Formosa, the Nationalist defence ministry's Pei Hua news agency said today.

The Pei Hua claims reliable underground contacts on the China mainland, said the recent visit to Peiping of Indian Premier President Syngman Rhee caused some concern to the Red high command.

The news agency said troops in coastal areas of China within striking distance of Formosa are to be put on a footing of wartime preparedness, and fortifications are to be strengthened.

Leftist Paper Says Churchill Insulted Laniel

PARIS (AP) — The leftist Paris newspaper Combat today said Prime Minister Churchill snubbed Premier Joseph Laniel during the visit Three days ago of the French premier and his delegation arrived by plane, Churchill failed to give a short anthem "Marseillaise" was not played.

Then Churchill blatantly cut off Laniel's attempt to give a short speech and "pushed him into an automobile," Combat said. Copies of the paper were later seen handed to reporters.

Combat also snubbed Laniel the following day when President Eisenhower's plane arrived. Combat said Laniel, leaving him in a corner," the paper added.

EISENHOWER TROUBLED, TOO

Adding insult to injury, Combat said, Churchill put Laniel behind both Eisenhower and Eden on front. "The dignity of the French premiership was affronted," Combat said.

During the first Big Three meeting Combat added, Churchill entirely ignored Laniel and directed all his remarks at Foreign Minister Bidault.

"Churchill considers Laniel a third-class quantity," Combat said indignantly and asked:

"Do these humiliations, have they lost their concern for our national dignity that they stand such indolence?"

Kremlin Is Challenged To Negotiate Peace

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

TUCKER'S TOWN, Bermuda (AP)—The Big Three challenged the Kremlin today to negtoiate peace settlements in Europe and Asia and to "solve the stubborn problems" of a world too long in conflict.

In a final Bermuda communique that occasionally rang with Churchillian power, but omitted any concrete solutions for the key problems of Western unity, President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Laniel announced:

1. They are sending notes to Russia for an early Big Four foreign ministers' meeting in Berlin which they hope will make progress towards the unification of Germany and independence of Austria.

2. They will continue to strive for a Korean political conference which they believe will lead to both a Korean settlement with the Asian Communists and "progress in restoring more normal conditions in the Far East and southeast Asia."

3. They will continue to struggle for "peace and stability" in Indo-China, where the "valiant forces" of France and the native states are making an important contribution to the "defence of the Free World."

4. They hope for a "peaceful" liberation of the Red-ruled east European countries and reject as unjustified "the present division of Europe."

Sewage Disposal Plant Is Called Inadequate

PORT ERIE (CP)—The International joint commission here told Port Erie council Monday night that the new sewage disposal plant here is not capable of complying with "objectives set forth in 1951 boundary water control."

Town engineer C. R. Hagey said an aeration treatment system here would cost between $350,000 and $400,000.

Council tabled the matter.

Experts Get Dirty in Fight With Fly Hit Him in Tummy They Plan to Try

By RENNIE TAYLOR
Associated Press Science Reporter

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A new scientific attack on the housefly, aimed to kill him in the intestines, was reported today to the Entomological Society of America.

First steps in the offensive are to find out how the fly converts his food into energy and cell-building material. When the facts about housefly digestion are determined, insecticides will know more precisely about where and how to do the hitting.

One of the new findings is that houseflies have in their systems pepsin, an enzyme which helps meat-eating animals to digest protein.

Dr. Bernard Greenberg of the University of Kansas reported the pepsin discovery, adding that the new finding means there is less chance that houseflies will develop higher animals than previously realized. It means also that the housefly may be vulnerable to new and different forms of chemical attack.

Another similar finding was reported by Dr. W. Chebotar of the Dominion experimental station at London, Ont. Dr. Chebotar said he had determined the steps by which houseflies break down carbohydrates. This involves a whole series of chemical changes, one or more of which may constitute an invitation for some other scientist to utilize some simple substance to kill the enzyme required in the pest.

These and related researches have been brought about by the realization that DDT and similar compounds are not going to exterminate the housefly. Flies have become increasingly resistant to these chemicals.

Dr. George C. Decker of the Illinois natural history survey said the battle against insects is far from won.

Despite the new chemicals, he asserted, the annual losses of insects produced each year exceeds the weight of all other animal life produced in the same time.

Food Outlook Poor in China

HONG KONG (AP)—The fourth winter of communism in China sees the return of food lines and watery gruel, according to evidence of national belt-tightening received here from refugees, broadcasts and letters.

There are no ration cards, but only 10 pounds of cereal can be bought a week in Shanghai — if you can get it. "You have to line up and get anything," wrote one Shanghai family to their son here.

No white rice is available and not much red (unpolished) rice, but mostly it is millet corn meal and beans, which western Chinese consider pig food.

Only a few ounces of oil can be bought, and it is described as rancid.

Hundreds of Calls Answered In News Room of Paper

Increased interest in the civic elections this year was reflected in the number of telephone calls handled by the Ontario Intelligencer's special news staff last evening.

Hundreds of calls flooded the Intelligencer's news room for almost four hours keeping a staff of five busy handling returns from the city hall and passing them on to the general public.

Two newsmen, working at city hall, kept the paper's telephone staff posted on the latest returns throughout the evening.

The first call was put through at 7.15 p.m. just 15 minutes after the polls closed. First returns from the city hall were made at 7.25.

Reports on the mayoralty race were several polls in advance of the aldermanic returns until approximately 9.30 when the number of polls reporting for aldermen were just two short of the mayoralty totals. Public utilities commissioner reports came in approximately at the same rate as the mayoralty totals.

The Ontario Intelligencer discontinued special telephone service at 11.05 with 33 of 35 polls reporting. There were no changes in the standing of any of the candidates when the final reports were completed.

The co-operation of the Belleville Telephone staff was outstanding throughout the evening. Without their help it would have been impossible to give the people of Belleville such up-to-the-minute service.

Woman's Body Found in Bay By Firemen

The body of Mrs. Margaret Hill, 52, mother of four children drowned early Sunday when she slipped from the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge as she was running to beat a train, was recovered Monday afternoon from the Moira River.

Fred Smith, member of the Belleville Fire Department found the body in the weeds south of the Morch Manufacturing plant and about 50 yards from where she fell into the river.

Mrs. Hill, with a party of four others was using the railway bridge as a shortcut home when the blast of a diesel locomotive horn was heard. They became frightened and started to run to the end of the bridge. Joseph Cornelius, 68, walking some distance behind also fell through the bridge into the river. He was rescued soon after by two lineguards.

The inquest has been ordered, the preliminary hearing scheduled for Tuesday afternoon at 1:30.

Farm Forum

Hastings County Farm Forum

Forums met recently to discuss the subject, "Struggle For Men's Minds"; Brookdale at Alton Sine's; Foxboro at B. Fiskle's; Hazzard's at George Glover's, and Melrose at Clarence Hagerman's.

The forums thought Canada should take the following steps to show a friendly and non-aggressive spirit to Asiatic countries;

(1) Assist to the limit in a world food pool;

(2) Share technical knowledge as friends, not as superiors;

(3) Invite students of Asiatic countries to the schools; show them the unarmed boundary to the south and stress the past history as a non-aggressor.

(4) Teach them to help themselves. New practices in agriculture can raise the standard of living in any country. Also busy people are usually happy ones.

(5) All must institute a program of education to get them away from suspicion and strife.

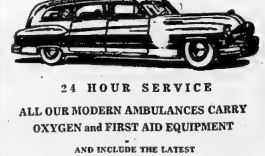
(6) Improve public relations between Canada and Asiatic countries.

To convince them that democracy is better than communism:

(1) Canada must show them democracy works and that she is not helping for just what is in it for her; but that she realizes they are all human beings.

(2) Canadians should be more intelligently aware of the meaning of communism, and educate the youth to become better ambassadors of democracy.

(3) Canadians should practise what they preach and eliminate race discrimination.



Correction—Last week's report should have read that Bill Glover played for the sing-song. Mrs. Weese played for "O Canada". Also master Jack Weese was the soloist of the evening at the rally at Melrose.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Base metal groups were mixed in light stock market trading today.

Industrials made the only rise on the exchange's morning indexes. Base metals showed the biggest loss, followed by golds, which reached another 11-year low, and western oils. Uranium issues were up and Bathurst-area base metals were steady.

Consolidated Smelters, Monday's low base metal issue, led the way lower.

Senior and holding company golds were quiet and showed almost no changes. Bulolo, Monday's strong senior, was a little higher.

Western oils' loss was a small one, led by Canada Southern, down 20 cents. Canadian Export and Calvan slipped 10 cents.

Industrials made their only gain with papers a little stronger and banks also up. Most other categories were mixed with small price changes.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Trade was firm on a few choice steers and about steady on other grades at the Ontario stockyards today. Receipts: cattle 2000; calves 240; hogs 230; sheep and lambs 200; holdover from Monday 2,000 cattle.

Choice steers 28-30.50; one prime lot 21.50; good steers 19-19.50; medium to dearwood to 17; steers 9-13; good cows mostly 10-10.50; good bulls 11.50-12.50; plain bulls downward to 9; medium to good fed yearlings 17-21; common to medium stockers 14-17.

Calves were steady at 24-26 for choice vealers; medium to downward to 17; grassers mostly 10-10.50; trade was slow on heavy calves.

Hogs were firm at 22.50 for grade A; dressed sows 23.

Lambs were steady at 22.50-23 for good ewes and wethers; bucks 1 discount; heavy lambs 18-21; sheep 5-10; according to quality.

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged here today.

The egg market was unsettled. Offering were heavy with demand poor. Quotations for graded eggs (in fibre cases): A large 47; A medium 47; A small 44; grade B 37; grade C 32. Wholesale to retail: A large 46; A medium 42; A small 39; grade B 42; grade C 37.

Peace Talk Idle If Have-Nots Unable to Trade

MONTREAL—Canadians face "a great and immediate challenge" in the development of closer, freer trading relations with the more intensive, economic use of their resources, Gordon R. Ball told Bank of Montreal shareholders in his first presidential address today at their annual meeting.

"Our interest in the immediate future," said Mr. Ball, "is in the speedy attainment of trading terms based fundamentally on recognition of three facts: firstly, that the welfare of the free nations is interdependent; secondly, that the objective of 'trade not aid' can be achieved only with the full realization that trade is a two-way process; and, thirdly, that it is idle to talk of enduring peace without deliberate measures designed to help less fortunate countries to help themselves by giving them a fair chance to sell in external markets."

Mr. Ball said that the real measure of improvement that had taken place in the sphere of international trade and finance during the past years "presents for the countries of the free world a great opportunity for further bold advances towards closer and freer trading relationships and thus towards more intensive and economic use of resources.

MUST HOLD GAINS

"It would be tragic," he said, "if, just at the time when the military and political defences of nations of goodwill were being strengthened, the economic gains of the recent past were to be lost. It is up to all of us, in all countries, who stand with private enterprise, to demonstrate here and now that the system that we rightly believe produces most and contributes most fully to well-being does not inevitably beget periods of slump and mass unemployment.

"That, as I see it ,is the great and immediate challenge of the present day. And that challenge will not be met if the bogey of ever-pocketed, small drive to individual nations behind the barricades of high tariffs and intensified restrictions."

In a brief review of the business scene during 1953, Mr. Ball again emphasized that competition had been keen, in both domestic and foreign trade, and that certain industries were encountering difficulties.

NORMAL HAZARDS RETURN

"We seem," Mr. Ball said, "to have passed from a situation in which nearly all business influences were buoyant to one in which the normal hazards of enterprise are once more apparent.

"While this certainly does not justify a gloomy view of the outlook, it does suggest the need for a healthy awareness that boom conditions of easy selling and easy profits are subsiding. I am still an optimist regarding Canada's future, but sensible optimism—includes a clear understanding that the immediate prospect places a renewed emphasis on salesmanship, efficiency and sober realism."

In presenting the bank's 136th annual statement, Arthur G. Jensen, general manager, reported that the past year had seen a slight decrease in the bank's financial position, with total resources at $2,364 million.

Commenting on the rise in the bank's current loans to a new high of $787 million, the general manager pointed out that "the increase of $124 million is considerable and, while it reflects the additional funds required to finance the large carryover of wheat as well as some increase in the consumer credit

Homemaking Clubs Change Names, Not Aims

Homemaking clubs, organized under the direction of the Women's Institutes branch, in the home economics service of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, will be now known as 4-H Homemaking Clubs, it has been announced by Miss Florence P. Radio, supervisor of junior extension work. The pattern of the work established and carried out for many years by the homemaking clubs will be continued.

Purpose of 4-H homemaking clubs are to give members an opportunity to acquire information and develop skills in homemaking; to help members to perform daily tasks and to assist them in meeting personal, family and community needs. The program also gives members the opportunity to plan, participate and co-operate with others, to develop satisfactory habits of work in achievement and to assist members with their personal growth and development.

REDS SCORE PIN-UPS

BERLIN (Reuters)—East Berlin workers have failed to unmask three who pinned nearly 50 photographs of nude women on a wall at the Karl Liebknecht transformer works, the Communist youth newspaper Jungle Welt said today. The newspaper said the photographs were an "insult to German women and served the warmongers."

field, most sectors of our loaning business are in higher figures than at the end of the last fiscal year."

SCANT EVIDENCE OF DOWN-TURN

In concluding his review of business conditions Mr. Jensen referred to the commonly heard suggestion that 1954 might witness some slowing-down in Canada's progress. "Certainly, if there is any appreciable or prolonged slackening of business activity in the United States," he said, "it is only to be expected that the effects will be felt in this country.

"It is not my purpose here to attempt to prophesy, but rather to paint in the economic background against which the bank's annual report is presented. Whatever the coming year may have in store, however, it is worth emphasizing that there is as yet scant evidence of any general or sharp downturn in the pace of business."

Alert Oshawa Flying Club Saves Trenton-Bound Pair Lost on Trip from Ottawa

TRENTON. (Special) — Members of the Oshawa Flying Club are for a great big pat on the back from Trenton Air Force officers last week. The quick thinking of alert flying enthusiasts is credited with bringing two service flyers to safety after they became hopelessly lost in a night flight from Ottawa to eTrenton.

Needless to say the two R.C.A.F. pilots began to perspire quite freely when they found themselves lost, headed for Trenton miles north and west of here with the fuel indicator needle riding heavily on the empty mark.

In the meantime a jet pilot from Trenton and a perchance Reeve, Harry Smith, acclamation; councillors: Kenneth West, 119; Dorian Stewart, 396; Jack Baker, 349; Percy Derry, 269; Ken Holmes, 172. (Four to be elected). Public Utilities: (one elected). Clarence Sarrow, 400; Les Kincaid, 167.

A desperate take-off at Rockcliffe sent the two young ferry pilots winging their fate-filled way toward Trenton into the falling light of a winter sunset. By the time darkness prevented their flying, sparsely populated bushland lay beneath the two single-engined trainers. Bad weather hindered navigation along an unfamiliar route. The "news" flyers looking for the lights of the Trenton Air Station, found the storm affecting radio reception. They could send messages but the answers were garbled.

Luck turned when an American transmission station picked up the distress calls. A jet pilot zooming around Trenton in a T-33 heard the conversation between the planes and the station and high tailed it for his brothers in trouble.

The jet guided the lost Harvards to the vicinity of the Oshawa airport. Fortunately the Oshawa Flying Club was holding a meeting that night. An alert member sensed a serious situation when he heard the roar of planes overhead. The rest of the members raced into action when they realized what was happening.

There is no firm path at Oshawa for night landings so club members improvised by lining their cars along the sides of the runway. Headlamps provided enough light for the pilots to bring their machines to earth safely. Another five minutes would have found them deciding whether to force land or abandon aircraft and bale out in the darkness.

Ross Burtt Defeats Whitley Brothers for Mayor's Chair

TRENTON (Special) — A man who tried three times and each time in a three-cornered fight between Murray and Trenton last night with a greater number of votes than the combined totals of Whitley brothers, Roland and Richard, both aspiring for the Chief Magistrate's office.

Railroader Ross Burtt polled 1,508 votes against present Major R. E. Whitley with 1,039 and R. J. "Dick" Whitley's 306. The veteran of World War II was very popular as a council contestant, suffered defeat by Mr. Whitley and K. J. Couch earlier. He served 10 years in council and dropped out of municipal politics last year after resigning as Chairman of the Trenton Water Works Borough his term.

A surprise 50 per cent of the eligible people voted. All three candidates campaigned actively and clean and the interest shown at the polls Monday reflected the effort put forth by the Burtt supporters. The total accumulative vote cast in the election was amounted to 2,853, the heaviest balloting in many years.

Merchant Gerald Weaver headed the ward 3 polls for council seats. He was closely pressed by merchant Claude V. Graham and Lieutenant H. J. McNair, other former councillors elected were Al Wilkinson and Ted Elected councillor McNair sat in confidently to acquire information and develop skills in homemaking; to help members to perform daily tasks and to assist them in meeting personal, family and community needs. The program also gives members the opportunity to plan, participate and co-operate with others, to develop satisfactory habits of work in achievement and to assist members with their personal growth and development.

Funeral director Ralph Weaver managed a total of 1,225 votes in his first year running for school board trustee. Former president of the board, Grant Rathbun, collected 1,060 votes as his closest competitor.

BY-LAW IS CARRIED.

An issue rebuked by the ratepayers when it was introduced a year ago was adopted by a majority of 213 votes yesterday. Capital will become a reality and council will be the power to spend $500,000 for a treatment plant and part of the carry-off system.

To adopt the sewage disposal motion was the most important decision the ratepayers had to make. "yes" vote totalled 973; against 760.

WILL GO TO ENGLAND.

Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton is leaving on Monday on a business trip to England where he will interview industries considering locating branch factories in Canada. It was announced today that one British manufacturer has already shown interest in establishing a plant in Picton, ideally situated to afford port facilities when the St. Lawrence Seaway project has been completed.

SPECIAL ARTICLE CARRIED.

This month's issue of "Civic Administration" the widely read municipal publication carries a special article about Trenton Industrial Commission's Dinner Party aside to welcome new industries to Trenton.

Mayor-Elect Greatly Pleased Over Victory

TRENTON (Special) — An elated mayor-elect who found success after two failures told a town hall filled with loyal supporters last night that he was "tickled to death" to represent the citizens of Trenton for the coming term.

Ross Burtt, M.M., a soldier of the First World War, won a great battle by an impressive majority of 469. It was his first attempt and third three-way fight.

Thanking his supporters he said: "I believe with the councillors elected you will have the right administration this coming year." The popular railroader said he was proud of the C.N.R. boys and especially proud of the way the C.N.R. boys worked for him. The new mayor is an employee of the government rail system.

Mr. Burtt promised that each one of the six councillors will have his say in council and that each will count at the end of the year on the accomplishment of individual platforms.

Under Mayor R. E. Whitley council was divided into two departments and the chairman of each reported achievements accordingly.

Rotary Club's Essay Awards Are Presented

The winners of the essay contest in Albert College and B.C.I.V.S. sponsored by the Rotary Club were presented with their prizes at the club's meeting in the Hotel Quinte on Monday. The topic for all essays was "World Fellowship."

Dawn LaRue and Jack Evans were the winners for the Collegiate and Glenna Ritchie and Donald MacKenzie won for Albert College. The students were introduced to the club by Bill Morrison and Frank Mulvay presented the prizes.

Guest speaker at the meeting was L. W. Elliott, general manager of Essex Electronics of Canada Limited, Trenton. Mr. Elliott traced the development of industrial development in past years. He noted that electronics in the field of industry are not a distant dream and described a number of early electronic devices.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS

Mr. Elliott also spoke of some of the latest developments in this field mentioning such new devices as the electronic machine control or electronic brain. Commenting upon the latter that such development might lead to replacement of machines by the skilled labour, the speaker said in his opinion such a situation would never occur. Rather he was inclined to believe the advance of electrophics would create a new era for skilled help.

The speaker was introduced by Jack Ireland and the expression of appreciation from the club was extended by F. C. Ketcheson.

Birthday roses were presented to Court Judge and Frank Yule. A special birthday rose will be delivered to Joe Bothwell, presently recuperating at his home from a serious illness.

A NEWSPAPER MARKS ITS CENTENNIAL

To find "everlasting words that have the power to render one hundred years in a mere moment" is no easy task.

But, when the first edition of the Owen Sound Times was printed on December 2, 1853, it carried such words in italics under the banner of its name.

"God Assisting, There is Nothing to be Feared."

That, says the Owen Sound Sun-Times in a special edition printed to mark the hundredth anniversary of the founding of one of its components, "bridges the years in a gesture."

It is a long bridge, from the little pioneer town in an area which was being settled by the white man to a modern Canadian city, from a small weekly to a thriving daily, able to produce a special edition profusely illustrated and carrying a wide variety of excellently written articles. The early history of the Times and of the Sun, their amalgamation on November 1, 1918, the inauguration of daily publication on May 1, 1922, and the growth of the Sun-Times since that date are all related. The edition carries no advertising. The effect is impressive, a twenty-page section which will be long prized by residents of Owen Sound and district, and indeed by any who are interested in the early history of Canada's wealthiest province.

Founder of Times was Richard Carney, first Warden of the County of Grey and first Mayor of Owen Sound. His successor in 1855 was his son-in-law, Patrick G. Laurie. Three years later he sold the Times to Edward Todd. In 1863 William Wye Smith bought it. In the first ten years of its history the paper had four owners. In 1864 Smith's son and James H. Rutherford purchased the Times, and between them, owned and published it until it was bought by the Fleming Publishing Co. in 1918 and merged with the Sun. Mr. Creighton took over Mr. Rutherford's share in 1858, but when he went to Toronto in 1887 to establish "The Globe" he first leased and later sold the Times to his former partner.

The Fleming family entered the newspaper field in 1904, when C. A. Fleming and Son took over the Sun. C. A. Fleming, while not a working newspaperman, had served his first printing plant in Owen Sound as boy and was president of the Fleming Publishing Co. from 1916 until his death in 1945.

His son, Howard Fleming, has been publisher of the Sun and later of the Sun-Times since 1904. Present directors of the company are his brothers, George D. Fleming and Mrs. Creighton; his sister, Miss Helen Fleming; his son, Donald T. Fleming, and Charles J. McTavish, general manager of the Sun-Times.

Although a newspaperman for the past fifteen years, Howard Fleming's guiding hand has never relinquished the reins and it has been his direction which has enabled the Sun-Times to become steadily the leading organ of its service throughout two of Ontario's largest counties, Grey and Bruce, providing a thorough coverage of district news as well as the customary reports on national and international affairs.

Incidentally, Belleville and district residents may be interested to learn that a native of Prince Edward County, Mark B. Dulmage, was editor of the Sun-Times for almost twenty years, until shortly before his death in 1947. Among the present members of the Sun-Times editorial staff is H. Archie McMullen, who wrote a number of the articles in the special edition, and who is a former member of the staff of the Ontario Intelligencer, returning to Owen Sound last summer. He will be remembered here for the high calibre of his editorials, those dealing with the Coronation theme particularly appealing to readers of this newspaper.

CANADIAN EPITAPH

Quite a controversy has been raging in England over epitaphs in churchyards.

Some of these comments on the departed have been, to put it mildly, quaint. There has been a move by official bodies to ban "humorous" epitaphs.

Uniformity is general in Canadian cemeteries. But we have just seen a tombstone which appeared to us unusual. It was definitely designed for a child's grave. On it were the symbols of Canadian childhood, pictures of a toy soldier, a teddy bear, a drum and building blocks.

The gravestone bore no name. It was displayed for sale. Not accustomed to frequenting cemeteries, we are not certain that such stones are unusual. But it appeared unusual to us.

The designs of toys, engraved into the shining stone, told their own pathetic story of a life cut short in its earliest years, stood there waiting for a death to match their tale.

Is this the tombstone of the future? And, if such stones become accepted as markers for children's graves, will the style be copied for the last resting places of adults? What a variety of stories tombstone makers might be called upon to carve into granite and marble! How many problems would face them in their selection of symbols! For toy soldier and teddy bear and drum and building block may tell a tale which all can grasp at a glance, but what a gigantic task would face the man who would attempt to tell the life-story of an adult with a few pictures.

SECOND BEST

"I'm second best at bridge," said I swear I plainly saw him wink
he.
"Of all with whom I play."
I wondered who the first could be
And begged of him to say.

"If player second best are you,
That's surely not the worst."
I questioned: "Will you tell me
Is ruled as the first?" I

While flicking his cigar
As he replied: "All others think
That best at bridge they are.

"Though none of them has
Goren's fame,
All, all, excepting me,
Imagine they can play the game
And teach as well as he."

They use their strength and speed to catch their prey or to fly above a storm, and their food is determined nature to adjust themselves to their faculties and to live in the habitat they like.

It is difficult to say whether man, with his inquiring nature and his fondness for challenge, is in the long run more adjusted to his environment than the birds who fly outside many thousands of miles climbers and wonder in their little bird-brains what purpose the Himalayas serve or risking their lives to reach the top.

Animals Don't Compete

(Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

Humans are zealous in their attempts to swim channels, to climb mountains, break speed records and reach the moon, but animals rarely do things which are not motivated by instinct and the basic rules of survival. A bird flies across a river simply to get to the other side. If it ever gives itself a speed of flight superior to their fellows, they leave it at that.

We have no knowledge of one species of birds or animals competing with others for the distinction of being faster or stronger.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

ELECTION AND FREE WILL

Is there anything to predestination? No, if by predestination we mean that God predetermined people to the world to be saved and other people to be damned. Yes, if by predestination we mean that a sovereign God presides over the world and that everything occurs either because He wills it or allows it.

Predestination was a theory by which our forefathers tried to work out the paradoxical situation of an all-powerful God presiding over a world in which He very evidently is flouted and disobeyed. Is He then not a sovereign? If he is sovereign, how, do we account for sin? John Calvin believed that it was God's decree or prescription, and being forced by logic into a corner, he said that the elect were born to be saved and the non-elect to be damned.

There is no Biblical—or for that matter ethical-justification for the belief that some are born under sin and the world by a loving God for any purpose other than to be saved. Everyone can be saved if he wants to be saved. It is up to the individual. But this does not rule out the doctrine of predestination. The Bible speaks of those being predestined and regards it as a holy mystery, which it certainly is, for God's predestination and man's free will to reject salvation operate side by side, and all under the sovereignty of God.

We cannot understand how this can be, but life's experiences as well as the testimony of the Bible assure us that it is true.

The Brain and The Mind

(Montreal Gazette)

At the opening of the McConnell Wing of the Montreal Neurological Institute, Dr. Wilder G. Penfield, the Institute's Director, had some words to say on the deepest questions in the world.

Not long ago a friend, who is much interested in the study, said to him somewhat anxiously: "I hope you are not trying to study the soul—because I think of that as something—" She hesitated, and went on, "something different, something divine."

In his address Dr. Penfield said: "I would not disagree with her. For me, too, the soul is different. The mechanism which we study may be called 'the seat of the soul,' if you like. That we can study. We deal with physical events, but our observations do not explain the nature of the patient. It may be that the problem of the nature of consciousness will forever baffle scientists."

This is not the first time that Dr. Penfield has drawn a clear borderline between the brain and the soul, beyond which man may cross. He spoke of this same theme in 1949 in an address broadcast in London over the B.B.C. He spoke of the brain, which is the field of neurosurgery. But he described to mind as "something we cannot see or touch or describe."

Until Dr. Penfield went on to say that the mind "is the faculty which is responsible for the stream of human behavior which does not seem to be automatic."

It is quite possible to stimulate artificially the cortex (the brain's outer covering) and by so doing to cause a person to move or even to seem to see lights or hear sounds. But these stimulated activities are never at the level of consciousness of a man ruled by the mind.

What is more, when a patient is asked about the sensations he carries out as the result of cortical stimulation, he has no room for doubt about it. He knows he did not will the action. He knows there is a difference between automatic and voluntary action.

Then, returning to the same theme in his address last week, Dr. Penfield said: "The mind is not the brain but the spirit seems to be present when the brain begins to function, and the spirit is gone when that function ceases, is not a problem that science can answer. That is a matter of faith for every man whether he is a scientist or a layman."

Depression Of Two Kinds

(Grove Patterson in the Toledo Blade)

Economic depression is related to mental depression in three fearsome days. It is time to distinguish the thinking of two acute evils that have no substance but are none the less destructive. Often you can learn a lot by eavesdropping even if you do not mean to be a snooper. The other day in a department store a customer was telling her troubles in great detail to a sympathetic sales girl. "I'm sorry for you," the girl with us," she said. "We have two children and my husband has a good job in a band works (naming a large Toledo concern). But we get along fine."

I don't know what we would do. Times are going to be better, and we will get on. Vividly she played the role of a woman feeling hopeful, cheerful, sorry for herself.

Now the fact is, the plant this sadly depressed person mentioned is not going to close down. Sometimes, as in all factories, a few men are made idle for a time for reasons that are purely temporary and altogether normal. I know of no manufacturing plant in Toledo that is going to shut down. Business in practically every line is good. The "depression" we hear about in the mind of the kind of depressed person I met is a confusion of fearful and disturbed persons. It is brought on by anxiety and rests on no sound basis. It is a manifestation of mental sickness, largely induced by the dark cloud of ignorance.

This rumor business is perilous. It is immeasurably dangerous in the effect it has on the rest of our community. Wrong thinking can be like the wind that is hurricane. It can weaken and even destroy all that is normal and wholesome. It can breed fear and gossip, by the mouth and by the pen, invents an astonishing speeds and gains incredible circulation.

News for Pessimists

(Fort William Times-Journal)

Anyone listening to the pessimist who describes Canadian business as going to the dogs, however, may fairly his own opinion by looking at the latest figures for motor sales in Canada during the first eight months of 1953. Those sales jumped by 17 per cent during the first eight months of last year by a total of $424,000,000.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DOCTOR SLEEP

We can become our own physician to a very large degree. Here are a few of the best of terms with Doctor Sleep! He is the invisible one, right out of nature, who may become our best friend in the space of history amply demonstrate this fact.

The greatest and happiest of this earth have been blessed with the will and ability to sleep and thus to be refreshed. Little has been written about the small hours of sleep experienced by Napoleon during the night before Waterloo, but it does not let it must be borne in mind that Napoleon had almost miraculous powers of sleep. He could command sleep as he would an army. The fact that he died in middle life was not because he could not sleep but that a hereditary ailment brought on his death.

Voltaire lived to be past 90. He had his best work after he was 50. He was a fine sleeper. He was moderate in all things—except in ideas. Goethe lived to a good age. He, too, gave to sleep a good measure of his life. He lived serenely. Heine once remarked that he looked the Jupiter. Balzac was a poor sleeper and he died in middle life, but he knew how he could compensate for his sleeplessness. The "Human Comedy" is a monument to the power of sleep. He sat up late, getting but a few hours of sleep, plugging himself with an extravagance of coffee, cigarettes and writing.

The late Henry Ford lived well into his eighties. Many times he would drive out to attend chapel service in the white church at Greenfield Village at eight o'clock in the morning. I was told that he habitually retired at 9 o'clock, to early as seven in the morning. He always seemed fresh and rested. Clean living and plenty of early sleep were his Doctor!

Sleep is largely a matter of will and an absence of all fear. I often think of that line said to have been said of the great William E. Gladstone, the English statesman, "Then will keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on Thee."

Safer in Air

(Vancouver Province)

The news that Canadian airlines carried 1,548,237 passengers on scheduled flights last year with only one fatality — a pilot —should make the motorists feel ashamed of themselves. It is getting to be a lot safer up in the air than down on the highway.

MAKE THAT ONE FOR THE ROAD COFFEE

In the Christmas - New Year holiday period last year 962 persons were killed in automobile accidents.

Alcohol was a contributing cause if not the main cause of a great many such accidents, although everybody, or perhaps fatalities or dependents of innocent victims, strives to cover up for the guilty driver by declaring that he she had taken only one or two drinks.

If you don't know it I'll tell you before we go any further that one of my numerous peeves is alcohol. In view of my attitude you may readily ask a few studies and brush my teachings or arguments aside.

The driver whose perception, judgment and reaction time are dulled or slowed by one or more drinks of alcoholic liquor (no one can deny that one dose of alcohol has such effects in every instance) is pampered and fortified in his or her criminal negligence by the popular assumption that there is a divided line between permissible sobriety and intoxication. Thus the culprit, if apprehended, can produce any witness to testify that he or she may have had a drink or two but was not drunk. And plenty of expert witnesses, for a fee, are prepared to testify that the amount of alcohol the defendant admits he or she had taken would not make him or her incapable of driving.

All right, now, let's forget (a) that you enjoy your glass and even feel it is good for you and (b) that I am a total teetotaler. This is a free country—for that matter I'll buy you a drink if you have the courtesy not to comment on or resent the fact that I don't choose to drink anything myself.

The scientific investigations of Drs. Strongin and Winser of Cornell University have proved that coffee has a definite sobering effect, and the sobering effect is enhanced if the coffee is taken with plenty of sugar. These effects of coffee have been commonly recognized for a long time.

A good host or hostess feels a sense of responsibility for the safety of guests at a party where alcoholic drinks are served, especially for the safety of guests on their way home from the party. And for this reason should make the final drink coffee.

Seven lawyers operators in Virginia, Maryland and District of Columbia have decided to exercise a decent responsibility for the safety of their customers during the time, 36-Jan. 1 period this year, thus:

1. Serve coffee to departing customers as a "Drink for the Road," the price in the tavern will be the driver's car keys which he or she will receive only when he is in condition to drive safely.
2. If the tavern keepers follow through on this they will put to practice a good deed. Hosts and hostesses who just don't care about the welfare or happiness but their own.

Hydro Victim Of Prosperity

(Sudbury Star)

In 1947 it was estimated that the prospective customers in the Sudbury area totalled 784,300 customers. This figure has now been increased to 904,700 customers.

Since the first estimate was made the number of electrical sensitive items per consumer has increased greatly. This, of course, means more washing machines, refrigerators, etc.

In undertaking the giant conversion program the H.E.P.C. has been told by Dr. Simms of the country's prosperity, for it is in the interests of consumers and the greater number of electrical appliances that the reason can be given for the increase in cost over the original estimate.

Interesting is the breakdown of figures which shows that when the 1947 estimate was prepared the Hydro family of customers consisted of 784,300 customers. This figure has now been increased to 904,700 customers.

Since the first estimate was made the number of electrical sensitive items per consumer has increased greatly. This, of course, means more washing machines, refrigerators, etc.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

During the past ten to fifteen years of surging prosperity it has not been necessary to do much selling. There have been some pieces in the papers recently suggesting that the art of selling may have been lost or mislaid in these years. It is hinted that the salesmanship we have finding it necessary to remind the sales staff that it is no longer enough merely to be an order-taker.

But something more than salesmanship has suddenly become prosperous years. Management has got sloppy too, according to a bank executive I know who is also an extremely shrewd accountant and budgeteer.

"By and large, managers," he said, "have got the idea that all management consists of its telling somebody else what to do. In my opinion, a great many managers in Canadian business are no more than traffic cops. They have a lot of dignity and a lot of authority. They stand in the middle of things and wave their hands. But their only interest is in the traffic right around them. They can't see what is happening a block away up the street. When some order, at their whim, is stand there, blowing their whistles.

"Many years ago, I read in the paper the rule of a famous American businessman which he posted in his office. It was the secret of his success. I give it to you now in the hope you will print it. It is this: 'Put down characters who imagine they are important. Then clip it out and paste it in their hats.

"A good executive asks three questions:

" (1) What shall be done?

" (2) How shall it be done?

" (3) Who shall do it?

"That is a great executive adds one more question:

"(4) Has it been done?"

There's the sticker. In prosperous times, an ingenious or jolly or even a pushful executive is considered to be as good as the performance.

Lately, some very important clients of mine are into difficulties. I visited them. I met half a dozen managers, each of whom had to go and ask somebody else the answers to my questions. The kind of managers we used to have in Canadian business, twenty years ago, were out above going and taking on a stool in the accounting department, or even on the traffic right around them. They can't see what is happening a block away up the street. When some order, at their whim, is stand there, blowing their whistles.

The Greatest Faith Ever Known

CHAPTER 15.

With that flamboyant sign of the triumphant power of the Lord Jesus, Paul, Barnabas, and Mark made ready to leave Cyprus. Now that Sergius Paulus was won to eager acceptance of the faith, the Christians on the island, childhood friends and relatives of Barnabas, could worship openly. They would, with their ordained deacons and priests, teach and pray without fear of persecution.

Paul, driven on by the Holy Ghost, could not linger on Cyprus. From Paphos, the town where the sorcerer lay in the temporary agonies of blindness, the travelers took ship again. His heart was high at the first taste of success in a difficult task.

In the midst of this felicity came trouble. They were already at sea, sailing for Pamphylia, when Mark decided to abandon his two saintly companions and return alone to Jerusalem.

Why? What happened to them so soon after their initial victory? No one has ever fully revealed the cause of the dissension.

No one can say what made Mark quit Paul to go back to Peter, but the mind is tempted to speculate. It seemed that a young man who had already shown such courage should have shrunk from the dangers of their new destination. When they found Perga in Pamphylia, all three were well aware of the kind of place to which they were being led by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost. Pamphylia was notoriously lax in its ethics and its equally evil climate. A place of sorcerers and prostitutes and gangs. Pamphylia was the next port of call for Paul and Barnabas.

But not for Mark. He went as far with them as Attalia, the capital of this ancient Roman province. There he refused to go ashore.

Eventually, Mark would live his way back into Paul's graces, and serve him again before the apostle's death. But some deep split of temperament or of spiritual outlook between them on the island of Paphos. Years later Paul would speak, gently, of Mark's quality of "desertion" from the mission, effort, but his words cannot explain the cause of it.

Whatever the reason, Mark sailed away from Paul and Barnabas, and they went on easily without him into the land of Pamphylia.

Several miles inland they trudged to Perga, the principal city of the Cestrus River. Perga was not a big place, but it was prosperous and long-established, known as the "Queen of Perga." Her graceful figure, and the temple of Diana, were even stamped on the local coins of copper and silver.

In the shadow of her temple Paul and Barnabas preached the word of God, and the message of Jesus was delivered all the more eloquently because of the wealthy human misbehavior for which the Pergan Queen was famous.

Next, the two companions strode out into the hilly, rocky country of central Asia Minor. Miasmas of the swamps around Perga had crept into Paul, and fever had come to him with the pains of ague. But the hardy multitudes now steadied his health.

But Paul was not troubled with his infirmities. Regardless of his fevers and ague, he pressed into action as they reached the Roman province of Galatia, and the cities of Iconium, Lystra, Derbe, and other Antioch — called Pisidian Antioch to distinguish it from the namesakes in Syria. And in this Pisidian Antioch was a large colony of Jews.

Paul always went, as his letters state, "to the Jews first," as Christ Himself did. Now with Barnabas he went to the synagogue on the Sabbath services and sat down. Then, after prayers and selections from the Prophets, just as he was doing today, the rulers came down to the back of the room, where Paul and Barnabas had taken their places, and invited them to participate.

"You men, brethren, if you have any word of exhortation to make to the people, speak."

And as Luke tells it, Paul stood up, and "with his hand bespeaking silence," said:

"You men of Israel, and you that fear God, give ear."

With loving eloquence, Paul traced the history of the Jews from Adam through the Old Testament descriptions of the Exodus, the sonbooks of the Law and the prophets which had just been read aloud. And then he told them that Jesus Christ had been the fulfillment of those things. He had been crucified, buried, and had risen from the dead. Moreover, he warned his listeners that they must recognize the fact that Jesus was the Messiah, and believe.

"Beware, therefore," said Paul, "lest that come upon you which is spoken in the Prophets: 'Behold, ye despisers, and wonder, and perish: for I work in your days a work which you will not believe, if any man shall tell it to you.'"

For a while it looked as if there in Pisidian Antioch Paul and Barnabas were to have an unprecedented triumph.

"Paul stood up and . . . said: 'You men of Israel, and you that fear God, give ear.'"

The city buzzed with talk about Paul's sermon. When the service was over, the synagogue was crowded with many of the Jews, as well as others who had joined the congregation of Israel, followed Paul and Barnabas all the way to their lodgings, and begged to hear more of the word. They piled the two evangelists with questions; they were excited, hungering and thirsting after knowledge and eager to be filled.

"Won't you come next Sabbath and tell us more?" they begged.

And when the next Sabbath came, and Paul and Barnabas approached the synagogue they were astounded at the sight awaiting them. The open space in front of the synagogue and the branching streets were packed solid. Pirates and cobblers, men and women, all of the crafts and conditions, farmers from far around and Gentiles, had come together, not for one purpose: to hear the remarkable message of Jesus Christ and His redemption, brought by the two visitors from across the Mediterranean.

"The whole city, almost," Luke says, "came together to hear the word of God."

And, as might have been expected, there was trouble.

Hardly had Paul started on his exposition, lifting his voice to reach them all, his head gleaming in the sunlight, when the heckling began. Up rose one elder and contradicted a statement. Evidently, he said, this Paul of Tarsus is ignorant of the Law.

Ignorant of the Law? Take care. Don't tangle with Paul the ex-Pharisee! The elder recognized a sharp opponent soon enough and changed his tactics, decided it was not wise to debate with Paul publicly, but to shout him down. The resultant heckling halted the meeting into a hubbub of shouting and confusion.

But above the clamor Paul and Barnabas heard their names called, and what they said was clear and distinct.

"To you it behooved us first to speak the word of God; but because you reject it, and judge yourselves unworthy of eternal life, behold, we turn to the Gentiles. For so the Lord hath commanded us: I have set thee to be the light of the Gentiles; that thou mayest be for salvation unto the utmost parts of the earth.'"

From the throats of the Gentiles in the crowd rose a loud outcry of joy, and many converts were made among them that day. They glorified the word of the Lord, and all who were ordained to eternal lives were changed.

But the Pharisees were not yet defeated. The fact that the message of Jesus Christ was being received by the Gentiles only inflamed them. Moonlight long they plotted against the teaching of the two Christian teachers. Next day they went to the synagogue at the doors of leading citizens, powerful laymen who listened believingly to the word of God, and persuaded them to drive Paul and Barnabas out of the city.

The Pharisees did not even stop with the men — some of whom had been impressed by Paul and Barnabas — but stirred up religious fanaticism in the hearts of women, spinsters, housewives, widows, and young maids looking forward to being brides. With a clattering of tongues, these women began to repeat the tales, elaborating and inflating them into vast, dismal, and foul exaggeration, beginning soon themselves to believe what they were saying.

Before long, armed men came to the house where Paul and Barnabas were staying. To them, instead of heretical doctrines and vile behavior and threaten their lives. They shoved the preachers out into the streets, and the word went through the gate, and onto the open road, all the way down to the coast. They were driven out of Antioch.

The harried pair remembered instructions given long ago in Galilee, and repeated by Peter. Now they followed those words meticulously. They knocked the dust of their feet against their own town, then they boarded a ship which was just getting under way.

Antioch, how goes it with you today? You are a bundle of ruins, important only to archeologists who read what is carved on your rubbled stones. Paul and Barnabas still live up the hearts of men across the world.

Their next goal was Iconium, also in Galatia.

The situation of the two missioners had reached Iconium before them, an intensely interested crowd swalled them at the gates, eagerly looking for the Jews of the congregation but Greeks also, who had been converted to the one, true God of the Old Testament and worshipped them.

The crowd was a heartening sight. Both Paul and Barnabas were suffused with the power of the Holy Spirit as they talked. The simple, strong delivery of Barnabas and the increasingly impassioned speech of Paul alternated to the delight of their listeners like a cleansing wind.

But spiritual fervor seethed in the streets of Iconium. The Pharisees had made the situation intolerable.

The same kind of ferocious legends which had driven Barnabas and Paul and Barnabas elsewhere sought in Iconium to stir up the Roman authorities against them, calling them subversive agents, unbalanced men for revolution, enemies of Caesar.

But their gulleful schemes did not work. The apostles went on with their preaching, baptizing, performing the daily Eucharistic Communion, and no one interfered.

Then suddenly the smothered fires of hatred burst into flame. The town was divided against itself, "and some of them joined with the Jews but some with the apostles." Civil war within the city walls began to turn to fury moment, and then the Roman soldiers were sent in. Blood would flow, and the city would come under the dominion of the troops. Some demanded that the rulers order Paul and Barnabas to be stoned to death. Others swore they would give their own lives to protect the preachers of God's work.

Paul and Barnabas were stirred by the Pharisees was coming to a boil. Paul and Barnabas took the situation into their own hands. While other men muttered and wrangled, the two apostles, Paul, short, stocky, and fairly hopping with energy, and Barnabas, lingering blackwater fever, and Barnabas, tall, handsome, and dignified with himself, slipped through the city gates.

Then he were far beyond the foulon walls before their enemies knew they were gone.

Canada Meets NATO Pledge Well Ahead of Schedule

By JACK MacBRIDE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada this year fulfilled well ahead of schedule its manpower commitment to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

As the year ends some 18,000 Canadians hold down vital positions in the huge West European-North Atlantic defence system. With forces from 13 other NATO countries, they are ready to help repel aggression from the skies, over land or on the sea.

In addition, Canada is still pouring millions of dollars worth of supplies into the build-up of NATO's military muscle.

Defence Minister Claxton announced in 1951 that within three years, Canada would contribute 12 squadrons of jet fighters to the NATO air defence; one army brigade of about 6,000 men, and naval forces involving about 5,500 men.

NOW UNDER NATO

Last summer, three RCAF Sabre squadrons crossed the Canadian in a leap-frog operation to join the nine squadrons that had preceded them. All now are under NATO operational orders.

The RCAF has not broken down its personnel assigned to NATO as a ground crew or air crew but the total is about 4,500. This includes administrative personnel.

The army's 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade this summer and fall reinforced the 27th Brigade which came home on rotation leave after two years in Germany.

The RCAF has not been so specific about its contribution to NATO defence. It has pointed out that the new east coast fleet would be available in the need arose.

This is manpower, would amount to more than the 8,500-man allotment.

"EXERCISE MARINER"

During the late summer, five Canadian warships took part in NATO's "Exercise Mariner" — the largest international fleet manoeuvres in peace-time history. They were commended highly by NATO commanders for their performance in the 15-day exercise.

The 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade came into being in the fall as part of the new 1st Canadian Infantry Division in what amounted to a major reorganization of the army. The division's 2nd and 3rd brigade are stationed in Canada and are augmented by paratroopers.

HUGE ARMY CAMP

At home, the army started construction of the most ambitious project in its history. Camp Gagetown, at Gagetown, N.B. The $25,000,000 camp will be used for training a division, including units destined for NATO service.

In line of war, Camp Gagetown would become the main east coast embarkation point for the Canadian Army.

The defence department's three-year program called for the shipment to NATO countries of $233,000,000 worth of equipment and supplies in 1953. Next year, the figure is expected to be at least as great.

In addition to the shipment of equipment and supplies, Canada has trained more than 1,500 NATO pilots under its mutual aid program.

Mediators Draft Proposal to End Newspaper Strike

By EUGENE LEVIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal mediators today hammered out a proposal for ending a strike against six major New York newspapers, and called in both sides to look the formula over.

"I am for the first time optimistic," federal mediator Walter A. Maggiolo said as he told reporters he would submit the plan to the publishers and striking AFL Photo-Engravers.

Top negotiators for both sides were with Maggiolo and posed for news photographers for the first time since the strike started Nov. 26. It was in its 11th day.

Details of the formula were not disclosed, but there were indications it hinged on creation of a fact-finding board.

Maggiolo's announcement came after efforts Monday to settle the dispute.

After midnight, Denis M. Burke, president of the striking local, and William Mapel, president of the Publishers Association of New York City, went into consultation. The announcement by Maggiolo, Burke and Mapel present, followed.

Burke said that if his union's bargaining committee accepted the mediator's proposal he would submit it to a union membership meeting this afternoon. And if the strikers at this meeting ratified the plan, pickets could be called off within an hour.

REFUSE TO CROSS LINES

The picket lines were a major reason for suspension of publication by the six papers. Only photo-engravers, the men who make the metal plates from which photos and other illustrations are reproduced, went on strike. The papers could have published pictures-less editions.

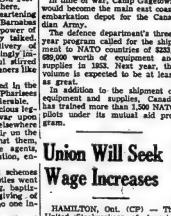
Meanwhile, 20,000 employees belonging to other unions refused to cross the picket lines. Publishers were editorial employees belonging to the American Newspaper Guild (CIO) and shop workers affiliated with unions in the AFL Printing Trades Council.

The engravers asked a $15 weekly raise — holiday-and-face package increase when the strike started, and have since cut the demand in half. The publishers have offered a $3.75 package. Current base pay now ranges from $120 a week for day work to $133 for night work.

The six New York papers involved in the strike have a combined circulation of more than 5,000,000. The six are The Times, the News, The Mirror, The Sun, The Journal-American, and The World-Telegram and Sun.

The Herald Tribune suspended publication for five days last week in sympathy with the other seven papers. The Herald Tribune, which resumed publication Sunday, has its production problems by an outside commercial firm.

of the union's basic steel committee in Toronto.



A union statement said negotiations "shall provide for the settlement of the unpaid wage bill" from the Steel Company of Canada, Hamilton, and Algoma Steel, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont."

The "unpaid wage bill" refers to an 8½ cent hourly wage boost awarded by United States plants last summer.

The statement charged the two Canadian companies had "not negotiated in good faith" on the issue. The companies had contended during conciliation hearings that industry precluded the possibility of a similar boost.

136th YEAR IS RECORD

GORDON R. BALL ARTHUR C. JENSEN

B of M HEAD STRESSES NEW NEED FOR SALESMANSHIP, EFFICIENCY, REALISM

Gordon Ball Sees Keener Competition and Return of Normal Hazards of Enterprise

ARTHUR JENSEN, GENERAL MANAGER, PRESENTS RECORD STATEMENT, REVIEWS BUSINESS OUTLOOK, PRAISES PERSONNEL

Keener competition and the return of normal hazards of enterprise were given as reasons for a renewed emphasis on salesmanship, efficiency and sober realism in business by Gordon R. Ball, president of the Bank of Montreal at its 136th annual meeting of shareholders.

In reviewing the Canadian business picture during the past year, the B. of M. president said that "we seem to have passed from a situation in which all business prospered, to one in which the normal hazards of enterprise are once more apparent."

"The business landscape," he said, "has begun to show the more varied pattern of light and shade. Some industries, particularly those dependent on export markets, have been encountering difficulties. Others, including the home market, both in domestic and foreign trade."

Mr. Ball maintained that, while these developments did not justify a gloomy view of Canada's prospects, they did suggest the need for a healthy awareness that boom conditions of easy selling and easy profits are subsiding.

"I am still an optimist," he said, "but I believe that the attitude of reasonable optimism includes a certain realism which holds that favorable prospect places a renewed emphasis on salesmanship, efficiency and sober realism."

More Intensive and Economic Use of Resources

The speaker saw in the improvement that has taken place during the past year in the sphere of international trade and finance "a great opportunity for further progress toward more intensive and economic use of resources."

"In fact it would be tragic if, just at the time when the military and political defense of western civilization of goodwill were being strengthened, the economic gains of the past were to be lost."

It is up to all of us, in all countries, who stand with private enterprise and representative government now that the system that we rightly believe produces most and distributes best, to see that we are being does not inevitably beget the boom and slump and mass unemployment.

"That, as I see it, is the great surviving Canadian challenge of the present day. And that challenge will not be met if the legacy of over-production should drive individual nations behind the barricades of high tariffs and intensified restrictions."

Mr. Ball noted the need of the immediate future as the speedy readjustment of the economy to a more normal basis. He said that the decline of trade in certain areas, and, with it, the reduction in the demand for steel and other basic materials, had created certain problems in the economy of the country.

Canada's Responsibilities in World Trade

In discussing Canada's responsibilities in the development of international trade, Mr. Ball said: "We must see to it that the words 'Made in Canada' continue to be, as they have become, a hallmark of quality. There is much more than a matter of governmental trade policy. It is a charge on Canadians in general, and on labour and management alike, to improve efficiency and to exercise moderation and restraint in wage and price demands. It is clear than in the endeavor to maintain and expand markets, both abroad and at home, the test will be the price-tag.

Touching on the matter of banking accommodation in business, Mr. Ball told his audience that "the business of lending money and getting it back, always an important aspect of a bank's activities, presents certain problems at a time such as the present."

"In a period of rapid business expansion such as we have been experiencing, there is a trend, there always more than the normal number of people who are apt to formulate plans beyond their capacity to achieve and who are insufficiently aware of the distinction between speculation on the one hand, and legitimate risks of soundly conceived enterprise on the other.

"It is a time, therefore, that places particular problems on the sensitivity and ability and common sense of our branch managers and other officers who are daily confronted with the requests of borrowers large and small.

"Our definition of 'constructive' assistance does not include the financing of projects where there is a lack fundamentals of creditworthiness appear to be lacking. Such financial backing, we think, would be an ill service to the community, to our shareholders and, not least, to the would-be borrower himself."

General Manager Presents Record Report

A matter of special interest which he discussed was the bank's rest fund by $7 million. Of this amount $5 million represented a transfer from profit and loss account, the balance of $2 million had been transferred from contingency reserve. The bank's rest fund is derived from the refundable portion of Excess Profits Tax and, when added to and in part from reserves established for contingencies and reserves for which reserves were no longer considered necessary.

Commenting on the rise in the bank's current loans to a new high of $787 million, the general manager pointed out that "the increase of $124 million is considerable and, we think, reflects the additional funds required to finance the increased prices of wheat as well as some increase in the consumer credit and investment sectors of our loaning business are in higher figures than at the end of the last fiscal year."

Mr. Jensen referred to the recent proposal by the federal Government to empower the chartered banks to lend money against mortgage security for new housing.

"I think I should perhaps say that, for our part, we are examining the proposal with a cooperative and open mind, particularly in view of those features that provide for insurance of mortgages and for eligibility of such mortgages for rediscount at the Bank of Canada."

Sound Evidence of Business Confidence

In concluding his review of business conditions, the general manager referred to the commonly heard suggestion that 1954 will be a year of marked slowdown in Canada's progress. "Certainly," he said, "there is no probable or prolonged slackening of business activity in the United States that is likely to be expected that the effects will be felt in this country.

"It is not my purpose here to attempt to prophesy, but rather to paint in the economic background against which the bank's business will be conducted. Whatever the coming year may have in store, however, the record speaks emphasizing that there is as yet scant evidence of any general slackening in the pace of business."

Mr. Jensen praised the bank's staff for their performance in operating the high volume of business.

He explained that the bank was continuing to develop its mechanization program to the maximum practical degree to assist the staff in handling the immense volume of work, and that this was likewise helping to offset constant review all matters relating to the welfare of the staff, and to change conditions of work, the full range of banking," the general manager said, "and I think the conclusion that it is a complicated and demanding business requiring scrupulous honesty, hard work, imagination and particular attributes of character.

"But banking is also a challenging and interesting occupation in which the banker, perhaps more than most other businessmen, sees the whole panorama of trade. And in few other callings does the personal element play so vital a part. You will realize, therefore, why I am very conscious of the splendid contribution to the success of the bank made by the managers of our branches and their supporting personnel, as it is on their efforts that the continued progress of every branch depends."

Christ Church E.B.W.A. Enjoys Yuletide Party

Last evening 40 members of Christ Church Evening Branch of the W.A. met in the Parish Hall for the Christmas party and potluck supper.

The tables, which were arranged in the form of a large "U" facing the lovely Christmas tree on the dais, were adorned attractively and prettily appointed with a Christmas cloth and matching serviettes, while the centrepiece of colored globes, red candles and little Santa Clauses, added highlights to the Yuletide motif. At each guest's place reposed a little candy cane tied with a red ribbon bow. Other holiday decorations accented the table valance at intervals.

Following the supper, Christmas carols were sung, and a contest enjoyed, the contest of the passing of parcels, all wrapped in several layers of tissue, till at last the one holding the parcel, unwrapped, when the music ceased, became its possessor. Those winning were Mrs. G. G. Mitchell, Mrs. L. Bowerman and Mrs. H. Stevens.

Readings were also given by Marina Bongard, "Noq Fale," and "O Little Town of Long Ago," and solos by Mrs. Ralph Bongard, Probable J. B. Creegan, rector of the church.

Later, Santa, in the person of Mrs. A. Cooper, appeared and presented the exchange of gifts from the decorated tree.

He showed pictures of the student body at the Regent Park and Toronto beautiful trees and flowers in the garden. They were views of English scenery of Scotland, and of the Isle of Wight. Views of Loch Lomond and the pictures of the flowers of England, were particularly beautiful and were enjoyed by all.

HOLLOWAY ST. W.M.S.

The Christmas spirit was surely present at the December meeting of the W.M.S. of Holloway Street Church, when the soft musical prelude played by Mrs. Downey included many well known carols and preceded a program in keeping with the season.

After brief opening exercises, conducted by the president, Mrs. G. Coulter, who spoke on the true meaning of Christmas, an impressive worship service on the theme "And His Word became flesh and dwelt among us", was presented with Mrs. F. Scott as leader, assisted by Mrs. C. Holmes and Mrs. R. Moorman. During this devotional period Mrs. A. Daniels rendered the ever beautiful solo, "Nazareth," by Gounod very effectively.

Mrs. Scott then introduced the guest of the afternoon, Mrs. Lyle Jones, who told in her own inimitable manner the story of "The Little Hunchback - Zeea", which held the attention and stirred the emotions of her audience.

Sincere appreciation was expressed to Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Daniels by Mrs. C. Holmes.

The business period followed when reports from the secretaries of the various departments were presented. The secretary of the meeting refreshments were convener, Mrs. Ward Jones, and members of her group from a basement fully appointed tea table with its attractive centre of gifts and gifts from the decorated tree.

The president expressed the pleasure of the meeting at the presence of Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Daniels by Mrs. C. Holmes.

TRINITY UNITED W.M.S.

MADOC — With the approach of the Christmas season and a lovely afternoon 29 ladies attended the December meeting of Trinity United Church W.M.S. at the parsonage on Wednesday afternoon when they graciously welcomed by the hostess, Mrs. Lane. Mrs. D. Cannon, the president, opened the meeting by voicing her appreciation to so many members for their presence and inviting a short poem on "Christmas."

Considering the business period she asked for reports from the committees of friendship secretary, Mrs. F. Fleming; book shelf convener, Mrs. Burnside; stewardship, Mrs. Empey; envelope, Miss A. Holmes and treasurer's report from Mrs. F. H. Hayes.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. R. C. Jackson, who read a poem "The Personal Touch of Christmas," this was followed by the reading of the Christmas Story as recorded in Matthew by Mrs. Drinkwater. Mrs. A. Adams read a poem, "Bethlehem."

Mrs. R. C. Jackson's subject was the "Christmas Road," leaving the thought with us that the Christmas road extends far beyond the one day commemorating the Saviour's birth and must be used during the worship period.

Mrs. Lane was in charge of the program. Mrs. R. Jackson sang a solo, "Bethlehem's Star"; Mrs. Lane, "Here Comes Christmas"; Mrs. Adams a carol, "God Rest You Merry Gentlemen"; Miss Olive Ashe, "The Christmas Bestlove"; Mrs. A. "WHERE PARKING IS NO PROBLEM"

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

RELATIONSHIP IN WHICH EVERYTHING IS WRONG

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There is a man with whom I have fallen in love, and he says he loves me, too. He is 28 and I am 17.

Recently, he went on a trip to another state and took a girl with him, but before he left, he told me he wanted me to be his wife and he told the same thing to his family and mine. Since he has been gone, he has written to me and told me to be sure and wait for him so that we could be married when he gets back.

I am wondering if he is telling me the truth when he says he wants me to marry him, and if I should wait for him.

O.T.S.

Dear O.T.S.:

Are you crazy? Or just so completely childish that you have no kind of judgment at all?

Do you really mean that you would consider for one wild moment marrying such a man as you describe, and that you really believe there might be a grain of truth in what he says about wanting you to be his wife? Even though you obviously don't know that it is a criminal offense for a man to take a girl across a state line for the purpose he certainly had in mind, can it be possible that you would have no objection to waiting for a man to come back from a trip with another girl and then marry him?

Did he tell his family and yours about the trip he was making when he wanted to marry you? I don't think so. But if by any chance they did know about it, and your family haven't forbidden you ever to see this man again, then they are as crazy as you are.

To add that, even under the best of circumstances, a man of 28 is ridiculously unsuitable for a girl of 17, is a minor point in proportion to the other factors in this fantastic situation.

It is hard for me to believe that you can be serious in what you say, but if you are, then I most forcefully hope that someone in your family will take steps to see that you are properly restrained before you ruin your life.

HIS GIRL'S FATHER IS TOO STRICT—WHAT CAN HE DO ABOUT IT

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16, and there is a girl my age I like very much, and I am sure she likes me. But her father is very strict with her and will not allow her to go out to shows or even to talk to boys on the telephone.

How do you think I could get in touch with her?

J.I.C.

Have you tried writing this girl a letter? Or calling her father on the telephone and asking him if you might come to see the daughter?

I think the latter would be the smartest thing to do, because if a father sees that a boy knows enough to act like a respectable person, and so is manly and courteous enough to ask a girl's parents for permission to see their daughter, he is much more likely to be willing to allow this.

Try this anyhow, because it's much your best bet.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMESON

TREATMENT OF OILY SKIN

Girls with shiny noses that call for frequent powdering have an idea that Mother Nature played them a mean trick when she gave them overactive glands. But, without them, the skin would be in a sorry condition—so they should be flaky and rough all the time.

These glands perform numerous duties. They remove a certain amount of waste products. They protect the skin from injury by friction, exposure to strong sunlight and harsh winds. And, something else: In their small way they help to keep the body from losing heat to rapidly.

"That's all right," says Miss Shiny Nose, "let them attend to their business in a normal manner. But why overdo the job? It is no fun for me to waltz around with a face that looks as if it had been freshly larded."

A little dietary control on her part will turn the trick. All fat foods stimulate the functions of these glands. She must put less butter on her bread, be stingy when pouring cream in her coffee and cut down on pastries, rich sauces and fried foods. Chocolate is not for her. Within a brief time she will find a change in the condition of her complexion.

Soap and water should be used freely twice a day and every bit of the lather should be removed—first with a warm rinsing, then with a cool one. After a gentle drying an astringent can be applied, slapped on with pledgets of cotton and allowed to dry. Do that at night.

Cosmetic creams should be applied only when the skin feels chapped and sensitive or after exposure to strong sunlight. Even then it should be removed with tissues within the hour.

DECEMBER BIRTHSTONES ARE BLUE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My sister is a December gal. Her birthday is the last day of December, and her engagement is to be announced on that day. I would like to give her a gift of jewelry on that day, something set with her birthstone; perhaps a pin or a ring or a charm for her bracelet. But I am confused as to what really is the December birthstone, for I've heard several mentioned. Please tell me.

Sister.

Actually there are three birthstones assigned to December. I hope your sister likes blue, for all of them are blue, and all interesting shades of blue. Turquoise . . . Lapiz Lazuli . . . and Zircon. A turquoise (which is supposed to bring success in the affairs of the heart!) may be an Oriental Turquoise of a beautiful azure blue, and set in gold; or a greenish-blue, very often successfully set in silver, though sometimes in gold. The Lapiz Lazuli, of deep, rich blue, is full of ancient lore and mystery, and is believed to be the "sapphire" of the ancients. The Blue Zircon, the third of December's birthstones, is very popular today, because it is so radiant and so youthful. Although the Zircon comes in several brilliant colors, the Blue Zircon, in glowing aquamarine blue, is the best known, happily, it blends harmoniously with all colors, and with all other shades of blue.

HOW WIDOW SIGNS CHRISTMAS CARD

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

1. In today's paper I read with great interest your rules about signing Christmas cards, and wonder if you would please answer this special question for me. I am a widow. When I sign a Christmas card to a priest, should I sign "Anna L. Carroll" or "Mrs. T. J. Carroll"?

2. Also, when I write a letter or note to a priest, I usually begin with "Dear Rev. Father." But I am never sure about the closing. Should it be "Sincerely, Anna L. Carroll" or "Sincerely, Mrs. T. J. Carroll"?

A faithful reader

1. If you are signing your name under the greeting or message which is printed or hand-written on your Christmas card . . . as most usually does . . . you sign your informal name. For example:

Christmas Greetings to you and Best Wishes for the New Year
Anna L. Carroll

If you don't know the priest very well, and think this signature is not enough of identification, sign your name this way after the message:

Anna L. Carroll
(Mrs. Thomas J. Carroll)

2. You may begin your letter or note My dear Father McDonald, or if you prefer, Reverend Father. The correct ending would be (with your formal name in parentheses, if necessary for identification!):

Sincerely yours,
Anna L. Carroll
(Mrs. Thomas J. Carroll)

HUSBAND'S NAME FIRST

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I'm about to order Christmas cards imprinted for my husband and myself and our son. Our son's name is Bill. Should his name be placed after ours—for example: "Lillian, Joe and Bill," or should it be "Lillian, Bill and Joe"?

L.

Neither of these forms is correct. When a child's name is included in the signature (whether hand-written or imprinted), the father's name should come first. Therefore, correct is: Joe and Lillian, and Bill.

SEND CHRISTMAS CARDS FIRST CLASS MAIL

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Is it proper to send Christmas card envelopes unsealed, that is, not First Class mail? Ursula L.

It's first class taste to send your Christmas card envelopes First Class mail. This gives them the good-looks to make the proper first impression. Economy is the idea, it's really in better taste to should be avoided. Powder must be fluffed onto the face, never rubbed in with the pad.

OLD BEAU SQUIRES PRINCESS MARGARET

The public appearance of Princess Margaret with any eligible young man invariably starts a chain reaction of gossip in London. No exception was her recent return to night life escorted by Peter Ward, 27, son of the Earl of Dudley, with whom she is pictured. After attending the theatre, they danced at a hotel ballroom until dawn. Ward has been considered one of her "old beaus" for some time. (Central Press Canadian.)

Peace Work by The Chairman Of The Cookie Board

By Mary Moore

Today's theme is cookies of course, may be decorated with again, but it will be the last before Christmas—that is, unless some one writes in frantically for some cookie recipe without which she couldn't possibly hold a successful Christmas.

So cookie fiends, clip this. I've chosen the favorites that taste good, look attractive and which seem to be especially Christmasy. Scotch shortbread was given to you on November 24th, so I am not repeating it.

MERRY MELTING MOMENTS

One-quarter lb. (1-2 cup) butter or margarine, 5 tablespoons icing sugar, 1 teaspoon almond flavoring, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder and (optional) sliced red candied cherries or sliced red gum drops or red-colored sugar or shot. Cream butter, sugar, almond flavoring and salt until very light and fluffy. Sift the sifted flour, salt and baking powder together and mix them to well. Chill dough at least 2 hours. Between floured palms roll this dough into 1-inch balls. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Press to flatten them with tines of floured fork. (Decorate them at this stage if desired) press at centre of each a thin slice of candied cherry or red gum drop, or sprinkle with red or green-colored sugar or red cinnamon candies—being careful not to sprinkle any on the pan.) Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 8 or 10 minutes or until edges just begin to color gold. Cool before removing from pan. These keep well between layers of wax paper.

COCOANUT SNOWBALLS

Three-quarters cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1-4 teaspoon baking powder, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-2 cup quick-cooking rolled oats, 6 level tablespoons butter or shortening, 1 beaten egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup cocoanut. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Stir in rolled oats, cut in butter until well blended. Add egg vanilla and 1-2 cup cocoanut. Form dough into small balls by rolling between floured palms. Roll the balls in the remaining 1-2 cup cocoanut. Place on greased cookie sheet at 375 deg. Fahr. for 12 to 15 minutes or until tips of cocoanut are tinged with gold. These, buy less expensive cards and send them correctly.

Also, sending your cards First Class mail has these advantages:

1. Your cards may carry written messages.

2. They are sorted and delivered first.

3. If necessary, they are forwarded to a new address.

4. If undeliverable, they are returned if the sender's return-address is on the envelope.

well, then chill the dough at least 2 hours, or overnight is better still. Roll out on lightly floured board to 1-16 or 1-8 inch thickness and cut out with floured doughnut cutter. (This is to make wreaths, but this dough will cut out into any shape such as stars, Christmas trees, bells, Santa Clauses, etc., for it is the basic dough for sugar cookies.) Mix 1 cup icing sugar with 3 tablespoons warm water. Spread some of this icing carefully on each cookie, then sprinkle the little wreaths with finely chopped pistachio nuts (to make them green to look like holly.) Then place small red cinnamon candies in clusters of three to look like holly berries. One or two clusters is plenty to each cookie. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 8 or 10 minutes. If desired these cookies may be brushed with slightly beaten egg white to make trimmings stick like cherries, quartered, and citron peel cut like leaves—thus you have holly. These little rings are pretty sprinkled with red or green sugar or chocolate or silver shot too.

Happy cookie-board-meeting.

JOHN BOTH

The only "sounds of revelry by night" came near the end of the tabulation when Mayor-Elect Both arrived at the city hall escorted by a horn-tooting motor cavalcade.

Handicapping outside the chambers announced his entrance and later he was given an ovation when he, with his campaign workers and party entered the chambers.

CLOSEST IN YEARS

The battle for the mayoralty was the closest in years despite the fact the new chief magistrate polled a comfortable majority. Alderman Both came a "cow" majority in the advance poll, but Mr. Both took over the lead and consistently forced to the front with small majorities.

With twenty polls of the thirty-five heard from Both had a majority of 323. At the thirty-poll mark Alderman Hyde had whittled this lead to 272, and the election was periodically conceded by those in city council chambers. The last five polls were heavily in favor of the new mayor and the voting finished with a Both majority of 435.

TEMPLE LEADS POLL.

Alderman Robert Temple marked up his second bid for municipal honors with a polling-top vote of [illegible] Both 187 and Alderman Ted Temple with 184 [illegible] recorded in polling divisions [illegible] and SW18.

The acclaim poll gave evidence of things to come in the decisive defeat of Public Utilities Commissioner Percy C. McGuire by "Sandy" Lammies. Commissioner McGuire defeated Mr. Lammies by a small majority in the 1951 election but the tables were turned in no uncertain manner yesterday.

Mr. Lammies took a 27 lead in the advance poll and never looked backwards. His majorities mounted steadily and he finished away out in front with a majority of 873.

Commissioner McGuire led in divisions 1, 2, 3 and 4 while Mrs. Dorothy Tugnett successful candidate in the school, trustee battle of Baldwin Ward swept five of the six divisions besides the advance poll.

MRS. TUGNETT WINS

Mrs. Tugnett was never headed and emerged the victor with 407 votes as against 216 polled for opponent John Godwin, and a majority of 191.

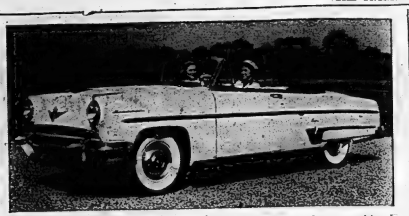
The by-law asking the electorate of the city "Are you in favor of a by-law prohibiting the sounding of whistles, horns or the ringing of bells in the city of Belleville at a cost of $25,000 and an annual outlay of $2,500 for maintenance" met with short shrift.

Voters of the city turned down the by-law in no uncertain manner sending it down to a crushing defeat with the "Nays" polling 2,189 votes, and those in favor, 690.

While the time of election did not break the record of 1952, all returns but two were filed by 10.30, the last return reaching tabulating officials at 7.25.

EXPRESS APPRECIATION.

Following the election the successful candidate spoke briefly. Mayor-elect Both expressed his sincere appreciation of the confidence placed in him, and paid tribute to his campaign workers, "I intend to carry out the promises I made during the brief campaign and my election has proved what a non-political fight can accomplish. I do not intend to let you down and I promise to stay with you. If you will stay with me. This election has shown that the city of Belleville wanted a change."



Alderman Hyde told his audience, "I am not down-carted in the least. I have been long years of service to this city and now I can relax and play with my grandson. "But," he added, "I will come back next year — and I will win. I am just as interested in the city as ever and will do my best to help in any way I can."

Aldermen Temple, Tice, Smith, Mosaen, Keegan, spoke briefly, expressing their appreciation of the confidence placed in them. Alderman Safe and Argue were not present. Public Utilities Commissioner-elect "Sandy" Lammies also voiced his appreciation, adding "I intend to do just what I said I would do in the campaign". Commissioner Percy McGuire was not available.

To celebrate his victory, Mayor-elect Both entertained at a party, held at the Club Commodore. And another civic election passed into history.

54 CATTLE BURN

TARA (CP)—Fifty-four head of cattle, the season's hay and grain crop and farm equipment were destroyed Sunday when fire of unknown origin razed a barn on the farm of Allan Farrow six miles south of here. Thirty-six other cattle were rescued.

The 205-h.p. overhead valve V8 engine which powered four Lincolns to a clean sweep victory in the recent Pan American road race for the second year in succession has been further improved for even smoother performance in the 1954 models, soon to appear in Mercury-Lincoln-Meteor showrooms across Canada. The '54 models, including the Capri convertible shown above, appear longer, more graceful due to the newly-styled side moulding and rear quarter gravel shield extending full, wrap-around bumpers give the Lincoln a wider beamier look. CAMPBELLFORD

Rotary Club Hears Requisites Needed By God's Minister

CAMPBELLFORD — "The Christian Ministry" was the subject of the address of Rotarian Rev. R. H. Howson to the Rotary Club last week.

In introducing the subject, Mr. Howson said, "it is a most misunderstood vocation and he who chooses this calling must realize that there is no opportunity for wealth, but an enormous field for service. The minister of the Gospel is often misunderstood because many people think his work is easy and some regard it as useless. To this, Mr. Howson replied that the three great principles of all religion are "Hunger for God; satisfaction of that hunger and the trusteeship of the Christian Church. These three religious principles will never change.

KNOW — BELIEVE

"A minister must first know and secondly believe. He must know God, His promises and His Commandments, and undestand their relevance to modern life. Only thus can he relieve the spiritual hunger of his people, and above all, to be the servant of his God. Such a task is great; so great that he soon recognizes his own inadequacy and learns to seek strength from his Maker, to fit him for his task.

"He must serve with his head as well as with his feet, knowing and interpreting God's word to his people; visiting them; loving them; and praying for them. Such is the duty of a minister of God's gospel.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Jim Archer and thanked by past president Percy Denyes.

MODERN KITCHEN — Modern baking ovens, automatic breadslicers and mixing machines are the pride of Canadian army cooks working in brand new barracks in Germany. The equipment in the German-built cookhouses is said to be the finest in Europe. Pte. Bob Angus of Toronto, serving as a cook in Soest with the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, is shown with his favorite piece of giant mixing machine that can mince hamburger or freeze ice cream equally well. (CP from National Defence.)

Canadian Army Cooks Proud Of New Quarters in Germany

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SOEST, Germany (CP) — The floors here linoleum and the windows are free of frilly curtains, but no housewife could be prouder of her kitchen than the Canadian Army cooks in their brand-new barracks in Germany.

Modern baking ovens, automatic bread-slicing machines and versatile mixing machines have given the army cooks new pride in their jobs. Take the word of Sgt. Ross Hunter of Acton, Ont., a man with 24 years' experience as cook and baker.

"The equipment we have at these new camps is among the finest in Europe," he said. "It's certainly a long, long way ahead of the old-fashioned field kitchen, with its inevitable can of bully beef."

ARDENT STUDENT

Hunter should know. Stationed in Germany for the last two years with the 27th Infantry Brigade, he spent five leaves in Denmark studying baking techniques. One week-end he worked in the kitchens of a famous Copenhagen restaurant which features four-foot menus and a 177-dish smorgasbord.

Now he is with the 2nd battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, near Werl, one of the four new Canadian camps in the Soest area which the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade has just taken over. Hunter describes his kitchen as a "happy hunting ground" for cooks.

Just as enthusiastic is Pte. Robert Angus of Toronto. In a quick tour of one of the camps, Angus said he has "never seen anything like the new German-built cookhouses. His favorite is a giant mixer with a formidable set of dials.

"You can mince hamburger and freeze ice cream in the same machine just by adding a gadget," said the beaming Angus, who has cooked in Toronto and in several United States cities.

TIME-SAVING GADGETS

Other gadgets include special dining devices and automatic bread-slicing machines with steel guards designed to protect a careless operator against injury. The kitchens are supplied from a clean and roomy building nearby which Lt. Nick Stevenson of Winnipeg describes as "just about the sweetest supply depot I've ever seen."

Among its features is a spacious refrigerator room, complete with safety button in case anyone gets locked inside. The button sets off a raucous horn in the outside room, warranteeing quick aid for the victim.

Food comes from 30 or 40 countries. Dairy products are trucked in from Denmark. The Canadian ration scale calls for 2,400 to 2,700 calories a day. And if that isn't enough, soldiers can drop in at one of the 11 canteens operated by NAAFI (Navy, Army and Air Forces Institutes). Seven of the canteens will ultimately include soda fountains.

"Everything considered," said Capt. Rollin Durand of Lorettville, Que., second in command of No. 34 transport company, "we are very hopeful of a very bright future in Soest."

JOHNSTOWN

Woman's Assoc. Elects Officers

The Johnstown's Woman's Association held its December meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Vandervoort Thursday with a great turn out of members.

Mrs. Ernest Rush opened the meeting. The Scripture reading found in John, 15:9-14 and prayer was read by Mrs. Jack Fergueson. A story of the real meaning of Christmas called the "Sandalwood Box", was read by the president, Mrs. Ernest Rush.

It was agreed to send $10 to the United Church to help pay freight for bales of clothing which have been sent to this clearing house for shipment to the needy people of the East. So many bales of clothing have come into this clearing house that the United Church has had to make a ruling that those who send the bales must also inclued money for shipment overseas.

A solo "O Little Town of Bethlehem" was sung by Mrs. Clayton Curtis.

1954 OFFICERS

The officers for 1954 were installed by Mrs. Puttenham, president, Mrs. Ernest Rush; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Jack Ferguson; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Clapp; secretary, Mrs. John McEwen Jr.; treasurer, Mrs. Clayton Curtis; visiting committee, Mrs. Brunt and Mrs Ferguson; buying committee, Mrs Earl Sibbick and Mrs. Ken Stickle; nominating committee, Mrs. Roy Harry, and Mrs. Alex. Vandervoort; card secretary, Mrs. Brunt; Missionary secretary, Mrs. Earl Stickle; pianist, Mrs. W. Harry, assistant, Mrs. Alex Vandervoort; press reporter, Mrs. Alva Meyers.

A reading "Let's Keep Christmas" was given by Mrs. Alex Vandervoort; another reading "The First Christmas Rose," was given by Mrs. K. Stickle. A piano solo by Mrs. Glenn Stickle was followed by Mrs. Floyd Dudley; and for missionaries by Mrs. I. Hunt. The offering, the dollar donations and the gift exchange donations were dedicated by Mr. Middleton.

Mrs. Clifton Rush told the story of Joseph as a young man, how he met and married Mary, after each had had a vision, of their trip from Jerusalem to Bethlehem and the birth of Jesus in the stable of the inn. He was visited by the shepherds who followed the star after they had also been visited by an angel and told of the birth of a Saviour.

Reports were given by the treasurer, Mission Band leaders, Baby Band leaders and it was noted that the allocation was met. White gifts were given to be sent to the Mission hospital at Erikadale, Manitoba.

Mrs. Dudley, convener of the nominating committee, brought in a slate of officers for 1954 and all the members were returned to office. Mrs. E. Nicolson was named as convener of systematic giving.

LOCAL SOLDIER ARRIVES IN GERMANY

Peterborough Mayor Beaten But Most Chief Magistrates Of Ontario Cities Returned

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brantford and Peterborough ran counter to the re-election trend for mayors in Ontario municipal voting Monday. In both cities sitting mayors were defeated.

At Brantford, Alderman Reg Cooper blocked Mayor Howard Wisner's bid for a fifth term. Mr. Cooper polled 5,238 votes to 3,754 for the mayor.

At Peterborough, Norman Graham upset Mayor Hugh Waddell's bid for a third term in a hot election battle. Mr. Graham, who was elected an alderman twice and resigned each time before completing his term, collected 7,080 votes to 6,449 for Mr. Waddell.

Elsewhere, chief magistrates who sought re-election had no trouble getting on the victory trail.

Allan A. Lamport went back for a third term as mayor of Toronto, the province's largest city, beating Arthur J. Brown by 8,594 votes in one of the quietest elections in years. Only 28.5 per cent of eligible voters turned out—the slimmest vote in eight years.

At London, Allan J. Rush, former city detective, downed Elmo Curtis' bid for a fifth mayoralty for his fourth term. Mayor Rush, who first entered municipal politics to protest his dismissal from the police force, previously served one-year terms—for new one—for two years.

MANY SPEAKERS

Sudbury re-elected Dan Jessup for a third term over William E. Seaton, who also had been mayor for 11 years before his defeat two years ago. At Sault Ste. Marie, Mayor Herbert Smale went back into office against Alderman Peter (King) Harry McCreary, a third term at Guelph over Alderman James P. Heffernan.

Mayor Lawrence Feick won a second term in a three-way fight at Stratford, beating C. H. (Dutch) Meier, prominent sportsman, and Bert Davies.

Woodstock's woman mayor, Mrs. Bernadette Smith, won a third term by defeating Alderman Harry J. Collins. St. Thomas re-elected Thomas H. Curran over Mrs. M. B. Ryckman.

Belleville elected a brand new mayor, Jack Bolt, who never before sought municipal office. He won over Alderman L. Hyde, an alderman for 16 years making his first bid for the mayoralty.

London voters rejected a $1,250,000 buy for a rink and community centre, leaving city council with the problem of what to do with $248,252 already raised toward the building. St. Thomas, on the other hand, approved completion by the city of an arena already partly constructed through gifts and donations.

PROPOSALS REJECTED

London, Brantford and Port Stanley Railway, also rejected a proposal to sell its failing passenger facilities to Eastern Canadian Greyhound Lines Limited. Sidney said "No" to proposals for a city manager and a board of control. However, it approved a plan of a group of business men to erect a combined market and parking building on the city's Covent Garden farm market in an effort to relieve the downtown parking problem.

Belleville, a railway centre, rejected a by-law to close a street blowing by trains. The bylaw called for an issue of $25,000 for completion of signals at crossings plus $2,000 annually to support a sharpy.

Two cities approved hospital extension projects—Chatham one for $200,000 and Stratford for $150,000. Sarnia voted $110,000 for schools. $151,000 for a home for the aged and $600,000 for sewage system extensions.

Say Churchill Vainly Opposed Talk by Eisenhower to UN

LONDON (AP)—Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express claimed today that Prime Minister Churchill tried "with all the eloquence at his command" to talk President Eisenhower out of making his atom bomb speech to the United Nations.

And when Churchill saw his protests were in vain, The Express said in a dispatch from Bermuda, he set about using his influence to tone down the speech as much as possible.

The independent paper said Churchill was "greatly upset" when shown the first draft of Eisenhower's speech—a speech calculated to be delivered later today.

PREPARED EXPLOSIVE

"He took the line that as first drafted it would profoundly shock the world," the paper's correspondent, Rene MacColl, said.

"He pointed out that since the NATO forces in Europe are being equipped with atomic artillery and other atomic weapons, the bluntness of the speech might be construed as a threat."

In Churchill's view, said The Express, the shock of Eisenhower's speech would have a "bad and depressing effect on world opinion."

In his announcement in Bermuda Sunday night that Eisenhower would address the UN assembly on the perils of the atomic age, Commonwealth Prime Ministers James Hagerty said Churchill and French Premier Georges Laniel had read the speech and "unanimously approved" it. Later he amended this to say they had no objections to it.

ONLY REAL DISAGREEMENT

Hagerty also said that Lord Cherwell, formerly chief of British's atomic program, had worked with Rear-Admiral Lewis Strauss, United States atomic energy commissioner, on the speech, on the draft of the speech.

MacColl claimed the argument he reported over the speech had been the only real disagreement between Churchill and Eisenhower at Bermuda.

Some of what MacColl called the "alarmist" angles vanished from Eisenhower's speech as a result of Churchill's intervention, The Express added.

Soper Would Like Russian Bases In Britain

CAMBRIDGE, England (Reuters)—Britain's Methodist leader, Rev. Donald Soper, said Sunday he would "very much" like to let Russian soldiers set up bases in Britain to join the Americans who are "in many ways" occupying the country.

The 50-year-old evangelist told an outdoor crowd here most Russians are "quite decent fellows." He added, "We have got the Americans here, so let's have the Russians as well. Anyway, who says the Russians want to invade everywhere?"

An angry questioner asked, "Why don't you go live in Russia?"

"Because there are plenty of sinners here for me to work on," Dr. Soper replied.

JUNIOR PARTNER

The pacifist preacher, who earlier this year was elected president of Britain's Methodist Conference, told the crowd:

"In many ways we are an occupied country and we are certainly the junior partner in the alliance with America.

"When I say that the Americans are starting to build schools (for U.S. soldiers' children) I say it does look as if they are here permanently.

"America today is pursuing power politics quite ruthlessly."

One heckler in the crowd asked the bespectacled speaker if, in that case, he would like to see the Russians move into Britain.

"Yes, very much," Dr. Soper replied. "Most of them are quite decent fellows."

Last month the evangelist rocked Britain by outspoken criticism of the Royal Family. He criticized the Queen for going to the race track, and lashed out at the Duke of Edinburgh for playing polo on Sunday.

Throughout his stormy career he has used the "shock treatment" method to present his beliefs, and just before he took office as Methodist chief last July he said, "we will have fun in the name of the Lord."

Europe's Freak Indian Summer Costing Millions

LONDON (Reuters) — Europe's freak Indian summer weather is costing millions.

While most people enjoy the warmth, flower growers, coal merchants, tourist agents and shippers are watching their profits drop.

In England, flower markets are flooded by unseasonal growth. Chrysanthemums, which usually bring the equivalent of $1.25 to $2.10 a dozen at the end of December, have been snapped up for as little as 40 cents. The price of Christmas roses has been hit by half.

To make matters worse, spring-like weather is arriving early form the continent.

Other parts of Europe are also suffering.

Dry weather has lowered the level of the Rhine so much that barges can travel only half-loaded.

Winter resort promoters are looking hopefully for grey skies to bring snow.

Paris hoteliers complain that orders have dropped 25 per cent, while bakers report a sharp drop in the demand for winter clothing.

New Zealand Ship To Assume Duty Escorting Queen

ABOARD S. S. Gothic (CP) — Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, enjoying to the full all what may be the only relaxing part of their six-month Commonwealth tour, steamed today for a mid-Pacific rendezvous with the Royal New Zealand Navy.

The British cruiser Sheffield, which has escorted this royal liner since the Queen and the duke boarded it in Jamaica, will turn over its duties to the New Zealand cruiser Black Prince Dec. 10. The Black Prince will accompany the Gothic to the Antipodes while the Sheffield will turn back.

The taking-over ceremony will involve the firing of salutes by both naval vessels and a beauty-chair transfer from the Sheffield to the Prince of Li.-Cmdr. A. P. M. Nicholls, assistant medical officer to the royal household who will continue on the tour.

The duke enjoyed an afternoon in the swimming pool Monday while the Queen spoke by radiotelephone to members of the Royal Family in England.

Commons Allows Withdrawal Of Liberal Motion

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons Monday permitted the withdrawal of a resolution favoring pensions for disabled persons after CCF and Social Credit members objected.

Rev. Dan McIvor (L—Fort William), who placed the resolution on the order paper, asked that it be withdrawn because the government has announced it plans legislation on disability pensions.

Mr. McIver said similar resolutions had been introduced for several years and he thanked the government for adopting the idea this session.

F. D. Shaw (SC—Red Deer) said it is a "dangerous precedent" to allow members to withdraw a resolution after debating it.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said the government's legislation on pensions for the disabled is not all before the House. Debate on Mr. McIvor's resolution would allow members an early chance to express themselves on the government.

Health Minister Martin said a debate might prejudice negotiations to be held with the provinces on the proposals.

It is the second purchase by the group in four months. In September Mr. Thomson acquired the controlling interest in three Edinburgh newspapers, the Scotsman, the Weekly Scotsman and the Evening Dispatch, with a combined circulation of 200,000.

Mr. Thomson said at the time of the purchase in Edinburgh that he would take up residence there and control the Canadian interests through his son, Kenneth R. Thomson, who assumed active charge of the Canadian and British United newspapers from the head office in Toronto.

A daily newspaper since 1891, The Guardian was for many years in the control of the late J. R. Burnett, W. Chester S. McLure and Lt.-Col. D. A. MacKinnon, DSO. Mr. Burnett, as editor and managing director, was one of the pioneers in the establishment of The Canadian Press, Canada's national news co-operative.

New Director

MONTREAL (CP)—John G. McConnell, president of Weekend Pictures Magazine, Monday announced the appointment of W. D. Taylor as director of advertising. He succeeds R. B. Gray, after 42 years service acded to be relieved of the post. He will continue as advertising counsellor.

Mr. Taylor has been the magazine's advertising manager since 1931.

Mr. Gay, who joined the Standard Publishing Company before the First World War, served with the Standard prior to the founding of Weekend Picture Magazine in 1934.

Two Far North Settlements Of Aklavik and Coppermine Will Be Moved to New Sites

OTTAWA (CP)—"Place of the Black Bear" is going to be moved in care its present site sinks into the Mackenzie river.

The settlements of Aklavik, named from the Eskimo word meaning "place of the black bear," and Coppermine, trading and mission centres within the Arctic circle, will be shifted to eliminate threats of epidemic and flooding and to permit them to expand on firmer ground.

A government announcement said the remote settlements, inhabited mostly by Eskimos and Indians, will be moved to new sites selected next year by surveyors. There is no estimate of cost.

Aklavik, Canada's largest Arctic settlement on the Mackenzie river delta 70 miles south of the Arctic ocean, has a population ranging from about 600 in winter to 700 or 800 at the height of the summer trading season.

FLOOD DANGER

The river is eating away the fine silt delta on which Aklavik is built and here is danger that the serious floods of 1936 may recur. The 1936 buildings in the town were established in 1912 as a trading post, are built on permafrost—a frozen composition of snow and ice crystals—which melt into mud in summer. Also, the poor construction of foundations and water and sewage disposal facilities. In addition, scientists estimate that should the permafrost melt down another 10 feet, the lowlands will drop six more feet to the river level.

For these reasons, the entire community must be moved to firm ground. Plans for the canal in the provements can be initialled. The same health threat exists at Coppermine, although there is not danger it will be flooded.

Coppermine is about 500 miles southeast of Aklavik. Twelve whites and some 200 Eskimos live there, and in the surrounding area.

Resources department officials said moving the few small buildings in Coppermine would be relatively inexpensive compared to that of shifting Aklavik.

The cabinet decided to move the two communities on recommendations by the health and welfare departments and the National Research Council. The departments said measures to control disease could be installed on the present sites only at enormous cost.

The decision was announced by R. Gordon Robertson, commissioner of the Northwest Territories at the fifth session of the eighth northwest Territories council.

House to Take Long Holiday At Christmas

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons will take a three-week holiday during Christmas and New Years.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said Monday in the Commons that current plans call for an adjournment Friday, Dec. 18, until Monday, Jan. 11. However, it might be possible to finish necessary business in time for a permit adjournment Dec. 17.

Commons Committee Seeks Better Way to Define Ridings

OTTAWA (CP) — A Commons committee at this session will try to find a better method to define federal constituency boundaries.

Designated for the thirtieth time is the standing committee on privileges and elections, which normally looks into redistribution problems.

The government accepted the resolution of Hon. C. G. Power (L—Quebec South) Monday seeking establishment of a committee to study a "more equitable" method of redistribution.

Three seats were added to the Commons at the last redistribution in 1952, bringing the House strength to 265. It was the first Nova Scotia lost one seat, Manitoba two and Saskatchewan three; Alberta and Ontario each gained two, British Columbia four and Yukon-Mackenzie River one. The number of seats in Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Alberta remained unchanged.

Four seats were added in the 1947 redistribution. Adjustment of constituency boundaries usually is necessary every 10 years after the census.

Some opposition members contended a royal commission should handle the job, but Stata, Secretary Pickersgill suggested the standing committee on privileges and elections.

Mr. Power's resolution and Mr. Pickersgill's amendment designating the merchy committee were passed unanimously, though with some reservations by opposition members.

Opposition leader Drew said redistribution has been based on the "law of the jungle." If the government's approach was that opposition complaints about "outrageous" examples of redistribution were merely "crocodile tears," then there couldn't be much hope that a real effort would be made to tackle the problem.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said there is "widespread dissatisfaction with the present method of political butchery."

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) said the only way to divorce redistribution from "political politics" is to have it carried out by an independent commission.

Church Service For Queen, Duke Aboard Liner

ABOARD S.S. 'GOTHIC' (CP)—The light-hearted ceremonies of crossing the equator and an operation clinic service were the weekend highlights at the royal liner where the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh toward the Fiji Islands on their round-the-world tour.

The Queen, an old hand at crossing the equator from her South African tour of 1947, looked on Saturday as the duke lent a willing hand in initiating newcomers to the ties of King Neptune and his court.

In the blue and white apron of an "assistant barber" of Neptune's court, the duke gleefully shaved several members of the royal party. Her courage into the ship's swimming pool and got thoroughly drenched in the process.

BECOMES FREE-FOR-ALL

His police guard, inspector Frank Reilly, the bearded Neptune, also wound up in the pool in a general free-for-all. Earlier the royal party watched similar ceremonies aboard the escorting cruiser Sheffield.

Sunday morning church service was held under an awning on the forward games deck with the royal party in attendance. The master of the Gothic, Capt. David Ait-Hoyo, read the lesson and Vice-Admiral E. M. C. Abel Smith, flag officer, royal yacht, read the lesson.

Neighborly Debt Will Be Repaid

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Upward of 100 blood donations are to go into Victoria Hospital's blood bank in the next two months as Middlesex farmers repay a neighborly deal with Waterloo County mennonites.

Farmers and blood officials met at the straightened out Monday after a week-end during which 100 pints of blood were gathered. would turn up during the morning to give blood.

Dr. E. M. watson, in charge of Victoria's blood bank, said there are three reasons why the spontaneous offer of farmers could not be taken up. First, the bank has not facilities to handle a large number in one day. Second, whole blood will only keep 12 days and third, there are certain diet restrictions before and after donations.

Melvin Keupfer, 11, a Mennonite child burned in June, has had 27 operations and innumerable blood transfusions. Now nearly well the boy will soon be going home to his mother.

Middlesex farmers, remembering the generous aid given by Mennonites after May's tornado, decided to provide the blood needed to replace that given to the burned boy.

Many Hunting For Uranium In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP)—More people are hunting uranium in Quebec than ever before.

Latest figures show that in the first 11 months of the year, 8,000 persons or corporations took out provincial mining certificates at $10 each, nearly a 15-per-cent increase over the corresponding period last year.

They staked an average of 2½ claims each—enough for a square mile. There are 640 acres to five claims of 40 acres each.

Official records do not show what percentage involved uranium prospecting. In the past half the provincial mines department said:

"Almost all of them are looking for uranium. That might not be their original intention, but they stake because they are keen for it."

Most of them, he said, are equipped with geiger counters.

Much of the present activity is in the area around the Perkerel area, just west of here, and Manitwaki north of Ottawa. There was great activity on the Gaspe area between March and August. Provincial records show some 300,000 acres were staked there during that time.

Quebec provincial laboratories submit an average of 3,000 samples of ore annually to tests for radioactivity.

The mines department offers five-week courses in prospecting at both Laval University here and Montreal's Ecole Polytechnique.

Lamport Returned As Toronto Mayor In Light Voting

TORONTO (CP)—Slightly more than one-quarter of Toronto voters Monday re-elected Mayor Allan Lamport and all members of the 1953 city council who sought re-election.

In the lightest vote since 1946, the stubborn 48-year-old mayor won a third term by defeating Arthur J. Brown, former chairman of the board of education. The vote was Lamport 55,964, Brown 46,080.

All four members of the board of control, the executive body of city government, were returned—Leslie H. Saunders, J. Louis Shannon, Ford Brand and David Balfour.

There was one alderman for 1954 in Herbert Orlffle, a former board of control chairman. He was elected in ward 4 where Francis H. Hamilton, 10-year member of board of education, Harry Hunter, a Communist, trailed the seven-term official in the board of control race.

Only 27 per cent of Toronto voters cast their chance to elect representatives to the Metropolitan Council, set up to bring Toronto common to the whole Toronto area. The mayor, two controllers and the top vote-getters in each ward represent the city.

Voting Light

In spite of clear weather and temperatures around 45 degrees, only 51,187 of the city's 331,000 voters turned out—28.8 per cent. In 1952 just 35.11 per cent of those eligible voted. The record low of 25.5 per cent was set in 1946.

Police Hold Man After Fires Follow Shooting

TREHERNE, Man. (CP)—RCMP here are holding a man in connection with a shooting incident and a fire at a farm in the Rathwell, Man., district. No charge has been laid. Rathwell is about 70 miles southwest of Winnipeg.

Police said Edna Hayward, 22-year-old housekeeper, was killed instantly by a 22-calibre bullet fired through a kitchen window and struck the chair in which she was sewing.

After the shooting, R. J. Allan, son of the farm owner, told Miss Hayward to a neighbor's home and notified RCMP. When he returned he found a fire blazing on the living room couch and some paper burning on a table. Minutes later, an explosion and fire broke out upstairs. The house was set in a barn.

A search party found the suspect, a former employee of Mr. Allan, on a nearby highway and turned himself in to police.

HINDUS COMPENSATED BY PAKISTAN FOR PROPERTY LOSS

When the new nation of Pakistan came into being in 1947 as a Moslem state, almost all Hindoos were forced to abandon homes and property in the new state and seek refuge in India. Many of these refugees are now being partially reimbursed for loss of their property after long negotiations between the Pakistan and Indian governments. Here are Moslem claimants presenting their documented cases before Indian rehabilitation authorities in New Delhi before receiving compensation.

A Kinsmen shield, artistic in design was presented by Campbellford president Ray Hall to a Tweed member, who served to receive this prize on behalf of Past Director Governor Lloyd Diehl, who belonged to the Tweed Club, but was not present to receive the shield personally.

Veteran Kinsman Jerry Quinn who attended the charter night of the Campbellford club ten years ago, spoke of the expansion within the Tweed club, which now boasts close to 50 members.

The social evening was arranged at the Tweed end by Kinsmen Harold Knapp and Wendell Griffin.

The keynote of the get-together with Tweed was good-will and a happy evening of fun and fellowship. A fence was enjoyed by the Kinsmen and Kinettes after the dinner hour.

All Fluid Milk Can Find Ready Market--John

TORONTO (CP)—W. K. St. John, executive secretary of the Canadian Dairy Council of Canada, said Monday that all the milk produced in Canada could find a ready market at home if allowed to compete on a "fair basis" with "filled" margarine.

Mr. St. John told the Ontario Milk Distributors' Association: "It just does not make commercial sense to require our milk on a subsidized basis so that it can compete with the world market when we have an almost unlimited potential market in Canada itself."

He said this so-called "two-price" system is unnecessary and unsound economically.

F. L. Hart, Montreal dairy executive, predicted an increase in store-buying of milk and a greater use of powdered milk.

His predictions met with disagreement from L. M. Kesselring, dairy specialist with Swift Canada, who said the glass bottle in the home-delivery field is a better container yet devised for milk.

H. A. Thompson was re-elected association president.

Other officers elected include: O. E. Sinclair, London, and L. S. Chapple, Chatham, vice-presidents.

Twenty-four directors continue in office. In addition, six new directors were elected: Malcolm Smith, Armprior; James Ross, Cornwall; H. Christenson, Hamilton; J. O. Cuthbertson, Kitchener; K. Fallis, Peterborough, William A. Reese, Sarnia.

Gardiner Says Canada to Keep Her Grain Store

ROME (AP) — James G. Gardiner, agriculture minister of Canada, said Monday that Canada will maintain her vast grain store "to serve" "with or without international aid."

He told the seventh world conference of the Food and Agriculture Organization:

"During the war we were asked to produce great quantities of cereals, particularly wheat. Now we find no one to buy our surpluses but prices for which our farmers can afford to sell."

He said that as result Canada has piled up the second greatest reserve of grain in her history.

NO PLAN FROM FAO

"So far," he told FAO delegates from 70 nations, "FAO has come forward with no plan to assist us, or other nations with surpluses, to carry these vast stocks forward.

"But we intend to carry them. We will do so ourselves if necessary. Because we must have a reserve for the protection of our own agricultural population. That we maintain these stocks will, of course, be of benefit to others in famine or need arise in the world."

Gardiner told the FAO meeting nations do not understand Canada's food situation and think of her only as a great grain surplus producer.

He said his country has a relatively small population—"actually we live in the Arctic"—and he explained that because of weather and other factors food production is always highly concentrated with most countries.

DROUGHT DANGER

He said Canada's costs for production of butter and cheese, for example, are extremely high, but Canada was not able at any price to produce many of the foods which it could import.

"We have to buy these foods from other countries if we are to have for balance to exchange, on selling some of our surplus crops in foreign markets."

He said most people do not understand that grain farmers "are really one of the countries most seriously affected by drought.

"In the next 29 years," he said, "we probably will have more years of drought than years of good crops."

SHIELD RESERVE PLAN

A plan for a world food reserve for easing famines caused by natural disasters was formally shelved today in favor of the established practice of help by individual nations.

In discarding the plan, delegates urged instead that individual countries follow the example of the United States in setting aside food stocks or cash for emergency relief.

The first commission of the conference, dealing with broad policy questions, agreed unanimously that "it is impracticable to create an international reserve or fund" because there is no evidence at present that countries will contribute to such a measure.

Canada's Racegoers Pour Fabulous Sum Into Machines In Record Season

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

"THEM WERE THE DAYS" —

"These present-day winters," mumbled a grizzled oldtimer who has spent the most of his life in and around Prince Edward County, "can become the ruination of the younger generations."

"Lookit these young squirts," he said, pointing to a bevy of teen-agers garbed in spring apparel, "here it is nigh on Christmas and they don't even rot long underwear on. And that goes for a lot of the old folks, too."

"No siree, bub," he rambled on. "This country's gettin' to be more like Floridy every day. Fust thing y'know these gals' will be buyin' their Christmas presents all dolled up in them one-piece bathin' suits."

He bit off a generous cud of chawin'. "Back in my young days around Wellington way," he said, "the winters was tough. We used to cut hickory hockey sticks fresh from the tree, and off a four-inch chunk from a stick for a puck, and go out on Big Lake and play shinny all day, and on moonlight nights."

"I kin remember," he said, warming up to the subject, "one big snowstorm when we critturs were called out to help clear the railroad tracks near, Hallowell station. The snow was so deep we knew our cooks or telephone wires. The road was plugged for weeks and it was all a horse could do to lug a cutter over fields in an around barns for hours before you could get anywhere."

"After that big storm it turned bitter cold. The temperature dropped so low, the mercury didn't thaw out until spring. You had to wait till you got near a stove in order to talk. The words most froze in midair."

He paused for a moment and a smile stole over his grizzled face. He remembered that year of the big snow and cold, and a funny incident that occurred. It seems that an old fella had died some twenty-five miles northeast of Wellington and the snow was so heavy and the roads so plugged the two-horse hearse couldn't make any headway. So a fella named Jim Lane, he's dead long ago, and another young sprout of these days, volunteered to fetch in the corpse with a horse and cutter."

The oldtimer shivered in recollection. "Gosh, but it was cold. Musta bin fifty or so below zero."

The boys started out with a Bobbin that had seen plenty of snow duty. They wore heavy coonskin coats and took plenty of rugs. Not that the corpse would mind, but they didn't want to make it a funeral for three. They even took along an extra fur coat for certain reasons, he said.

The oldtimer "dinged" an expert shot of tobacco juice off the cuspidor. "Dangit, fust I've missed this week. Better get me shootin' eye back inter shape," he growled.

"How did the self-appointed funeral cortege make out?" a newspaperman asked.

"Yeah, I most forgot where I was," the oldtimer grunted.

"They got to the place all right," he relaxed. "The corpse was pretty well frozen, so the boys put it in the extra coonskin coat, propped it up in a sittin' position between them in the cutter and started for home."

"It musta bin near forty or fifty below. The road was bad and the boys made slow headway. About fifteen miles outside of the village, one of them remembered an old friend who lived on a farm. So they decided to stop and take on a little heat."

"It seems the friend had laid by a plentiful stock for the Dew of the Highlands which mixed with old cider would warm the cockles of the heart of one of those Egyptian monuments, Sphinx, or some name like that."

The oldtimer's expectoration aim was dead centre this time. He scored three direct hits in a row just to prove his "shootin' eye" was back on the beam.

"The boys went in the house, leaving the corpse in the cutter. After a while they was considerably warmed up, and didn't need much coaxin' to linger. It was getting dark, but a big moon was comin' up over the horizon."

"Their friend insisted that they stay for supper, and they did. After the meal and several rounds of that liquid dynamite, they decided to start for home."

"You boys go on," said their host. "Me, I've got to run over to the neighbors for a spell. Mebbe you'd better take a warm jug with you for the trip inside it's awful cold out."

The boys, it seemed, accepted the "jug" and after expressing their thanks, got ready to leave. They took their places in the cutter drinking their passenger. The corpse was well up in the interior and shone a white light over the wintry scene.

"Everythin' went well," said the oldtimer. "The boys were singin' a little and swappin' stories. A few miles down the road they decided to have a wee drap of the crayture. They stopped the horse and extricated the "jug" from fur depths. They drank to each other's health, then one came up with a siggestion."

"Fust old corpse," he hiccupped. "Musb be kinda cold. Lesh give him a drink, eh?"

"Okay," said his friend, lesh."

"He extended the bottle to the passenger."

"Then," grinned the oldtimer, "they fair fix in their seats. Slowly the arm of the corpse rose and grasped the bottle. 'Thanks,' said a hollry voice."

"Howls of fright rent the wintry air. The boys," said the oldtimer, "leaped from the cutter with one dashing so madly and as fast as he could through the heavy snow and the other taking an opposite direction.

A couple of hours later the horse and cutter, with no passengers was found wandering through the village streets.

"That dasshbed friend o' their's," muttered the oldtimer, "had parked the original 'passenger' in his driver-house, put on the fur coat and took the place of the corpse."

"Yup," he sighed, readying a final charge of tobacco juice, "people in this day and age don't have no fun like that."

Nearly 78 Millions Lavished On 'Ponies' in Banner Season; Ont. Was 'Hottest' Province

OTTAWA (CP)—In a history-making season, Canada's racegoers poured a record $77,796,28 into parl-mutuel machines across the country.

It was a banner year all round. Bettings were heavier; winnings were larger; purse money increased; and so did the take of racing associations and provincial tax collectors.

Only the turf-trotters might have found it not a little weary. The number of racing days increased to 378 from 354 last year, with total races rising to 2,916 from 2 760.

HORSE ASSOCIATIONS

Thirty-five racing associations participated in the big season, up from 30 in 1952, the agriculture department reported. It also created a $10,353,611 rise in betting.

This pushed the total to more than $2,700,000 higher than the previous record of $75,000,000 in bets established in 1921.

Winnings by bettors swelled to $63,895,994, an increase of more than $5,200,000 over the 1952 total of $55,225,326.

Racing associations retained $7,- 688,618 in the form of percentages up from $6,237,477 in 1952. The six collected a total of $6,424,000 in parl-mutuel taxes, another gain from $5,370,218 last year.

PURSE MONEY HIGH

Of the money retained by the racing associations, $3,693,000 went in purse money to owners of winning horses, up from $3,208,700 in 1952.

Ontario was still the hottest betting province where the customers placed a total of $2,000,000 in bets and got hundreds of the national total.

More money was wagered at Toronto's Woodbine Park than any other track in the country. The total of $24,000 compared with the other extreme—the low of $4,- 752 wagered at the shocked east at Estevan, Sask.

Amount wagered by provinces:

Braves Attendance Responsible For League Increase

NEW YORK (CP)—The record-smashing attendance of Milwaukee Braves was largely responsible for a 11-per-cent increase in the crowds at National League baseball games during the 1953 season.

The American League gates and the major leagues as a whole declined.

The official attendance figures released at the major league meetings showed the Braves drew 1,826,- 397 fans at Milwaukee as compared to only 281,278 in Boston the year before. The total broke the all-time attendance record of 1,807,526 by Brooklyn in 1947.

As a result, the over-all National League attendance increased from 5,329,146 in 1952 to 7,410,751 in 1953. In the American League, attendance declined everywhere and the over-all figure showed a 16-per-cent drop from 8,293,896 in 1952 to 6,964,079 in 1953.

Yankee Soccer Team Stars

MANCHESTER, Eng. (AP)—A team of United States soccer players is plugging away at the top of an English amateur league, and soccer locals are thinking their eyes in amazement.

The team causing all the fuss is the Burtonwood Gunners, formed from United States Air Force men at the Burtonwood airbase in northern England.

They have played 23 games and lost only twice—in exhibition. In league games they boast a 10-point-per-match record. They have scored 95 goals against 38 in nine league matches.

"We started the season as a novelty," said Ted Zitrick, personnel officer of Burtonwood, said. "Now we're a threat and in a strong position to win the championship of our division—and no longer a novelty."

Rangers Call Jack Evans

NEW YORK (CP)—New York Rangers have recalled defenceman Jack Evans from their Saskatoon farm of the Western Hockey League.

Evans, a six-foot, 195-pounder, is expected to report in time for a Wednesday night's game here against Detroit.

Injuries to two Ranger backliners, Ivan Irwin and Harry Howell, brought about the hurry-up call for Evans.

The Welsh-born Evans is 25.

Yankee Stadium Said Purchased By K. O. C.

NEW YORK (AP) — A report that the Knights of Columbus had purchased Yankee Stadium brought a "no comment" Monday night from baseball manager George Weiss.

Weiss, only member of the Yanks official family available at the baseball meetings here, added that each club did not come under his jurisdiction.

The Sport Post-Dispatch, in a copyrighted story, says the K. of C. purchased the stadium for $1,700,000 and that the Yankees had signed a 75-year lease to rent it at an annual fee of $125,000.

Citadelles Get Goalie Marcotte; Says 'Won't Play'

MONTREAL (CP)—Officers of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association ruled Monday night that goalie Jacques Marcotte is the property of Quebec Citadelles.

In a statement later Marcotte said he will not play with Citadelles and "shall take the necessary means to protect my rights."

Dispute over the 18-year-old goalie has been bitterly waged by Citadelles, whose property he was last year, and Frontenacs, another junior team operating in Quebec.

The decision reaffirmed a decision of the CAHA on an appeal early this season from Citadelles after the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, provincial governing branch of the CAHA, had granted Marcotte's release from Citadelles and approved his signing with Frontenacs.

A brief statement by president W. B. George of the CAHA said: "The matter having been empowered by the executive of the CAHA to decide on the Marcotte case, after hearing all evidence submitted here unanimously decided that no grounds have been established entitling Marcotte to a release from the Citadelles club."

PLAYED WITH FRONTENACS

Citadelles this season, with approval of the CAHA, are operating in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A division. Frontenacs are a new entry in the Quebec Junior Hockey League.

During the dispute that began at the start of the season — and included Quebec Superior Court without settlement through an injunction application — Marcotte has been playing with Frontenacs.

The officers sat for more than six hours hearing evidence. Representatives of the CAHA and the two clubs were present, along with two players for each of the clubs.

Marcotte was the principal witness, telling his reasons why he wanted to play with Frontenacs and relating events leading up to his signing with that club. His mother also was a witness, saying neither she nor her husband, who is ill, wanted their son to play with Citadelles.

Providence Reds Protest Out

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — The American Hockey League Monday turned down a protest by Providence Reds arising out of the Providence-Cleveland game last Tuesday.

John S. Soilenberger of the Hershey Bears and chairman of the league, announced disallowment of the protest based on the length of an overtime period.

Cleveland won the game 3-2 with a goal after seven minutes of a 10-minute overtime period. Providence protested that the overtime period should not have gone a full 10 minutes but should have been "sudden death" hockey that began with the game ending after the first goal was scored.

Kitchener Greenshirts Floundering Around in Thick Fog of Uncertainty

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener fans were still trying to dig up $13,000 for a junior hockey franchise today but nobody seemed to know what they could do with it—if they got it.

Several local business men and hockey officials have been scouting around for cash since Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League bought Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league last week. The deal has turned into a scram.

The canvassing for funds started after Tury Gregg, president of the OHA, told an executive meeting that he heard the franchise could be bought back from Frank Selke, managing director of the Canadiens, for $13,000.

However, it appears it was just a rumor. Selke said in Montreal that he had never been approached about the proposed deal.

After setting several deadlines to raise the money, Gregg announced that 5 p.m. today was the limit. Last-minute attempts to keep the Shirts in the Ontario fold were attempted Monday night.

MONEY SHORT

A local shirt company offered funds but the offer was nowhere near $13,000.

Gregg said if anyone was interested in operating the team they would have to be in Toronto not later than 5 p.m. today. OHA executives are expected in Toronto to attend the testimonial dinner of Dr. A. Hewitt, secretary of the league.

A meeting of the OHA Junior council last week indicated the present Kitchener team, composed mostly of third-stringers and Junior B players, will not be permitted to finish the schedule.

Greenshirt officials said last Tuesday they did not want to keep the franchise "dead" but hasn't with the game ending after the the Greenshirts play Quebec Citadelles here tonight.

The OHA formally refused Monday night the transfer of players from the Greenshirts to teams in the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association.

Frank Dilio, registrar of the OAHA, announced he had received the following telegram from William Hanley, OHA business manager:

"Transfers of Tennant, Onotsky, Jones, Crenzman, Vaughan, Hall, Kilrick, Joyce, Hillman have been refused by the OHA on the following grounds:

"1. Players should have been offered to clubs in the OHA.

"2. Wholesale transfer of players from one branch to another is not in the best interests of the CAHA (Canadian Amateur Hockey Association).

"3. Clubs operated, sponsored or controlled by the same professional interest should not be permitted to transfer players in this way."

PLAYERS SCATTERED

Nine of the Greenshirts were assigned to teams in the Quebec Junior League and one to St. Catharines.

Before the OHA decision was known here, managing director Frank Selke of Canadiens said he was waiting to see whether it is running itself or is being run by the OHA in connection with the transfer of players from one CAHA branch to another.

George Dudley, secretary-manager of the CAHA, in Montreal on Monday night, said: "We will have to wait and see what happens. It would be up to the clubs concerned to appeal, through the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, to the CAHA registration committee."

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

From time to time, in these columns, we have paid modest tribute to persons who, in the accomplishing of their ends, seemed to be unusually good sportsmanship, and even beyond the line of duty, as courage goes in the realm of athletics. Possibly we overlooked many such incidents, for courage and modesty usually go hand in hand and you don't get to hear of some of the unusual gestures in the less publicized divisions of sports.

By way of contrast, we'd like to refer to what we consider the least sporting event of the year. Fortunately, although this involved a sport fundamentally Canadian, it didn't happen in Canada.

We refer to the vicious attack by the New York Garden's denizens of the upper galleries, which, by sheer vitriolic phrase, literally drove a fine hockey player out of the game's greatest right out of the major league. By turning an undeserved ribald attack on Allan Stanley the Garden wolves forced New York Rangers to shift him elsewhere, lest he break under the strain.

New York hockey and other sports fandom is, in the main, an uninhibited aggregation afflicted with ability to sear a disliked athlete with acid phrases that sear from raucous throats. They can swing from most maudlin sympathy at a player who happens to catch their fancy, to bitter personal hatred of one who doesn't happen to appeal.

Last season, and at the beginning of the present series, the gallery wolves of the Garden turned their batteries of venom on Stanley, by no means a bad hockey player, who had come into the League widely heralded as the highest-paid rookie up to that time. Stanley was a clean, free-skating defence player. But, unfortunately, he wasn't the rough, rugged type of such darlings of the Garden gods as Ching Johnson, Ivan Boldirev or other such players who could rattle the teeth of an invader. He was skilful, but not aggressive enough to suit the hired goaler, who jeered right back at the howling wolves, so that suddenly their spite turned to admiration.

There may be episodes of more distorted sporis spirit than this, but we doubt it.

Sportsmen from USA, Canada Pay Tribute to 'Billy' Hewitt; Has Had Colorful Sports Life

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Billy Hewitt has watched Canadian sport grow up for more than 40 years and says he still gets "a big kick out of it every day."

Billy — "biggest kick" is due tonight when 500 sportsmen from Canada and the United States will honor him at a testimonial dinner here. It marks Billy's 30th year as secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association, 48 of them by acclamation.

The soft-spoken, kindly-eyed little man, whose colorful career has taken him from a $4-a-week job as copy boy on the old Toronto News, through a 9-year stint as sports editor of the Toronto Daily Star and into administrative positions in hockey, football and horse racing, says he wouldn't "miss a minute of it for all."

ALL-ROUND SPORTSMAN

Probably no one in Canada has been as close to the unfolding sports panorama as "Honest" William Arthur Hewitt, son of a Methodist minister who was unfictionately to his hundreds of friends as Billy. Modest almost to a fault, Billy nevertheless takes justifiable pride in the part he has played in the development of Canadian sport.

He nursed the OHA into the big group of its kind in the world. He played a large role in the formation of the Canadian Football Hockey Association and the interprovincial Rugby Football Union and has kept his finger on the pulse of Canadian and international sport from his early teens.

Billy refereed hundreds of boxing bouts in Toronto, managed the old Toronto senior football club for three years early in the century, managed three Canadian Olympic hockey championship teams in the '30s, saw senior hockey games that probably say one in the world and has judged thousands of horse races.

"He has a prodigious memory and can recount the highlights of Canadian and American sport since the turn of the century. He remembers the days of seven-man hockey when two umpires patrolled the ice and presented the goal and when the goal judge stood on the end directly behind and signalled a score by waving a handkerchief.

DEMPSEY-WILLARD FIGHT

He vividly recalls the July 4, 1919, day of the world title fight Jack Dempsey won the world heavyweight title from Jess Willard. He reported it for the Toronto Star. On the same bill was Toronto Eddie Jones, a hard-punching, wild-swinging tough guy who lost a 10-round decision to Joe Dempsey.

"Tunney kept away from Jones for the 10 rounds," Billy recalled in an interview.

But his one love is hockey. "I watched it start and every game, professional and amateur in Maple Leaf Gardens from the time it opened in 1931 until 1948," he says. "I guess I've seen more games than most people," he says.

As registrar-treasurer of the OAHA since 1922 he has kept track of the game's stars.

He reports to his office in Maple Leaf Gardens every day—six days a week during the hockey season and five in the summer months. He would make it a six-day summer-time job but there's no one to call in. The 14 OHA offices during that period.

BORN AT COBOURG

Billy Hewitt was born in Cobourg, Ont., in 1887. His father moved to Toronto four years later. At 14 he got an after-school job as copy boy on the Toronto News, rose to become sports editor of the four-page hand-set newspaper, moved to Montreal as sports editor of The Herald in 1899, returned to Toronto as sports editor of The Star in 1900 and remained there until 1931.

He was appointed secretary of the OHA Dec. 8, 1921, and to the CAHA's post in 1923 after he helped form the organization in 1914. He was part judge at a Woodbine racetrack in 1905, became chief steward of the Canadian Incorporated Racing Association in 1937 after many years as assistant steward and three years ago was appointed commissioner steward of the Ontario racing commission.

He managed the Toronto football team in 1904 and held the job when the team merged with Argonauts in 1905, until 1907. He was one of the men responsible for calling a meeting to organize the Big Four union into its present team strength—Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton and Montreal.

CUSHY JOB NOW

The OHA now has a manager and they says with a twinkle in his eye: "He does the dirty work—I just supervise."

The five-foot-four-inch Billy, who says he has played hockey and football "wherever anybody was a man short," is recognized by sportsmen as a respected legislator.

His son, Foster, noted hockey broadcaster, gained much more fame than Billy. In the early days of radio, Billy saw the possibilities of the medium in publicizing the game he loves and steered his son towards radio work.

"There isn't a game in the world to match hockey," Billy says. "And I don't like today's type of hockey over that of the old days. The tempo has increased tremendously."

Paddy Demarco Verdicts Chavez

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (AP)—Paddy Demarco of Brooklyn won a smashing 10-round decision over Chavez tonight over Carlos Chavez of Los Angeles.

Demarco took command in the early rounds and finished off strong.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Warren Wright's great three-year-old Whirlaway was voted horse of the year on the American turf 12 years ago today, after winning the mythical triple crown by taking Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes. Whirlaway was also the leading money-winner in that season with $272,000.

Cleveland Gets 1954 All-Star Baseball Game

NEW YORK (AP)—The major leagues Monday rejected a plan to split the 1954 game a year and awarded the 1954 all-star game to Cleveland instead.

The American League took another step toward its plan of expanding to a 10-club league by naming a three-man committee to study the proposal and report at major league territory.

Although the Pacific coast wasn't mentioned by name, the league amended its constitution last Sept. 29 to provide for 10 clubs "in the event it should be desirable to expand to the Pacific coast."

Frank Lane, general manager of Chicago White Sox and a member of the major-minor realignment committee, was named to the group with George Medlinger, Cleveland vice-president, and Calvin Griffith, Washington vice-president.

Cleveland had been mentioned as the league site last summer. The American League also approved the shift of the Boy Scout Jamboree, the league's next turn. The National will pick the 1955 city.

Baseball magnates in limit clubs to 14 night games each failed in both leagues. The National passed a resolution to allow each club five night games at home with each other club.

Red Sullivan Still On Top

NEW YORK (AP)—For the third consecutive season, Frederick (Red) Sullivan of Hershey Bears is in front in the American Hockey League scoring race.

Official statistics released today show Sullivan on top with 16 goals and 29 assists in 27 games. His assist total also is tops in the league.

Hershey's Dune Fisher is in second place with 25 points, followed Lewicki of Pittsburgh Hornets and Don Marshall of Buffalo. Bisons are tied for third with 30 points each.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxing's secret investigation of the ring business comes in the form of an engraved card from Al Weill, manager of Rocky Marciano champion, Rocky Marciano, announcing that he has moved his offices into a hotel suite on Manhattan's swank Eas. Side.

Following his and the champion's enterprises into a neighborhood previously occupied by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will be obviously making a clean break with the Broadway-Forty-fifth avenue sector which for a quarter of a century has been the boxing capital of the world.

"I notice," commented a rival of the ring champion, "that he waited until he was out of town to have the announcements mailed out. He probably thinks it will blow over by the time he gets back.

It might have been more than a coincidence that about the first thing the big league owners did after coming to order was scan reams of attendance figures for the last season.

The news was nearly all bad. Business dropped in every American League city except two. A total of 18 per cent. Only the fact that Milwaukee broke all National League records kept the National League from showing a similar drop. One authority estimated that 12 of the 16 major league clubs lost money.

Thus the owners have their solution indelibly on the record when the time comes today or tomorrow to go by the ears with their players on the matter of increasing pension payments and other benefits.

Herman Taylor, veteran Philadelphia promoter, swings at television from the floor in the current issue of International Boxing Magazine.

"You can't sell something you're giving away free," Herman says. "However, that is doing just this—selling its birthright for a mess of pottage.

"To offer two, three and even four boxing matches a week on video gives the fan more boxing in a month than he would ordinarily see in a year. . . . What will it do to happen to the small clubs and the local promoters with their weekly shows matching local talent and neighborhood fighters. They have to go out of business, and with their demise goes boxing.

"Throughout this area, spots like Camden, Allentown, Atlantic City, Trenton and Reading, all have been forced out of business. Here in Philadelphia only one club is running, and that has been running at a loss for the past few years. There is no autopsy needed —we know what is killing boxing."

A French boxing official announced Monday that his career as a boxer was finished.

Leafs' Johnson E. R. A. Tops In International

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran righthander Don Johnson, purchased by Chicago White Sox from Toronto Maple Leafs last October, compiled the best earned run average in the International-American League during the 1953 season.

Official averages released by the league show that Johnson allowed 2.81 earned runs per nine innings with New York, St. Louis and Washington, gave up 72 earned runs in 343 innings for a 5-17 mark. He also struck out the most batters, 158, while winning 15 and dropping 12 for the Leafs.

Tom Lasorda, Montreal Royals southpaw, followed Johnson in the earned run with 2.81 and Ed Rochon, also of the Royals, was third with a 3.07 average.

Righthander Jim Trice of Ottawa Athletics won the most games, 21, and pitched the most innings, 284. Trice was recalled by the parent Philadelphia A's at the tail-end of last season.

Gardiner Says Canada to Keep Her Grain Store

MONTREAL (CP)—Ottawa Senators can prove their mettle by a top of all Canada Hockey League ladder was no fluke. They have the boys who can play with a good defensive team to boot.

The latter's marksman is the loop's top goalgetter with 28 points, followed by eight goals and 12 assists, the highest-scoring rearguard in the league.

Gravelle, besides his scoring ability, shows a talent for penalties, leading the league with 54 minutes. Canadiens are the most penalized club with 336 minutes.

Apart from the two top teams, there was no change in the standings during the week-end. Trois Rivieres crept into third place, followed by Boston, New York and Chicoutimi.

Habitants Snatch Back Lead As Other Clubs Clout Wings; Howe Paces The Points Pack

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens delighted the hearts of their Hellburnt followers by battering away three straight wins last week and matching back the league lead of the National Hockey League from Detroit Red Wings.

Red Wings, on the other hand, collected with two whitewashes during the week-end. 3-0 by Toronto Maple Leafs and 5-0 by, of all people, Chicago Black Hawks, last in team standings.

Despite these setbacks, Cordie Howe, Detroit's blue-ribbon sharpshooter, clung to the individual scoring honors, although he hammered home only one tally since the last league statistics were released Thursday. Last week, Detroit led Montreal by a point.

TOP SCORERS

Lindsay's points are seven goals and 19 assists. Montreal's colorful right winger, Bernie Geoffrion, in third place for points, has scored with 14 goals and 11 assists.

Next in the nine point circle are those scored by his colleague, Maurice Richard, who has 13 and eight, tied for fourth with Boston Winger Ed Sandford, with five and 18. They have the fifth place.

Earl Reibel, Detroit, and Tod Sloan, Toronto, are in the sixth slot. Reibel has seven goals and 15 assists while Sloan has four and 18. Chicago's standout defenceman, Bill Gadsby, follows the Richard-Sandford niche with five points, eight goals and 12 assists, the highest-scoring rearguard in the league.

Another Ottawa boy, Rip Rollerpile is a point behind them on nine goals and a pace-setting 22 assists.

Andre Corriveau of Valleyfield Braves holds fourth position with 28 points, including 13 goals.

The Senators scored twice the leadership after holding fifth position a week ago, the clubs has 30 point-, two more than the second-place Quebec Aces. Sherbrook has 27 points, Montreal has 26, Chicoutimi 25, Springfield Indians 22 and Valleyfield 23.

Ottawa has had only 28 goals scored against them in 25 games for 2.32 average. Ray Frederick top goalie with a 2.16 average, leads the league in shutouts—four.

Deny Report Racial Pressure Put On Star

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — A spokesman for Vic Morkis, owner of the San Francisco 49ers, Monday denied a report that racial pressure had been exerted on Negro football star John Henry Johnson to get him to sign with the 49ers for next season.

The report, carried Saturday by the Winnipeg Free Press, quotes Bronko Nagurski in relation to the Calgary Stampeder star, as saying Jim Winnestaad, in conversation between John Henry and five men who asked him to sign with the NFL club.

Roosevelt said the meeting took place in the Mocambo hotel room after the Grey Cup game Nov. 28. He "implication was that they (the five men) would encourage other club owners not to employ Negroes if Johnson didn't sign," Roosevelt said.

The 49ers spokesman said that Johnson signed because he wanted to play pro football and because he has been a 49er fan since his school days. Johnson, who has a wife and four children, lives at nearby Pittsburg, Calif.

The Winnipeg report was denied by Pete Costanza, a Pittsburg business man, and by Johnson's high school coach.

COLTS SEEK VESSELS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Baltimore Colts hope to sign halfback Billy Vessels away from Canadian football next season.

Don Kellett, president and general manager of the National Football League club, said he plans to talk to the 1952 all-American from Oklahoma soon.

Kellett said there was no date set for the meeting and "we haven't even thought about a salary figure." But he declared, "You bet we would," when asked if the Colts still wanted Vessels.

Vessels was the No. 1 draft choice for Baltimore last season but decided to play for Edmonton Eskimos.

AT THE McCARTHY—Single-handed, Jeffrey Hunter, challenges an enemy sea raider in Twentieth Century-Fox's "Sailor of the King" a strange and stirring tale out of the war in the South Pacific. Opening Wednesday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, the film, which also stars Michael Rennie and Wendy Hiller, was produced with the full co-operation of the British Admiralty.

AT THE CAPITOL—James Cagney and Barbara Hale in a tense moment of "A Lion is in The Streets," the new Warner Bros. presentation in Technicolor which is now showing at the Capitol theatre. The film based on the Adria Locke Langley best-seller novel of a brash backwoods peddler who rises to political heights. On the same program suspense reaches terrifying tension in "Stolen Identity". Both hits are first city showings.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Debra Paget, who won fame as the starlet who had never been kissed, is going all-out to prove she can be sexy.

All-out is a good way to describe the costume I found her wearing on the set of "Princess of the Nile," an idyll of 13th century Egypt. Nearly all of the costume was out. The only thing left was 60 pounds of fancy chains which did little to obstruct the view.

"I do a dance in this outfit," explained Debra, rattling a chain here and there. "I don't know if it will end up in the picture, because the Johnston office hasn't okayed the costume yet.

"Gene Verdon wore a similar costume for a dance in 'David and Bathsheba.' But the censors made them paint her legs gold, like the rest of the outfit, so it wouldn't seem so revealing."

Debra wasn't painted. It was all her. And she glowed with happiness about her loan-out role. She plays a dual part as an Egyptian princess and a tavern dancer. That makes her twice as sexy.

"I hope this will prove to the studio (20th Century-Fox) that I can play sexy roles," she said. "You know how it is. I've been there six years and they still think of me as a 14-year-old. They don't realize I'm grown up and 20."

She said the publicity about her non-dating didn't bother her, except when people inferred that she was unbalanced or sheltered by her mother.

"It wasn't my idea," testified her mother, a large, jolly woman. "After all, I started going out with boys when I was 12 and had my first baby when I was 17. I couldn't very well tell my daughters not to date.

"My other daughter (starlet Lisa Gaye) is the same way. She's 19 and hasn't had a date. She's too busy with her career and says she won't date just to follow the crowd in style. Gosh, I'd be glad to have the girls go out with boys! All I ask is that they bring one home for me!"

Debra admits that she now has been dated and kissed. But only by one man, she emphasized. That man, as he goes around town knows, is the fabulous producer, Howard Hughes, who has quite an eye for young lovelies.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Give Akoldp Oxpert a few picture cards and he will bid his head off. If the hand also has a couple of short suits you could not drag him away from a slam with a team of mules.

My thoughts go back to the deal shown here:

♥A J 7 5
♦9 5 2
♣J 10 5 2

WEST
♠9 8 6 3 2
♥10 9 8 6 2

EAST
♠K Q J 10
♥K Q 3
♦K J 10
♣K 9 7

SOUTH
♣A Q 6 4 3

The hands were bid like this:

South	West	North	East
1 C	Pass	1 H	Dbl
2 C	2 S	3 C	Pass
6 C	Pass	Pass	Dbl

Where south found enough for a slam you will have to ask somebody else. It would be a stretch or values to go to five with the tricks he could count and the holes he had in his suits.

West must have had more than spots before his eyes to come in with a free bid of two spades. But it could be excused with an old alibi that goes: I just wanted to gum up the works for them.

The two north bids were in good taste. His first response did not increase the partnership number. With club support he had tricks enough for one raise to his suit of partner's suit.

But both bids by north, containing only one raise, did not show more than three tricks there. With a count of only seven, never did south see a total of more than ten tricks in the pair.

An expert player might consider the possibility of picking up an extra trick somewhere. Even so, this would mean only 11 tricks. No more than enough for game. Not nearly enough for a slam.

With a spade lead from west the six club bid could only go down. But the opening lead from west looked to be a heart and declarer was able to take 12 tricks. Success often takes astuteness with breaks.

Northern Electric Hockey League

A double header was played in the Northern Electric Interdepartmental hockey league over the week-end with the Elbow Benders winning 4-2 over the Jerks and the Idols smothering the Boxers 13-5.

Semark led the E.B.s to victory with two goals and one assist while Murphy claimed the other pair of goals. For the Jerks it was Pete Jones and Belnap getting the markers while Locke had a helper.

Dave Jones once more helped himself to 3 goals for the Idiots, Philp was not far behind with 4, Reid had 2, Whalen and Semach each got one goal and an assist. Rosette took on a pair for the Buzzers, Bedard had one and one with Joe and Hurst netting the remaining pair.

Mahoney and Fitzpatrick were the referees.

Little Benny's Note Book

I ran all the ways home on account of being late for dinner again, and the frunt door was locked, and I thought, Heck, now I have to make it werse by ringing the doorbell.

Which I did, and pop came to the door hooding his napkin, and he looked at me like somebody he had never saw before, saying, Yes, young mabl? is there something I can do for you?

I though it was earlier till it got darker, I said, and pop said, Yes, the sun always seems to set rooner at this season of the year than it does in summer. In fact Nature is quite remarkable in many ways, and I would dcerly love to discuss her fnany changing moods with you, but I am afraid my dinner is getting cold. Did you say you are selling magazine subscriptions to pay your way through 3 colleges? he said.

Aw G, pop, I asked 2 different men what time it was, and neither one of them knew, I said, and pop said, My, my, the ignorance of other people, even in this age of compulsory education. But to return to the subject of magazine subscriptions, Mrs. Polk always attends to that sort of thing, and unfortunately she too is engaged at dinner. In fact the entire family would be dining if it were not for the absence of the young man of the family, who has been away for some time, he said.

Jimminy roozalem, pop, I'm hungry, I said, and pop said, Oh, really? Then perhaps you'll come in and take pot luck with us. I'm sure Mrs. Polk will be very glad to see you, he said.

Which maybe she was, but it didn't stop her from giving me the dickins for being late again.

BANCROFT

H-S Assoc. Hears Interesting Talk On 'Music'

BANCROFT — Mr. C. Monteruil was guest speaker at Tuesdays regular meeting of the Bancroft Home and School held at the school. Choosing "Music" as his theme, Mr. Monteruil said that "music in schools helps pupils to appreciate the wonderful things that have been written. This appreciation was worthwhile and meant great things in the musical future of Canada. He hoped, this next year, to inaugurate an instrumental in Grade 9, with brass and wood wind."

Mrs. F. Bruce thanked the speaker for his enjoyable address. Opening prayers were led by president Madeline Hewitt, followed by a report on school milk distribution by treasurer, Mrs. F. Dolyea. A report by Mrs. Betty Thomas on the Hallowe'en party showed a balance of $22.

Correspondence included "Thank-you" cards from Mrs. Malach, treasurer of the Hand 2 Council, in Peterborough, and from Glenda Keller, a pupil, for the Hallowe'en party.

The resignation of Mrs. E. Goodkey, as publicity convener, was reluctantly accepted and it was announced that Mrs. C. Boyd had been elected to the executive in place of Mrs. C. Wark, who is leaving town.

Room total roll-call was won by Mrs. F. Wiggins' room.

The next regular meeting is to be held on the fourth Tuesday in January. This will be "Father's Night," and the guest speaker will be the Rev. Owen E. Johnston.

RE-NEWED CARS
WHAT ARE THEY?

THEY ARE CARS that have been turned in on new models. They have been thoroughly inspected by our skilled mechanics. The necessary work has been done consequently many thousands of miles have been built back into them. Because this work has been done, we feel that they are a little better than ordinary used cars. Therefore we chose the above name to distinguish them. Our initial cost may not be the lowest but we feel sure that the cost in the long run will be economical.

Translations Of Robbie Burns Cause Ruckus

GLASGOW (AP)—A soft-spoken Englishman has brought Scotland to the verge of a bloodless civil war by translating Robbie Burns' poems into English.

The culprit is William Keas Seymour, 56-year-old retired bank manager who has never been to Scotland. He just likes Burns and has read better his way.

Seymour's improvements have set off a storm of controversy in Scotland's newspapers. So far the battle is roughly even.

A typical Seymour line comes from his translation of the world famous poem "Address to a Haggis."

Burns wrote:

"Fair fa' your honest sonsie face, great chieftain o' the puddin' race."

In Seymour style, it reads:

"Good luck to your plump, honest face, etc."

"I AM OUTRAGED"

Typical protests in today's letter-to-the-editor columns ranged from the "I am outraged" of Aberdeen's Frederick Lees to the "De'il tak' me if I ever heard the like of this scurrilous bellum o' an Englishman" from Glasgow's Douglas Cargen.

But Seymour has supporters like Mrs. Isobel Webster, who asked: "What if the Bible had been left in Hebrew?"

Aloof from the battle stands one of Scotland's great living Burns authorities, Sir Patrick Dolla, former lord-provost of Glasgow.

"What do Scots know about Burns?" he stormed. "Ten an ounce liberty on the head because I've read American books about him. The American professors have held Burns' manuscripts and first editions, and to them by socialist Scots Burns lovers who bought them for three shillings a piece and got rid of them for £10 a time.

"All these Scots are interested in"—and Sir Patrick is a Scot himself—"is money. I feel about as Burns night dinner and gossiping about Robbie's love life."

Editorial Writers Take Panning From Blackmore

OTTAWA (CP) — John Blackmore, Social Credit member of Parliament for Lethbridge, said Monday night that United States and Canadian newspapers are under the control of Communist influences.

Mr. Blackmore, who has defended Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep.-Wis.) of the United States in two recent speeches in the Commons, said on the CBC's Dominion network program "Press Conference" that Communist control and influence are behind many papers in North America.

He said not all papers, however, are under Communist influence. He excepted the Chicago Tribune, and added there might be others.

Mr. Blackmore was asked if the reports of his speeches in the Commons appearing in the Canadian press had been fair and accurate. He replied that there have been, but "It is what happens to these speeches after they reach the papers" that disturbed him.

He said he has found newspaper men "men of integrity," but when editorial writers have finished writing about the stories, reporters must be "chagrined."

Investigate Claim

TORONTO (CP)—R. H. Saunders chairman of the Ontario hydro-electric power commission, said Monday that he is investigating a claim that 327 employees paid less $35,000 in wages during the commission's government-wide campaign.

Ernnon Park, an official of the United Electrical Workers, claims the wages would be lost by employees of the John Inglis Company, during the two-week changeover period. He asked Mr. Saunders if the commission is going to assume the loss.

Mr. Park said hydro has pledged that the cost of conversion could be met out of reserves.

BOY KILLS FATHER

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. (AP — A 13-year-old boy shot his father to death Sunday in retaliation for a beating, deputy Sheriff Billy Blanton reported. Jim Patterson, 57, died from a shotgun blast which tore off his right arm and side of his face. His son, Robert Patterson, 13, was held on a murder charge.

FIND ANCIENT SETTLEMENTS

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The remains of ancient settlements dating back 6,000 years were uncarthed near Khabarovsk in the Russian Far East, Students from Moscow and Leningrad universities found ancient stone implements, spearheads, axes and flutters near the Manchurian border and in the remaining territory around Vladivostock.

British Treasury May Change Mind

LONDON (CP) — A Canadian-born member of Parliament said today he thinks the British treasury would be willing to allow an ever-greater rate of investment in Canada than it has already authorized.

H. C. (Ted) Leather, 34-year-old member for Somerset North, said in a letter to The Daily Telegraph that he believes the dollars are there if British business wants them.

"It is not the government which has applied a brake on British investment in Canada). It has been United Kingdom business and the United States business over the Canadian industrial scene is to be watched.

Leather was born in Toronto and grew up in Canada. He came to the United Kingdom after the World War with the avowed aim of entering British politics.

Some Americans May Be Slaving For Russians

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some high United States defence officials think it possible that some Americans captured in Korea are slave labor workers for Russia or Red Chinese, the Associated Press reported Monday.

Officials say the Korean war American intelligence agencies have sent reports and made every effort to track them down.

Defence department officials say they cannot declare flatly that the Chinese and Korean Reds called home all Americans and Canadians they captured, because the communists have refused to supply complete reports on prisoners and refused to permit independent investigations.

One official, after reading the statement of a released Japanese prisoner of the Second World War that he had seen Americans in a prison near Moscow, put it this way:

"It is quite possible that some American boys are digging uranium in Siberian mines—if we could only prove it."

Plans to Oppose Seaway Project 'The Whole Way'

EAUTIMORE (AP)—"I will go the whole way in opposition to the St. Lawrence seaway" project, Senator John Marshall (Rep.-Md.) told the North Atlantic Ports Association Monday.

"I will work to prevent the bill from getting out of the senate, and if it should get on the floor I will fight it down to the very last," he told a representatives of ports in Norfolk, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Portland.

Butler said he already had defeated a move by a block of midwestern senators to give the St. Lawrence seaway bill priority for consideration at the next session of Congress.

He said he disliked making the seaway a regional issue, but it would benefit all coastal states, the eastern seaboard, particularly our ports in Baltimore." It would be put out of business.

Ask Canada, U.S. To Work Together In Wheat Problem

MONTREAL (CP)—The executive of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce has asked that the Canadian and United States governments work together on the question of wheat surpluses and world separate action on their disposal.

The council has sent a telegram and letter to Prime Minister St. Laurent from Dr. H. Fowler of Montreal, council chairman, stating: "... We are confident that no avenue will be left unexplored for co-operation and collaboration between governments of the two countries in dealing with this problem."

The U. S. chamber of Commerce also is being urged to bring the recommendation to the attention of Congress.

Queen Decides To Give Up Fort Belvedere

LONDON (AP)—The Queen has decided to give up Fort Belvedere, the 18th-century mansion where the Duke of Windsor wooed his future wife, the Duke's family decision to abdicate 17 years ago.

The fort, made like a castle, comes with its abdication in 1936, has belonged to the crown for more than a century.

Today's announcement from Buckingham Palace said the handsome, 40-roomed house, now a derelict shell with crumbling interior, leaking roof and gardens overgrown with tangled undergrowth, is being turned over to the commissioners for crown lands.

The Duke of Windsor described the fort—so called because of its battlements and tower—as "a perfect bachelor's residence" when he took it over in 1929. He subsequently added the Tudor designs and built a tennis court and squash racquets pool.

Apart from a short term during the war when it was used for evacuated government offices, no one has lived at the fort since the Duke left.

Find Diamonds In Pant Cuffs Of Arrested Men

GALT (CP)—Police said today they found diamonds in the pant cuffs of two men arrested in connection with the theft of $2,500 worth of diamonds and wrist watches from a jewelry store.

Held are Harold Merrill, 30, Joe Zambo, and a woman, June Webb. Police said all are from Hamilton.

Police said $4,000 worth of diamonds were left scattered about the entrance to the F. J. Rogers jewelry store. They were arrested an hour later. Officers said they found part of the loot in the men's pant cuffs and more in a car they were driving.

Indo-China Peace Must Provide Assured Freedom

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP) — Maurice Dejean, French commissioner-general, today said the only peace France would consider for Indo-China would be one leading to "true independence and assured freedom."

Vict Nam nationalists hailed the statement as meaning French rejection of the armistice talks proposed recently by Ho Chi Minh, leader of the Communist Vietminh, whose forces the French union forces have been fighting for seven years.

Dejean said France does not want "a peace of merchants or servitude" or a "misleading cruel peace" like the Geneva Agreement.

In a recent interview with a Swedish newspaper, Ho said he was ready to discuss a possible armistice.

Communists Are Taken Over Coals By Macdonnell

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the difficulties in dealing with Communists is that they won't say what they mean, J. M. Macdonnell (PC — Toronto Greenwood) said Monday in the Commons.

He recalled that during the war Ottawa belonged to the Civil Liberties Association in Toronto.

"... I am quite sure the fact that I belonged to it was going to get me in trouble one day; and possibly I might have been arrested as a member of that association. . . .

"I found out that Communists would stay later at meetings than anybody else. I have reminded myself of the terrible nights that we stayed here after midnight in the parties' meetings that I came almost to hate because of the extreme drivel we had to listen to. We sat there and stayed and stayed in the hope that they would tire the rest of us out and then they would be able to do their deadly work. . . ."

RATIFY ECONOMIC PACT

TOKYO (AP)—Communist North Korea issued an official decree Sunday ratifying an economic agreement with Red China, the Peiping Radio said today. The agreement, signed in Peiping Nov. 23, calls for Chinese Communist engineers to rebuild North Korea's railroads and railways. Official statements have hinted a military defence pact also was involved.

Cake Suspected

NORTH SYDNEY, N. S. (CP)—Police here are looking for a woman who flavors her cakes with hacksaw blades. They say a cake was delivered to the Cape Breton county jail the day James Dempsey escaped by sawing the bars on a second-storey window.

The prisoner, Leo Earle, 26, of Glenwood, Nfld., and Sidney Dunphy, 34, of North Sydney, were recaptured.

Commerce Bank President Sees Good Year Ahead

TORONTO (CP)—A good year ahead was predicted today by James Stewart, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Trends sometimes taken as signs warnings of recession are indicated, may actually be fair winds towards continued prosperity, he told annual meeting and costs of production, however, would require careful consideration.

Mr. Stewart, in an address prepared for delivery to the bank's annual meeting, said a decline in commodity prices had corrected the boom conditions that developed when world prices now were back to approximately the 1929 level.

"We should, therefore, take care not to over-emphasize the economic significance of the fall in prices by regarding it as the harbinger of recession.

"The prolonged period of rising prices associated with full employment and steadily-increasing real purchasing power has, unfortunately, created the impression that the three factors are one and indivisible and that the reversal of the trend of one necessarily implies a similar movement of the others.

"A moderate decline in prices need not be viewed with full enough. We have in the past had periods of prosperity in an era of stable or reasonably-declining prices."

SEES STRONG DEMAND

Mr. Stewart suggested over-all demand generally will continue high in the months ahead.

"In the consumer goods' field, demand is buoyant and retail sales indicate a most satisfactory outlook. Demand in this area is difficult to assess . . . but there is nothing in the present situation to warrant the belief that any noticeable falling off in the near future of us, though there well may be a levelling off of the peaks recorded in past months.

"In the durable goods' field there are signs of some slackening in demand and, as a consequence, inventories are building up. Here we require adjustments in the coming months. . . ."

Mr. Stewart said farm income declined from the very high levels of 1951 and 1952, and having regard for world agricultural prices and the generally abundant domestic agricultural picture there is little ground for anticipating a return to the record establishing levels. However, the level of farm income this year is relatively high and should continue so for the crop year ahead.

Toss Scarecrow Into Bonfire, Find It Is Body

LLANGAIN, Wales (Reuters)—Workmen clearing undergrowth from a field in this Welsh town threw what they thought was a scarecrow on to a bonfire.

As the clothing identified by a woman's shoe fell off the fire. The workmen who were clearing the site Monday for a new memorial hall, hastily snatched further in the tall grass and found a skull with matted hair, a portion of the torso and upper and lower dentures of a set of false teeth.

The teeth were identified by a Carmarthen dentist as a set he had prepared for Mrs. Ethel Winifred Collins Morris, 66, who had been missing without a trace since July 21.

Police said there was no question of foul play.

Dufferin Track

TORONTO (CP)—Randy Flash, owned by G. R. Verhurst of Rockester, N.Y., won both heats of the feature race "A" pace on the Dufferin Park harness racing card Monday.

Glowing Song, owned by S. Love of Milton, and driven by Jack Hodgins, and A-Layne Hagerd, owned by R. Peel of Scarboro and driven by Mack Weaver, were the best winners in the class "B" pace first, the secondary feature.

Dufferin officials announced that owner-driver Gordon Kingston has been suspended and denied track privileges until his case is handled by the Canadian Trotting Association and the Ontario racing commission. There was no elaboration.

Peace Prevails in Korea This Christmas Season First Time in Four Years

By JACK MacBETH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Comparative peace prevails in Korea this Christmas season, the first in four years that Canadians serving there have been able to enjoy. But good will is limited.

Although the shooting has stopped thousands of Chinese and North Korean Communists wait in their emplacements across from the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade. No one can be sure of their ultimate intentions.

As the year draws to a close, some 8,000 Canadian soldiers mourn the loss of 302 comrades who fell in the 37 months before the truce. Of these 83 died during the first seven months of 1953.

There are also more than 500 sailors serving in three destroyers under United Nations command.

CASUALTY RECORD

Following is a record of Canadian casualties in the signing of the truce last July:

Army: Killed in action, died of wounds or presumed dead, 303 officers and men; wounded in action 1,202; missing, six; injured in action, 101.

Navy: Killed in action, three; wounded, 10; lost overboard, two.

RCAF: One missing.

Height spot of the year in Korea was the return from Communist captivity of two Canadian officers and 30 men. Two of the men came back in operation "Little Switch" last April, while the remainder returned in "Big Switch" following the armistice.

MANY DECORATIONS

Canadian servicemen won many decorations in 1953, receiving 211 from their own country and 19 from the United States. Eighty-five per cent of these decorations were in recognition of service in 1953, the remainder covering actions in 1952.

Army headquarters announced recently that up to Dec. 1, 22,068 all ranks had been on duty in Korea. That's the equivalent of nearly two divisions.

The navy said more than 3,500 officers and men have gained battle experience in the eight Canadian destroyers which sailed in Korean waters.

Operating in groups of three, these ships have steamed some 460,000 miles under UN command. Led by the Athabaskan, with three hours to her credit, they have fired about 50,000 rounds of their main armament against Communist targets and some 70,000 rounds of close-range ammunition.

In the 37 months ending with the armistice 22 RCAF pilots had flown with the UNAF. One was shot down and is still listed missing.

DOWN EIGHT MIGS

Canadian fliers, during Korean hostilities, shot down eight Communist MiGs, damaged another nine, and were given credit for the "probable" destruction of one more.

In addition, four - engined North Stars of the RCAF's 426 squadron have made some 600 round trips in logistical support of UN operations in Korea.

Flying between Dorval, the west coast and Tokyo, these transport planes also have carried 12,012 passengers, including a number of wounded. All told, the RCAF said, they have flown more than 6,000,000 miles without a major accident, carrying more than 4,500,000 pounds of cargo.

The Canadian Navy is represented by the destroyers Iroquois, Huron and Crusader. Since the war began RCN personnel have been awarded 62 decorations for outstanding service in Korea.

RUSSIA TO DECIDE FATE OF ATOMIC PLAN

Out-of-Town Letters Cost Five Cts. After Apr. 5

Rise Aimed at Ensuring Dept. Will Pay Own Way

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians will spend five cents, instead of four, to send a letter out of town after next April 1. But the letter will go by plane wherever there are air facilities.

The boost of one cent an ounce in first-class mail rates, aimed at ensuring the post office department pays its own way, was announced in the Commons Tuesday by Finance Minister Abbott.

The increase, first in 10 years, is intended to offset the cost of a shortened work week in the postal service, which Mr. Abbott also announced will take effect in some areas April 1.

The transcontinental service and other "operating" branches of the civil service also will get the five-day 40-hour week April 1.

Details of the postal changes:

1. Mailings beyond postal areas will cost five cents instead of four for the first ounce and two cents instead of two for each additional ounce.

2. Mailings within postal areas will be four cents instead of three for the first ounce and two cents instead of one for additional ounce.

3. The domestic airmail rate is abolished but first-class mail within Canada will be airmail whenever it can be carried by plane. Rates for airmail beyond Canada will remain unchanged.

One type of mailing won't be affected by the boosts—letters mailing within a postal district to and from rural addresses.

RURAL AREAS AFFECTED

Mr. Abbott announced that the rate for letters within postal areas will be extended to rural routes. It has applied only to city and town deliveries. This change will affect for rural areas the increase on mailings within postal areas.

The reduced work week from the present average 44 hours will go into effect in localities where it is general practice for private business and industry. The minister said the 181 of localities will be announced by the civil service commission.

Civil service office staffs in some localities were granted a five-day week earlier this year.

Mr. Abbott said the postal service expects a deficit in the current fiscal year that ends March 31, because of higher costs. The short work week in the next fiscal year will add $10,000,000 additional additions to the present staff of about 28,000.

For the last few years the post office department's share of what is called the "all-up" service for first-class mail, carrying ordinary mailings and parcels, has been sparse and variable. The seven-cent airmail got the lion's share.

The blue seven-cent stamp showing the Canada goose will be replaced in general use by the cent-and-a-ary five-cent stamp.

The finance official said no action has been taken to issue any new denominations.

Deer Upsets Movie Plans, Kills Panther

VIENNA (Reuters) — This is the story of the deer that killed the panther and upset movie makers' plans.

The Russians were making a film about the struggle for survival in the animal world in Soviet central Asia.

The director gave orders that a full-grown panther should be placed in a large cage with a tender young deer. The result was no doubt in his mind to be which animal would devour which.

But a Hungarian onlooker has related, the panther never for one moment thought of attacking the deer. After a while the deer charged the panther and chased it up and down the cage.

The terrified panther finally sank to the floor of the cage. A zoo veterinarian said death was due to heart failure.

John Diefenbaker Is Married For Second Time

TORONTO (CP) — John Diefenbaker, 58, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Prince Albert, was married here Tuesday night to Mrs. Olive Freeman Palmer of suburban Willowdale. . . .

It was the second marriage for both. Mrs. Palmer, a widow, and daughter of the late Rev. and Mrs. Charles H. Freeman of Canning, N.S., has a 17-year-old daughter from a former marriage. Mr. Diefenbaker, a widower, has no children.

The marriage was performed at Park Road Baptist church by Rev. C. D. Hurley.

A lawyer and leading member of the Progressive Conservative party since his election to the Commons in 1940, Mr. Diefenbaker was an unsuccessful candidate for the leadership of the party in 1948, following the late Mr. Bracken, whom he married in 1929, died in February 1951.

Mrs. Palmer was born at Roland, Man., though her family lived for long periods in Nova Scotia. A graduate of McMaster University, she had taught in the Ontario education department since 1945, and was in charge of visual guidance when she completed her services recently.

The couple left for a honeymoon trip to the west coast and Mexico.

WORD OF CAUTION

URANIUM CITY, Sask. (CP)— The provincial government has warned prospective uranium hunters to make sure of a job and accommodation before they head for this northwestern uranium boom town. It said some men have been virtually stranded because of fewer winter jobs.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: An intensifying storm centre southwest of Chicago this morning is moving slowly northward and will bring rain across the lower Great Lakes region today, more changing to rain and freezing rain in central Ontario and snowflurries in the north country. Thursday will be colder with northwest winds covering the province. Snowflurries are forecast in the west and southern sections of Lake Huron tonight, on "The Cigaret" before the greater New York dental meeting Wednesday.

He reported that a survey of 1,000 men suffering lung cancer showed only 1.5 per cent were non-smokers.

A definite association between lung cancer and heavy smoking also was found in a survey of the smoking habits of more than 5,000 lung cancer sufferers in the United States, England, Germany, Switzerland, Denmark and Czechoslovakia, he said.

U.S. STOCKPILE ATOMIC WEAPONS GETTING BIGGER

President Tells of New Powerful H-Bomb

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower says the United States stockpile of atomic weapons is increasing "daily." It is recalled that in 1946, one test, of two bombs was believed to have consumed what was then the stockpile.

Just what did the president mean by simply by the necessarily guarded phrase he used Tuesday about the stockpile in his United Nations speech?

Is the increase a weapon a day? Or is it more—or less? That information, clearly, is secret. But here are some materials for speculation:

1. The stockpile is believed to have passed the 1,000-unit mark sometime ago, perhaps soon after the outbreak of the Korean war and U.S. atomic energy officials have since said publicly that the rate of production continues to increase.

2. When in 1946 the U.S. exploded two test bombs at Bikini atoll they were understood to be the only two finished weapons in existence.

NEW A-BOMBS

The president spoke Tuesday of a hydrogen bomb with the force of millions of tons of exploding TNT and new atomic bombs 25 times mightier than those "with which the atomic age dawned" eight years ago. The new A-bombs would unleash energy equivalent to 500,000 tons of TNT.

Eisenhower spoke as a soldier who knew what conventional bombing can do. He used the yardstick of the Second World War in which the Allies dropped more bombs on the U.S. now holds in its hands. He said:

"Today, the United States' stockpile of atomic weapons, which, of course, increases daily, exceeds by many times the explosive equivalent of the total of all bombs and all shells that came from every plane and every gun in every theatre of war through all the years of World War II."

Eisenhower said 42 test explosions have occurred since the historic Alamogordo shot July 16, 1945. That meant 45 bombs have been set off. The original test in New Mexico; two dropped on Japan; two fired in "operation experiments" at Bikini; a dozen in the Las Vegas, N.M., proving ground; nine at Eniwetok in the Marshall island group of the mid-Pacific.

Would Permit Driving Voters to The Polls

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature's select committee on election laws Tuesday wound up its two-day session by recommending that ordinary citizens be allowed to hire automobiles to take voters to and from the polls on election day.

Supporters of the change said in effect: Everybody does it anyway.

The committee adopted a motion urging that section 169 of the Election Act be deleted. This section under the general heading of corrupt practices prohibits a candidate or his representative from hiring cars or any other form of transportation to take voters to or from the polls.

Science Symposium Told Cigaret Smoking Can Cause Lung Cancer

NEW YORK (AP) — A science symposium has been told that cigaret smoking can cause cancer of the lung.

Prolonged and heavy use of cigarets increases up to 20 times the risk of developing cancer of the lung," declared Dr. Ernest L. Wynder of Memorial Center's Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research.

Both Eisenhower and Dulles Friends of France--Bidault

PARIS (Reuters)—Foreign Minister Georges Bidault said today that President Eisenhower and State Secretary John Foster Dulles of the United States are good friends of France, despite their "occasional impatience to see us take a decision on our problems."

Bidault, speaking to reporters shortly after returning home by air today from the Big Three Bermuda conference, said:

"France should know that in the persons of the president of the United States and the secretary of state she has sincere friends, whose occasional impatience to see us take decisions on our problems is never separated from a profound sympathy and a real desire for co-operation."

The foreign minister said that as a result of the Bermuda talks the three Western powers have progressed with Russia, but not as fast as with "optimism and calm."

He reiterated that France and Israel personally directed the French stand at Bermuda despite a report which confined him to his room.

Laniel said today that President Eisenhower and Sir Winston Churchill indicated at Bermuda that co-operation of Anglo-American forces with the European army will be "not only close but lasting."

In a telephone interview with the newspaper Aurore, he said:

"In my view, talks will have to be continued on these points with our allies."

Laniel is still in Bermuda, recovering from the illness which prevented him from attending the Big Three conference.

He told Aurore that the communique "understated that the European Defence Community is an integral part of the Atlantic community."

"We were agreed that if the danger of aggression appears to have diminished, this is due to the strength of our forces. It was very important that we should be in agreement on this point."

He said he was satisfied with decisions taken regarding the war in Indo-China.

He said Foreign Minister Bidault had discussed with him before and after each meeting he was unable to attend, "so that we defined the French position together."

Preliminary Budget Meeting Scheduled for Next Monday

City council wound up its business for the year yesterday as members held their last regular meeting of 1953.

Very little business was transacted with two or three major questions, including sale of the old firehall on Front street, the disinfestation of city water supplies being laid over for consideration of the 1954 council.

Also a preliminary budget meeting scheduled to be held Tuesday evening following the regular council session was cancelled until next Monday. Mayor-Elect John Roth, and the two new councillors will be present to preside over and Ben Safe, will be invited to attend the budget meeting.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED

The resignation of Dr. J. Russell Scott as city council appointee to the board of health was received by council. Reason for Dr. Scott's resignation was the new board was at his recent election by acclamation as public school trustee. In his letter of resignation to council Dr. Scott stated, that L. A. Hall, school board chairman, had pointed out a questionable trick legality in that he was holder of two offices which at times put him in a possibility someone may challenge his election as a member of both. In this occurred it could cause a new election for public school board with consideration of extra cost to the taxpayers.

Request from Thurlow township for a stop sign at College and Frank street, was referred to the public works committee.

The request for an extension on Quetay, Sidney and Thurlow housing sub-division, is still being considered. Solicitor Arthur Ellis noted that in addition to the subdivision planned by Mr. Quetay there were anxious for development of still another subdivision of about three to three acres in the same general area. He noted that the road could also be developed to serve both areas and conveyed into the town after it has been asked to co-operate. The alderman expected some decision by next week.

To a question asked at a previous session by Alderman Thomas as to why the amount of the street lighting rebate from the public utilities was much reduced from last year, Mayor A. M. Haig said the rebate was calculated by the provincial hydro and not by the local utilities. Mayor said the reasons for the reduced rebate was that the Ontario Hydro had not increased electric rates, despite the fact that power prices from the provincial hydro had been increased.

The by-law authorizing a Liquor Control Act vote in the annual election in the east section of the city, was read. The date for the vote has been fixed for Quinte High School Board for a three year term.

Eleven families living on the west side of Sidney street are seeking information regarding annexation to the city. The matter was referred to the planning committee.

Police Now Have Definite Suspect In Kidnapping

TORONTO (CP) — Scarborough township police today offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the masked gunman who abducted 5-year-old Thomas McDowell.

At the same time police said they expect to "definitely" identify the boy's kidnapper before the end of the week. The child was not injured with violence if he refused to marry him.

In a 10-minute development at noon today, police said they were looking for a young man and a young woman were reported seeking. A possible motive for the pair forced him off a road in the city's northern suburbs. Scarborough police asked provincial police help in tracking the car which outpaced a police cruiser.

Relatives of the girl said the boy was a former roller-skating companion of Marlon, 16, who telephoned threats three times in the past month but had refused to see him again "because she didn't love him."

Meanwhile the distraught father has appealed to farmers in southern Ontario to help find the kidnapped daughter before the snow flies.

New York Papers Publish Again As Strike Ends

NWE YORK (AP)—The city's biggest newspapers resumed publication today, bringing news and ads to readers for the first time after the worst strike in the history of the United States printing.

AFL photo-engravers and the publishers signed Tuesday, the 113th day of the strike, to a fact-finding board proposed by federal mediators. It is to consider the disputed wages and fringe benefits.

Hours later, New York's three affected morning papers, The Times, The World and The Herald, had today's edition on the streets. The Herald Tribune, long the dean of the city's press, also carried its first ads in nine days as well as news.

Meanwhile, the three afternoon newspapers, The Journal-American, The Post and The World-Telegram and Sun, worked to put out their first post-strike edition of the day.

To did another metropolitan-area paper, The Long Island Star-Journal, which closed down last week in a dispute related to the strike.

Under the agreement, the 400 photo-engravers involved will get a $3 weekly wage increase plus 75 cents a month of other benefits. This is the same package which the publishers stood on all along. The fact-finding board can recommend additional amounts. The union originally sought a 25 cent package, then scaled this down to$7.50.

'NON-CANADIANS' MUST RESPECT SOVEREIGNTY

Few Minor Incidents Reported in Northland

OTTAWA (CP)—It is "very important" that "non-Canadians" in Canada's northland respect Canadian sovereignty there, says Prime Minister St. Laurent.

In a Commons speech Tuesday, he mentioned this "sovereignty" five times while piloting through second reading a bill which changes the name of the resources and development department to the department of northern affairs and national resources.

Though he made it clear he was referring to Americans when he said "non-Canadians," the prime minister indicated that there have been no hitches between the Canadian and United States governments concerning the presence of American servicemen in Canada's north.

Outside the House, officials said there have been very minor ripples between Canadians and Americans in the north but the Americans have been most careful not to step on Canadian administrative toes.

GEOGRAPHIC FACT

Mr. St. Laurent said Canada's defence bulldog is made more difficult by the "accidental" fact that the country's northland lies between the U.S. and Russia.

But all joint Canada - U.S. defence measures "are implemented with due respect for the sovereignty" of Canada.

The prime minister said "quite a number of non-Canadians" are now moving into the north.

"We felt that it was very important to have the situation such that it would not require prior agreement on an acceptable system of international inspection of atomic plants in all countries because it avoids for the moment the whole question of elimination of atomic arms.

Instead, it calls for creation of a practical operating body, under the banner of the UN, which would engage in strictly peaceful use of atomic materials for the maximum benefit of the greatest number of countries.

Eisenhower made his proposal after a sombre warning that the alternative to effective international control is the same sort of probable destruction of civilization in an atomic war that Allied power was not enough to erect defences—which can never be adequate—against atomic bombs. "Even a small terrible power of retaliation against the attacker.

"To pause there," he said in words of warning to the world, "would be to confirm the hopeless finality of a belief that two atomic colossi are doomed to eye each other indefinitely across a trembling balance.

"To stop there would be to accept helplessly the probability of civilization destroyed, the annihilation of the irreplaceable heritage of mankind handed down to us from generation to generation, and the condemnation of mankind to begin all over again the painful struggle upward from savagery toward decency, justice, and right.

"Surely no sane member of the human race could discover victory in such desolation."

Russia Would Have to Be One of Participating Powers

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — President Eisenhower's bold new proposal for an international atomic energy pool has put squarely up to Russia a fateful decision on co-operation with the West.

Andrei Vishinsky, chief Soviet delegate to the United Nations, said today "it is necessary to study" the president's proposal. United Nations diplomats declare that a favorable Soviet response could greatly advance prospects for eventual control of the atom. A refusal or evasion would further harden the East-West deadlock.

Eisenhower, fresh from the Bermuda conference where he and British Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Laniel for his French republic talked about it, assembly late Tuesday that the United States is ready to join immediately in secret talks on setting up an international atomic energy agency to which qualified countries would contribute atomic material for peaceful purposes.

But he said Russia would have to be one of the participating powers. He did not name others but it was learned he considers Britain, Canada, France, atomic materials, and Canada, Australia, South Africa and Belgium, which produce uranium, the raw source material, also should be included.

ALLIES SHARE SECRET

Earlier in his speech he referred to possession of the atomic "secret" by "our friends and allies, Great Britain and Canada, whose scientific genius made a tremendous contribution to the our original discoveries and the designs of atomic bombs."

The revolutionary nature of the president's proposal, the thing that made many UN delegates think it might prove acceptable to Russia, was that it would not require prior agreement on an acceptable system of international inspection of atomic plants in all countries because it avoids for the moment the whole question of elimination of atomic arms.

Instead, it calls for creation of a practical operating body, under the banner of the UN, which would engage in strictly peaceful use of atomic materials for the maximum benefit of the greatest number of countries.

Churchill Proposes Commonwealth And U.S. Hold Annual Bermuda Talks

TUCKER'S TOWN Bermuda (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, Laniel and weary after the pressures of the Big Three conference here, consulted their legislators and Commonwealth and the United States meet regularly to discuss problems of mutual interest.

Speaking Tuesday night at the farewell dinner given by Premier Laniel, speaker of Bermuda's House of Assembly, the 79-year-old British leader suggested that the gathering be held annually or even triannually in Bermuda, "home of the second oldest parliament in the world."

Churchill said the participants should talk about such principles as "fair play, decent behavior, courage and, if necessary, even sacrifice."

Although obviously tired from the gruelling four-day conference, Churchill's face was cherubic as he rose with his wife to propose a toast from Sir Alexander Hood, governor of the island colony.

Laniel at the world's press for wanting communiques issued during the conference for the benefit of the talks, he said: "Prime ministers must be able to get together and will have to do so more and more as the years unfold. They must be able to talk privately without an agenda and be able to consult their discussions without communiques."

This is the sacrifice the press must make to assure the security of the world, he asserted.

Stoves Faulty, Hen Enjoys Nap in Oven

HALTWHISTLE, Eng. (AP) —Wives in a community housing project here say the stoves are so faulty that a neighborhood hen snoozes in their ovens. Britain's fuel is burning.

"The ovens get only warm enough to keep the hen comfortable," said a petition from 28 complainants to the rural council. They brought along the uncooperative hen to prove it.

Berlin Citizens Regard Parley As Big Bonanza

BERLIN (AP) — West Berlin acted today like a man who holds a winning ticket in a multi-million-dollar lottery and is afraid somebody will declare it counterfeit.

City officials, hotel men and shopkeepers are keeping their fingers crossed, fervently hoping Moscow will accept the Allied proposal for a Big Four meeting here on Jan. 25.

If that foreign ministers' conference comes off, the isolated West sector of Berlin will wallow in a giant bonanza.

Businessmen are already calculating in the millions of dollars. They expect at least a 50,000 visitors, including upwards of 800 press and radio men.

Shops are taking a gamble now, laying in post-Christmas stocks of tourist bait as cameras, jewelry, toys, souvenirs, and haberdashery.

City hall estimates that a conference of only two days would pour $1 million into the city's economy.

BIG SEASON

GORE BAY, Ont. (CP)—More than 1,100 deer are estimated to have been bagged on Manitoulin island in the latest hunting season, officials said. Returns were more numerous than usual.

City street lights are being turned off too early in the morning with result that factory workers and other early morning risers have to walk to work in the dark.

Mayor Haig was asked to bring the matter to the attention of the public utilities commission.

ROBIN SEEN ON DUNDAS ST.

According to reports, flowers in many city gardens are in bloom or about to bloom due to the spring-like weather most of Ontario has enjoyed this fall. This morning, Ed Donovan at Shackland's Service Station on Dundas Street spotted a robin near a fully a tree across the street. He crossed to investigate. Sure enough, it was a robin.

Old Firehall Site Will Not Be Sold at Present Time

Possibility that the old firehall site on Upper Front Street may be of great value to the city as a site for a future bridge to relieve traffic congestion, will be considered by members of the city p-- lic works committee and by the whole city council.

In the meantime the city will not sell the property owing to the fact that tenders have been called on the old firehall on two different occasions during recent months.

Alderman Bruce Smith broached the matter of the possible use of the old firehall site at a special meeting of council, noting that in view of the greatly increased traffic on North Front street the new bridge across the Moira at this point may serve to relieve traffic congestion.

Tuesday at the final meeting of council for the year, the matter was brought up again and there was considerable discussion regarding whether tender for the purchase of the property should be opened. Tenders had been called, the intention being to open the tenders and sell the property at yesterday's meeting.

One line of thought was that the city engineer should investigate to see whether the old firehall property was suitable as a site for a bridge, the other was that whether or not it was suitable as a bridge site, the idea may not fell in line with the view of the planning committee who would not recommend a bridge at some other point.

NO SOLUTIONS

"It is my personal view," commented Alderman Bruce Keegan, chairman of planning, "that this would not solve our problems."

Alderman B. Reid took the view that the property was of little comparative value and that it would be good business on the part of the city to not sell. He said that in time North Front street would be to Bridge to Murray A. M. Haig for his able guidance of council matters during his two-year term as first magistrate of the city, was paid yesterday by Alderman H. J. Clarke, as council was about to adjourn its final regular meeting of the year.

"On behalf of city council, I want to express thanks to Mayor Haig for his very able guidance during his term as mayor and to express regret that with his retirement we will not have the benefit of that guidance next year," he said.

Alderman Hyde as chairman of finance added his thanks for what he termed "excellent leadership." He referred to Mayor Haig as "one of our most distinguished mayors."

"I am sorry that I am leaving council for a while but I will be back," Alderman Hyde said not to investigate. Sure enough, it was a robin.

Tribute Paid A. McLean Haig For Able Guidance as Mayor

Tribute to Mayor A. M. Haig Monday. "I am not downhearted and am glad that I can walk down Front Street with a clear conscience."

STAFF PAYS TRIBUTE

Clerk-Comptroller Harold D. Bateman, on behalf of the city hall staff, also expressed appreciation to Mayor Haig for his guidance in municipal matters during his term in council and as mayor.

In reply Mayor Haig stated it had been a distinct pleasure to be associated with council members and with officials at city hall. "It has been an experience on which I can look back with great satisfaction," he said.

He expressed his appreciation for the co-operation of council and said that much more can be accomplished through co-operation than by antagonism.

TOOK NO PART.

"It is easy to stand back and criticize," he went on, "but what the city needs is a spirit of cooperation and constructive criticism."

The mayor noted that he had been censured on his action in the recent election campaign, but felt it was his duty to answer some of the statements made during the campaign.

He took exception to a statement in an election pamphlet which said that council, administration of civic affairs at city hall was not democratized by the high taxation and by a $200,000 annual interest debt.

"That statement is not right," the mayor declared. "Our total interest payment for this year was $110,004.40, some of which is self-liquidating through sewer improvements and self sustaining civic organizations, and the interest charge was $68,553.86."

SUPPLIED BY TREASURER.

He noted that the figures were supplied by the city treasurer.

Another campaign statement which the mayor said, reflected on the local industrial commission was the comparison of Trenton's success in obtaining industry with that of Belleville. Trenton had placed six new industries.

The mayor said it was not necessary for him to say why Trenton was able to secure industry. He noted that the town in the west was "all fortunate" in having suitable property which could be made available at little or no cost and in that centre there was a certain individual who had met with reasonable success in locating industries.

HATS BY-LAW BROKEN

Referring to the election banner erected by the Both election campaign committee, Mayor Haig said he had known as had all councillors that the banner would be used for election purposes. And despite the statement at a special meeting of council that Alderman Hyde would be harmed if the banner came down, he declared 'that this was not the issue.

"The issue was that a city bylaw had been broken," he pointed out.

He went on to comment that the 1953 council could bear any investigation. Assurance of the electors' confidence followed by this year's council running for re-election were returned at the head of the polls.

Official Opening New Firehall On Thursday

The official opening of Belleville's new firehall on Dundas street, East, will take place Thursday afternoon at 5.30, it was stated today by Alderman Angus B. Duffy, chairman of the fire committee.

Ontario Fire Marshal, W. J. Scott, together with members of city council, Mayor A. M. Haig, city officials, and chiefs of fire departments in the Belleville area will be on hand for the official ribbon cutting.

The new firehall, the second to be built in Belleville since the war, has been in use for some months. Opening ceremonies are expected to be brief, consisting of the ribbon cutting, followed by a tour of inspection of the new building. The public is cordially invited to attend the opening.

Rev. W. Robinson Talks to Meeting Of Ministers

The November meeting of the Belleville Ministerial Association was held Monday morning with the president, the Rev. Keith Daniel, presiding. The devotional period was led by the Rev. Ray Rowley.

A special feature of the meeting was an address which was given by the Rev. William J. Robinson. Speaking on the subject, "Advent thinking and preaching," the speaker reminded his fellow ministers that the message of Advent is "Repent ye..." and that "all are messengers of the Lord in this world."

The Rev. Keith Daniel expressed the sentiments of the Association to Mr. Robinson for the most interesting and stimulating address.

The singing of three consecutive morning devotional broadcasting periods was stressed. This would make the present one morning devotional period. After some discussion it was noted that the matter be taken up with the personnel of radio station CHBC and the boards of religious broadcasting, the Rev. J. Cantrell.

Mr. R. Smith, chairman of the General Men's Committee of "Your Hospital Building Fund", and Mr. D. Williams, vice chairman, presented the financial need and explained the campaign and way in which all might have a part in helping reach the desired goal.

Some discussion arose as to the custom of candidates for municipal office addressing their church affiliations. It was felt that such a custom was liable to abuse, inasmuch as certain candidates appear to be using the church for their personal ends without thought of their responsibility.

Two Howe Children Saved From Possible Suffocation

Bill and Bernard Howe, infant sons of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Howe, 211 Cherry Street, were saved from possible suffocation Tuesday afternoon by a neighbor and members of the Belleville Fire Department, when a flash fire filled the second storey of the Howe's frame home with smoke.

Mrs. Mabel Whiting, 28, 207 Charles Street, ran into the smoke-filled home and carried three-month-old Bill Howe to safety after being notified of the fire by Ingeborg Fritz, 20, an Austrian immigrant who has been a maid in the Howe home since last July.

Firemen, Fred Ellis, went through a burning bedroom to rescue Bernard from an adjoining sunroom. Bernard was carried down a ladder and oxygen was administered by Lieut. Al Bailey of the Fire Department.

A third son, two-year-old Bobby, was playing on the back verandah and was uninjured.

Mrs. Fritz, of undetermined origin, was confined to front bedroom by the smoke and fire and the blaze within minutes of being extinguished.

Neither boy was in the burning room.

FIRE NOTICED BY MAID

The fire was first noticed by Ingeborg Fritz, who heard Bernard crying and was unable to reach him due to great clouds of smoke. She ran next door to tell Mrs. Whiting of the fire.

Mrs. Whiting ran into the house and carried three-month-old Bill in his bassinet, from a bedroom at head of the stairs. Later, Mrs. Whiting passed off her part in the rescue modestly stating that "I hope someone would do the same thing for my children under the same circumstances."

Fireman Ellis, wearing a respirator, went through the burning, smoke-filled, front bedroom to rescue Bernard from the adjoining sunroom.

Ellis said, "I thought the boy was in the burning bedroom but there was so much smoke I couldn't see a thing. Then I heard him choking and noticed that a doorway led into a room beyond. When I reached the boy's bed I first picked up a big panda bear before I located the boy.

SMASHED WINDOW

After picking up Bernard, Ellis smashed a window in the sunroom and handed him through it to another fireman who carried him to the ground.

Mrs. Whiting took Bill into her home until the boy was moved to the Belleville General Hospital later in the evening for observation.

Mrs. R. Lorimer, 223 Charles Street, took Bernard into her home after he was revived by firemen.

Neighbors took the remaining seven Howe children into their homes for the night.

Mr. and Mrs. Howe had the highest praise for the actions of Mrs. Whiting and the members of the Belleville Fire Department who worked under direction from Chief, Gerald Vance.

Fluoridation of City Water Recommended by Health Bd.

The Belleville health department has strongly recommended fluoridation of city water supplies starting in January as a measure to retard dental decay.

This was made known to city council at the final meeting of council for the year Tuesday afternoon when Alderman Gerald Hyde as council representative on the board of health passed on the recommendation to council members.

The recommendation noted that the beneficial effect of fluoridation of city water supplies was no longer in doubt. If the program was put into effect the board of health would pay the cost of the fluoride for 1954 and the public utilities commission would be asked to bear the expense of any equipment needed.

WANTS TO KNOW COST

"I'd like to know how much this would cost the board of health," asked Alderman R. Temple.

In reply Alderman Hyde said the estimated cost of the fluoride was ten cents per person per year. He went on to say that fluoridation of water supplies had been under the scrutiny of the board of health since last spring and the board had come to the decision that such a program was to the advantage of the city.

"The beneficial effects have been proved beyond a doubt by medical and dental associations," he said. Our Medical Health Officer Dr. A. E. Beale has also recommended it.

"I am no doctor but it seems to me there was a question of certain harmful effects," returned Alderman Hyde.

"It has been proven there is nothing detrimental," replied Alderman Hyde.

RIGHT NOW USING FLOURIDE.

Alderman Don Thomas wanted to know how many water municipalities the size of Belleville had adopted the fluoridation program. The alderman also wanted to know why the public utilities would not be asked to pay the entire shot.

In reply Alderman Hyde noted there were about eight municipalities in Ontario now putting fluoride in water supplies. Brantford had been doing this for six or seven years and the beneficial effects were now beginning to show on young children.

Alderman Hyde stated if council had any authority to tell the utilities what to do. He added that the utilities were expected to provide "suitable" drinking water.

The question of rural residents in outlying districts also using Belleville water was brought up by Alderman Thomas. He did not see why the board of health should provide fluoridated water for these people free of cost. "We would also like to share too," he said.

Alderman Hyde assured that the board of health was unanimous in its request that city water have fluoride added and were highly insistent that the program be put into effect next year.

The matter was referred to the 1954 council.

Wm. O. Bailey Re-Elected Pres. Canadian Legion

William O. Bailey, president of the Branch No. 99 of the Canadian Legion for two years was unanimous choice of the members, when they held their annual meeting at their clubrooms on Coleman Street Tuesday evening. Others elected after a spirited election were 1st vice-president, Montiesha; 2nd vice-president, W. J. Slater, treasurer Chris Legge, Sgt-at-Arms Purdy, Padre, Rev. W. E. Straiu and executive Lt. Col. Harford, Lt. Col. Phillip, Les Digby, Everett Liddle and R. Blair.

The executive will meet later to elect their secretary, Gordon Richardson having most acceptably filled that position last year. The auditors are J. C. McDonald and A. G. Orr of the Bank of Montreal staff.

The secretary and treasurer were remembered by the members with a gift and a vote of thanks for their services rendered. The year and Mr. Leggat and Nicholson, respectively replied to the fine praise. Reports were submitted by the various chairmen and it was found that the branch was in a most healthy financial condition. Mr. Leggat gave a comprehensive report of the financial structure and many questions were asked from the floor but no destructive criticism was offered. Mr. George Ellerby, as service officer, stated a great deal of work had been done with the interviews being held since he assumed office in October. Everett Liddle reported on the Poppy Fund, stating this year the target was set in their history and a nice profit was put away for use in welfare work. L. Moore-Leith reported there were 125 paid up members and each was receiving a bulletin on the work of the Branch, while William Slater reported that four parties during the year, had netted a profit of nearly $50.

Past president Angus Duffy conducted the election of officers and was assisted by Comrade Len Taylor of Tweed, zone commander. Brief addresses were given by many of the members.

A social hour was spent at the conclusion of the meeting.

BUILD RESTRICTOR

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—Rhode Island Hospital doctors have invented a breathing machine with a built-in electronic brain which is believed to come closer to nature's specifications than any other artificial respirator. The apparatus for the first time in medical history makes it possible to provide a fairly normal respiratory pattern for patients who need oxygen to stay alive.

CHAPTER 16.

They toured the southeast part of the land, from Iconium to the smaller cities of Lystra and Derbe. To all the country around about they preached, in farm houses and at the crossroads of small villages, and they never left any place without setting it with converts.

At the gate of Lystra a challenge confronted them — which they met with a miracle.

Through the gate's cool but bustling shadows, the two apostles passed, and beheld a most pathetic wreck of humanity sitting on an old rock against the wall.

He looked helplessly at the rushing crowds. No one gave him a glance. No one would refresh him a drink of water. Yet he could not go after a drink himself because his feet were paralyzed; he had never in all his life been able to move right foot or left, not from his mother's womb. Relatives carried him to his place against the wall in the morning and hugged him home at night. They left him an old skin of water and a handful of figs to munch on, together with some wheaten cakes (food enough to keep him alive).

Not even Paul and Barnabas noticed him at first. They had their own dangerous project foremost in mind; they were in Lystra to preach the word of God, having just escaped being stoned to death in Iconium.

Near to the gate they began at once: "Listen, you men of Lystra. We tell you of Jesus Christ; true God and true Man, this Jesus, whose yoke is easy and whose burden is light; come unto Him all you that labor and are heavy laden and He will give you rest."

The rushing crowds slowed down and gathered around as Paul told them of the miraculous and healing Christ.

"He heals, you say! Can He still heal, now that He has gone, leaving you with the Comforter, the Holy Ghost you tell us of? Can He heal me?" In a croaking voice, the paralyzed man made his piteous, holding out entreating, clawlike hands, his soul yearning in his eyes. "Let me walk! In the name of Christ, let me walk."

Paul knew the first spring of faith when he saw it; the man's face was like a flower at the crucial moment's hesitation, Paul cried in a loud voice:

"Stand upright, on your feet."

And the old man leaped up, and walked.

Down many centuries we can hear the cries of the watching pagans:

"The gods are come down to us in the likeness of men!"

In their native language, they called Barnabas "Jupiter" and Paul, because he was the chief speaker, "Mercury." And they stared at the miracle workers and believed they saw living gods.

It was embarrassing for those two truth-loving apostles of Christ to be mistaken for the gods of Mount Olympus. More embarrassment was to follow.

With all his eloquence, Paul tried to convince the crowd that neither he nor his friend were deities. They were men, and nothing more; a tentmaker from Tarsus and a student from Cyprus; and they came, not preaching about themselves but of the Messiah, whose messengers they were.

But the crowd ignored his protests.

Paul must have been a far handsomer man than the Corinthians were willing to admit when, later on, they spoke of him so scornfully as "a man of little stature." He radiated personal magnificence. These Galatians of Lystra mistook him for a god, a very handsome one indeed; for none less than Hermes, whom they knew as Mercury, the bright first-born of Jupiter and patron of the wrestling and other gymnastic exercises (in which Paul, as we have seen, was expert). To be taken for Hermes was indeed a compliment.

While Paul was trying desperately to dispel this unfortunate impression, two men left the crowd that swayed and milled around the stranger and rushed toward the temple of Jupiter, a handsome shrine with graceful Ionic marble columns, carved pediment, and architrave gleaming in the mellowing rays of the sunset. The high priest there heard the news from the two messengers and gasped with excitement.

Jupiter and his son come to earth! To Lystra! Hermes is healing the paralyzed at the city gate? Why had the god not come immediately to his father's own temple, where he belonged?

The priest of Jupiter was beside himself with excitement and curiosity. He cupped his hands and bellowed for help. Attendants came running from every direction; acolytes and censer carriers and couriers and scullion boys. The whole population of the temple area swarmed to the flailing commands of the high priest. "Bring the oxen from the stables! Twine blossoms from our gardens and garlands for the doors of the oxen and take them after me, as I start for the city gate where Hermes is preaching and healing the unhealable. Drive the flowery oxen; goad them; whip them; whip them on. We must get there before it is too late."

From far across the city square, Paul saw the procession. He had watched the rising fever of the mob, had tried to restore calm and common sense. But now the hysteria was soaring. Ladies swaying, eyes glittering, lips drooling, a frenzy stirring every mind, flaring the blood, raising a storm of emotion that no mere mortal could still.

Paul and Barnabas were appalled. These people were adoring them idolatrously, and coming toward them was a fresh crowd, following the priest of Jupiter and the pair of oxen wreathed in red and white roses, preparing to stand before the missioners and cut the throats of the oxen so that their blood would stain with scarlet the feet of the people.

"Sirs!" bellowed Paul, "why do you do these things?"

He tore his garments before them all, as Caiphas had done falsely at the trial of Jesus; as any faithful Jew must do truly when he is in the presence of blasphemy or idolatry.

Paul and Barnabas both rent their clothes. With tears on their cheeks, they leaped headlong into the crowd, and Paul's voice could be heard above all the uproar.

"We also are mortals, men like unto you, preaching to you that you should be converted from these vain things to the living God, who made the heaven and the earth, and the sea, and all things that are in them. Who in times past suffered all nations to walk in their own ways. Nevertheless He left not Himself without testimony, doing good from heaven, giving rains and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness."

But the fact that they repudiated the sacrifice only increased the general haggermuggery, turning it into raving rage. The crowd that wanted to bow down and worship these two visitors, the priest that wanted to sacrifice to them, and the whole hooting rabble turned into a howling mob of fiends.

At that very moment there entered town, dusty and wraith-like through the gates of the city, certain agents of the Pharisees, emissaries of Jewish opposition come from Pisidian Antioch and Iconium.

They screamed their denunciations, adding fuel to the mob's anger. They insisted that Paul and Barnabas were impostors and blasphemers; they demanded that the missioners be turned over to them.

And now Paul remembered Stephen, and so did Barnabas.

Out through the city gate their enemies dragged them to an execution hillside. The Pharisees made a mad-moon around the pulverizers, as stoners had done before Stephen. One functionary held the stoners' outer garments, as once Paul had held such garments.

The mob, that had wanted to worship these two gods half an hour earlier, wailed now, popeyed and gleeful at the bloody death that would be done. The Christians stood by, helpless.

"I have been stoned once!" This moment Paul would one day recall to the minds of the Corinthians, when he wrote to them all he had suffered for the faith.

The first shower of missiles came flying, sharp-edged rock fragments, and then another and more and more, all aimed at Paul. Somehow they were not stoning Barnabas. Only Paul stood, as he had seen Stephen stand, ready to die as bravely as he had died.

He fell under the hail of rocks. He lay still. They left him for dead. Only mourning Christians stood near, ready to carry away his body for burial.

Then Paul moved. He turned, groaned, and pushed himself up, using his weight on one bloody hand. They helped him to stand. He leaned heavily upon Barnabas, hearing the Christians counsel him to fly to some other safer place under cover of the lowering darkness.

But Paul shook his head. He was not ready to leave Lystra. Before he show converts and enemies alike what an apostle can endure in the sacred cause.

"He rose up and came into the city." Luke tells us crisply.

rT-C-pcct G5p

Christianity had a misioner to be reckoned with. A man who could never be called a coward. He went back to the people who thought they had killed him.

The wisdom of Paul's resolution soon proved.

He left Lystra the next day, proudly, of his own free will, and under his own power. Every soul in the city knew that he had survived the stoning and had shown himself again in the midst of his destroyers. No coal of fire in hand on him.

They had thought him the son of a god named Jupiter. As they lined the streets, thousands strong, silently watching Paul's triumphant departure, they pondered on the Christ God tried to preach to them — the One who is the Son of God.

The afternoon shadows were growing out of noon's heat as Barnabas and Paul started to walk the high road that led from Lystra to the town of Derbe.

The two missioners of Christ preached with success in that small, half-Greek community on the southeastern border of the province of Galatia. The calm after such violences as they had lived through gave them time to reflect, while Paul's hideous wounds healed.

What was it God wished them to do? To go on, being hustled out of danger in town after town, stalking away once they had inspired the oral gospel and doce a few baptisms? Neither Paul nor Barnabas was convinced, by any loss of personal dignity. They had no sense of pride in the way of their missionary task; but, with the stoning of Paul still fresh in their minds, they felt the need of guidance.

Nothing would have pleased them more than to leave Derbe and follow a route that led far away from the enemies who hated them so fervently.

But the guidance given to Paul and Barnabas by the Holy Ghost was altogether of a different sort. They were to retrace their steps, returning over the same route by which they had come through malignant persecutions.

They must go back to Lystra, to Iconium, to Pisidian Antioch, where they had shaken the dust from their feet!

The Holy Ghost gave them specific and unmistakable directions. They must not desert the Galatian churches they had started. The people of those towns had first heard Paul and Barnabas with delight, then seen them worsted by the Pharisaical authorities, driven out, forbidden to return. Now Paul and Barnabas must return, armed with faith, to strengthen and encourage the converts the first persecution had won.

For a little longer these two servants of God remained in Derbe, preaching the Gospel. Elsewhere, in the cities of their persecution, the authorities were writing them off as nuisances to be forgotten.

When a few weeks later they returned to Lystra, the town of the stoning, the authorities paid no heed to them. The accusing Jews from other towns who had denounced them were gone. Having blown the utmost in innocent courage, by returning to face their foes, Paul and Barnabas were to be molested no further. Often when good Christians give their all, angels hover near to guard them from harm.

The first journey was over, as Paul and Barnabas gratefully reached the haven of Syrian Antioch. There was no question in the mind of Barnabas that Paul was his definite superior. Paul's presence, his executive abilities, his converting eloquence all filled Barnabas with admiration. He could not wait to go before the Church council in Jerusalem and tell them of this hero of the faith. Plainly Paul was the one to carry the message to the Gentiles.

Mercifully, neither Paul nor Barnabas could foresee what awaited them in Jerusalem.

Wales H-S Assoc. Hears Talk on Eskimos

The December meeting of the ... Association of Wales Home and ... School Association was held on ... Thursday evening last, with the ... president, Mrs. Marion Sproule, ... presiding.

Mrs. Reddick read the Scripture lesson.

The banner was won by Mrs. Armstrong's room, her pupils having the largest attendance of parents present.

PRESENTATIONS MADE

After the business period, Mr. Jack Sproule, chairman of the Board, made presentations to Sandra Gallagher, Mary and Barry Simpson, pupils of Prince of Wales School, who competed at the Public Speaking contest.

A dialogue, "Fortune is a Cowboy," was presented by Laura Bly, and Margaret Durie of Grade 8.

Mr. Bryson Leslie introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Bruce Crook, whose topic was the "Arctic and The Eskimos." The purpose of the expedition was to try and determine the difference in reaction of the Eskimos to ourselves, pertaining to colds, whether their skin was the same as ours, and their blood vessels.

He said their adaptation to the cold was purely common sense in their dress and igloos. A good share of his work was done by the territory of Hudson Bay, air service being the sole means of ingress and egress.

The Baffin Landers were entirely different in their dialect. There are from eight to ten thousands living along the northern shores of Canada, who have every right as Canadians, except voting. The sole education of the Eskimo boy is to hunt and of the girls, the preparation of the products from the hunt. The fresh liver of a seal is a real delicacy among the natives.

The Eskimo family is very large although many children die before they reach the adult age. They are honest people and live in poverty. An Eskimo will wait at an airhole in the ice from 24 to 36 hours to harpoon a seal, so Crook also showed films taken on his expedition.

Mr. Rodgers thanked Dr. Crook on behalf of the Association.

Refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

Shannonville H-S Bazaar, Euchre Successful Ventures

The Shannonville Home and School annual bazaar was held recently at the Shannonville Orange Hall.

There were fancy work tables consisting of aprons and dollies, dresser and vanity sets, lunch cloths; guest towels, many nice novelties, baby sets, bibs, and pot holders.

The home bake table had a bountiful supply of home made buns, pies, cakes, cookies, candies and many good things.

The fish pond surrounded with children, had balloons, horns, cars and boats.

Refreshments were served. The tables were beautifully decorated. Mrs. E. Juby and Mrs. L. Marsele poured tea.

Mrs William Conley and her helpers served the guests many nice things to eat.

Tickets were sold on a large hamper of groceries; the lucky ticket was drawn by Miss Carolyn Howard and the lucky lady was Mrs. M. Little of Shannonville.

A dance was held in the evening with music supplied by the Victor Boys.

The Snack Bar convened by Mrs. W. Brant and Mrs. K. Fuller sold hot dogs, and soft drinks.

The president and vice-president wish to thank one and all of the workers for their help as it was a great boom towards helping the children.

The last euchre of the season was held on Friday. Prize winners were: ladies, Mrs. Marjorie Smith, Mrs. William Conley; consolation, Mrs. Roy Sager; men, William Conley, Mr. Lucas; consolation, Mr. F. Rogers.

These euchres were for financial assistance for the children's benefits and have proved most successful.

Christ Church C. C. Elects 1954 Officers

About 30 members of Christ Church Contact Club were present at Monday evening's meeting to take part in the election of officers for the coming year. Archdeacon n Vecerdale of Archdeacon Creeggan presented the following slate of officers which were elected by acclamation. Florence Lennox will be president for her second term; vice-president, Frances Rogers; treasurer, Mary Fletcher; recording secretary, Thelma Saunders; corresponding secretary, Marion Huson; reporter, Lois Beeby; telphone convener, Margaret McInnis; hostess convener, Dorothy Butler; sunshine fund, Margaret Wiggins; layette convener, Catharine Nostel; nursery, Marg Bunnett; entertainment, Jean Adams; sewing machine convener, Edna Nix.

Archdeacon Creeggan wished the new executive success in their new offices and thanked the club for their parish work, particularly in the nursery and at the bazaar. He reminded the girls that there is always work for an energetic group and urged them to keep up the enthusiasm for which they are noted.

The business session concluded, the members worked on Christmas tree decorations and enjoyed two recitations by Marina Bongard, "Not Fair," and "O Little Town of Long Ago." Articles made by the members were for sale and were well patronized.

Hostesses for the evening were Margaret Shappee, Donna Lee Hebden and Olive Fargey.

BCVS H-S Assoc. Appoints Officers

The regular, December meeting of the B.C.V.S. Home and School Association was held in the school auditorium on Monday evening, December 7th, under the direction of the president, Mrs. Lennox Smith.

A short time was devoted to necessary business. It was decided that the B.C.V.S. Home and School Association should join with the six other H. and S. groups in the city, to sponsor one of the teams in the Minor Hockey Association. The expenses for each will approximate $100. Authority was given to subscribe $15 as this association's share.

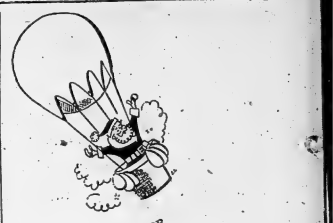
ENTERTAINMENT

The entertainment for the evening was in two parts.

The first part consisted of a group of choral offerings presented by Christ Church choir, Mr. Withers, the church organist, and choir director, accompanied, while Mr. Gender acted as master of ceremonies.

The selections: "Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring," by Johann Sebastian Bach; "Evening and Morning," by Herbert Oakley, and "Te Deum Ladamus," by Charles Stanford, were presented by the whole choir. The boys' section alone sang, "Popping Corn," the number with which they won in their class at the Eastern Ontario Musical Festival held in Kingston three years ago. The men's section alone, gave "Jolly Roger," and "The Old Woman Song."

Mr. P. Allcorn in moving a vote of thanks, remarked on the thoroughness of their training and congratulated them on the excellence of their performance.



ONE-ACT PLAY

The second part of the program consisted of a one-act play, "The Happy Journey," presented by members of the drama club of B.C.V.S., under the direction of Mr. Sloan.

Working without props of any kind, the actors gave a most realistic and well depicted portrayal of an auto trip from Elizabeth, N.J., to Camden, N.J., some thirty years ago.

The cast was as follows: Ma Kirby, Paula Freeman; Elmer Kirby, Carl Reid; Carolyn, Shirley La Rue; Beulah, Roberta Allen; Arthur, Jack MacDonald; Stage manager, Bob Ireland.

Closing the regular meeting with singing of "The Queen," adjournment was made to the school cafeteria for coffee.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"WHY DOES HE TELL HER HE DON'T GOOD ENOUGH FOR HER"?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Last night a young man with whom I have been going for about six months told me that while he liked me very much, he felt he wasn't good enough for me and so he should step aside to give me the opportunity to find someone more suited to me. He is 23 and I am 21.

I told him that I didn't want to go out with anybody but him because I love him, too, but he kept insisting that I would be better off without him.

How can I make him understand that he is the husband I want, and that I am not too good for him?

Sally R.

Dear Sally: As I see it, your young man probably did either of two reasons in mind in saying what he did to you.

For one, there may be things in his life that he hasn't told you about, and which really would make him a poor choice of husband for you. The other reason that he has lost interest in you as a possible wife but doesn't want to hurt you by coming right out and saying so. Many a chap who finds himself in this latter position has used the "not good enough for you" line to spare the girl's feelings by trying to make it appear that it is not she, is the inferior one.

Without knowing anything whatever about this particular young man, I would venture to guess which of these possible reasons accounts for what he has said. But if I were you, I would try to be a little sophisticated about this, and let him believe you accept his explanation and agree with it.

I strongly suspect you are going to lose him anyhow, and it would be better to do it as gracefully as possible.

HER DRINKING HUSBAND HUMILIATES HER

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been married five years to a man who is a good husband and father to our two small children but who distresses me greatly every week or so by stopping at a bar on his way home and coming in drunk. This is bad enough when the children and I are alone, but if there happens to be friends in the house at the time, it is very humiliating.

Do you know my way to solve such a problem?

Mrs. W. T.

Dear Mrs. W.T.: Yours is the tragic situation in which every wife of a man who is a problem drinker finds herself. Unless something can be done about this right now, it is likely to have a very bad emotional effect upon your children as they grow older.

What you need is advice from someone who has had experience with drinking problems and who would therefore be in the best position to make practical suggestions on how you should handle your husband. If you will write to the Alcoholic Foundation at 415 Lexington Avenue, New York 17, N.Y., asking for the name of someone connected with the local Alcoholics Anonymous group in your vicinity, I am sure you will get a prompt answer that will lead you to a helpful adviser.

Special-Purpose Menu

By Mary Moore

When Thursday rolls round, and you know you are going to lay in the week's groceries on Friday, and the odds and ends in the refrigerator are not one bit interesting—It's time to use your ingenuity, and save the last few cents left from the current week's expenses, by combining leftovers with what is on hand.

Besides I have a winding gadget that grates cheese down to the last little scrap, and had two hard chunks of cheese to use up before I'd allow myself to buy any more.

With no recipe to follow, and just this and that to work with this is what resulted:

Tuna Casserole
Mashed Squash
Shredded Savoy Salad
Peanoat Cookies
Fruited Jelly Coffee

DIRECTIONS

TUNA CASSEROLE (For 6)

It is very easy to cut this to half to serve 3.

One 1-lb. tin tuna or tuna flakes—the Atlantic tuna caught in north Pacific waters is the firmest and, I might add, the most succulent. Or you may use 2 7-oz. tins of either, 1 1-3 cups broken spaghetti or elbow macaroni, 2 lightly packed cups grated any solid kind of hard bits of cheese, 4 tablespoons flour, 4 tablespoons butter, margarine, chicken or turkey fat, 2 cups whole milk, 1-2 teaspoon each curry powder and French mustard, fine bread crumbs and some poppy seeds if on hand.

Put the spaghetti on to cook in water to cover and boil 12 minutes. Or cook elbow macaroni 2 cups in that time. Drain it. Meanwhile make the white sauce by melting the fat, stirring in the flour, then the milk until thick. Add the cheese, drained spaghetti, tuna broken up a bit, curry and mustard. Now taste it. If you want to add some salt and pepper do it now. Turn it into a casserole, and sprinkle fine dry crumbs over top, and then about 2 tablespoon poppy seeds. (These latter are dispensable of course.) Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 1 hour. This has a lovely rich brown top and the flavor combination is mouth-watering.

I baked three small pepper squashes after washing them. When they were tender, I cut them open, scooped out seed section, scooped out yellow meat and mashed it and added top milk —about 1-2 cup—and butter and salt and pepper and a slight sprinkling of nutmeg.

With my new knife with 4 5-year guarantee I shredded Savoy cabbage thread-thin, added 1-4 chopped dill pickle, 1-2 cup parsley, 1 sliced tomato, 1-4 green pepper and mayonnaise to moisten.

FRUITED JELLY

In the refrigerator were left over peach and pineapple juice that measured 1-2 cups. I soaked 4 teaspoons gelatin in 1-2 cup cold water 5 minutes, then dissolved it by stirring it over hot water, then added it to the fruit juices. I also added 1-2 cup seeded imported grapes, 1 sliced banana and 1 sectioned orange and a few slices of maraschino cherries, and pushed it in the refrigerator to jelly.

PEANOAT COOKIES

I hope I don't get slugged for that name for cookies, but I thought of it and you will all know what it describes so. . . . I'm including it here for Mrs. W. B., whom I would like to thank for Queen Elizabeth and Neapolitan cakes while I am at it.

One-half cup each soft shortening (part butter), peanut butter, white sugar, brown sugar, 1 egg, 1 1-2 teaspoons grated lemon rind (optional), 1 1-2 tablespoons molasses or honey or corn syrup, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 7-8 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1-2 teaspoon each salt and soda, 1 1-2 cups rolled oats. Mix and cream together first 8 ingredients. Sift the sifted flour with salt and soda and stir in, then stir in the oats and mix very well with hands. Press into long smooth roll 2 1-2 inches in diameter, wrap and chill until hard. With sharp knife slice 1-8-inch thick and bake on ungreased cookie sheet 8 to 10 minutes at 400 deg. Fahr.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

AN "AT HOME" IN HONOR OF SON

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. We have recently moved into our new house, and have been planning to have a Housewarming party. However, our plans will not be followed through, as our only son (20 years old) is to report for Aviation Cadet Training in Texas very soon. He has been away at college for the past two years, had just started his third year when he received his assignment, has just returned home, and hasn't had a chance to see our families, let alone relatives and friends. So instead of giving a Housewarming, we thought it might be a good idea to have Open House on the Sunday before he leaves, and this would give all a chance to see him. Do you approve of this Open House plan?

2. Should I send written invitations? If so, should I specify the reason for the Open House?

3. Would you approve of my writing "from 5 o'clock on"? Or should a time limit be specified in the invitations? Also, how is the food served? And when is it served?

Mother

2. Since your time will undoubtedly be limited, and you'll want to know all the boys many can come, it is entirely proper for you to give as many as possible of your invitations verbally or by telephone. Then write for perhaps a telegraph for your relatives and friends you can't reach by telephone. And yes, no matter how you article your invitations, please give the reason for your Open House party. Your Bill is to be home for a few days before he leaves for Aviation Cadet Training in Texas—and he will give all a chance to greet him and wish him well!"

3. The time you specify and the menu you plan to serve depend on what kind of party you have in mind. The hour or hours named give your guests the cue as to what kind of party to expect. Most often the hours for an Open House are late-afternoon hours . . . the most unusual 4-to-7, or 3-to-6, or perhaps 4-to-6. Then guests know that a they will probably expect more or if you invite "from 5 o'clock on" refreshments will be served. But tea-menu (and or cocktail-party teas of a buffet supper.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

AFFABILITY NECESSARY TO CHARM

Why do women strive and work and spend money for the sake of beauty? Self-respect is one answer. There is no virtue in plainness or dowdiness. For the sake of one's family as well as oneself a woman should do everything possible to create a good appearance. Then there is that ever-present companion, the lady in the looking glass, who steps up on if hair is unkempt, if the complexion shows neglect. Keeping on good terms with the mirrored reflection becomes a morale.

Yet there are many good looking girls who just don't make the grade. Some have the unhappy faculty of making themselves uncompanionable. They either have a chip on the shoulder, or they rub everybody's fur the wrong way. They make sharp, sarcastic remarks or sit around looking bored to tears. Or what ayail then the costly frocks, the chick hairdo, the fancy hat, the carefully applied makeup? You know the answer.

If life teaches us anything it is the value of being able to get along happily with our fellow creatures. Not only that, but love and friendship, which everyone needs, can only come to those of us who are sweet and good-natured and deserve affection.

Affability means greater success in one's job as well as social affairs. Affability keeps the home weather sunny. Find a girl who is popular with both girls and boys, with children and old people and you will find one who is always agreeable, who avoids arguments, who is friendly and responsive.

Her pose may be a bit too short or a bit too long, but nobody will ever notice it. Maybe her clothes aren't the latest, sartorially speaking. But she is a good egg, she is jolly and thoughtful and she is fun to be with because she is always amiable. She has understanding. She is tolerant. She never has to sit at home and grieve because she hasn't any dates. The guys are happy to drag her places!

IT'S GETTING COLD OUTSIDE No doubt about it. Moths know that too. That is why they love warm closets holding your summer things. It is not worth the chance. Telephone YOUR DRY CLEANER TODAY.

"Competition to be increasingly keen in coming months"

JAMES STEWART, C.B.E., PRESIDENT, addressing the 87th Annual Meeting of The Canadian Bank of Commerce, said in part:

Despite prevailing tensions, brought about by international uncertainties, and by a shift from a sellers' to a buyers' market in almost all business, Canada has been able during the year either to maintain or to increase production in the main fields of commercial and industrial activity. This undoubtedly reflects the underlying strengths in the economy that have been manifest since war's end. Now many evidences of a more competitive market are becoming apparent, and signs are not wanting to indicate a continuance, if not an intensification, of this condition in the immediate future with all that this implies in the matter of profit margins.

Inflation—domestic and international —has served, among other things, to hide or distort cost factors, and pricing in many instances has been unduly influenced by the anticipation of a continuing upward inflationary spiral. For this time has gone, and for the foreseeable future, the inflationary pressures have been contained, and costs, and prices, will play their proper role in the market-place.

An over-all view of the domestic scene reveals many signs of strength. Most significant of all statistical data relates to the number of people gainfully employed in the country. As we turned into 1953 the number was estimated at 5,210,000. Later estimates show an increase of some 3.6 per cent or approximately 188,000 — a favourable increase during the year.

Another sign of strength is to be found in the continuing growth of consumer demand. One conclusion that is becoming evident is that we are moving toward a higher domestic consumption pattern — a desirable objective provided that demand is not based on an excessive use of consumer credit. Under an emerging competition, which undoubtedly will highlight the sovereignty of the consumer, pricing becomes the most important task in maintaining demand, and consequently employment.

A third factor that has contributed to the present high level of activity is capital investment. For some years now we have had an annually increasing sum of money spent for the expansion and maintenance of plant and equipment, and decisions to direct money into these channels have played an important role both in increasing the opportunities for employment and in increasing productive capacity. There are of course limits to the degree of capital expansion practicable in an economy such as ours, first in terms of the size of our markets, and second in terms of the availability of skilled labour. In the past we have had periods of capital formation followed by periods of consolidation. It may be in the coming year that some reduction in capital spending will be seen although the over-all amount is likely to continue at a high rate.

The post-war expansion of plant capacity and the creation of new industrial and commercial enterprise has been accompanied by some changes in capital structures. At the outbreak of war in 1939 the over-all relationship of equity to debt in industrial and commercial enterprise was about two to one. The recent general trend does suggest that at times of high taxes and low interest rates such as we have been experiencing over the past few years, business is seriously tempted by the apparent advantage of obtaining needed working capital by way of debt rather than by obtaining equity money.

The advantages of tax savings on fixed charges look attractive but such advantages can be temporary and can, when any serious slackening in production emerges, become a disadvantage if not a burden. I think it would be safe to say that in some industries the disadvantages are now showing up and the warning signals should be heeded by those who contemplate financing in the future.

So far as our trade activities are concerned, it is difficult to abruptly alter consumption or export patterns. It is possible that our position can be weakened through price differentials, particularly as increasing competition is becoming more noticeable in foreign markets, and this aspect must be watched. One distressing sign of possible price condition has been noted in reports from the United States that a two-pricing system may be adopted — a high domestic price and a low export price — in order to move surplus farm products accumulated under parity programmes. Consequences of such a policy cannot be fully appraised at this time but a two-price system, regardless of how it is explained, raises the issue of dumping — a bone of contention in trade and tariff discussion.

The shortage of dollars continues to plague many potential customers of Canadian goods and services. This in part explains the many restrictions on imports and on exchange that confront exporters on this continent. More serious for Canadian producers of exportable commodities is the fact that countries functioning under restrictive programmes are buyers' not sellers' markets, and price is an important consideration.

One way to meet trade competition is through the most effective use of machinery and skills and quality. We cannot successfully foist onto foreign markets high-cost, high-wage products under competitive conditions.

A somewhat unusual development in international trade emerged this fall with the announcement that certain surplus products in the United States would be sold for sterling and/or francs. It is reported that this disposal programme calls for shipment of manufactured goods through channels that will not disrupt trade, and dumping is also barred. But questions of interpretation loom large, particularly the definition of dumping, and the acceptance of another country's currency in trade raises problems both for the importer and the exporter. Such practices, even motivated by the friendliest of intentions, place competitor countries in an invidious position with regard not only to their regular exports but also to their surplus commodities. It would be hoped that the Canadian government would not lightly follow suit in such a programme.

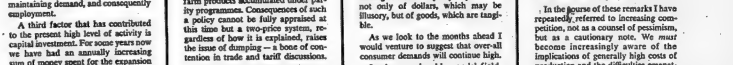
The prolonged period of rising prices associated with full employment and steadily increasing real purchasing power has, unfortunately, created the impression that the three factors are one and indivisible and that the reversal of the trend of one necessarily implies a similar movement of the others. A moderate decline in prices need not be viewed in this light. We have in the past had periods of prosperity in an era of stable or slightly declining prices, and when a cheapening of commodity prices follows a high rate of capital investment and a marked rise in productivity it may rightly be regarded as heralding an era, not of restricted employment, but of continuing or increased prosperity in terms not only of dollars, which may be illusory, but of goods, which are tangible.

As we look to the months ahead I would venture to suggest that over-all consumer demands will continue high.

In the non-durable goods' field, demand is buoyant and retail sales indicate a relatively stable outlook. Demand in this area is difficult to assess because attitudes and fancies are subject to abrupt changes, but there is nothing in the present situation to warrant the belief that any noticeable falling off in demand is ahead of us though there well may be a levelling off of the peaks recorded in past months.

In the durable goods' field there are signs of some slackening in demand and as a consequence inventory positions in some lines may require adjustment in the coming months. However, adjustment from extraordinarily high peaks is far different from a drying-up of demand, and bearing in mind replacements and new family formation the demand should remain firm if prices are adjusted accordingly.

In both the durable and non-durable consumer goods' fields increasing competition for the consumer's dollar means among other things that price will play an increasingly important role in moving goods from the producer to the ultimate consumer. This is a problem that will have to be attacked by every one in business.



Capital spending, as I already have remarked, may be off somewhat from this year's peak but is likely to continue at a relatively high level.

This year farm income declined from the very high levels of 1951 and 1952, and having regard for world agricultural prices and the generally abundant domestic agricultural picture there is little ground for anticipating a return to the recently established peak. However, the level of farm income this year is relatively high and should continue so for the crop year ahead.

We must be prepared for uneven activity both regionally and in the industrial operations that make up the economy. If my experience in the business climate for the months to come is correct then business for the first time in some years will acquire a fuller appreciation of the relationship of costs to selling prices. This relationship has been obscured in the immediate past by reason of rising dollar volume which has tended to give an unrealistic view of profits.

In the course of these remarks I have repeatedly referred to increasing competition, not as a counsel of pessimism, but as a cautionary note. We must become increasingly aware of the implications of generally high costs of production and the difficulties stemming from them in competitive markets both at home and abroad.

In the course of these remarks I have repeatedly referred to increasing competition, not as a counsel of pessimism, but as a cautionary note. We must become increasingly aware of the implications of generally high costs of production and the difficulties stemming from them in competitive markets both at home and abroad.

NEIL J. McKINNON, GENERAL MANAGER, after reviewing the balance sheet, highlights of which are summarized below, said in part:

The 87th Annual Statement of the Bank shows total assets to be $1,911,815,744 and records a growth during the period of approximately $91,000,000.

The past year has seen business activity, with the exception of certain areas, at record levels. It has been marked by increasingly competitive conditions and this has been attended by some slowing down in the turnover of inventories as well as in the payment of trade accounts. These developments are associated normally with a heightening of a competitive environment and they do not give reason for concern although, of course, good business management must always be alert to corrections which become necessary from time to time.

A year ago your attention was drawn to the rapid rise in consumer credit taking place at that time. The aggregate volume has shown a continued increase this year but in recent months at a noticeably lessening rate. It may be that the sharply increasing trend formerly observed is now moving to a plateau and while such a development would, of course, have an effect on retail sales, it is perhaps a rather healthful condition under present circumstances as it suggests an easier relation of this type of credit to disposable incomes.

Two important measures of legislation have been announced by the Government which will be brought before Parliament during the current session. One of these will be legislation under which it is proposed that the banks be placed in a similar position to the insurance, loan and trust companies and other institutions as lenders under a plan for long-term mortgage loans for residential construction, to be insured by the Federal Government. The terms of this legislation when available will be studied with care and consideration for the interests of the country as well as for good banking principles both of which in the final analysis are inseparable.

The decennial revision of "An Act respecting Banks and Banking" known familiarly as The Bank Act will also be undertaken by Parliament. This Act of Parliament is the source of charters for the banks and its review affords an opportunity to examine the functions, performance and scope of operations of the banks in relation to change and developments in the Canadian economy and financial structure during the past ten years and to amend or alter the terms of the Act in keeping with the continued adaptation of banking practice in the best interests of the nation as a whole. The review is accordingly welcomed by the banking system as an aid to maintaining at a high level its facilities for service in the national interest.

No Commodity Is Specified In Regulations

OTTAWA (CP)—Revenue Minister McCann said Tuesday in the Commons the government's new anti-dumping regulations can be applied to any industry, not only textiles.

Replying to J. M. Macdonnell (PC — Toronto Greenwood), the minister said no commodity is specified in the new regulations. Instructions had gone out to customs officials concerning the textile industry because the plight of that industry had been to the fore in recent weeks.

Any Canadian industry could ask that the regulations be applied against foreign competitors if it were experiencing unfair competition.

Dr. McCann informed M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, that the government determined what was unfair competition through reports by investigators in the country of export.

He also informed Opposition Leader Drew that it would be impossible to make an appraisal of what effect the new regulations, announced Monday night, would have on the Canadian textile industry. This could only be done after a close survey.

Howard Green New Chairman Of PC Caucus

OTTAWA (CP)—Howard Green, 58-year-old member of Parliament for Vancouver Quadra, has been appointed chairman of the caucus committee of the Progressive Conservative group in the Commons.

The caucus committee is composed of the chairmen of committees set up by the opposition to study government activities. It constitutes a "shadow cabinet," which might be named to office if Opposition Leader Drew was asked to form a government.

Mr. Green succeeds Gordon Graydon, member for Peel who died last September.

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

NEW CAB COMFORT

These all-new cabs offer greater comfort, vision and convenience than ever before . . . plus a new high in appearance. They have such features as one piece "Panoramic" windshield, redesigned instrument panels with soft light gauges, and beautiful two tone interiors. In addition, as optional equipment there are: Cab Rear Corner Windows and Shade-Lite Glass. These and many more features put GMC cabs far ahead in '54.

Yes, the new GMC is ready to go—ready to bring you new heights in pulling power, carrying power, and staying power. It's handsomer too with its massive redesigned front end, new headlight spacing and driver-planned cabs.

But this year the GMC story is truly a power story. In over 50 models you can choose from the widest range of engines, transmissions and axles on the market. From this brilliant range of power units you can get the exact combination to haul your specific loads with the highest efficiency.

And though new efficient power is a big feature it is just one of the many which makes GMC outstanding. There's over 70 new features in all—and every last one is designed to give higher performance, greater profit, greater comfort and convenience. Nothing has been overlooked in the forward march to bring you a truck that's filled with power, that's built to take the heaviest loads over the roughest going and come back for more. Ask your dealer to explain the brilliant, new advances that can be yours in 1954. You'll see immediately how they'll mean great new benefits to you in your business. Then choose the one model in 50 that's exactly right for your requirements and be ready to go for more profits in any trucking job.

NEW HYDRA-MATIC TRANSMISSION

Here's the feature you've been waiting for. The 9300 and 9400 series now have a new Hydra-Matic transmission which eliminates clutch and gear shifting. It also selects the right gear for any load and any condition.

NEW GRAIN-TIGHT PICK-UP BODIES

Now you can carry sand or grain loose in the pick-up box with no leakage. And the boxes are deeper this year, giving a lower loading height. Even the tail-gate is stronger with new safety catch that eliminates rattles.

NEW DEPENDABLE ENGINE POWER

You get a wide choice of GMC engines. And all are of the valve-in-head design which has won fame over the years. The Thriftmaster and Loadmaster engines have been increased from 108 to 112 horsepower.

NEW RIDE CONTROL SEAT COMFORT

With this amazing optional feature, the driver floats over bumps with no harsh bouncing. And for extra comfort, the seat is fully adjustable so the driver can select the best driving position.

Father of Kidnapped Girl Appeals to Abductor to Let Police Know Her Whereabouts

TORONTO (CP)—A distraught father has appealed to farmers in southern Ontario to help find his kidnapped daughter before the snow flies.

As hope waned that 17-year-old Marion McDowell still was alive, and a search continued for her body, Ross McDowell said in a public appeal Tuesday night the girl might be anywhere in southern Ontario.

"I ask you all to examine closely every corner of your farms where my daughter could possibly be. This is especially urgent because snowstorms could soon make searching impossible."

The girl disappeared Sunday night James Wilson, 19, with whom she had been sitting in a parked automobile on a lonely lovers' lane in suburban Scarboro township, told police he saw her stuffed unconscious into the trunk of another car by a masked gunman who slugged the young couple with a pistol butt.

Since then, police have questioned more than 200 persons, many of them close friends of the fun-loving blonde, and cleared them of any connection with the disappearance.

They said they are looking for one man whom they want to question. They said they know his name and that it is only a matter of time until they find him.

High school students, scouts and about 25 adults helped police search fields and wooded gullies in Scarboro for the comely typist Tuesday. The searchers even combed the area below Scarboro Bluffs on the Lake Ontario shore a few miles east of Toronto on the chance her abductor might have thrown her body from the cliffs.

PARENTS' APPEAL

The girl's parents, broken hearted and dismayed, appealed through a letter in the newspapers to the abductor to tell them their daughter's whereabouts.

And the father addressed a later appeal to the man believed to have made off with the girl whose chief enthusiasms were motorcycles and crooner records. He said:

"I now ask only that you send a note to the police or to me telling us where we can find Marion. If you do, I solemnly promise that, if you are captured, I will appeal for all the mercy the law can grant you."

Bitter Fog Ends London 'Summer'

LONDON (AP)—A bitter yellow fog gripped London and much of England today, ending the "Indian summer" of December.

There were floods and howling winds in southern France, fog and cold in Germany, but unseasonably warm and sunny conditions in other places.

Londoners reached for their "smog masks" and lights were switched on in offices and shops as day turned into night.

North Germany coughed and shivered in fog and icy weather. More than 50 ships were tied up in the Elbe estuary and the Kiel canal. The temperature fell below freezing in Munich and Berlin.

Fire Destroys RCAF Building

OTTAWA (CP)—A building housing the sergeants' mess and medical inspection rooms at Ottawa's Uplands airport was destroyed by fire early today.

There was no estimate of damages.

RCAF and Ottawa firemen fought the blaze for more than an hour, but were unable to bring it under control in time to save the one-storey building. No planes or hangars were endangered and no one was injured.

Queen and Duke Nearing First Pacific Isles

ABOARD S. S. GOTHIC (CP)—This royal liner neared the Marquesas islands today as the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh looked for their first sight of land since leaving Panama eight days ago on the first sea stage of their Commonwealth tour.

The Marquesas are the easternmost group of the South Pacific archipelago. For the rest of the voyage to the Fijis the Gothic should come within sight of tropical coral atolls frequently.

Today was another easy-going day for the royal couple, but Thursday they get another taste of formality when a New Zealand cruiser, the Black Prince, takes over escort duties from the British cruiser Sheffield.

The Royal Marine band which is travelling with them is busy rehearsing for the forthcoming stops. It ran through the Fijian song "Fili Lei" Monday and the Tongan national anthem as well as "Advance Australia Fair" and "God Defend New Zealand."

The Gothic is due in Fiji Dec. 17.

Merchants Learn Great Importance Of Paper Advts.

By BILL HARCOURT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—New York stores knew all along that it pays to advertise in newspapers. But it took a newspaper strike to show how much it pays by showing how much it costs.

The 11-day strike that ended Tuesday night stopped publication of six major New York dailies. Radically disrupted the reading and advertising habits of millions and caused retail sales to drop at the time they should have soared.

One merchant said: "Customers want to be led, and without newspaper ads we just can't lead them. They aren't getting above the street floor."

How much the stores lost through lack of sales is not yet known. Figures released Monday showed department store sales down at least five per cent during the first week of the strike.

Four Rescued

TORONTO (CP) — Four young children were rescued Tuesday night after fire broke out in their home while their parents were at the movies.

They are Ellen Buckley, 7; Raymond, 5; Freddie, 3; and Susan, 18 months. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Leram F. Buckley.

A baby-sitting uncle, Charles E. Buckley, 25, groped his way through smoke to a second-floor bedroom and carried two of the children to safety before collapsing form the effects of the smoke and fumes. Firemen saved the other two.

MAKES OWN PAPER

KARACHI (CP)—The first supplies of paper from the new Karachi pulp paper mill have come on the market in east Pakistan. More paper making machines are being installed with a view to producing newsprint, in addition to ordinary paper.

BLAST KILLS TWO

PROGRESO, Mex. (AP) — The captain of the coastal motor ship Cratic and one crew member were killed Sunday when an explosion sank the vessel off the Yucatan coast. Reports to officials here said several other crew members may have been killed.

FLIGHT CURES COUGH

SALZBURG, Austria (Reuters)—A six-year-old Austrian girl was cured of whooping cough after a mercy flight in a U.S. army plane here last week, it was reported today. Ava Maria Marki's doctor had prescribed a plane flight at an altitude of about 5,000 feet.

Water-Wheel Modern Tribute To Placer Miners

CRANBROOK, B.C. (CP)—A huge water-wheel, 15 miles north of here, is man's modern tribute to the old placer miners who once crowded Perry creek.

Today only Walter Dooley and a few others live in the area where men once dragged the creek for gold. A cemetery of unmarked graves is a reminder of what used to be Old Town.

Placer miners went to Old Town and the fabulous creek long before the Klondike was ever news. Later, they drifted from Perry creek and Fort Steele up to the Gold was discovered around Fort Steele in 1865. The prospectors made their way along Perry creek in 1867 as they worked the tributaries of the Kootenay river. Gold taken from Perry creek was almost pure. It must have been dragged for hundreds of miles by the creekwaters, for the mother lode was never found.

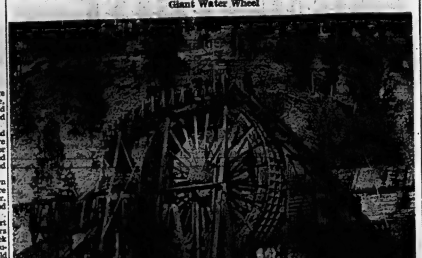
Today, on occasion, a man who likes the life will still attempt to take a little gold from the creek. But, as Dooley says, "Gold once taken is gone; it doesn't grow again."

BUILT IN 1933



The big wheel, built by a syndicate in 1933 from 11,000 board feet of lumber from the nearby hills, was meant to virtually dredge out what the old-timers missed.

It is so big it looks like a ferris wheel. When built, it was considered the largest overshot wheel in North America. It is 32 feet in diameter, has a seven-foot face width and 72 bulli-in buckets.

The wheel was fed by a flume into which Perry creek was diverted 1,840 feet upstream. The wheel delivered 85 horsepower to two modern pumps used to drain seepage water from underground mine 100 feet deep. The mine tunnels-laid beneath the creek bed in gold-bearing sand and water-filled gravel.

The wheel was operated from 1934 to 1936, when operations ceased. Old Town, once a roaring mining centre, gave up the ghost to its last surviving structure, a 16-room hotel of hand-hewn square logs, was destroyed by fire in 1945. But Dooley, who worked on the big wheel operation, remains there with his memories.

Giant Water Wheel

This water wheel, so big it looks like a ferris wheel, was erected on Perry Creek, 15 miles north of Cranbrook, B.C., in 1933 when placer miners were crowding Perry Creek for gold. Built from 11,000 board feet of lumber it powers two pumps used to drain seepage from a mine 100 feet deep. When built the wheel was considered the largest of its kind in North America. It is 32 feet in diameter, has a seven-foot face width and 72 bulli-in buckets. — (CP Photo.)

Woman Wins Three Cars In Seven Months

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Stephen Skrabko, Windsor's top bingo player, has received an anonymous letter and two threatening phone calls, but she will be back in the game Thursday night.

Mrs. Skrabko won three automobiles at the local game in the last seven months.

She received the letter Monday and the phone calls Tuesday. A caller told her not to show her face at the arena Thursday. The letter, postmarked Detroit and signed, "Your friend Marge", indicated the writer thought the people running the bingos are operating a confidence game.

Officials at the arena said the bingos are sponsored by a different club each week and no one has access to the master number of the cards used. Police are investigating.

"I wasn't going to go this week, but I'm going now," said the intrepid bingo player.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking along with Glasses Magee talking and argueing about different subjects sutch as whether you could make more money investing a kind of chewing gum with an indelible flavor that never wore out, or a kind of a soda pop bottle that you can eat at the same time you are drinking what's inside of it, the same as you do an ice creem cone, and Glasses said, DId I show you the uranium stone I found in the empty lot?

And he reeched in his pockit and pulled out a little hunk of stone all made out of shiny specks, saying, I'll sell you a half intrist in it for a dime.

Aw, how are you going to prove it's real uranium? I said, and Glasses said, I'm going to ask the man in the jooiry store, that's how. But if you're going to wait till it's proved, you'll have to pay at least a dollar for even a one therd intrist, he said.

Well how mutch will you give me for a half intrist in this Chinese lottery tickit I found? I said.

And I showed him a blue hunk of paper with Chinese writing on it, and Glasses said, Who said that's a Chinese lottery tickit?

Nobody said so yet, but I'm going to find out in the Chinese laundry, and if it's worth about a hundred dollers I wont sell any intrist in it at all, I said, and Glasses said, Well,hay, I tell you what, I'll swap you a half intrist in my uranium stone for a half intrist in your lottery tickit, what do you say?

Okay, I said.

And we shook hands on it and started to talk about the high cost of candy.

SEEK NEW MARKETS

CHATHAM (CP)—George Phillips, chairman of the Ontario Soybean Growers' Marketing Board, announced the board's decision to send its secretary manager Ken A. Standing overseas to seek new markets. Mr. Standing will travel to the United Kingdom and Europe to ascertain the acceptability of Ontario soybeans in those countries and to determine the future possibilities of a market for Ontario soybeans abroad.

Press Union Alarmed At Australian Law

LONDON (Reuters) — The council of the Commonwealth Press Union has expressed alarm at a law passed last week in the Australian state of New South Wales compelling newspapers to disclose their information sources in graft allegations.

The "Press Gag Act," as newspapers dub the Sydney city council disclosure of allegations bill, was approved by the Labor-controlled state parliament in the face of a storm of criticism. The government claims it will speed police investigation and "clean up" the city council before the royal visit in February.

BANCROFT

Hastings H. S. Commencement Well Attended by Parents, Friends

BANCROFT — A large number of parents and friends attended Friday night's North Hastings High School Commencement, held in the school auditorium.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mr. A. E. O'Neil, of Oshawa, who was introduced by principal Gordon Wragg and thanked by the Rev. A. L. Borland.

In a speech directed primarily to the young people, Mr. O'Neil said that they were fortunate in living in a good country with a good system of government, but that the action of the country was by no means perfect, this was an age of difficulty and an age of opportunity. He warned that many people today were suffering from a false science of the mind which he called pseudo-psychology, a science they used merely as an excuse for their faults.

TRUE HAPPINESS

Money was not the main thing in life, nor did it necessarily bring happiness, it only saved people from the inconvenience of being without it. True happiness came from a sense of achievement.

The Valedictory address was delivered by Gwen Leveque, who expressed the appreciation of the honor conferred upon her. After reviewing the past five years of high school life, experienced by the graduating class, during which the pupils paid tribute to the "ever tolerant teaching staff", and the "sacrifice and encouragement of parents and relatives", Miss Leveque closed as follows:

LAST ACT.

"As the curtain rings down on the last act of high school life, let us remember that it is but a beginning. Let us use, to the best of our ability, the knowledge and skills that we have received, to unlock the doors to further education and experience. May we have a pleasant outlook on life, guided by faith rather than fear. May we do well the task that lies nearest not merely for remuneration, but for the contribution that we can make to the community."

A sing-song was led by Gordon Crosby and Sue Gordon, and the Glee Club, under the direction of Mr. C. Montreuil, sang two appropriate numbers, "The Rosary" and "An Evening Prayer".

Prizes and certificates were awarded as follows: for highest standing in General Proficiency, Grade 9A, Iris Ogilvie; Grade 9B, Jim Feaver; Grade 9C, Bobbie Weatherwax; Grade 9D, Joy Barker; Grade 10A, Kenneth Wilson; Grade 10B, Fay Marshall; Grade 11, Betty McKenzie.

Bringing Up Baby

Mom Collected by Mrs. Elmer Taylor (Mother of 3)

Even the tiniest tots can be captivated by pleasing colors and textures. A young mother we talked to recently said she was amazed at her baby's happy pronouncation with a couple of gaily-colored hankies. Turned out to be a favorite plaything.

Flavor counts with babies too! Gerber's Strained Orange Juice is made from tree-ripened oranges, specially processed to keep natural fresh-fruit flavor. Extra finely strained . . . goes so easily through nursing bottle nipples. Gerber's Orange Juice helps to supply baby's all-important Vitamin C needs. It's so easy for baby to digest, so wonderful to taste!

Cheese-about. When baby is introduced to strained fruits and vegetables, the important thing is to accustom him to a variety of taste experiences. It's usually a good idea to offer 2 servings of vegetables a day to 1 additional serving of fruit. If baby shows marked preference for fruit, try giving him the vegetable first, when he's still hungry.

Easy stroll. Eating is often made easier when you serve baby Gerber's Strained Foods. For their fine, true color fruits, vegetables, meat-soups and desserts have the smooth-as-cream consistency and good-tasting true flavors. 23 varieties!

Teething tot? Then here's wonderful news for both of you! Gerber's famous Teething Biscuits—so helpful for this "trying" time—will soon be available at your favorite store. Watch for an announcement soon!

Special offer . . . and something mighty handy! For just 10c and 3 labels from Gerber's Strained Foods or Junior Foods you can get three attractive Refrigerator Can Covers to snap on opened cans of Gerber's Baby Foods. Just send to me, Mrs. Dan Gerber, Box 17, Toronto 18.

RAWDON

W. I. Hears Interesting Origins Of Many Christmas Customs

RAWDON. — Almost 40 members and visitors and 16 children, of pre-school age, attended the Christmas meeting of River Valley Women's Institute, which was held on Thursday, at the home of Mrs. S. McIntosh.

The home was nicely decorated for the occasion with two lighted Christmas trees and the day was ideal with a lovely sun shedding bright beams which made an attractive setting.

The president, Mrs. Edward Measman, conducted the opening exercises. Mrs. J. L. Donohoe gave her report. This stated that Mrs. Alex Bish had donated $1.50 for euchre prizes and the president had donated $3 for U.N.E.S.C.O. funds.

Thank-you letters were read also greetings from the district president. The parcel of handkerchiefs has been mailed to the Link Institute at Abbot's Leigh, England. The penny bags for mental health will be distributed in the new year. Plans were made for the catering at the meeting of the Federation of Agriculture next week.

The canvass for funds for Belleville Hospital and food for Trenton Hospital will be carried out next week.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS

The program was prepared by Mrs. Earl Morrow and Mrs. Gilbert Pinkle, and the former presided. Christmas carols were interspersed throughout the afternoon.

Recitations were given by Maria Measman Jean Donohoe, Miles McDonell, Rose McIntosh, Donnie Carr and Allan Carr.

Mrs. Ralph Ulman read a Christmas story for the children entitled "Uncle Mistletoe." The president read a poem "Everywhere Christmas Tonight," and Mrs. Don McIntosh sang "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town."

Mrs. Roy Bush spoke briefly re Christmas and read an interesting account of a unique Christmas in New Zealand. This was entitled "Christmas Down Yonder." The narrative told of the cold meal, bowls of roses for decoration and a minor earthquake in the afternoon. The writer of the story made real down to earth Canadian pie for her hostess and this the guests enjoyed.

CHRISTMAS CUSTOMS

The convener read an article describing the origin of various Christmas customs. Wreaths were used many years ago with one candle for each Sunday during Advent. Two thousand years before Christ "bells" were symbols of joyful occasions. Carols were sung at festivals and greeting cards were first published in England in 1884. For centuries "holly" has been used for decorations. European countries use lanterns to light the way to special Church services.

Minced pie, made oblong shape and filled with spice, commemorates the manger.

Mistletoe, plum puddings and poinsettia flowers, all originated from "The Christ Child Story" and "The Christmas Rose", has a special connection with the Yuletide season.

Reindeer to pull Santa's sleigh and Santa himself both have an interesting heritage.

Scandinavian countries use sheaves of oats to feed the birds. In some lands the first star seen on Christmas eve is a sign to begin church services.

WINTER FESTIVAL

The "Yule" was a wintry festival in England long before Christmas was heard of.

Mrs. Charles Vance presented the hostess with two lovely red roses from her own garden.

The president extended thanks for the program and extended seasonal greetings to all.

Nineteen children drew gifts from the small tree and were delighted with coloring books, balls, and toys.

The roll call for members followed when each pulled a gift from the Christmas pie underneath the large evergreen tree.

The hostess and her assistant served sandwiches, celery, cookies, jellos, grapes, homemade candy and assorted nuts.

A vote of thanks was extended for hospitality.

The next meeting will be held on January 7, at the home of Mrs. Glen Morrow. The topic "Historical Research and Current Events", will be convened by Mrs. Fred McDonell and Mrs. Roy Bush.

RECALLS ATROCITIES

Roy Paul Manning Jr., of New Albany, Ind., breaks down in Washington as he tells the Senate investigating sub-committee how the Communists murdered 41 U.S. prisoners of war with their hands tied behind their backs. Meanwhile, the General Assembly of the United Nations voted a resolution condemning the Reds for an "affront to humanity." —Central Press Canadian.

FRANKFORD

Teacher, Five Pupils Exhibit Lip Reading Art

FRANKFORD. — The Frankford Lions Club held its regular meeting Wednesday night in the community hall. Mervin Dafoe, club president, opened the meeting and introduced the guests of the evening, Miss Maloney, instructress, and five pupils from the Ontario School for the Deaf, in Belleville.

Lion J. A. Stickle, secretary of the club, won the attendance prize for the night.

Following supper and the regular discussion, the club adjourned to the hall auditorium and a special feature which was open to the public.

Although attendance was poor for this most interesting demonstration, it was more than appreciated by those present.

Miss Maloney, who is a native of Brockville, and her five pupils, who came from Ottawa, Prescott, Levack Mines, Toronto and Iroquois Falls, astounded their audience with a fine demonstration of all types of exercises for the deaf, numbered among which was the singing of "O Canada", by pupils, using lip reading to keep time with their teacher. Miss Maloney explained that her pupils were from 80 to 100 per cent deaf, and that a deaf child of five years, starting in school has no vocabulary whatsoever, compared with an average of 2,500 words for a normal child of five years or equal to that of a deaf person of 12 to 15 years of age.

Lions Club members are high in their praise of Miss Maloney and her charges, and expressed the feeling that many people who failed to attend, had missed an event unlikely to be seen here or anywhere for any price.

JUNIOR BOYS PARLIAMENT

Frankford United Church members, numbering 15 attended the elections of the Junior Boys Parliament for this district, held in Stirling United Church, on Friday night. Glen Thompson of Thomasburg, won the election over Keith Richards of Frankford, with a 12 vote majority. The Boys' Parliament is held in London, Ontario, at Western University.

ENDED!

Bob Taylor, stalwart defenceman of the Monsee and ck White, of the Kingston Canadians, have been given ree game suspensions following a match penalty given dur- the Kingston-Belleville game played in Community Cen- Kingston, on November 28. The suspension dates from and date and will continue in effect as far as Taylor goes ntil December 18.

We did not see the game but observers state that Re- ree Louis LeCompte was over-zealous in his meting out of e punishment. Michael J. Redden, who viewed the affi, says, "The sentences were, to say the least, overly severe nd hardly in keeping with the offences. More serious fouls ave often drawn lighter sentences, but the file has been ut and the clubs will have to accept the drastic sus- ensions."

Referees automatically report the circumstances to the HA when match penalties are handed out, and apparently efores LeCompte didn't spare the verbal barrage. The OHA ranks up the officials, and rightly so, but the punishment hould fit the crime, regardless.

BOSS IS WORKING!

The injury gremlin is riding herd on the champion Kings n Goodyears, according to word out of Kingston. The wicked ew cuss out so deeply into the Goodies' strength that Coach nny Carr-Harris flung aside the business suit and coaching arel, dug deeply into the family cellar and came up with hockey gear.

But Johnny, who looks like an ad for "Arrow Collars" n his immaculate street attire, was just another hockey layer when he donned the blades up Orillia way last Sa- urday night. At that Johnny grabbed himself a second- period goal, but he graced the hoosegow on no less than four occasions. Carr-Harris, usually a clean player, fell foul of the limit in the whistle up thataway, two of the penalties oming in the third heat for holding. Mayhap Johnny felt nlivened and leaned on a couple of the hometown lads for skyrocket support.

Seriously, the Goodies lost Joe Watts after the Peterbor- ugh fray last Friday, the husky defenceman being badly ut over both eyes. Seven sutures were inserted. To add o Carr-Harris' troubles Billie Wilson Reid suffered a frac- tured wrist during the Orillia melee.

The Goodies face a tough assignment tonight in their Com- unity Centre when they take on the loop-leading Oshawa ickmen. The Carr-Harris crew have yet to register a vic- ory over the Ernie Dickens clan, having been defeated in all ree starts against the leaders. Two of the scores were 4-2 overtime, and the other 6-5. The Truckmen have been set back on their collective haunches in their last two starts, both erries coming at the hands of the potent Pontiacs from Or- s, the hottest team in the loop at the moment.

Meanwhile, the Memes are resting from official duties, ut practicing hard for the tilt Friday night in Kingston when they match blades and sticks with the Goodyears. ad the next night they entertain the Pontiacs from Orillia t Memorial Arena in what should be the "battle of the cen- ury." Twice they have said "uncle" to the Grizz Gen- ellers, 8-3 here and 5-3 up yonder on the southern shores of Lake Couchiching. The same might be Goodyear trek n Bowmanville to pay a return visit to the Truckmen.

Remember Joe Levandoski, Kingston baseball buckaroo, o was poison to Belleville batters, and any others with whom came in batting contact? Joe is starring on the defence with Providence Reds, it says here, the item also stating that Joe layed the outfield for Ottawa in the Border League last sea- n."

As Michael J. Redden points out, "Joe is a versatile thlete and that without doubt, but it is thought quite un- likely that he won the batting title of the Kingston City League last year while playing for Ottawa in a league "that has been non-existent since 1951."

Will Line Up With Toronto In Tonight's Clash With Habs; Beliveau to Play Thursday

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Danny Lewicki, a fireball kid in the miners but a blur to the big time, gets another chance in the National Hockey League tonight.

The 23-year-old leftwinger, who came out of junior ranks heralded as one of the most glittering prospects in the game and then was shunted back and forth from the miners, will line up with Toronto Maple Leafs when they meet Montreal Canadiens in Toronto.

It will be Lewicki's fourth bid to gain a regular berth with the third-place Leafs, who called him up from their Pittsburgh farm club Tuesday to fill gaps left by injuries.

The way he was going in the American League, many fans concede him a good chance of staying. The five-foot eight-inch forward is the league's third-highest scorer with 15 assists and 16 assists for 31 points.

"He's the best offensive player in the American League," says Hap Day, assistant general manager of the Leafs.

In the only other game tonight, second-place Detroit Red Wings, beaten 3-0 and 5-0 in their last two outings, travel to New York for a game against the fifth-place Rangers.

ERRATIC SHOWING

Lewicki scored 16 goals and 18 assists with the Leafs in the 1950-51 season, dropped to four goals the following year and then went to Pittsburgh. He has been up and down ever since.

The Canadiens will have big Jean Beliveau, their high-priced centre back in action Thursday night. Beliveau, knocked out with a broken ankle, will make his first NHL appearance since Oct. 22.

In the seven games he played this season, Beliveau scored two goals and an assist.

Two Ranger defencemen will be out. Ivan Irwin has a wrenched back and Harry Howell has a cut ankle. Jack Evans, 25-year-old former Ranger, has been called up from Saskatoon Quakers of the Western League to help the New Yorkers.

Senators Trade Jensen to Red Sox, But Majors Clam Up On Pension Deal

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Washington traded Jackie Jensen to Boston in a major three-club, commissioner Ford Frick awarded 15-year-old Ralph Terry to New York Yankees and the major leagues clammed up on the pension plan hassle.

Jensen, a fleet, strong-armed outfielder with good power who hit 10 homers and drove in 84 runs for Washington despite a disappointing .266 average, went to the Red Sox for lefthanded Pitcher Maury McDermott, 18-10; and outfielder Tom Umphlett. Umphlett surprised with a .303 rookie season.

The Washington - Boston swap Tuesday was expected to break the ice jam that has blocked trades during the winter baseball meetings.

Philadelphia Athletics sold second-baseman Cass Michaels to Chicago White Sox.

TWO AGREEMENTS

Commissioner Frick decided Terry, who with Jensen, will have agreed to terms with both the Yanks and the Athletics Cards on the same day, belonged to the Yankees. He said Terry's acceptance of terms and the subsequent confirmation by the Yanks predates the signing a contract with Omaha, a St. Louis farm in the Western League.

The pension hassle was strictly a "no comment" case as far as the majors were concerned, pending action at today's joint meeting.

The player demands range from comparatively minor matters such as uniform meal money to increases in minimum pay from $5,000 to $7,500 and higher benefits and lower age limit for the pension.

The six controversial points around the resolution passed by the major league executive council, Sept. 29, recommending a two-man committee study the procedure for ending the pension plan.

ATLANTA MEETING

Commissioner Frick called the 16 player representatives to Atlanta last week to discuss this resolution. The players refused to talk unless their lawyer, J. Norman Lewis, could be present. After the players walked out, Frick for the first time publicly disclosed the existence of the resolution.

Both Ralph Kiner and Allie Reynolds, the players' representatives, denied they voted for the resolution at the Sept. 25 council meeting. Their lawyer, who was present during part of the meeting, also said the players took no such action.

JAN SIBELIUS HONORED

HELSINKI (AP)—Jan Sibelius, Finland's famed composer, got an unusual present for his 88th birthday today. Fifty towns picked the day to name streets or parks after him, and concerts of his works were performed throughout the country. Sibelius himself spent the day quietly at his country home.

I Remember

how Morenz could score!

BY TOMMY SHIELDS

TOMMY SHIELDS—Played amateur and professional lacrosse and hockey. Member of Grey Cup broadcast team for many years. Sports editor of Ottawa Citizen.

"It was a National Hockey League game played in Ottawa during the 1929-30 season, when Montreal Canadiens and Ottawa Senators were locked in a two-all tie at full time. In the sudden-death overtime period, the great Howie Morenz circled his own net, streaked up right wing, crossed over as he neared the Ottawa defence and scored with a blazing twenty-foot shot without having an opposition stick laid on him. It was a typical 'Morenz Special'."

Gerry James, Blue Bombers Grid Star Sparkles in Marlies Win Over Teeps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gerry James, a star halfback in football, is back to his old tricks in hockey.

The big, bruising defenceman, who joined Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series last week-end after a great football season with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, scored two overtime goals Tuesday night as Marlboros defeated the league-leaders St. Catharines TeePees 6-4.

The victory shortened the gap between the third-place Marlboros and the TeePees to five points.

In the only other game, the last-place Aurora Tigers took advantage of Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts for a 8-3 win in Kitchener.

In St. Catharines, Jack Bionda, Wally Maxwell, Billy Harris and Dave Jackson also scored for Marlboros.

McLEAN PACES TEEPS

Don McLean led St. Catharines with two goals. Hank Ciesla and Barry Collins scored the others.

Chadellier, who had little trouble against the weakened Shirks, now share last place with Guelph Biltmores and have a chance to move out of the cellar when they tackle the Bills in Guelph tonight.

Richard Bouchard, Gilles Thibault and Stan Parker each tallied two for Quebec. Carl Wandevich, George Faulkner and Clermont Doyon rounded out the total. Bill Oberle and Buddy Horne served for Kitchener.

Other games tonight are Toronto St. Michael's at Hamilton and St. Catharines at Barrie.

Lions Qualify as Regular Member Of Western Canada Football Union

By DON MATHESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—Big Shake can take a bow.

The final obstacle to entry of British Columbia Lions into the Western Interprovincial Football Union has been cleared and it appears that Lions' bid to become the fifth member of the WIFU is only a matter of formality. The matter will be dealt with at the union's annual meeting in Regina at the end of February.

And a large part of the credit may go to Toronto's Annis Stukus who came here last spring as coach, manager and front man to sell senior football to this city. His salesmanship paid off and Lions have met all stipulations regarding WIFU membership.

They were told that 1954 membership in the union would be okay if they sold 18,000 season tickets. To date 6,839 have been sold.

They were told to guarantee a 15,000-seat stadium. Lions will play in the 25,000-seat British Empire Games Bowl, now being built.

They were told to contract with the four clubs now in the union—Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Edmonton—regarding arrangements for meeting the added travel cost with Lions in the league. These have been completed with Edmonton, Calgary and Regina. Winnipeg waived the agreement.

At Edmonton, Walter Sprague, president of the WIFU, said that as far as he is concerned the Lions now are full-fledged members of the union. "There can be no stumbling blocks now. The WIFU and the B.C. Lions are members in agreement at the 1953 league meeting and Lions have lived up to it." He added:

"I can see no possible chance of any last-minute objection to the Lions' WIFU entry. If there was, we'd be laughed right out of football."

Rinks Advance In Bonspiel

TORONTO (CP) — Three rinks reached the semi-finals in each of the primary and consolation events of the annual invitation bonspiel of the Toronto Ladies' Curling Club.

The Malcolmson rink from Sarnia advanced into the semi-finals of the trophy event with victories over Mrs. Hamilton rinks.

Mrs. H. Gorris of Hamilton Thistles made the semi-finals by defeating Mr. V. Silkirk of Peterborough 2nd Mrs. Fox of Guelph.

The other match-event semi-finalist is the rink of Mrs. C. M. Laidlaw of Lindsay who advanced with two one-shot victories over Mrs. W. Bentley's Oshawa rink and another Oshawa rink skipped by Mrs. J. H. MacDiarmid.

In the consolation Mrs. N. McLeod of Beaverton, Miss E. Creswicke of Toronto and Mrs. C. Selkirk of Peterborough reached the semi-finals. They will be joined by the winner of today's Oshawa-Peterborough meeting.

Johnny Lattner Open To Canadian Offers

NEW YORK (CP)—Johnny Lattner says he'll listen to the offers of Canadian football teams.

Notre Dame's all-American halfback said Tuesday he'd "like to try pro ball for a while to see if I could play it." He said he was willing to play with whatever club drew his name in the pro draft. Or if Canadian clubs made him a better offer he'd listen, though he'd prefer one of the Canadian clubs better nearer home.

Lattner last week was reported as a likely bet to join British Columbia Lions, new entry in the Western Interprovincial Football Union next summer. Lions' coach Annis Stukus, on a scouting trip in California, declined comment.

Valleyfield Team 'Cannot Carry On' Without Help

VALLEYFIELD, Que. (CP)—President J. Arthur Vinet of Valleyfield Flyers said Tuesday night the team "cannot carry on" in the Quebec Hockey League without support from the city council or local business men.

He said, however, the club will not move out of Valleyfield in the immediate future for some other Quebec centre despite rumors circulating in hockey circles that the Braves—current cellar-occupants of the league—would move to Trois-Rivieres or Shawinigan Falls.

Mr. Vinet said the club is undergoing a financial crisis" although it has been materially aided by city council and merchants.

Orillia Wins Five in Row

Orillia's fast-stepping Pontiacs swept into second place in the senior group standing last night with a 3-2 victory over the Peterborough Petes in the Lake Coucheching arena.

The victory gives the Pontiacs 13 points, one ahead of the now third-place Kingston Goodyears. It was the Pontiacs sixth win in their last seven starts, and five in a row.

They meet the Belleville Memos here on Saturday night in the teams' third clash of the season.

Hewitt Enjoys 'Shining Night Of My Life'

TORONTO (CP)—W. A. (Billy) Hewitt, who has taken a large part in the development of Canadian sport for 30 years, Tuesday night celebrated what he described as "the shining night of my life."

The 78-year-old sportsman ended a half-century as secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association and nearly 500 sport celebrities paid tribute to him at a testimonial dinner.

They recalled incidents in the life of Mr. Hewitt, appointed OHA secretary Dec. 8, 1903, paid tribute to his executive ability and praised him as "probably the most understanding and kind" man in the world of sport.

It was a memorable night for the soft-spoken little man who watched the Canadian sports scene from a ringside seat as sports editor of the Toronto Daily Star from 1909 to 1921, who was instrumental in formation of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union and the CAHA. He also was the leading figure in the OHA, the biggest group of its kind in the world.

George Dudley of Midland, secretary-manager of the CAHA, sounded the keynote of speeches with the observation that "Mr. Hewitt's kindness and courtesy and depth of understanding has made a legion of friends for him throughout his career."

Galt Hawks Tie Chicago Of Same Name

GALT (CP) — Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League and their Ontario Hockey Association farm club, Galt Black Hawks, fought to a 3-3 tie in an exhibition hockey game here Tuesday night.

Proceeds of the game went to local minor hockey teams.

The fact that the local Hawks had Chicago goalkeeper Al Rollins on their side may have helped them gain a tie. Other Chicago players loaned to Galt were defencemen Gus Mortson and Jack Price, and forwards Nelle Coucher, Les Costello, and Larry Wilson.

Pete Kawalchuk fired two goals for Galt. Wilson scored the other from Mortson and Coucher.

Gus Bodnar, Gerry Couture and Fred Hucal were the Chicago marksmen.

Aces, Chicoutimi Crowd Senators In Quebec League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa Senators will have to win more consistently if they hope to remain on top of the Quebec Hockey League for any length of time.

Tuesday, the second-place Sherbrooke Saints collared Quebec Aces 3-0 while Chicoutimi Sagueneens downed Senators 3-0. Ottawa's lead was cut to a single point.

In the only other game Valleyfield Braves moved into a last-place tie with Springfield Indians—eight points behind Ottawa—by lambasting them 9-2.

At Ottawa, two defencemen, George Roy and Gerry Gladu, scored goals. Pete Thachuk was the other Sagueneen marksman.

Sherbrooke got their five goals in the last period at Quebec. Nellie Podolsky, Earl Johnson and Gilles Dube counted for the victors.

At Valleyfield, Andre Corriveau and Larry Kwong ranged in two goals each for the winners while Georges Chauvin, Jack Irvine, Bruce Cline, Jacques Deslauriers and Jim Thomson got a singleton. Springf eld goal-getters were Doug McMurdy and Eric Pogue.

Selke Declines To Comment On OHA Decision

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Selke Toseday declined comment on the refusal of the Ontario Hockey Association to transfer players from the Junior Kitchener Greenshirts to teams in the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association.

"I could say a lot of things but I'm not going to," said the National Hockey League club manager.

Canadiens purchased the Kitchener team more than a week ago and assigned nine of its members to the Quebec Junior League and one to St. Catharines in the Ontario Hockey Association.

Earlier, before the decision was announced, Selke said he was waiting to see if the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association was running itself or was being run by the OHA.

Regent Juniors To be Honored At Reception

The Belleville Regents junior baseball club, sponsored by Alderman Bryson Reid, and coached by "Red" Carson, will be honored by its sponsor at a reception being held tonight at the Shrine Club.

The Regents, in their first year of organization compiled an enviable record in district and provincial baseball circles. In junior "A" competition in the OBA playdowns, the Regents defeated Peterborough and Cardinal to win the Eastern Ontario title, a remarkable achievement for any team.

In the Ontario Junior "A" championship competition, the Regents bowed to the Hamilton Crawfords in a two-of-three series. In district competition they reached the finals for the league championship but lost out to the Bloomfield-Wellington Combines.

BRANTFORD (CP)—Mrs. H. B. Paddon's Hamilton Vics Tuesday qualified for the third round of the main event in the Brant Curling Club's annual invitation bonspiel.

Beaverbrook's Paper Is Urging Britain Quit UN

LONDON (AP)—Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express editorial said Great Britain today to quit the United Nations because the UN's activities "are damaging to the prospects of world peace and ruin ous for the Empire."

The Express claims a circulation of more than 4,000,000. It follows an independent political line but is Empire-minded.

In an editorial, the paper said: "What can Britain expect to get from membership in the United Nations except trouble and abuse. Britain and the dominions have six votes between them—and of these goes to South Africa takes no part in United Nations affairs.

"Now how many votes are there in South America? Twenty or nearly all can be relied on to support the British's enemies."

The paper levelled its severest criticism at Mrs. Lakshmi Menon, Indian delegate to the UN trusteeship committee. It said that urged by Prime Minister Nehru she has been leading an attack to destroy the British Empire by requesty for debates on African problems.

Canada Likely To Depend More On U.S. Trade

TORONTO (CP)—Canadians are likely to be putting more rather than fewer eggs into one basket, that basket being the United States, Robert Rae, president of the Dominion Bank, said today.

In an address prepared for delivery to the bank's annual meeting he added:

"Prudence would counsel us, if we could, to plan the distribution of our fast-expanding export trade quite otherwise. But there is almost everywhere in this North American environment a capacity for economic expansion which simply cannot be matched elsewhere.

"Thus, the quickly-growing Canadian economy cannot help but sell an increasing proportion of its exports in the great market next door, just because that market now is the fastest growing of all our markets abroad.

"Measured in dollars, our sales to the United States still are increasing at the rate of about seven per cent annually. And, in the aggregate, our sales to the rest of our customers abroad are decreasing and in greater proportion.

Mr. Rae said 60 per cent of Canada's sales to other countries are made in the United States, adding some Canadians argue from this that Canada's position daily becomes more vulnerable.

PROSPERITY FROM U.S.

"Let us remind them that but for this greatest of all markets in the United States, Canadians could have enjoyed no post-war prosperity.

"The great contrast between the people of the United States and our customers overseas, lies not so much in differences between the respective spending habits of the two groups, as in an enormous and still widening gulf between their respective spending powers."

C. Ashforth, general manager, presented the proposed legislation to authorize banks to lend on construction, said the Dominion Bank "welcomes the opportunity to make an even greater contribution to the social and economic welfare of Canada."

Mr. Mackie, Labor-Progressive, said:

"It should not be assumed that mortgage legislation will make available through the banks unlimited mortgage funds for housing construction. The primary responsibility of the chartered banks is to their depositors and this is not inconsistent with their obligation to the country as a whole, since their depositors make up a very substantial portion of the population of the country."

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, DEC. 10, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Your formula for this somewhat restricted day could well be patience, a temporary refusal to express opinions and plenty of lookee before acting.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — You may find yourself somewhat limited today, especially in business or professionally. You have a fine sense of values, are a keen observer. Use these gifts well.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Your horoscope calls for intelligent, steady action. Don't spend money foolishly. You have encountered harder days, so don't let anything stump or discourage you. Be awake to new bids.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Okay if you are fit and willing to take the good with the bad. A smart approach, some constructive, aggressive moves will be highly effective. Heart interests touchy; go easy.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — If you are careful and make no foolish mistakes, you can turn in a fine day's work. Stars say plan, study each move before acting. Use initiative, imagination.

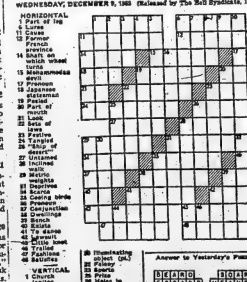
August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Hustle and do not let little things spoil your chances of getting this day over in a big way. Practice economy and give future business interests some sound thought now.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—A vigorous, well contemplated program will make for better returns. Smooth action stressed. Use your magnetism; it can aid so many good causes.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Put all your splendid talents to work today; you can make appreciable headway. Work for the better things, the worthwhile. You are capable. Why waste time in worthless pursuits?

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—There may be times today when everything seems to go wrong. Steady control of emotion, nerves and a calm attitude are important. Keep your mind on work; study happenings around you.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Whatever the demands or obligations, know that you are equal to the big and important jobs. When possible, get in some diverting relaxation, and spend some time with loved ones.



January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—This day's vibrations are not particularly stimulating for making new plans but, where routine is concerned, "stay with it," is the saying tersely puts it. Ask advice, persist in worth-while goals.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—You will have to be wide awake today. You may be tempted to disclose confidential matters, but what should not. Be close in money and property matters and avoid gullible.

YOU BORN TODAY are usually quick-acting, think fast and have a knack for seizing an opportunity while others are still "thinking it over." You make able executives. Don't be too blunt. Candor is fine only when rightly used. Consider consequences before speaking or acting. You like fun, a good time, maybe games of chance. Real estate, brokerage, banking, manufacturing are all generally suited to your talents. Master impatience.

WHAT ARE THEY?

THEY ARE CARS that have been turned in on later models. They have been thoroughly inspected by our skilled mechanics. The necessary work has been done consequently many thousands of cars have been built back into them. Because this work has been done we feel that they are a little better than ordinary used cars. Therefore we choose the above name to distinguish them. The initial cost may not be the lowest but we feel sure that the cost of their long will be considerably less.

NOTICE
THURLOW TOWNSHIP
1953 Tax Due Date

On July 16th, 1953, Council passed By-Law No. 1275 which provides for the following:

All taxes not paid by the first day of November in any year shall become arrears and a percentage charge of one half of one per cent on the amount so in arrears shall be imposed on the 1st day of default as a penalty for non-payment of taxes.

There were several reasons for moving the Due Date ahead. First by moving the Due Date ahead it gives the ratepayer time to return the roll to Township Clerk Lloyd has also to make the school purposes estimate at the various School Boards earlier and this may help to keep the mill rate down. It is necessary to do this if we are to have 'let that by making the Due Date the first of December it would get away from the Christmas rush. Also the Municipal Act has been changed to allow the penalty to be made on the taxes applied to the first instalment of Local Improvement Taxes. Watermains, etc. As everyone knows the Municipal Act allows the ratepayer the last day to make payment on the last day to make payment on the 31st day of December. He had been using the instalment Tax Arrear balance as a bill for 1953 taxes which is not the case. Also the Municipal Act allows much of this would be paid after the 31st day of December. Now the Municipal Act allows the Township to collect these figure at the year end. Bond Issues, Local Improvement Debentures take into consideration the Due Date and the Penalty Date and they have no effect on them.

The bills for 1953 were specially stamped showing that the Due Date is the 1st day of November and the Penalty is December 1st. Any misunderstanding has been cleared up. Also the Municipal Act has now decided to extend the time for payment of taxes from the 31st day of December to the 14th day of January. This is effective for the YEAR 1953. Therefore the Tax Collector's 1953 Taxes will take effect on taxes paid after December 31st, instead of this year.

French Papers Criticize Stand Of Churchill

PARIS (Reuters) — Two Paris newspapers today attacked Sir Winston Churchill for his alleged "threatening" attitude toward a French delegate at the Bermuda conference.

The independent France-Soir said the French delegates were "surprised and then irritated" when the British leader blasted the French stand on the proposed European army.

The newspaper's Bermuda correspondent said in many observers felt that Western unity would mean nothing "if such occurrences repeated themselves."

France-Soir said Churchill made much of "the demand that France should join the European army without reservations, without a powerful German army, remonstrances that France had not adopted 'ten years' military service and that she had refused to send conscripts to Indo-China."

OTHER EMBARRASSED

"British Foreign Secretary Anthony) Eden himself, according to the best observers, appeared embarrassed at this, while President Eisenhower intervened once or twice to say: 'We are straying from the subject.'"

France-Soir commented that "most qualified observers agree . . . that Sir Winston Churchill has become a paradoxical and capricious force which his best advocates, like Mr. Eden, do not always succeed in disciplining."

The independent right-wing Parisien Libere said: "The slips of Churchill's tongue were so evident that Anthony Eden came to see the French delegation after the meeting to remove the impression which had been produced."

FRANKFORD

Dr. D. M. Smith Dedicates New S. S. Hall

FRANKFORD.—The dedication service of the new Frankford United Church Sunday School hall was held recently in the new hall.

Rev. °C. E. Clarke, who was chairman for the night opened the service and led in the opening hymn.

Dr. D. M. Smith, of Campbellford, was guest speaker, choosing as his subject, "Building", in which he compared the building of a church, to the building of good Christian people.

The foundation of a building was compared to good Christian training in youth; the structure to the progressive Christian training through life; and the furnishings to the people who after receiving good training themselves, in turn train the younger ones.

Dr. Smith dedicated the new hall to the use of the church and Sunday School activities.

Mrs. Walter C. Morrow sang "Bless This House."

Rev. Mr. Whitehorn of Seymour, was introduced and brought congratulations and greetings from his church and presbytery.

Mrs. G. S. Martin rendered a beautiful organ solo during the ceremony. The United Church male quartet sang four songs during the course of the evening and were in their usual entertaining and harmonious form, which is beginning to become common knowledge in a large area surrounding Frankford.

PRESENTATIONS MADE

Mr. Clarke started the presentation program off with an address to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bleecker, and praised Mr. Bleeker for his untiring efforts as superintendent of building; also in his many hours of personal labor in the erection of the hall. The presentation of a beautiful lamp was made to the deserving couple by Mr. Roy Moran.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Dickson, who recently moved to Campbellford, were presented with a lamp and end table by Mr. J. A. Stickle, and sincerely thanked by Mr. Howard Richards for their aid in church and Sunday School matters, through the many years they had made their home in Frankford.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Scott, of Belleville, were presented with a lovely coffee table and fern stand by Mr. Mervin Dafoe, and sincere appreciation was voiced by Claude Moran of Raymond's 18 years of service as treasurer of the Sunday School.

The combined ladies auxiliaries of the church served refreshments and followed with a social period which was enjoyed by all.

GOUZENKO AGREES TO MEET U.S. PROBERS

Vishinsky Hints Russia To Reject Eisenhower Plan

UN Assembly's Hopes Chilled By Charge Talk Was Threat

BY TOM HOGE
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Delegates have wound up the eighth United Nations General Assembly, hopeful that President Eisenhower's call for an atomic power pool might lead to peace, but apprehensive over the cloud blast it brought from Moscow.

As the assembly recessed Wednesday night, many delegates admitted privately that the Soviet Union's answer to Eisenhower's speech had inspired were considerably dashed by the Moscow radio charge that the president's address "threatened atomic war."

Russia's Andrei Vishinsky also lowered the general morale Wednesday night when he indicated to the assembly that Russia would reject Eisenhower's call for an atomic pool for peace.

WANTS PROHIBITION

Vishinsky declared that "without the adoption of a decision on the unconditional prohibition of atomic weapons, no strengthening of peace and international co-operation can be achieved."

Delegates tried to derive some comfort from the fact that Vishinsky had not given a flat rejection of the Eisenhower plan.

They admitted, however, that neither Vishinsky nor Moscow radio would be apt to comment on such a vital issue without getting permission from the government.

Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, the assembly president, disclosed that the UN recognized the following his speech Tuesday. Eisenhower asked her what Vishinsky thought of the address. She obligingly walked over and asked him.

BETTER THAN EXPECTED

Vishinsky, she said, replied it was a better talk that he had expected, but "there is still the bait". This was a reference to Russia's perennial demands for an immediate prohibition of the atomic bomb.

At Wednesday night's closing session, Mrs. Pandit told the assembly that Eisenhower's speech affirmed "man's desperate need" for assurances of peace in the atomic era.

Despite the cold war between the East, most delegates looked for some development in the Eisenhower plan when the UN's disarmament commission meets next month and United States chief, Dr. Jessup, returns.

Diplomats predicted that the American will be ready to get down to cases with facts and figures when the commission convenes.

Milton Berle, Ruth Cosgrove Wed in N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP)—Comedian Milton Berle, actor Jim, brunette Ruth Cosgrove were married Wednesday. An ebony topped off the wedding with a series of thoughtfully scrapbooked kisses.

It was the third marriage for the 45-year-old television star, and the second for Miss Cosgrove, 30.

Both of Berles previous marriages were to Joyce Mathews.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: An area of low pressure moved eastward along the lower lakes Wednesday night; in its wake winds will shift to northwest and north over southern Ontario, bringing the colder weather of northern regions down into southern centres; temperatures will drop to below freezing in all sections tonight, and rise on Friday to the low 30s in southern Ontario and to the 20s in northern regions.

LONDON (AP)—Soviet spokesmen have given strong indications that the Kremlin wants no part of President Eisenhower's proposal for an atomic energy pool for peaceful uses.

There was no "official" reply from the Soviet government, but Wednesday night a top commentator on Moscow radio, Boris Leskov, proposed the U.S. proposal is a rehash of the Baruch atomic control plan which the Russians have always rejected. Leontyev added that Eisenhower had threatened atomic war.

In the United Nations assembly, Russian delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky declared: "You cannot insure the use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes without unconditional prohibition and strict international control (of atomic weapons!)."

UN deliberations on atomic energy control have been "bogged down" for several years by Russia's insistence on an immediate ban and the refusal to accept any workable control and inspection system first.

The initial Soviet reaction came as the Western world generally spoke well the plan, outlined by Eisenhower Tuesday in a speech before the UN assembly. Eisenhower in India also welcomed it as a "very, very hopeful, very, very small, in the atomic curtain."

CLEARED BY PARTY

Although some Western sources had expressed hope the official Soviet answer might be more favorable, the first Russian comment obviously had been cleared with Kremlin propagandists and military affairs specialists before it was made public.

In a later English - language broadcast beamed to North America, another Moscow radio commentator, Konstantine Oorlov, said the striking thing about Eisenhower's speech was "the utter lack of concrete proposals on how to settle those general desires and wishes" for peace become reality. Moscow's Communist party newspaper Pravda also raised the same point after an 800-word summary of the president's speech.

Domestic reaction in the United States was that Russia was using Russian trickery threatens to impede Eisenhower's proposals.

Ammunition Truck Burns in Iowa Town

MALVERN, Iowa (AP)—An ammunition truck which burned after sideswiping another semi-trailer Wednesday night carried no more than 1,400 a taste of what it's like to sweat out an artillery barrage.

The cargo task of the ammunition carrier caught fire following the collision. Some of the 105 millimetre shells started exploding. But no one was hurt.

The blasts continued for more than two hours, sending shrapnel screaming as far as 3,000 feet.

Girl's Head and Boy Friend's Body Are Discovered in Abandoned Well

PAMPLICO, S. C. (AP) — The head of a pretty 15-year-old schoolgirl and the body of her boy friend were dug out of an abandoned well near here Wednesday night.

Sheriff John Hanna said both had been shot. The decapitated body of Beryl Clair Cain had been found Monday in a shallow grave overlooking the Pee Dee river. Her companion was Harvey Allen, 22.

Police and a number of citizens are being held for questioning.

Hanna said a wallet and watch were missing from Allen's pockets. The sheriff said the girl's head and Allen's body were badly beaten.

The couple was last seen Sunday at 7:30 p. m. when they left the girl's home on a date. Early Monday Allen's bloodstained car was found in a schoolhouse yard two miles from the river. The headless body of the girl was found headless body of the girl was found in the grave five feet over that night.

The search turned to the abandoned well Wednesday. It was about one-half mile from where the girl's body was found.

A layer of gravel was on top of the well, but fresh earth prompted officers to dig into it. They came upon the girl's coat first. Beneath it a pile of cornshucks was her head. Buried below it was Allen's body, stuffed head down.

The finding of the girl's head came only a few hours after her body was buried. A medical report said she had been raped.

Officers said they had no clue to the difficulty of finding the well, a local person probably committed the crime.

Proposal to Adjourn Debate Is Carried

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliamentarians appear to want a distinctive Canadian flag, but are unlikely to take action on it this session.

The Commons spent three hours Wednesday discussing a private member's resolution proposing adoption of such a flag and suggesting joint commons-senate committee study and recommend a design.

A proposal by Bona Arsenault (L—Bonaventure), received support from members of all parties, along with some reservations.

Further action this session, however, seemed remote as the resolution, in effect was killed by a motion to adjourn the debate. The motion was carried by 127 to 73. All Liberals voted for the adjournment motion while the opposition parties voted against it.

The vote means the resolution will be passed on the order paper, possibly will not be debated again at this session of Parliament. The adjournment motion was made 20 minutes before the end of the sitting and under house rules the resolution would have lost after the same fate if the debate had continued to closing time.

PROPOSAL REJECTED

The CCF called for the vote to avoid moving to the next item of business, a resolution by a CCF member which would have received about 15 minutes' debate before it was also killed for the session.

Outside the House, Mr. Arsenault said the debate served his purpose in obtaining an expression of opinion from other parties. It had shown that formation now of a distinctive flag for Canada at war was not the best means to achieve his aim.

There is "always a possibility," he added, that the government will bring in a bill for a new flag if it is found that a "very large majority" of Canadians favor one.

Presenting his proposal to the House, Mr. Arsenault said he does not want to abandon use of the Union Jack which remains a distinctive Canadian flag as a symbol of membership with the British Commonwealth.

But the Union Jack should not appear in the new flag, since it represented authority of the British Parliament and not a Canadian Parliament.

As for a French symbol, French-speaking Canadians did not want a fleur de lis or any other French symbol in the design.

MAPLE LEAF WANTED

He suggested the "place of honor" on the flag be given to the maple leaf, which would then become "the true Canadian symbol for every racial extraction and creed, in the same meaningful sense as loyalty in the world."

"As one of the leading national in the world today, Canada should have a national flag which has meaning, beauty and originality and strictly Canadian appearance."

Communist Youths Interrupt Nobel Peace Prize Ceremonies

OSLO (CP) — Communist demonstrators, shouting, "This is no peace candidate," today interrupted the formal ceremonies awarding the 1953 Nobel Peace prize to Gen. George C. Marshall.

A stampede started at the Oslo University festival watched as the demonstrators showered anti-Marshall leaflets upon them during the presentation.

The audience had come to witness the award to Marshall in recognition of the $17,000,000 American post-war European aid plan which bore his name.

A group of about 20 young Communists, who sneaked into the gallery despite a check at the entrance, shouted in unison: "This is no peace candidate, Marshall go home." The leaflets were headed with the words, "We protest."

QUICKLY THROWN OUT

Police rushed to the galleries and quickly overpowered the demonstrators, aided by embarrassed spectators.

The interruption came as Gunnar Jahn, president of the Norwegian Nobel committee, started to read his address in praise of Marshall. A gold medal and $33,840 in prize money also was awarded to Marshall.

French ambassador Louis de Guiringaud was delegated to accept the 1953 peace prize on behalf of Mr. Albert Schweitzer, famed African jungle doctor, humanitarian, philosopher and musical authority.

The other four 1953 prizes from the fortune left by Alfred Nobel, inventor of dynamite, were to be presented later today in similar ceremonies in Stockholm. Sir Winston Churchill for literature, Dr. Frnzz Albert Lipmann of Harvard University and Dr. Hans Adolph Krebs of England's Sheffield University for medicine, Holland's Dr. Frits Zernike for physics and West Germany's Dr. Herman Staudinger for chemistry.

Lady Churchill went to Stockholm to accept the prize for her husband as he leaves Bermuda tonight after the Big Three conference.

Marshall, a top Second World War commander and later secretary of state, was the 12th American to win the peace prize first awarded in 1901. Norway's 82-year-old King Haakon VII headed the audience which packed Oslo University's festival hall to applaud as the soldier-statesman mounted the rostrum. . . .

CHOSEN BY PARLIAMENT

The presentation was made by Gunnar Jahn, president of the Nobel committee named by the Norwegian Parliament to make the award.

Just before, Carl Joachim Hambro, who often has represented Norway in the League of Nations and the United Nations, explained the prize was "not given to Marshall for all he accomplished during the war."

"What he has done after the war to promote the peace is the corollary of this achievement, and it is a direct result of the establishment of peace the Nobel committee has been able to award."

Hambro recalled Marshall's fight for European recovery, from his speech at Harvard in 1947 to the address at Harvard University June 5, 1947, until the United States Congress adopted the program.

The Alsatian-born Dr. Schweitzer had asked that his missionary-medical work at Lambarene, French Equatorial Africa, prevented his attending the presentation ceremony. His cash reward, due to fluctuations in the Nobel fund's earnings, came to about $33,200.

Police Get Anonymous Tip Girl's Body Hidden in Barn

TORONTO (CP) — Suburban Scarborough police today began a barn-by-barn search of the area northeast of the lower's lane where Marion McDowell was last trapped, after acting on anonymous telephone tip that her body was in one of the barns.

The tipster did not specifically locate the barn, police said, but said it was "13 miles north and east" of the scene where the 17-year-old stenographer disappeared. She abducted Sunday night by a hooded gunman.

Police said the lead sounded authentic.

OTHER LEADS FAIL

Every other clue has been "checked out," according to police chief Wilfrid McLellan, Except for the latest tip the case remained as far from solution as it was late night Tuesday when it first came to the police station to tell of being kidnapped.

Wilson was taken to the scene at 3 a.m. today to re-enact the abduction.

Police parked cars on the side-road off the lower's lane where Wilson said he was held captive overnight and saw Marion being lifted into the trunk of a car parked in the next away. They were checking on whether in the blackness of night Wilson could see the gunman as he stated.

"The break of the car could be easily seen," said police.

REWARD DOUBLED

A reward of $2,000 has been offered for information leading to the discovery—dead or alive—of the girl. A police reward of $1,000 was matched by the girl's grief-stricken father, Ross McDowell.

"I'll pay $2,000 to anyone of fers," said Mr. McDowell, employed as a Toronto manufacturer of knitting in a lingerie plant.

Every lead led nowhere after police questioned all of former school friends, office colleagues and boy friends of the blonde, blue-eyed girl.

MANY TIPS

Police have been deluged with tips and offers of assistance in the search. High school students, boy scouts and other volunteers made a systematic search of the Danforth-Kelinton area ll the town-ship but failed to turn up a helpful clue.

Police now are going on the assumption that the girl is probably dead.

Police Chief Wilfred McLellan

Purge Continues In Soviet Union

BY TOM WHITNEY

NEW YORK (AP) — The purge of possible enemies of the party rolls down Russia's corridors of power.

Nikita Khrushchev continues carrying overtones of personal vendetta in his speech Wednesday that the men of Moscow-centred Great Russia must be purged.

Moscow dispatches Wednesday night revealed Khrushchev was not only ridding Leningrad 10 days ago of its party chieftain, Nikolai Kuznetsov, but also netted an old personal score down in Armenia.

He sent a favorite hatchet man, Peter N. Pospelov, to the Soviet Caucasus republic to boot out the entire Armenian party leadership.

Special disgrace was reserved for the long-time Armenian party boss, G. A. Arutiunov. He was fired and expelled from the central committee.

Probably Arutiunov has also been arrested. He and his colours were pinned to the mast by members of Lavrenty P. Beria, Malenkov's top deputy until his down fall and arrest last summer.

of Scarborough said it is possible the girl's body might be in the area of some car unknown to the vehicle's owner.

The girl's boy friend said that when he regained his senses for a short period after he was knocked unconscious he saw the assailant stuffing the girl's limp form into the trunk of a car.

WANT TRUNKS SEARCHED

Police believe the automobile theory is the most plausible one and have appealed to car rental agencies, parking lots and garage attendants in general to examine trunks.

The girl's father is also resigned to the fact that she may be dead. "I'm a person responsible and see his way clear to send a plain card to the police just telling where she is, I will be grateful," he said.

A skirt, stockings and underclothing were found Wednesday in a ravine 20 miles north of the kidnapping scene by two of the girl's uncles and it was first reported they belonged to her. However, a check showed that the clothing was not her property.

55 ARE KILLED IN HUNTING ACCIDENTS IN '53

Newfoundland, P. E. I. Free of Fatalities

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A hunter in Quebec threw his loaded rifle into the back of a truck. He was one of 55 persons killed in hunting accidents in Canada this year.

Some of the others were mistaken for deer, some became lost in the bush, some drowned.

Only Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island were free of hunting fatalities in 1952 and 1953, a Canadian Press survey shows.

Last year some 86 hunters were killed in Canada.

The number of hunters who died at their sport may be greater than available figures suggest because some provinces do not keep statistics on accidental deaths.

Ontario reported the most hunting deaths this year, 20 compared with nine last year. Quebec was a close second with at least 13.

Police usually ask Saskatchewan answer to hunting accidents. Provincial regulations demand a complete police statement of red for antelope hunters. For other big game, the hunter is allowed to vary his ensemble with white.

POLICY PAYS OFF

Saskatchewan officials credit the showy clothing with reducing hunting fatalities from six in 1952 to two this year. Most hunters shot were improperly dressed.

New Brunswick is trying a similar "tough" policy to keep accidents down. A hunter who wounds another may have his hunting licence suspended for life.

Nova Scotia and New Brunswick operate gun safety clubs.

Carelessness was a major cause of hunting deaths. One man in Ontario died of a heart attack while hauling his gear through the bush. Another overworked his heart building a deer lick.

Some 63 hunters were injured in the four provinces which had figures available, compared with a total of 56 hunting injuries in these provinces last year.

Here are the estimated figures for hunting deaths by provinces (last year's figures in brackets): Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island 0 (0); Nova Scotia 2 (5); New Brunswick 5 (3); Quebec 13 (9); Ontario 20 (9); Manitoba 1 (1); Saskatchewan 2 (6); Alberta 5 (14); British Columbia 7, (7).

Hymn-Singing Miner Kills 3 Sons To Save Them from Devil's Torments

STEUBENVILLE, O. (AP) — A 54-year-old Dover, S. W. were unconscious hymn-singing miner killed in hospital today. Six state highway three of his five little children with patrolmen, coroner and his axe, then wife feet, and critically injured the other two.

"God told me to kill the children to save them from the torturers and torments of the devil," Frank Holt, 34, was quoted as telling county prosecutor Bernard T. Mc-Cue.

Holt was walking around his front yard Tuesday morning when deputy sheriff Russell Wilson arrived at the home, 17 miles northwest of here in the village of East Springfield. The deputy said Holt was humming hymns and seemed calm during a half-hour auto ride to jail.

Three of Holt's small sons were found dead. They included his wife, too, Holt told McCann:

"No, God did not tell me to."

Will Talk to Representative Of U.S. Security Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — Igor Gouzenko has agreed to a secret meeting with representatives of the United States internal security sub-committee, it was learned today.

It is not known when the meeting will take place between Gouzenko, former Russian embassy cipher clerk who disclosed a wartime spy ring operating in Canada, and the committee's representative.

Where the meeting will take place also is not known but there has been speculation that it may be held in Ottawa.

Justice Minister Garson is expected to make a statement in the Commons when it meets today outlining Canada's decision. The internal affairs department also will inform Washington.

SEVERAL ATTEMPTS

Gouzenko has been the object of several attempts by Senator William Jenner, chairman of the senate sub-committee, to get him to Washington. The embassy clerk appear before the committee.

The initial request, contained in a note from Washington, was turned down by the Canadian government on grounds that Gouzenko has nothing new to add to the information already in the possession of the United States. —

The subsequent request for leave to interview Gouzenko was made and the Canadian government said in a note that if Gouzenko agreed a meeting could take place under Canadian auspices but on the understanding that his statements will not be made public without Canada's consent.

Jenner agreed to these conditions and another note was sent from Washington last Thursday stating that a meeting be arranged.

OLD POSITION

Gouzenko's decision brings him back to the position he took last month when he said he would only interrogate but he would be willing to talk with the sub-committee. Last week Senator Jenner told Toronto newspaper as saying he did not want to risk the assembly under which he has lived since the 1946 spy trials since only the Canadian police stole from the Russian embassy in the fall of 1945. The most recent visit of Senator Jenner and Robert Morris, counsel for the sub-committee, has been designated as the questioners if a meeting was arranged.

The note added that it was assumed Canada would have no objection to U. S. Ambassador Stuart Douglas or his representative being present. It was pointed out that the place of any meeting be communicated by word of mouth "in order to protect Mr. Gouzenko's security."

Appendectomy Performed On Queen's Liner

ABOARD S. S. GOTHIC (Reuters)—This ship taking Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh across the South Pacific cut its speed to 12 knots Wednesday night while a crew member underwent an appendix operation aboard.

The Queens own medical officer, Surgeon-Cmdr. Derek Steel-Perkins, performed the operation on watchman Harry Tucker, 44.

The Gothic is due at Suva, Fiji Is'lands, Dec. 17 for the next stop on the royal couple's six-month Commonwealth tour.

Though this is hurricane season in these waters, the weather so far has been moderate.

Tucker's usual place as the ship was passing the cloud-capped island of Futa Hiva, southernmost of the Marquesas group in the Pacific.

The Queen and the duke asked to be kept informed of Tucker's progress, which late at night was reported satisfactory.

Motorists Warned to Drive Carefully, Safely at All Times

Pre-occupation is one cause of traffic accidents which seldom shows up in motor vehicle accident statistics but distraction and worry do influence a driver's conduct.

At least that is the opinion of Police Chief Walter Probert, who notes that as the busy shopping list while driving along it enough to cause a temporary lapse of attention. "And that's all that it takes to cause an accident," he says.

Also pedestrians with their arms full of parcels and their minds on Christmas purchases, step off curbs into the paths of approaching cars. "December is dangerous month for motorists and pedestrians alike," the chief said.

"So I urge all citizens of Belleville to honestly examine their walking and driving habits and resolve to be more careful than ever during the holiday season."

CROSS AT INTERSECTIONS

The chief urged that pedestrians cross streets only at intersections and to look both ways before crossing. And it's not wise to depend on the driver being able to see a person at night, it's safer to wait than to take a chance.

At the same time Chief Probert urged motorists to adjust their speed to the road and to weather conditions so they can stop should an emergency arise. Use of chains on snow by law recommended as they can cut braking distance as much as 40 to 50 per cent.

"As a police officer I know only too well there is no easy way to learn that someone in your family has been killed.

Jury Returns Open Verdict, Driver Charged

Charges of dangerous and careless driving have been laid by provincial police against Lyle Hay, 23, of Stirling, driver of the car in which Cecelia Ingram, 18-year-old Stirling girl was killed Saturday night when the vehicle went off the road and turned over.

An inquest looking into the Stirling girl's death was held Monday afternoon before Coroner Dr. E. A. Carleton of Stirling. The jury returned an open verdict. Following consultation with Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, the charges of dangerous and careless driving were laid by Provincial Constable McAlonen of Belleville. Hay is scheduled to appear in court in Belleville on December 17th.

There are few comforting words available to an officer who bears the tragic news to a stricken family."

"Most people refuse to believe that anything unpleasant or disastrous will happen to them. But warnings and cautions are not only for the 'other fellow'".

Forewarned is forarmed, according to the old slogan. So the police chief says "Drive with caution and walk with care."

Two Firehalls 'Lit Up Like Christmas Trees'

Unseasonable weather may be keeping the Christmas spirit bottled up in the east, but members of the city fire department are apparently aware that December 23, is just two weeks away.

At any rate both firehalls in the city—on Moira Street, and on Dundas Street East, have every appearance that Christmas is on its way. Even the customary kick of a bit of cold weather and snow.

At both stations firemen have erected their Yuletide decorations and both buildings are literally "lit up like a Christmas tree." Christmas trees are fixed atop the buildings, all lit up with colored lights, while at the Dundas Street hall, a "natural" tree at the edge of the adjoining lawn has also been decorated with lights.

And to add a bit of reality, to the decorations at the Moira Street station a model of Old Santa himself and two of his reindeer appears on the roof. Old Santa is spotlighted at night and the lights of the electric are getting a big kick from the preview of the jolly old gentlemen who will be making them a visit just two short weeks away.

Stirling Exceeds Hospital Fund Quota by Generous Margin

Stirling village under the chairmanship of Harold Wells has led the way in the County of Hastings by exceeding its objective for the Hospital Building Fund by 58 per cent. Stirling's objective was $3,000 and to date this community has raised $4,206 which does not include two gifts of $1,000 each contributed by local doctors. The Stirling committee also organized and canvassed the Rawdon district, obtaining $2,370 in additional gifts.

Mr. Wells said that the people of Stirling were originally not aware of the urgent need for their financial participation in the Fund. He said many residents misunderstood certain hospital problems but were completely sympathetic once these problems were explained.

He felt that each residential became aware of the danger confronting them if a hospital bed were not available when it was needed the project became a personal responsibility. He was pleased that the hospital needs of residents of Stirling are so different from those of other people throughout the County and that he intended to visit other communities will also do their part in meeting local and County objectives.

Tobacco Stocks Take a Tumble On Cancer Issue

NEW YORK (AP) — Tobacco company stocks took a tumble yesterday following reports relating to medical and scientific reports which linked in a connection between cigaret smoking and lung cancer.

The reports, however, have not gone unchallenged.

Dr. Alton Ochsner, Yale professor of biometry (statistical studies of human life) and statistical research director for the American Cancer Society, says there is still no proof—only indications—that cigaret smoking causes lung cancer.

At Notre Haven, Indiana, Hammond said a study he is directing of the smoking habits of 204,000 men has not warrant "even a most preliminary analysis of the relationship between smoking and cancer.

TESTS NOT FINAL

Concerning other studies already made of smoking in relation to human cancer, Hammond said:

"Certain investigators, including myself, are not completely convinced as to the validity of the results in spite of the fact that a number of independent studies conducted in more or less the same way led to more or less the same apparent conclusions."

Hammond added that laboratory evidence gives no positive proof that cigaret smoking causes lung cancer but it is highly suggestive.

In Winston-Salem, N. C., Wednesday, the president of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. Inc., said there has been "no real or substantiated evidence showing cigarets cause lung cancer."

Windsor Police Wound One Man After Wild Chase

WINDSOR (CP)—One man was wounded by police guns Wednesday night and two others arrested, one an American, after a wild chase through Windsor suburbs.

Police said three men stole a car in Windsor, broke into a store at Harrow and later stole gas and oil for the car. Those arrested were identified as Leo Plein, 22, of Cleveland, Robert Berry, 18, who refused to give an address, and Arthur Thompson, 22, of Windsor, who was slightly wounded.

ON HIT GATEPOST

Provincial police discovered the Harrow break-in and reported a car racing toward Windsor. At the city outskirts, police took up the chase. The car failed to make a turn under the Ambassador bridge and crashed into a church gatepost. Three men ran from the car and one was shot in the hip when he failed to stop.

The owner of the stolen car, Robert Wainwright, 18, of Dearborn, Mich., was skating at Windsor arena when the auto was taken. He walked into Windsor police station as the theft at Harrow was reported and listened to the chase, crash and capture on police radio.

Banks, utilities and refining oils were the weak elements that led the industrials downward. Papers made a slight gain and other trading was scattered.

Golds traded lightly and all groups showed an almost even balance of gains and losses. The only large price changes were Dickie, a senior which gained 15 cents, and Prospectors Airways, a holding company which lost the same.

Uraniums were slightly changed with a few issues showing small gains, Nesbitt-Labine, New Delhi, Laredo and Marlbroro, recent active issues, all lost pennies or fractions in light trading.

Windsor's Growth Makes Toronto Jealous, Claim

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Mayor Arthur Reaume Wednesday charged at a board of trade meeting that Toronto is jealous of Windsors industrial growth.

He said the Ontario capital "has tried to undermine us with false stories building up the idea there is an unhealthy industrial climate here.

The mayor said assessments in Windsor are lower than any other major city in Ontario and "that should be made abundantly clear.

The mayor made the statements in connection with a decision by the board to grant Chrysler Corporation of Canada a 20-year lease on Walker road property it needs for a parking lot. Chrysler had turned down a city offer to sell the property for about $36,000. It offered about $11,000.

PUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Rain squalls riding on 30-mile-an-hour winds swept western New York state during the night, and storm warnings were put on on Lake Erie and Lake Ontario.

The weather bureau said gusts up to 36 miles an hour buffeted the area.

Falling temperatures today were expected to bring snow flurries and occasional snow squalls.

CZECH PRESIDENT ILL

Suspended Judge Will Hold Court Despite Ruling

FRANKFURT (AP) — Acting chief justice Carl W. Fulghum of the United States courts in Germany today threw a legal roundhouse at his suspended fellow jurist by postponing a court session scheduled for next Monday.

Suspended chief justice William Clark had told reporters earlier he would not recognize his suspension and would hold court "even if I sit the only one on the bench."

He issued a statement saying he was hurt at Fulghum's acceptance of the appointment as acting chief justice and said he thought Fulghum should resent "being placed on probation."

REFUSED TO GO HOME

Fulghum told reporters he was sorry Clark had issued such a statement and added: "I have postponed hearings scheduled for Monday, Dec. 14, to 13 and 18."

Clark, suspended Wednesday by the state department for insubordination in refusing an order to return home for consultations, has been dismissed, effective Jan. 8. Clark has announced he does not recognize his dismissal.

The outspoken jurist told reporters that the order to fire him came from state department "rookie pushers" who had used insulting language.

French Planes Flying Troops To Thai Country

HANOI, Indo China (AP) — French transport planes, flying a record 138 sorties, poured a steady stream of troops and war material into the Thai country of northwest Indo-China today to reinforce positions against expected Communist-led Vietminh assaults.

The airlift from Hanoi was stepped up as the French and Thais entrenched in the great Thai capital of Lai Chau and on the plain at Dien Bien Phu, awaited an attack at either or both points by a Vietminh division.

French fighters and bombers, flying 90 sorties, plastered the Vietminh along the route of march. They also hit heavily at Yen Bay, on the upper Red river about 90 miles northwest of Hanoi, which the Vietminh have been using as a concentrement.

The advancing Vietminh division was last reported less than 15 miles from Lai Chau. Another column was reported moving slowly in the direction of Dien Bein Phu.

Andrei Vishinsky, 70 on Thursday, Not Slowing Down

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Russia's cold-tongued Andrei Vishinsky reached 70 today without showing any signs of slowing down. He planned to work as usual.

The veteran diplomat may have mellowed a bit in his social life, but he has lost none of his energy or his ability to ch ch at opponents in debate. Apparently in much better health than he was a few years ago, he follows a schedule that would tax the strength of men 20 years younger.

Vishinsky was 62 when he first appeared on the United Nations scene in London in 1945. Long famous for his role as prosecutor in the Soviet purge trials of the '30s, he has been one of the main attractions for UN visitors ever since.

B.C. Fishermen Making Money Off Fish Livers

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia fishermen are still making good money with fish livers, a vitamin source, but high prices of a few years ago are no longer available.

Once the chief source of A and D vitamins, fish livers now have to face competition from new synthetic vitamins chemically produced and an influx of Japanese fish livers into the American market.

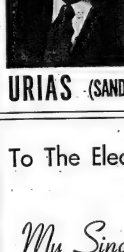
Prices now are only a fraction of what they were in 1945 and 1946, when the livers added $1,000,000 annually to B.C., fishermen's income. High potency livers that used to bring 80 cents a pound are now worth 25 or 30 cents. Low grade livers that once brought 25 cents are now worth only five or six cents.

Hon-ever, long-liners and trawlers still extract the livers from halibut, cod and other fish caught and market them as a profitable by-product.

Fishermen still make sets for dogfish, using old gill nets. Dogfish livers have a high vitamin content and a small load brought into Vancouver recently from the Gulf of Georgia brought 90 cents to $1. a pound.

Price paid is based on the result of chemical analysis. Livers this year on the average are low in vitamin potency, thought to be due to the natural shortage of natural organic feed in the water. Many varieties of fish live on plankton, minute sea vegetable which authorities say has been lacking in some pacific waters.

KILLED SON, "INSANE"



LONDON (Reuters)—Mrs. Teresa Mariam Conroy, who gave her 13-year-old son a "ceremonial burial" in a sofa, Tuesday was found "guilty but insane" on a charge of murdering the boy Sept. 23. The body of the epileptic youngster was found by his parents three days after the killing in their London home.

Thank You!

. . . for your confidence and support on Monday, December 7th. You may rest assured that I will always be working in the interests of the people of Belleville.

AN ALARMING SITUATION

Some Ontario men want to go to jail.

This fact has alarmed the Ontario Legislature's select committee on reform institutions, as well it might.

Such a situation is proof positive that something is seriously amiss.

We are not so sure, however, that the committee discovered a reasonable explanation for such a condition when it concluded that prison life has been made too attractive.

Attractiveness is a matter of relativity. It is also a matter of personal taste. There are several features about jail life in Ontario which would make it most unattractive to most of us. If it is not without its appeal to some men, there are only two conclusions to be reached. Either the alternative, life outside prison walls, offers them far too little or else their tastes are poor. Neither of these conditions will be remedied by making prison life more unattractive, although this course may be advisable as providing a stronger curb on crime. But in this instance the committee was not considering men who embrace crime because they do not fear prison, but men who embrace prison life because they prefer it to freedom.

One such man was a 34-year-old Toronto resident who was charged in Hamilton with vagrancy. Rev. A. W. Downer, Progressive Conservative member for Dufferin-Simcoe, thought it was easy to see why he wanted to go to jail. "It's warm and comfortable there and the food is good," said Mr. Downer. But it should be possible for this Toronto man to lead a warm, comfortable and well-fed life outside of jail, providing he is willing to work. If he is not willing to work, then there is something seriously wrong with his attitude towards life and one may be pardoned for doubting whether making prison life a cold, uncomfortable and ill-fed existence is an adequate remedy.

James Dempsey, Progressive-Conservative member for Renfrew South, who urged a return to punitive measures and hard institutions, said that older men are willing to sacrifice old age pensions to go to jail.

Mr. Downer seems to have already provided the answer to that problem. "Something is wrong with the system," he had asserted earlier in comparing the amount the government spends on the upkeep of the law-breaker and the law-observer.

Peter Manley, Liberal member for Stormont, said that when fall rolls around there is a rush to commit some minor offence so as to get back into jail. He drew from this conclusion that putting men in jail is not any punishment.

To make life in jail a harder one, however, seems to be attacking only one-third of the problem. It will serve to discourage the criminal. But two other things need to be done.

One is to make life outside the bars less of a hardship during the winter months for those men who find it difficult to obtain work at that period of the year. They are mostly unskilled men in the lower age brackets.

The other great need is to discover some method of altering the outlook of the indolent, who will not work even when given the opportunity.

A TIMELY WARNING

A Christmas tree can bring tragedy into the home if proper precautions are not taken. Each year many fire losses and some deaths, can be traced directly to Christmas trees.

The All Canada Insurance Federation, representing more than 200 fire, automobile and casualty insurance companies in Canada, says that Christmas trees are exceptionally combustible because of their high content of pitch and resin. The Federation lists fourteen safety precautions. Here they are:

1. Small trees, less combustible than big ones, should be chosen.

2. Trees should be kept outdoors until a few days before Christmas.

3. Tree should be set away from radiators, heaters and fireplaces.

4. A container filled with water should be part of the base.

5. Do not place trees near doorways or stairways.

6. Cotton or paper decorations, unless fireproof, should not be used.

7. Be sure electrical decorations do not overload circuits.

8. Sockets and wiring of lighting sets should be carefully inspected before installation.

9. Make sure lights are not drying out Christmas tree needles.

10. Lights should not be left burning when the house is unoccupied.

11. Fallen needles should be swept out regularly. When needles start to fall, the tree should be discarded.

12. Gift wrappings should be removed promptly from beneath the tree after gifts have been opened.

13. Never smoke or lay a cigaret down near the tree or other decorations.

14. Don't set up electric trains near the tree.

INDIVIDUAL WORLD

Each of us has a world to own,
Though never on a map it's shown.
It has no boundaries defined;
It's governed by the heart and mind.
Though lacking an impressive dome,
Its capital is known as home,
This personal world begins and ends
Where dwell our loved ones and our friends.
Our various interests and affairs
Consist of these: their joys and cares.
Though over them no flag's unfurled,
They are the people of our world.

One welcomed in, a stranger may Become a citizen to stay.
Our care for him or her we'll show;
And what harms or pleases we shall know;
And with a wider boundary
Our world by one increased will be.

When in our capitol we are,
All, we'll remember, near or far.
Because we know them fee'll
How much their welfare means to us.
Our program this: our world to be
A peaceful one, from hatred free.

Sings Praises Of Glorious Pie

(The Cleveland Plain Dealer)

Of pie we have no more than a casual dire for more of the succulent pastry, that tops a blessed meal. For this is the season of the year the abundance of the special ingredients that go into the making of the pies: sturdy unblemished apples, brown-yellow pure pumpkin, and mysterious mince meat.

If womankind is God's greatest creation, certainly one of her greatest products of wit and wisdom is pie. How to describe the flaky dough that serves as lower support, but no an eavestrough for the juices that simmer above through the baking process; the tangy fruits—even nondescript pumpkin is a fruit when adequately prepared and disguised for its ultimate destination—and finally, the topping, whether done fluffy dough, of meringue, or whipped cream. These are the substances that go into a pie, but there is more to a good one than that, for the whole is bound together with the master's character, self-respect and love of good things and good food.

We may be putting pie on a pedestal, when it deserves to be on the table, but we're not the only talking about pie in the sky. Those who do have not realize that putting it out of reach they would be undermining one of the more vital supports of the typical home.

Who is the proper time for pie? What does it matter, a pie-loving friend asks as he dips into a huge helping as a midnight snack. What does it matter if it will keep me awake thinking about eating more pie tomorrow.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE BEST RIGHT NOW

Some students of a large eastern university gave a party recently in celebration of the first game gobbled into the service. A lot of liquor was consumed, and before morning the police had to step in and take over.

They found the fraternity house a shambles. There was much broken up the furniture—their own furniture. They had torn the bannisters off the stairs, smashed windows, and wrecked walls which could be repaired only at vast cost. The dean of this university decided to call in the dean of another university so he questioned the students, for he realized that there was something more involved than the mere destruction of property. One by one the students were brought in and questioned. To the amazement of each dean, they found, amid a multitude of answers to their questions, this one statement recurring over and over again: "What difference does it make, anyway?" Or it may be dead in a year or two. Why not break up everything if we want to?"

In spite of the shadow of war falling across precariously youth, these days are nevertheless the most promising ever confronted. If any considerable number of our young people are asking the question, "What does it matter, anyway?" we are as a nation in a state of great jeopardy.

The answer to the question, "What does it matter, anyway?" is, "There never was a time when life could mean so much to so many as it does right now."

Letter to the Editor

Mindful of Real Meaning of Christmas

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

May I take this opportunity of congratulating you in reminding us of the real meaning of Christmas through your publication of the Greatest Faith Ever Told" by Fulton Oursler. Your readers feel that you are to be commended for helping to bring Christ back into Christmas.

Likewise our service clubs are to be congratulated in sponsoring the back-to church movement—thus building up a Christian atmosphere in our city.

Recently we read where a study club in Canada is working on censorship. Every citizen should feel an individual interest in this project and we do hope that the organization will continue with its good work.

Now that the Christmas festival is so near at hand perhaps we could have more of a "Christ" spirit in our homes, on our streets, on our lawns, in our churches, and in our every day living.

We are well aware that only certain merchandise can be displayed at this time but could we not find just "A Little Room In The Inn."

We do not mean that any great expense should be entailed in this project, but just "something" by which we might be able to show our children the real and true picture of Christmas.

Our children know the old and lovable legend of Santa Claus because we have tried to keep this story before them.

Let us now put forth still greater efforts to impress on their fertile minds the greatest of all stories—that of the Christ Child.

"An Interested Citizen"

God Give You Bases to Guard

(Montreal Gazette)

Today Sir Winston Churchill will be seventy-nine years old. It is a great age, a time when most men would rather seek the fireplace, and dream over the days that are gone. But Sir Winston, more perhaps than any other man in the world's centre. And though tremendous burdens of responsibility have been laid upon him and though he bears them seriously, he does not take himself.

As he himself has said: "The genius and greatness of our race lie in the unconquerable and development of the spirit of adventure and self-reliance." And even in his 80th year, that spirit lives in Sir Winston. It is the abiding source of his genius and greatness.

It is by his character alone that Sir Winston has mastered so much. Others won the most improbable of victories, and won them without any sort of those who once rejected him.

But there must be something that touches the heart at the sight of this old man, bowing now with the weight of his years, but erect and never complaining, and accepting events without grievance. "It seems to bring back the scene a few years ago when Sir Winston visited Harrow, and captured again the "wild freshness" of the immortal speech. Then, as the small English boys clustered about him, he sang the famous school song, "Forty Years On."

Forty years on, growing older
And still forty-one
Shorter in wind, as in memory long,
Feeble of foot and rheumatic in shoulder,
What will it help you that once you were strong?
God give you bases to Guard and Endeavour,
Games to play and whether earnest or fun,
Fights for the fearless and goals for the eager,
Twenty and thirty, and forty to run.

Free Legal Aid Badly Needed

(Vancouver Sun)

The public has an obligation to recognize and seriously study the need for an organized system of free legal aid in Canada.

We are not speaking only of providing defense for people involved in criminal charges. That need has been acknowledged for a long time—though little has been done about it. But there is a need for providing advice in the law, and if necessary a friend at court, for many thousands of the poor and near-poor in Canada in civil actions.

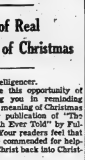
Up to now in some Canadian provinces—notably Ontario and British Columbia—an organized system of legal aid has been left to the good offices of the legal profession. But it's not farreaching enough. And if it is to be extended it is most unfair to let the whole burden remain on the legal profession.

John F. Nelligan, assistant director of the Survey of the Legal profession in Canada, in an article on "Legal Aid in Canada" in the Canadian Bar Review, submits that the need for legal aid is not the result of poverty alone. It are on the part of the legal profession to provide legal aid for the poor.

He says: "It arises rather from the gradual mold of our society to do large, impersonal communities which are the result of increasing web of laws and regulations which touch the individual. Justice remain the same, their application becomes increasingly difficult. The law is a complex body of legal profession but of the public as well. Legal aid must be made available to ensure the legal protection of the poor for rich and poor alike. Justice is the business of everybody."

Now for the present Canadian patchwork of legal aid fails to meet the needs of the poor in a matter of opinion. Mr. Nelligan shows that it is much less embraced than in England which has a budget of about $2 million a week. In the U.S. it is estimated that 1,000 legal agencies handle 7.5 cases for every thousand persons. Moreover, none of these agencies feels it is responsible for the entire community which according to some estimates runs to 10 cases per thousand persons.

If this is true of Vancouver the local lawyers alone handle about 2,000 cases a year instead of around 500.



Vexing questions are: Who should get free aid and who should pay for the service? Up to now legal aid societies have been a profession which works voluntarily. From Mr. Nelligan's account it's obvious that not all the very poor are reached by present facilities. And there's a large body of people of modest incomes who can be severely financially by unexpected legal costs just as thoroughly as by unexpected medical costs. Society has created the conditions which make the "ever-involved" and "ever-busy" state of citizens." It becomes its duty to provide legal aid for indigently or abnormally become entangled in the web.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

LET'S DUST OFF THE BRIC-A-BRAC

Dr. Brady

It seems as though (please give me credit for not saying it seems like) the average layman, who has had two or high school, is as dumb as ever about questions of physiology, hygiene, health and disease. The queries that come in the daily mail include these hardy perennials:

Q. Is it dangerous to let food stand in the can after opening the can? A—No.

Q. Please tell me something to put in my husband's coffee to make him stop drinking! A—There is no such remedy. You can't make a person with weak sincerity by attending a meeting of A.A. If he does he may call you blessed.

Q. Should a person with weak heart sleep on the back or on one side? If on one side, which side? A—It doesn't matter. Whether one has strong or weak heart one should sleep in whichever position one's prefers.

Q. Is poached egg easier to digest than fried or hard boiled eggs? A—Egg type or cookery as you like is easiest for you to digest.

Q. Do you recommend taking the juice of half a lemon in hot water for gallstones? A—Yes, if you like it, lemon or lemon juice is always healthful, whether there's anything the matter with you or not.

Q. What do you think of a young woman who expects her first baby early in February standing on a table to paint her kitchen ceiling? A.—Why not? In an easy way to have a shampoo when menstruating? A—No, nor to take a bath, nor to go in swimming.

Q.—Is it not advisable to keep that throat covered with muffler or other clothing when one has sore throat or laryngitis? . . . .

Answer—Of course not, Tilly—but what's the use of answering such a query? Any fool thinks he knows better than I do about such a bath, yet—

Q.—If a baby gets hold of a box of kitchen matches and puts them in his mouth is there danger of poisoning? A.—The head of a well known company discovered phosphorous compound which is now so poisonous that originally gave it to the industry, and so matches have been poisonous for some thirty years past.

Q.—Dr. . . . . of the Clinic says a well balanced diet supplies all the vitamins and minerals one needs. . . . You'ah but without specific breakfast, lunch and dinner menus who can know whether one is well balanced," whatever that means?

Friend's View Of Our Land

(Financial Post)

"Should you decide to change your luck in this bright new land, remember that it is different, not quite alien, but yet quite different from Britain, tied to her only by sentiment and sacred blood."

Thus a writer in the British magazine "Picture Post" advises the prospective settler. Many pleasant things about Canada, refers to the feeling of "taking part in a great adventure." He says we aren't like Americans and pays tribute to the power of money in life because Britons out here, he says, are hard to find; "they take into Canadians that easily."

But he says: "Some things the immigrant from the Old Country will miss, "things you might find hard to put a name to." In his kindly comments, he's touched some of our national weak spots.

This is what he says:

"It is true that Canadians are cultural barbarians, as the snobbish might infer. There is probably as much real literature, in the shape of orchestras, symphonies, ballets, composers, theatres, and art galleries in the great cities as there is in most of provincial Britain, if not in London itself. The lack—and it's one which we can't deny—is rather in the simpler graces of everyday life, as known on our side of the Atlantic—the friendly policeman, the humorous bus conductor, the local pub, the 'characters.' This (Canada) is a land of big things, and the first glance, seeming very much wrapped up in themselves, pursuing the dollar at the time as the key to happiness."

Still, we are pretty busy building this land of ours, hence, the words of such comment from a friend.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

During the Christmas rush, which is already upon us, downtown traffic becomes a panic. Besides the unusual increase in trucks and lorries delivering merchandise to the stores, a considerable number of wives perambulate downtown in their family's car for the day. These cars would normally have been driven down to work by husband Pa, and parked in his usual place, in back of the warehouse. But Ma wants to shop. She wants to shop here, and then there. With parcels in the back of the car, she has to have to walk a block or two, in all that crowd, to get anywhere. And why not, she tries to get as near her successful objective as she can with the car. And naturally, she finds a little trouble finding a place here and there. She goes round and round, slowly, alertly, watching, waiting, and finally, if she can't pop into a spot, she double parks.

Just for a second! Just for a minute or two, while she runs in the store.

And she gets away with it. For what kind of a police force do you suppose we would have if it didn't get a little soft-hearted at this Yuletide season?

Maybe for a minute that we are blaming the down-town traffic panic on Ma. All are contributing to it there. You look. You'll see her. A little flushed.

Now Pa, you should remind ourselves that there are a considerable number of wives perambulate downtown in their family's car for the day. DYNAMIC WORDS

There are no more dynamic things than mere words. It all starts with communication, speech and treatment. Napoleon had a genius for uttering a few words that kindled the hearts of his men to performances, as when in his Egyptian campaign he cried: "Soldiers, from yonder pyramids, forty centuries look down upon you," and again, when he was in attempt crossing the Alps into Italy he cried: "Soldiers shall be no Alps!" Words that were dynamic.

Numberless words echo down the centuries, spoken by those who had the power to move the world. Like that sentence by Patrick Henry: "Give me Liberty, or give me death." The writings of Shakespeare are chock full of dynamic expressions that are continuously quoted.

Yet other hand words do not need to be explosive to be greatly significant. Some are sublime in spiring are the words, so beautifully formed, as those found in the Psalms of David in the Bible. The writings of Lafcadio Hearn have always intrigued me because of their magic of expression. He had a poetic mind.

There is no end to the influence of words, rightly used. Words to harm and tragedy they often cause when wrongly composed and sent out into the world! I once read

The Greatest Faith Ever Known

Can a Gentile Be a Christian?

CHAPTER 17.

The two travellers planned a brief respite in Syrian Antioch. The days of long journeying and persecutions were written in their lean faces and the deep hollows of their eyes. The people of Antioch were breathless to hear their story, and, when Luke at last related what great things God had done with them, and how He had opened the door of faith to the Gentiles.

That report about the Gentiles stirred up the trouble.

There were still valiant and earnest men among those early Christians who believed that the Messiah had come on a special mission to Israel, bearing an exclusive message or redemption for the souls of Jews. They were willing to admit that Gentiles could become Christians, but they believed that the Gentiles must first ceremoniously become Jews.

In Jerusalem the reports about the kind of converts Paul and Barnabas had made raised severe arguments. Some of the Jerusalem Christians actually came to Antioch to announce that any Gentile who wanted to be baptized, must first become a Jew, and follow all the Jewish customs and rituals.

Now Paul and Barnabas had never dreamed of teaching any such doctrine, nor did they believe that ancient Jewish customs had anything whatsoever to do with Christ's salvation of the human soul. To their enlightened minds it was perfectly clear that Christ's message was for the whole world, not limited to those who observed the Jewish rites. Christianity could never be a sect of Judaism!

The arguments in Antioch were prolonged into a wrangling disturbance that rocked the congregation. Who was right? the people asked themselves. And who could say with authority?

There was only one answer. Peter and the council of the apostles must settle the matter. So Paul and Barnabas and their antagonists set out for Jerusalem.

"...he told the apostles and elders the history of their first missionary journey—a moving story."

With a heavy heart Paul trudged southward to Jerusalem beside Barnabas, his only friend, it seemed, except for one co-worker from Antioch, a man called Titus. Titus was already one of Paul's most committed believers, and the apostle looked on him as his spiritual son. And Titus was a Gentile, proud of his Greek parentage, a Christian who had not the least desire to follow Jewish rites.

Paul had chosen him to go to Jerusalem as a living and dramatic example of the problem; a typical Gentile convert whose point of view, he felt sure, must impress the original "Pillar Apostles," who were the ruling force in the Church council.

At last they came again in sight of the towers and domes of Jerusalem. Through the Sheep's Gate, through the colorful human tide of the festival crowds from all lands who thronged the streets, they made their way to the Cenacle. A crowd of Christians, including the "Pillar Apostles" with Peter in the midst, waited for them in the Upper Room.

The great debate was about to open.

Paul was given the floor, all to himself. With Barnabas to buttress his account, he told the apostles and elders the history of their first missionary journey. It was a moving story of the long weary way: Cyprus and Pisidian Antioch; Iconium and Lystra; Derbe and Perga.

"How great things God had done with us, I came to tell you," declared Paul, "of the miracles, the escape, from death, and of the astounding numbers of Gentile converts. When the story was told, Paul and Barnabas waited in an uneasy silence.

Slowly, certain frowning brethren rose to break the stillness. They considered themselves Christians, Pharisees; they were of the same legalistic training as Paul, and they resented his attitude to the Gentiles all the more because they thought he was betraying his lofty position by forgetting his basic training. So they stood up before the apostles and elders and they said that indeed Gentiles could become converts, but "it was needful to circumcise them and to command them to keep the Law of Moses."

Before long the Cenacle was in turmoil. Men took sides, apostles and elders clashing until Peter rose. His voice rode over their clamor, commanding silence, he reminded them of his vision at Joppa. Cornelius the Roman had been the last case, decided by the actual voice of God: A Gentile could become a Christian, and neither circumcision, or any other Jewish rite was the price of salvation.

And when Peter had spoken, as the Bible tells us, "all the multitude held their peace."

As Paul was to remember in writing his letter to his friends in Galatia later:

"Neither Titus, who was with me, being a Greek, was compelled to be circumcised. . . And when James, Peter, and John who seemed to be the pillars perceived the grace that was given unto me, they gave to me and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship, that we should go unto the heathen, and they unto the circumcision."

Titus, the uncircumcised Greek, was the living proof that Gentiles could be Christians without becoming Jews. Paul and Barnabas were to go their way, preaching to the Gentiles, and the Pillar Apostles would continue to preach to the Jews.

With those firm handclasps to seal the understanding, the disputation ended. Paul and Barnabas, heartened and uplifted, were again on their feet, one's words counting more of their adventures and more of the miracles God had wrought among the Gentiles by them — the healing of the man with paralyzed feet, and Paul's amazing recovery from the stoning at Lystra.

When they had finished, James the Lord, and speaking of Peter, called the man of rock by his childhood name of Simon, said:

"Men, brethren, hear me.

"Simon hath related how God first visited to take of the Gentiles a people to His name.

"And to this agree the words of the prophets . . . To the Lord was His own work known from the beginning of the world. For which cause I judge that they, who from among the Gentiles are converted to God, are not to be disquieted.

But that we write unto them, that they refrain themselves from the pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood. For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him in the synagogues, where he is read every Sabbath."

James laid his emphasis not only on Peter's vision by the sea, but also on the words quoted from the prophet Amos. His thought was that the Gentiles be advised that — since they need not be circumcised — they should refrain themselves from the pollution of idols and from fornication and from things strangled, and from blood."

There was wisdom in James's appeal. No follower of the true God approved of idols or fornication. But the dietary restriction to kosher food would mean something else — proof that Jewish tradition still ranked high in the Christian Church.

Still, even Paul could see that if the Gentiles accepted this discipline willingly they would be more quickly tolerated by the Jewish traditionalists in the Church. There was practicality in the tactics which the Lord was suggesting.

The council decided that the missionary work among the Gentiles would be continued, but some representatives from Jerusalem would go along with Paul and Barnabas to carry a message from the council. Two were chosen: Judas, called Barsabas, and Silas (also called Sylvanus); both were regarded as foremost men among the brethren and entirely to be relied upon.

No today knows anything more about Judas Barsabas. But Silas Sylvanus was to share in all the dangers of Paul's second missionary journey. He became Paul's intimate friend.

The council addressed a letter to the brethren in Antioch explaining their decision, and sending them three messengers, Barnabas and Titus, and their two companions who carried the letter with them.

The troubled Gentiles were relieved at the tone and friendliness of that decree as it was read to them in their assembly. The restrictions did not seem too difficult to follow. They rejoiced "for the consolation"; they could be welcomed as Christians.

Barnabas went back to Jerusalem and obscurity.

But Silas chose to remain. He and Paul and Barnabas had a great deal they must now consider.

On the surface things seemed tranquil. On the question of equality for the Gentiles, Peter had spoken in agreement with Paul. And Paul was resolved to co-operate in every way possible. But he was profoundly disturbed. Wise in human nature, he fully expected trouble.

It arrived, strangely enough, with Peter himself.

In Jerusalem, new persecutions were threatening the faith and when all the apostles except James, left the Holy City, Peter went to Antioch.

Peter recognized that this city, where Paul and Barnabas had made so many Gentile converts, was the very core of the Judaizing disputes among the Christians. And this once impulsive, headstrong man, now sobered by his responsibility, meant to heal the breach and prayed for wisdom to do so.

It was not easy for Peter. Close to Christ as he had been, personally commissioned and instructed, Peter was still under the spell of his boyhood training and discipline, a traditional way of looking at life hard to get over.

Paul was to declare fully of himself that he was "all things to all men," but there was no such felicity in Peter. He had seen the vision that taught him that he must look at no one as common or unclean; he had obeyed directions and surmounted his anti-Gentile prejudice against Cornelius and his family and friends. Yet Peter still felt more comfortable among his own kind. No matter how he commanded his mind and emotions to obey him, Peter could not overcome a certain squeamishness sitting at a Gentile's table and eating bread that had been kneaded by alien hands.

But in Antioch Peter earnestly tried to put his Master's way of universality into practice. He not only guided and taught the Gentile converts, he also ate with them, in their houses, of their cooking. And he did so with a smile of welcome that brought every other Christian Jew into his warmth, and led them with Peter into true fellowship with their new brothers in baptism.

Then suddenly Peter ate no more at the house of Titus or of Luke the physician; he was absent from all Gentile tables.

James the Lord, who had been left in charge of the Jerusalem group, had heard of Peter's defying habits, and sent messengers down to talk to Peter. Now, indeed James the Lord, did Peter expect to be an apostle of the Jews? If he offended the Jews in the world by associating with Gentiles? All very well, to permit Gentile converts to join the Church without adopting all the Hebrew rules, said James — but a born Jew must never desert his traditional obligations, even after baptism!

Peter let himself be swayed by James's message. And his behavior outraged Paul.

Paul was stunned.

He simply could not stand by and let them jeopardize the faith of the Gentiles by refusing to eat at their tables. In front of everyone he spoke to Peter, admonishing him for such behavior: Is God the God of Jews only? Is He not also the God of Gentiles? Yes, of Gentiles as well, as indeed is one God Who justifies the circumcised by faith, and the uncircumcised through the same faith. Do we then nullify the Law through the faith? By no means! On the contrary, we corroborate the Law."

Paul withstood him to his face, and Peter yielded. He realized in a rush of self-reproach that the same revelation which had led him to the house of the Gentile Cornelius should have guided him here in Antioch. Paul had been right on his side.

Human as they were, both these men were in saintly earnest, seeking to serve God in truth. From among years it is easy to magnify their disagreements and their mistakes. The turmoil over the place of Gentiles in Christianity was serious. But lest we judge too harshly of Peter, let us look around and remember that there are white men and women today who are themselves Christian leaders and still manage to avoid eating or even praying under the same roof with Christians of different skin color from their own.

It appeared that Paul was stating the issue squarely and accurately, and he could neither compromise nor straddle it.

Humbly, Peter made the only possible decision. He walked back to the houses of the Gentiles, ate and ate with them again. In spite of James's understandable fears, Peter remained free from the appearance of prejudice.

And Paul turned eager attention on his own great work, a more version campaign, the adventure history calls his Second Missionary Journey.

St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, To Hold 1st. Adventide Service

By MRS. PERCY MACMULLEN

The first Adventide service in centennial year was held Sunday evening at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, with Mr. R. A. Patterson in charge of the carol singing.

The special message was based on Charles Dickens' Christmas Carol, a prose, "A Ghost Story of Christmas". Mr. Bram Humphreys, Belleville, ably interpreted the story and the characters lived again as he read the lines.

The tight-listed Scrooge, Bob Cratchit, and others were presented in relation to Marley's ghost, and finally Scrooge promised the Phantom that if he were allowed to live he would lead an altered life.

The last chapter showed that the old man was true to his word and that he knew how to keep Christmas well and may that be truly said of all and as "Tiny Tim" observed, "God bless us every one".

The pastor, Rev. A. E. Baker, presided and warmly thanked Mr. Humphreys for his presentation of this fine old story.

Two vocal solos were rendered by Misses Laura Johnson and Roseanne Vandervoort. A mixed quartet, Mrs. Walter Warren, Mrs. George Heasman, Harry E. Brown and William Aylsworth delighted with a selection.

The senior choir rendered "O Little Town of Bethlehem," in a special arrangement by Neidlinger. Mrs. A. E. Baker delighted with several organ selections which included "Donatini" and a "Medley of Christmas Carols."

Special seasonal hymns were sung throughout the service.

The church was resplendent with two large spruce trees from the farm woodlot of Mr. Clifford Lansing. Several baskets of assorted mums added color to the church altar.

At the morning service, the Royal choir rang a Scotch carol, and two vocal solos were given by Mrs Sandra West and Miss Helen Stapley.

On Sunday morning, December 13, "White Gifts for the King" will be featured, and that evening, "A Fred Waring Christmas story will be interpreted. This story of the "Malivity" was first performed on NBC in 1945 on Christmas Eve. It is understood this presentation at St. Paul's in connection with the C. C. the first presentation in Canada of this particular arrangement.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HER MOTHER DIDN'T TRUST HER—SHE MAKES A PLEA TO OTHER MOTHERS

A plea for mothers to try and understand their children better, to have more confidence in them and to let them know it, comes in a letter from a woman who didn't have that kind of mother. Because of this, she made an early unfortunate marriage and now, at 31, wants to pass along her own experiences in the hope that it may make at least a few mothers stop and think.

"There were five boys and only two girls in our family," she writes "and although I suppose, by monetary standards, we were from being an adult mentally and emotionally. My mother was afraid I would be wild, and didn't trust me, so she laid down a set of restrictions which I thought unreasonable at the time and, at 31 still believe were unnecessary and unwise.

"When I was little more than 16, my mother told me that she wished I would marry, as she wouldn't have to worry any more about me. So at 21, still too young, I married. Because my mother didn't trust me, she never told me things I should know, and so I had to stumble through without knowledge I should have had. It isn't a good way to make a marriage, and mine only lasted four years when, after much unhappiness, I finally gave up and got a divorce.

TAKE TIME AND PATIENCE

"Well, I'm growing up at last, but I would like to say to other mothers: above all else, teach your children to be honest, and trust them, in return, learn to trust you by your attitude toward them. Most children instinctively love their parents, but parents must earn the respect and confidence of their children. Take time, and have patience, when your children want to talk with you. Remember it isn't always easy for a child to get into words what he thinks and feels.

"One more important thing: respect your child's privacy in every way. Treat him as you wish him to treat you. You would be surprised how it pays off."

Here, in the words of a woman who knows what she is talking about because she has lived it, is what I keep urging upon parents over and over again.

There are innumerable mothers who like this woman's are afraid their children may be "wild," and so are too opportunity to try and make them aware of this fear. In the hope that this will result in restraining the children. Unfortunately, such mistaken fears are often responsible for pushing them into trouble instead of keeping them out of it. For once a son or daughter becomes aware that a mother seems to expect they will be "wild," they are all to apt to adopt a "What's the use?" attitude. Or else they are bitterly resentful of the parent's lack of faith in them that the resentment drives them into an "I'll show her" demonstration.

Except in extreme cases, the child who is "wild" is the result of parent failure. For the parent who has brought up a boy or a girl with the right standards of conduct, and who has shown the child the kind of understanding the writer of the quoted letter describes, will have no need to worry about "wildness" in her children. Instead, she will be secure in the certainty that she can trust them to live up to the precepts she has laid down and the example she has set, and on their side, knowing of her faith in them, they will not let her down.

Five Oaks

By Mary Moore

The seed of an idea was planted in the mind of some devout men and women and it grew and flourished and became the reality which is Five Oaks today.

Many who read this know the thrilling story of Five Oaks, but I heard the details of it from my sisters after they had taken part in a week-end Retreat.

They commend that summed it up in a cornshell after their return to our own city was this: "It's like returning from Heaven to earth."

In my earthy way I was intrigued by their description in detail of the meals they had been served from Friday evening until Sunday noon. These were supervised and mostly cooked by the deaconess turned cook, Eunice Fyfrom. Then I made the trip four days later and saw her majestic face I knew why they compared Five Oaks to Heaven.

Five Oaks is a three-year-old "protestant" institution on the banks of the Grand River near Brantford where Christian folk may gather to bolster their faith and to apply Christian principles to their daily work in factory, office, church and community.

Sounds oversimplified doesn't it?

But once you have felt the impact and power of their spiritual viewpoint all of your nagging daily problems seem trivial.

Five Oaks is located in the geographical centre of the eastern North American Protestant population and will soon be self-supporting.

We were there on the eve of the arrival of a new Retreat group from Bruce Presbytery—50 strong. This idea of holding Retreats for whole Presbyteries is new and it is hoped they will grow to include other Presbyteries.

It was like the night before Christmas for all was shining clean (made so by the resident staff of seven, which included a United Church minister and his wife), and in the kitchen roasts were roasting, cottage rolls were boiling, carrot puddings were steaming and aromas for the entire week-end were tacked on the wall.

Unnamed friends of Five Oaks had donated two bushels of apples and countless other welcome groceries that afternoon, so Eunice had made hot-water pastry in which to bake some of those gift apples into her famous pies.

While I may be stressing kitchen activities, Christians don't select Five Oaks for a week-end because the meals are good. They go because they are drawn by their aching need for spiritual development and strength.

Permanent Retreats similar to Five Oaks are burgeoning in many Protestant communities in North America and leaders come from great distances to guide and inspire those who come to be helped.

Occasionally with some groups periods of silence are observed during meals, with one member of the group reading while the others eat with a minimum of silver and dishes sounds. Also some groups borrow a Quaker custom in holding devotional gatherings led by no one in particular. If members in the gathering feel an urge to speak they simply stand up and speak.

Since Five Oaks is dedicated to Christian laymen and exists for young and old, rich and poor, the inexperienced and experienced, worshippers and witnesses come from all walks of life. Family camps are held in the summer. This year churchwomen held a conference there. A six weeks' training course for laymen was a revelation to the laymen themselves, for some of them were surprised to be worshipping beside their everyday business associates, and making firm friends of them, by means of the great leveller—mutual worship.

The serenity and peace that flood over and occupies your mind and spirit after one week-end in the Five Oaks communion is summed up in a poster over the main entrance: "If you are too busy to pray you are too busy."

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

ON CHRISTMAS CARDS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have lived in this state only a short time. He is an executive in a rather small office, and we had planned to send Christmas cards to all the employees. Unfortunately, quite a few ago we ordered our Christmas cards imprinted with our formal names—Mr. and Mrs. John Browne, let's say. Then we found out from your column that it is incorrect to have the "Mr. and Mrs." name imprinted after the message on the card. Is there any way we can rectify our mistake? Would it be at all permissible to draw a line through the imprinted names and sign my husband's and my name below, with a note to the few people we know better than we know the others?

A.H.

Please don't be unhappy about the mistake you made. Instead, be grateful you hadn't mailed these cards with the incorrectly imprinted "Mr. and Mrs.—John Browne" after the message, that form not only incorrect, but frigid, entirely lacking in friendliness. Now you have a chance to make a charming virtue of necessity. First cross off in full those formal names . . . in the spirit of "Of course we wouldn't even consider sending a card to you with our formal name on it." Then on every card write a message appropriate to the one or two to whom you are sending the card. For example, to each of your husband's co-workers: Our friendliest greetings to you, and every good wish for your New Year.

John and Mary Browne

(If you sign the cards, you could easily write your name last . . . John and Mary.) To your intimate friends you'll want to write more intimate messages: "We are thinking of you two dear friends with warm-hearted wishes for your happiness at Christmas time and in the New Year. John and Mary."

So, dear lady, take comfort from this thought: If you had ordered your names imprinted as they should be, you probably wouldn't have taken the time and effort to write personal messages on your cards! And it's the personal messages written on Christmas cards that give them the loveliness of friendliness.

SHOULD SHE SEND CHRISTMAS CARDS THIS YEAR?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me the right thing for me to do. My elderly mother passed away last June, and my sister, aged 60, passed away in August. I feel that I shouldn't send Christmas cards this year. What would be proper in my circumstances?

It is quite proper for you to send Christmas cards this year if you really feel that you would like to send your greetings to relatives and close friends. But if you feel that this would be a burden to you, it is perfectly all right for you to do so, under the circumstances, then please don't take on this burden. Your relatives and friends won't expect you to do this.

Canadian Officials Predict There Will Be 'No Price War' In Selling U.S., Can. Wheat

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Razor-edge competition between Canada and the United States has emerged in the sale of surplus wheat, but officials here predict no price rises.

The major development that will key Canada's wheat salesmen on their toes is the U.S. decision, announced Tuesday, to cut the American price of wheat sold outside the International Wheat Agreement to the IWA level.

Historically, the non-IWA price has been higher both in Canada and the U.S.-Canada took steps several months ago to bring both prices into line. This is the first time the U.S. has fallen into step.

Biggest non-IWA market is Britain, which earlier this year declined to sign the new wheat agreement Traditionally Britain is Canada's biggest wheat market. Now the U.S. non-IWA selling price will be virtually the same as Canada's.

Britain will be in the driver's seat. She will have the choice either of buying from Canada or the U.S. The price to her will be the same.

EXPECT U.K. SALES

Officials here said Britain will still continue to buy heavily from Canada because:

1. The U.S. plans to offer only "limited" supplies at the reduced price.

2. Baking quality of Canadian wheat is considered generally to be a little better than the American.

However, they sense the increasing struggle for world markets.

"It will mean competition," said Food Minister Howe, "but no more than we expected."

Another official said "this is a sign of the increasing competition, but there will be no price war."

Canada is currently selling IWA and non-IWA wheat at about $1.85 a bushel, basis No. 1 northern. This is a drop from $2.03 at the start of the crop year last August.

Through subsidies, the U.S. also is selling IWA—and now non-IWA—wheat in line with Canadian prices.

MARMORA

Havelock, Marmora Hockey Winners

MARMORA—An attendance of approximately 250 turned up at the Marmora arena on Monday evening to witness the first of the week's two doubleheaders.

Marmora and Hastings provided the opener in which play throughout was of an even nature. Both goalies Killian for Marmora, and Mulholland for the Tannery boys, were in good form and kept the scoring down. Derrah found the net for Marmora after 14 minutes of play turning Leonard's pass to good account. Brooks followed two minutes later outwitting Mulholland and assists from Jones and Mantle.

Mantle scored unassisted in the second after Oliver had registered for Hastings on Cain's assist. Brooks got his second goal halfway through the third receiving the puck from Mantle. Hastings then got going and almost tied it up. West registered an assists by Oliver and Cain and Morrow beat Killian on assists by Mantle and Jones and Marmora won by 4-3. Penalties were few and minor.

Declare White Helped Throttle British Empire

LONDON (Reuters)—Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard said that the late Harry Dexter White, former assistant secretary of the United States treasury, helped place a "throttlehold" on the British Empire.

It said White played a "vital part" in shaping Britain's post-war policy because of his association with Lord Keynes, famed British economist.

"Together the two men tied Britain to the world bank and the international monetary fund, with consequent blows at the British Empire. The American loan, with similar results, followed."

KEYNES LIKED WHITE

The article, entitled "Was Keynes Duped?" quoted the biography of Lord Keynes written by Dr. Roy Harrod, editor of the Economic Journal.

Harrod is quoted as saying in his book that Keynes thought highly of White and expected he would become head of the international monetary fund, and that if he did the fund would be in safe hands.

"The two men, Keynes and White, are now dead," the article ends. "But the throttlehold they placed on the Empire persists.

"Things might have been different if Keynes had not been taken in so completely by Harry Dexter White."

Western World Acclaiming Proposals by Eisenhower For Atomic Energy Pool

LONDON (CP) — Governments throughout the free world today hailed President Eisenhower's atomic proposals as a major move intended to free the earth from the haunting fear of obliteration.

A foreign office spokesman here said the president made a "profoundly moving speech" which offered a "constructive approach" to the great disarmament problem.

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault said upon his return to Paris that Eisenhower had shown the text of his atomic plan to the French and British delegations in Bermuda and it had been warmly received by them.

"The declaration can have considerable influence," Bidault said. "It testified furthermore to the spirit in which the Atlantic Allies consider the essential and critical problem of the atom in the dilemma of war and peace."

FRENCH ENTHUSIASTIC

Eisenhower's proposals for an international atomic energy pool were generally hailed in Western newspaper editorials.

The London Recorder said the president may have prevented a third world war single-handed by his speech Tuesday in the General Assembly.

The Daily Mail said no man could have gone farther than Eisenhower.

In Australia, Richard Casey, external affairs minister, said the president's proposal would help free the world from the fear of atomic warfare by which "the very continuance of civilized life on the globe is potentially threatened."

CHURCHILL IN FAVOR

Several newspapers, in reporting the "historic speech," said Prime Minister Churchill pledged support of the plan at the Bermuda Big Three conference.

The Daily Herald, organ of the Labor party, asked: "Is it possible that the American gesture may at last see a lightening of the fear that weighs so heavily on men's hearts?"

The Manchester Guardian said that the Eisenhower plan may help break the long East-West deadlock over control of atomic power. But it warned that the plan in itself cannot "provide full control and full security."

TWO PAPERS CRITICIZE

Two British papers attacked Eisenhower for flexing American atomic might.

The Communist Daily Worker summed up the speech as "a blackmailing threat against the Soviet Union."

W. N. Connor, columnist of The Daily Mirror and one of Eisenhower's severest critics in Britain, said the president would have delivered "the biggest scare speech in history about the atom bomb" had not Churchill talked him out of it at Bermuda.

He said Charles D. Jackson, "a psychological warfare expert . . . arc-bigh in the president's councils," had urged Eisenhower to let the world know the full horrors and possibilities of atomic warfare and the hideous potentialities of the hydrogen bomb.

Reasoning behind this "clumsy international political bludgeoning," according to Connor, is this: ". . . if the United States cannot persuade the Soviet Union about the size of the stick that hangs behind the door, she may as well take it down and let all the customers hear the bits and sigh of it as she swings it through the air."

JACKSON BLAMED

Connor, who writes under the pen name "Cassandra," noted that it was Jackson who persuaded Eisenhower "to go to Korea on his shameless vote-catching tour."

"His (Jackson's) advice seems to range from advocating blatant demagoguery in Korea to vulgar muscle-bulging at the United Nations. Thus the luckless president pursues his stumbling career."

But the influential Times said the deep sincerity of the president's speech must have a lasting impression far beyond the ranks of the General Assembly, and "Russia's response to the proposal will be awaited with eagerness."

In Athens, the Greek foreign minister, Stefanos Stefanopoulos, said: "We sincerely hope Eisenhower's proposals will be carried quickly by all. His suggestion brings home that new era in relations between men and nations will ensue."

PLAN SAID PRACTICAL

Official Danish spokesmen said the president's plan is more practical than existing proposals for controlling atomic energy. But while it would be an important step, it only would touch a small part of the atomic problem as a whole.

Austrian officials said their country, "like all others," would welcome anything that would be a step towards banning atomic weapons.

In Ottawa Opposition leader George Drew, speaking in the House of Commons shortly after the president had his address, said:

"It is a speech which should offer greater encouragement than the people of this world have had for many years."

HOWE APPROVES

In an interview, Trade Minister Howe supported Eisenhower's suggestion for a pooling of resources for peaceful development of atomic energy.

He said Canada would accept an invitation to attend the talks proposed by the U. S. president.

A government official said Canada would be in a position to make a definite decision at such a meeting because all Canadian research in the atomic-energy field has been devoted to peacetime use of the atom.

While Canada has the scientific skill to produce an atomic bomb, no research or experiment with weapons forms any part of the Canadian atomic program at Chalk River, Ont. All research is aimed at developing atomic energy for the benefit of mankind, particular attention to medicine and power.

Airmen, Citizen To be Recognized For Part Played

A certain Belleville citizen and two young airmen, at No. 6 R.D., Trenton, will receive some sort of tangible recognition for the part they played in saving the Belleville city hall from more serious damage by fire several weeks ago.

Yesterday in city council, Alderman W. J. Cointryman, as chairman of city property, was authorized to make some suitable recognition for the three men.

The fire on the main stairway of the city hall was noticed about ten o'clock in the evening. A passerby noticed the flames and ran to the nearest phone to call in the alarm. The two airmen entered the city hall, took down the fire hose in the main hall and had the flames partially under control, when firemen arrived.

Says Nizam Gives Up Half Million Grant

BOMBAY (AP)—The Nizam of Hyderabad, one of the world's richest men, is reported to have voluntarily given up an annual Hyderabad state grant equivalent to more than $500,000. There was no official confirmation of the report, however.

The grant has been paid to the Nizam for the maintenance of his palaces every year since 1948, when his state was incorporated into India. The former ruler's fortune has been estimated at $2,000,000,000, mainly in precious metals and jewels.

The secretary was instructed to accept the invitation of the Ontario Urban and Rural School Trustees' Association to send a representative to speak to the local board at a meeting early in the new year.

A letter from the town treasurer, Mr. Elden Ibey, was received in reply to the letter from the board, asking that the school janitor, Mr. C. C. Massie, be admitted to the town group of the Blue Cross plan for hospital care. Mr. Ibey assured the board that Mr. Massie would be welcome to join the town group at the first opening date.

The salary of the secretary-treasurer was reviewed and revised, to be effective Jan. 1, 1954.

The request from Miss Ann Wilson for a card table for her room was received. Mr. W. C. Tatham offered to plan the table and Mr. Forrest Dennis to build it, the board to furnish the material.

INSURANCE DISCUSSED

The big business of the evening was the question of insurance for the public schools, including both fire and liability. Splendid suggestions were received from all fire agencies in town, showing much care and thought on the subject.

There was also present Mr. Allan Masson, sent in by one of the companies. Mr. Masson gave a very comprehensive view of the whole insurance problem as it affects our schools.

The whole problem was much too great to be dealt with in one evening and a committee consisting of Mr. W. C. Tatham, Mr. Forrest Dennis and Mr. Sidney Hopping was appointed to study all suggestions sent in and report their findings to the board.

Mr. Rothwell, principal of the school, brought up again the serious lack of water fountains to meet the need of the children in the senior school.

The board considered the matter to be important to put off any longer and the three plumbing firms in town were invited to make a survey and estimate to be submitted before the next meeting.

Mr. Charles W. Young, Inspector of the Public School, spoke briefly thanking the board for their very fine co-operation with the principal and staff of the public schools. He said, that although he had not yet made his official visit to our schools, he had been very pleased with what he had seen and what he already knew of the work of the school.

Mr. Rothwell invited any member of the board or any interested person to attend the meeting of all teachers in the district to be held in the school on December 30th.

The guest speaker is to be Miss Moore, of Peterborough, who will speak on primary teaching methods. Miss Moore, supervisor of primary work in Peterborough, is a very great authority on this subject and an interesting speaker.

CAMPBELLFORD

R. J. Locke Given Second Term As Town's Mayor

CAMPBELLFORD—By majority of 103 votes R. J. Locke was re-elected as mayor of Campbellford on Monday. His only opponent was Wm. R. Nicholas. The vote was Locke 671, Nicholas 568.

More than 80 per cent of the eligible voters cast their ballots. Mr. Locke led from the start in the hotly-contested election.

Back after a two-year lapse, former mayor and councillor W. A. Kingston, rolled to a decisive first-place victory for council with 775 votes. In second place was a 1953 councillor, Fred M. Rutherford, with 680.

Other successful candidates for council were George Nicholls with 663, Mrs. Isobel Tatham, 391, Franklin Linton 359, and George Vice with 347. Defeated candidates were Gerald J. Blair 318, William Masterton, 290 and David Ness, a 1953 member, 297.

Douglas R. Maybee and George Free, as former councillors, were acclaimed reeve and deputy-reeve at the nominating meeting. The Board of Education also was returned by acclamation.

No Evidence Of Depression Says Expert

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Eric G. Taylor, Canadian economic expert, said Wednesday night there is no evidence of depression on Canada's horizon.

He told a meeting of the St. Catharines Young Liberals Association that Canada's long range economic outlook is the best ever.

"We're the economic garden of the world," he said. "We'll have our ups and downs and there will be adjustments to make but we'll come out all right."

Mr. Taylor is a former president of Brazilian Traction Company.

Polish Exiles Honor Harris And St. Laurent

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent and Immigration Minister Harris were honored by leading Polish exiles Wednesday for their "most understanding attitude in the admission to Canada of intellectuals from behind the Iron Curtain."

A trilingual scroll was presented to them by the president of the Paderewski Foundation of New York, Edward S. Wilkowski, who said that in the five years since its creation, it had been able to bring 250 Poles from Europe to Canada to pursue their studies.

Mr. St. Laurent praised the foundation for its "fine" work in helping to find promising Polish cultural talent to North America.

The foundation, named after the late Ignace Jan Paderewski, a former premier of Poland and a famed musician, statesman and scholar, is supported by private subscription in the United States.

Plane Blows Up In Mid-Air, One Pilot Is Killed

BEL AIR, Md. (AP)—An experimental twin jet night intruder blew up in the skies over Bel Air Wednesday, catapulting the two occupants into space and killing one of them.

Horrified residents of this northeastern Maryland town stood and watched the fliers float to the earth in parachutes.

Police said both men were badly burned in the blast. The dead man was identified as W. H Coldwell, M, a civilian air force inspector.

Injured was the pilot, Maj. Vance W. Beckham, attached to the Glenn L. Martin Co. Middle River plant where the plane, an American version of the British Canberra, is being produced.

Waterloo County May Set Up Health Unit

KITCHENER (CP) — Waterloo county council voted Wednesday to study the possibility of setting up a county health unit embracing the cities of Kitchener, Galt and Waterloo.

Deputy Reeve Donald Pilcher of Preston, who introduced the idea, said that it would avoid duplication in health services and part of the cost would be borne by the province.

He said the type of county health unit set-up he proposed is already operating in 21 counties.

Under it, the province pays 50 per cent of costs to county municipalities; 25 per cent in cities over 25,000 population and 33 1-3 per cent in cities under 25,000.

The program would include communicable disease control, including TB and venereal disease diagnosis; a maternal, infant and child hygiene and school health supervision; sanitation, water and food supervision; sewage and recreational facilities; health education and mental health work.

First Election Since 1950

PLATTSVILLE (CP) — This village of 438 persons will have its second election since 1910 when the 336 eligible voters go to the polls Monday.

From 1910-to 1940 the village's three trustees went into office by acclamation. But residents confess they had almost forgotten how to arrange the election. The last election was in 1950.

This year six men were nominated to contest the three trustee seats. When four qualified an election was assured.

'Disquieting Features' in Canada's Economy CCL Tells Federal Government

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Congress of Labor told the government today there are "disquieting features" in Canada's economy and called for action to head off any recession.

The 373,000-member CCL, making its annual legislative submission to the cabinet, asked that the treasury lay out funds to boost employment.

"If bad spots and soft spots (of employment) are not to develop into something worse," it said, "the government will have to develop a comprehensive public assistance plan . . . and promote new industries in, or transfer workers from, depressed areas."

Another major recommendation of the congress was for what it called an "external affairs consultative committee" to act in an advisory capacity to the Canadian delegation to the United Nations.

The CCL, which generally takes a closer interest in international matters than other central labor bodies, said external affairs "must be increasingly infused into the political bloodstream of the country."

It also said Canada's contribution to the Colombo plan for southeast Asia development is "inadequate" and called for increased contributions to the International Labor Organization.

On the domestic front, the congress approved this week's move of the government in seeking from Parliament power to stiffen anti-dumping regulations aimed at tex. the imports into Canada and be followed up by a labor-government-management conference to study "what work out solutions for fighting problems.

MORE COAL

Dealing with current unemployment in the coal mines in the east and the west, the congress said the government should develop a national policy "designed to utilize much larger quantities of Canadian coal in domestic consumption."

The end would be that Canadian coal miners might enjoy full-time work at "adequate" wage levels.

Measures for increasing employment in shipyards also were advocated, chiefly the immediate replacement of obsolete government service vessels and the construction of additional government tonnage.

Discussing the throne speech announcement that the government's engage money from the banks to finance housing, the CCL said this is welcome but does not go to the root of the problem.

"The most urgent need is for subsidized public housing," the brief said. The government should do this, the CCL added, under the National Housing Act.

The congress renewed its request for a national plan of health insurance. (The government already has toad other labor bodies, in reply to their annual submission, that there is no immediate prospect of this.)

Taking up labor legislation, the CCL urged that the national labor code be extended to cover such industries as automobile, oil, meat-packers, mines and forest products now under provincial jurisdiction.

Other CCL proposals:

1. Removal of the $50-a-year top on the two-per-cent levy on income for old age pensions.

2. "Drastic" reduction of the general sales tax and abolition of this tax, 10 per cent, on necessities.

3. Increasing the basic personal income tax exemptions to $1,500 from the present $1,000 for single persons and to $3,000 from $2,000 for married taxpayers.

4. An old age pension of $65 a month payable to all at the age of 65 for men and 60 for women.

5. Collective bargaining rights for government employees, along with the extension of the checkoff of union dues to labor unions with government membership in the government

Girl Masquerading As Seaman Being Sent Home

MONTREAL (CP) — An 18-year-old girl is returning to England on the freighter Lukstefell after an unsuccessful attempt to enter the country as seaman Alfred Albert Leopold Soudemonte.

The story of the sea-going girl masquerading as a sailor came out Wednesday.

Before he sailed for Antwerp Capt. Harold Hansen was told by Dir. J. Brock Shipping Co., agents for the freighter, that he would have as a woman passenger the same person he had earlier brought to Montreal.

"I didn't have any woman passenger," he replied promptly.

"That's what you think," a company official told him. "She wasn't in the passenger list as a member of your crew."

Jeanne Martin, 18, signed on as a seaman in Antwerp as Soudemonte, saying he wanted to work his way to Canada; that he had relatives in Vancouver.

Luck was with him—or her. He was assigned to a room ordinarily used by the ship's quartermaster. He took his regular turn at the helm and as deckhand.

TROUBLE WITH PANTS

Some crew members thought their new associate a bit effeminate. A couple of fist-fights followed. Jeanne was as handy with fists as at wielding the ship. The wisecracks stopped.

When the ship arrived in Montreal immigration officials found the picture in his passport had been torn out. They became suspicious. Jeanne couldn't imitate the signature on the passport. When a physical examination was ordered Jeanne said: "All right, I'm a woman."

An immigration board of inquiry ordered her deported.

Little is known here of Jeanne's background. The Lukstefell's officers believed she must have been born aboard a ship and had had considerable experience.

"One of the best helmsmen I ever had," was Capt. Hansen's comment.

CANADIAN MEATS SHOWN

NEW YORK (CP)—A display of meat products of the Canadian packing industry is on view in the Canadian government showroom in Rockefeller Centre this month. The products of 17 Canadian firms are being displayed, including a complete line of canned meats for which a substantial export demand has developed. Its facilities were made available by the department of trade and commerce.

State Secretary Praises Former P. M. for Work

TORONTO (CP)—State Secretary Pickersgill said today former prime minister Mackenzie King from 1922 to had a greater influence on the development of the Commonwealth than any other public man.

Mr. Pickersgill, private secretary to Mr. King during the last 16 years of his life, made the statement in an address prepared for delivery to the Empire Club.

He said Mr. King used his influence "invariably and effectively on the side of preserving and strengthening this great association of free nations we call the Commonwealth."

Mr. Pickersgill said Mr. King saw earlier than most public men that the only way the Commonwealth could be preserved and strengthened was by establishing a relationship of complete equality and autonomy among members. Mr. King believed vestiges of former colonial relationships were sources of weakness to the Commonwealth, but realized changes could be made only step by step as public opinion developed or as circumstances raised issues which had to be settled.

Mr. Pickersgill said there is much to be said for the view that the foundations of the Commonwealth were laid by Sir Robert Borden, a Conservative, and that Mr. King merely carried on his work. Nevertheless, he said, there was a fundamental difference between their conception of the Commonwealth.

Sir Robert advocated an imperial foreign policy in which Canada would have a voice. He believed there should be an effective and continuous Canadian voice in an Empire foreign policy.

However, Mr. Pickersgill said, Mr. King "always believed any common foreign policy would inevitably be the policy of the United Kingdom. The Canadian voice, he must be a completely autonomous Canadian foreign policy.

$51,377,561 In Business Done By Co-operatives

TORONTO (CP)—United Co-Operatives of Ontario did a $51,377,561 business in the year ended Sept. 30, Hugh Bailey of Dundalk, general manager, said Wednesday.

He was outlining the year's developments to the group's annual meeting. The organization comprises 156 local co-ops with 60,000 members.

This year's total was a decrease of $5,987,308 from last year's. The volume of the dairy and poultry marketing division was $7,843,620, representing 15 per cent of the over-all business, about the same as last year.

The farm supplies section rose to a new high of $19,395,426, representing 38 per cent of overall volume. This was an increase of $976,290, or 5.6 per cent over last year.

The livestock division volume of $25,138,444 was $6,901,674 from last year.

Net earnings from operations were $375,493. Current assets as related to current liabilities were 1.38 to 1, an improvement over last year's ratio of 1.34 to 1.

Mr. Bailey said a new central warehouse, providing 26,000 square feet of floor space, is nearly completed at Weston.

DAUGHTER KIDNAPPED

— Mrs. and Mr. Ross McDowell have appealed to farmers in southern Ontario to help search for their daughter Marion, 17, kidnapped from a parked car in Toronto's suburban Scarborough township. The distraught parents and police fear the girl may be dead and are asking farmers to search their fields for the body before snow comes. (CP Photo)

Reds to Give Answer Friday To Proposal Korea Talks End

By GEORGE McARTHUR

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Allied and Communist diplomats made no progress today toward setting up a Korean peace conference, and United States envoy Arthur H. Dean asked the Reds if they were ready to break off the preliminary talks.

The Reds retorted with a long tirade, then acknowledged that the negotiations were at a standstill and said they would answer Dean Friday.

A few miles from the scene of the deadlocked talks, Allied explosives failed for the eighth straight day to win back a single South Korean war prisoner who chose to stay with the Communists.

Indian paratrooper guards broke up sit-down strikes staged by most of the 30 captives in an apparent effort to file up the interviews.

Explainers have talked with 250 20 to be home for Christmas.

South Koreans to date and have 76 shore to see. Then the United Nations command is expected to call for the 22 Americans and one Briton who stayed with the Reds.

DO ALL POSSIBLE

Dean told Communist diplomats he would do everything possible to carry out the Bermuda conference call for a Korean peace parley. But there would be no retreat from his insistence that Russia attend the conference as a full participant.

Communist demands that the Soviet Union be invited as a neutral observer caused the stalling of the preliminary talks.

The spokesman for 17 UN countries which fought in Korea said Tuesday he would wait only a reasonable time for the Communists to come to terms. He set no time limit, but a high Allied source said the U.S. delegation is set to leave Panmunjom by Dec.

Chief Justice Impressed By Ike's Address

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the High Court of Ontario said Wednesday night he was "profoundly impressed" by President Eisenhower's United Nations speech Tuesday.

McRuer declared it was "important that we understand each other and resolve our differences by other means that those used in the past."

He spoke at an unusual gathering of the highest ranking jurists of New York state and Ontario, who were guests of honor at a dinner meeting of the Erie County Bar Association.

Eight members of the Court of Appeal for Ontario attended.

Beer, Liquor Stores Closed Boxing Day

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario beer and liquor stores will be open until 6 p.m. Christmas Eve but will be closed Dec. 25 and Dec. 26, a liquor licence board said Wednesday.

Beverage rooms, cocktail lounges and similar outlets will close at 6:30 p.m. Christmas Eve. They will be closed Christmas Day but will be open as usual Dec. 26 except in a few communities which have asked for shorter hours that day.

Liquor stores will be closed Jan. 1 and 2. Beer stores will be closed Jan. 1 only. Beverage rooms and cocktail lounges will keep their regular hours New Year's Eve and Jan. 1.

Canada Recovers from Worst Polio Epidemic in History; 289 Deaths, 5,316 Crippled

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada is nursing the wounds of one of the worst outbreaks of polio in its history.

The Western flank of the 1953 epidemic out-manoeuvred medical defenders and short-lived theories, resulting in at least 289 deaths in the four western provinces and a higher rate of crippling paralysis than the 5,316 cases.

In eastern Canada, polio followed a generally orthodox route, creating record incidence and death only in Newfoundland, which experienced a 1953 increase to 12 deaths and 324 cases from the five cases and no deaths reported last year.

When final figures are available, the number of polio cases across Canada this year is expected to double the 1952 total. The federal health department reported to the Commons Wednesday that to Nov. 28 there had been 8,298 cases compared with 4,753 last year.

Manitoba, Alberta and Ontario were the hardest hit by this scourge of outbreaks.

In Manitoba there were 1,000 cases of polio for every 100,000 persons—a total of 2,318 cases, from which 85 persons died. Government officials say this incidence exceeded all known Canadian and world figures.

LONG SEASON

Alberta, plagued with an epidemic prolonged beyond the normal period, has suffered 96 deaths and 1,329 cases. The previous high in Alberta was 79 deaths from 743 cases in 1937.

Ontario reports 76 deaths from 2,080 cases, compared with 1,639 cases and 101 deaths last year, and its record 119 deaths in 1937.

Most physicians say 1953 has produced the "worst polio epidemic in the history of the western provinces.

Saskatchewan was the only western province which did not this year surpass its record epidemic. Reported cases to date total 1,076, with 69 deaths. In 1952 there were 1,225 cases and 90 deaths.

There was also a substantial increase in the proportion of older persons affected. Thirty per cent of the total 2,318 cases in Manitoba were persons over 20. In Alberta, too, polio no longer is considered a children's disease. Seventeen per cent of the 96 Alberta deaths occurred in children under 10, while 60 per cent were between 20 and 40.

In previous years, the oil province has seen polio epidemics hit their peak in August and end their normal decline in September. This year, 40 per cent of deaths occurred in the final quarter of the year.

SCHOOL CLOSED

Alberta and Newfoundland were the only provinces to delay school openings this year because of polio.

A 500-student school near Calmar, Alta., about 25 miles southeast of Edmonton, was ordered closed Wednesday until Dec. 17.

In Quebec, 462 cases have been reported with 16 deaths. In 1952, there were 123 cases with four deaths, compared with the record year of 1,200 cases in 1931 and a record 28 deaths in 1950.

New Brunswick has had 54 cases—mostly mild—this year. No deaths have been reported. The record year there was 1952, when there were 16 deaths and 431 cases.

Nova Scotia's 1953 total so far is seven deaths from 37 cases. Last year there were five deaths and 94 cases, compared with the record year—1951—of 425 cases and 23 deaths.

Up to Nov. 28, there had been 16 cases and one death in Prince Edward Island.

Milk Wagon Horse Kicks Motor Vehicle

TRENTON. (Special.) — A horse finally hit back at the motor conveyance that had nearly pushed the equine population into oblivion.

Yesterday without apparent provocation a milk wagon horse kicked a car driven by a woman along one of Trenton's busier intersections.

Lorne Robbins, the milkman, reports that his trusty steed struck a beautiful two-toned model but as it was passing.

There may have been damage to the left front fender but the driver of the car has yet to report the incident.

Robbins says he never before remembers the horse showing spite toward a car.

CHAIRMAN CHOSEN

Board of Directors of the Trenton Golf and Country Club have announced the names of chairmen of various committees. Ray Still, house committee; Don Black, greens committee; Harold Newton, cups and games; James Utley, entertainment; Mrs. Leah Cory, publicity; J. Roy Brown, bowling.

Alex Wilson was voted president for the third consecutive term. Other officers are: vice president, Alex Chivas; treasurer, John Owens; secretary, Joyce Oyser.

SIGNS OF CHRISTMAS

The Trenton Memorial Hospital staff is doubly busy these days.

Signs of Christmas appear in all parts of the building and special effort will be devoted to the children's ward. Two large lighted trees will grace the main entrance while smaller decorated trees will be placed in the rotunda and the dining room.

Maternity supervisor Mrs. E. MacMillan wields a paint brush effectively in her off hours painting Yule scenes on office windows and windows in the hall doorways and wards in every part of the compact institution.

Patients young and old who find themselves in hospital over the holiday can expect a visit from Santa Claus who each year makes the centre one of his first stopping off places on the way through.

Dean Threatens To Break Off Korean Talks

By GEORGE McARTHUR

PANMUNJOM, (AP) — United States Envoy Arthur H. Dean threatened today to break off the tottering preliminary Korean peace talks unless progress is made in a reasonable time, and the Allied delegation prepared to head home for Christmas.

"It is apparent that the American delegation will be out of here before Dec. 30," one high source said. "Our boys are packing."

Communist insistence on Russia attending the peace conference as a neutral observer rather than as a voting participant has stalled negotiations to arrange the peace talks.

Dean told the Reds he will not be bullied into accepting Russia as a neutral and warned that he will continue the negotiations only for long as there is a "reasonable chance" of success.

He said he has full authority from the 16 United Nations members he represents to walk out whenever he feels there is no chance of reaching agreement.

Meanwhile, another 30 South Koreans war prisoners who refused repatriation u n d e r Communist rule.

Allied explainers have talked with 220 prisoners without getting a single one to change his mind. Thirty of the 158 remaining South Koreans to be interviewed will be called up Thursday.

AMERICANS MAY RETURN

When the South Koreans are completed early next week, the 22 Americans and one Briton who stayed with the Communists will appear before Allied explainers. One high U. S. officer has predicted that five or six of the Americans will decide to return home.

No apparent progress has been made in the preliminary peace talks since they began Oct. 26. The Reds Wednesday rejected outright for a second time a "final" plan handed them Tuesday by Dean.

This proposal would seat Russia at the conference and require her to vote with the Communist bloc and to assume full responsibility for complying with the terms of a treaty.

Dean also suggested inviting neutrals with experience in Korea to attend as non-voting observers with limited rights to take part in debate.

'The Fight at Odds' Tells Story of Battle of Britain

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A young Spitfire pilot on his first combat flight knocked down two German bombers, rammed a third, parachuted to safety, kissed two girls in celebrate his feat and was back "operatively" in the cockpit of another fighter three hours later.

This story of one pilot's crowded day is told in a book "The Fight at Odds," published Tuesday. This is the first of three volumes in the official history of the RAF from 1939-1945.

The authors of "The Fight at Odds," Denis Richards and the late Hilary St. George Saunders, relate how Sgt. Raymond Holmes, now living in Liverpool, took the air for his first fight Sept. 15, 1940, turning point in the fateful Battle of Britain.

Holmes promptly shot down two Dornier bombers. Then his ammunition ran out and he rammed a third enemy plane, one which had just bombed Buckingham Palace. The German plane crashed on London's Victoria Station.

Holmes' plane, minus a wing after the collision, went into a spin and he bailed out, landing on a sloping tile roof. His parachute snagged in a drainpipe and he was left dangling with his legs in a garbage can.

KISSED GIRLS

Once back on the ground he saw two girls in a next-door garden and in the exuberance of the moment gave them both a kiss. Then he telephoned his station and was soon shot again in another Spitfire.

Churchill Works On Another Book

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — Sir Winston Churchill is working on a new book which he intends "to burst on the world" before retiring, Lady Clementine Churchill said Tuesday night.

She said she could give no idea of its title or contents, because she had promised to keep it a secret.

She arrived here by air to receive this year's Nobel prize for literature on behalf of her husband Thursday. King Gustav of Sweden will make the presentation. Lady Churchill will deliver a speech prepared for her by Sir Winston.

SCOUT COMMISSIONER

OTTAWA (CP) — Earle T. Moore of Montreal has been appointed National Commissioner for Canadian Boy Scouts. Jackson Dodds, deputy chief scout for Canada announced the choice today.

Welsh Complaints Aired in Commons

LONDON (Reuters)—The House of Commons Tuesday night defeated a motion criticizing the government for not doing enough to keep Welshmen from leaving the n a t i v e areas of Wales.

The vote was 240 to 222. The motion, introduced by Welsh Socialists led by Aneurin Bevan, said that proposed government measure to halt depopulation of Welsh areas were "inadequate."

The major problem facing Wales today is a steady drop in rural population, despite a return to agricultural prosperity.

The Welsh say it is caused by the difference between rural and urban standards of living.

In the remote areas, only six per cent fo the houses have electricity. There are scarcely any sewers or piped water. Housing is bad—and where it is good, rents are too high for farmhands. There are few public entertainment centres.

RAWDON

Guy Thompson Elected To Boys' Parliament

RAWDON—On Friday evening approximately 90 persons gathered in St. Paul's Sunday School rooms, Stirling, to attend an election rally and choose a candidate for constituency 75 to attend to 33rd session of the older Boys' Parliament.

The district returning officer was Mr. G. J. Miniely, King Street, Trenton, presided during the evening.

Boys of various Sunday schools in Rawdon, Sidney and Thurlow Township and from Trenton, were present, also several Sunday school teachers and ministers.

Mr. George Carlisle, of St. Paul's delivered the visitors to their seats. Stirling Rev. A. E. Baker welcomed the guests, and also dedicated the meeting which was over $25.

Three laymen, Messrs. Howard Richards, Frankford; Joe Jackson, Bridgenorth, and Don McInroy, Deseronto, were in charge of the election. All names of the voters were written down and those qualified were boys between 12 and 21 years of age who had attended 50 per cent of their organized Sunday school class services. This group is registered with the Ontario Boys' Work Board.

Mr. Miniely opened the meeting with a hymn and Rev. H. Beare, Bridgenorth, offered prayer.

REQUIREMENTS NEEDED

The presiding officer officially extended thanks to officials and pastor of St. Paul's for the use of their rooms. This seemed most central for candidates and voters. He gave all the requirements needed in order for a boy to contest an election.

The 33rd annual session of the older Boys' Parliament will be held at the University of Western Ontario, at London, from December 20th to 31st. This covers an area corresponding to the Ontario legislature and approximately 90 young men will be in attendance at this annual rally. This group is international and non-political.

The boys chose numbers for their order of speaking and Guy Thompson of Thomasburg gave the first address.

Guy stressed the "Importance of Boys' Work." He first gave a bird's-eye view of all the great leaders of the ten provinces and spoke of the millions of people who fill responsible positions and all of these are important if civilization is to go on. He asked: "Do we want our country to gradually grow better? If that is our desire, then we must give our boys and our young people the best training possible. They must be taught spiritual values and good citizenship in their formative years."

ILLUSTRATIONS

Guy also gave first hand illustrations of his work with boys in day school and in Sunday school and felt that teachers of both groups can do much to aid the boys in choosing the proper way of life.

The second speaker Keith Richard, Frankford, felt the country needed better trained young men. He emphasized three points in boy training and said, "the average Canadian boy knows the facts and that today the world is asking, "What can you do?" and "How well can you do it?" If boys are properly trained they will provide the world with a satisfactory type of leadership," and in closing said, "if he was successful, he would give his best to the Boys' Work of this constituency."

The third speaker Wally Jackson, Springbrook, was most interested in the work of the older Boys' parliament, and if he was elected, he would be willing to fill the office to the best of his ability. He felt the work of the constituency should take precedence if it were going to be a success."

Following the three addresses, a large vote was polled by the eligible boys who were in attendance.

A brief program followed when Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mount Pleasant, contributed two humorous readings. Mr. W. Jackson sang and accompanied his number on the guitar.

The returns were then announced and Mr. Miniely purclaimed Guy Thompson as the successful candidate.

Guy spoke briefly, thanking the voters and promised to visit each Sunday school group and give them all the information that he could gather while attending the parliament sessions at London.

The meeting came to a close with Mr. Henry Farrow speaking briefly and extending best wishes to "Guy" followed by prayer for the success of the coming parliament at London, Ontario.

TOUGH WINTER?

VALLEY CENTRE, Sask. (CP)—Muskrat dens in the Rosetown-Biggar area this fall have been built nearly twice as high as usual, say provincial game wardens. This led farmers and trappers to predict the winter's snowfall will be heavier than usual.

Canadiens Plan to Aid Dutchies; Will Finance Team for '53 Season

KITCHENER (CP)—There was new junior hockey hope in Kitchener today although everybody knows it's a losing game at the box-office.

Local junior hockey fans, what few there are hereyes hasrtened by the word Wednesday night from Frank Selke, managing director of Montreal Canadiens, that Kitchener Waterloo Greenshirts will stay in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A competition.

In announcing the switch, Selke said the Kitchener players that were labelled for teams in the Quebec junior league will be returned to Kitchener. It was just a matter of talking to them, he said.

"I expect to gather the players in Montreal tomorrow morning," Selke said in Toronto Wednesday night. "If they're willing to return we'll send them back. We plan to finance the team for the rest of the season."

The National Hockey League Canadiens bought the Kitchener franchise last week for $15,000. The OHA said it would refuse any branch-to-branch transfers to the players. That left everything up in the air and local fans tried unsuccessfully to raise enough money to buy back the franchise.

Selke, who had said it was impossible for a junior A team to operate in the black in Kitchener said he decided on the move because the nine players involved in the proposed transfer would not be given their release by the OHA.

"I realized that these transfers would not be forthcoming," he commented, "I didn't want to keep these players out of hockey. I don't think the OHA ever would have transferred them. You can't play with a marked deck, you know."

Selke added that none of the players would object to going back to Kitchener. The franchise was sold because local business men here said they were losing up to $1,000 a week on the club.

OHA HAPPY

Trey Gregg of Wingham, president of the OHA, said he was "delighted" to have Greenshirts, in fifth place in the league, remain in the league.

The Greenshirts, who brought up several junior B players last week, lost four straight games after the deal. Gregg said those games will be stricken from the records and rescheduled. Individual points scored in the games will also be thrown out.

Selke also announced that coach Curly Davis will have charge of the team until an executive can be appointed. Sam Pollock, coach of Montreal Canadiens of the Quebec League, will assist Davis.

Goodyears Trim Oshawa 10-6

Kingston Goodyears regained second place in the senior "B" group standing in their Memorial Community Centre last night when they handed the loop-leading Oshawa Truckmen a 10-6 defeat.

It was the third straight setback for the group pace-setters with the Kingston victory enabling the Goodyears to whittle the Oshawa margin to four points.

The Oshawa team, reports state, were minus several of their regulars. Les Colvin, regular goalie had not played for the last two or three games, his place being taken by Ken Courtney. The Goodyears play hosts to the Memos tomorrow night.

TORONTO (CP)—With a powerful scoring spree in the dying minutes of regulation time, Princeton College of East Orange, N.J., edged University of Toronto Blues 77-75 in overtime in an exhibition basketball game Wednesday night.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

UP THERE!

The sportswriting squire of Keddesville claims that the word from the circuit mob is that the Peterborough Arena is "in the worst in the group." We presume he means from a hockey-playing standpoint. Don Mignel goes on to say that the Kingston Memorial Centre far surpasses any other (those out-for chest deflation) with Belleville taking second place. Orillia runs third with Bowmanville bringing up the rear.

"No two arenas," Michael opines, "have much in common and in that kind of a mix-up the home forces should enjoy an advantage." However, he goes on, "it should be pointed out that the Oshawa Truckers have become accustomed to performing on large ice surfaces and that they and the Memos are not handicapped when playing in the Kingston Centre."

H-mmm. The Memos may be in fifth slot in the group standing, but apparently they hold down second place in the Arena League.

CUTS OUT PALM OF GLOVES

Ivan "The Terrible" Irwin, New York Rangers' colorful rookie defenceman, cuts out the palms of his hockey gloves. When asked why he did this, he said it was an old license practice, and that he was an old lacrosse player, "What that does," says Ivan, about the cut gloves, "is to give you a better feel on the stick." It also makes it easier for him to slip off the gloves, and this is a bare-knuckle guy who doesn't mind protecting the little fellows on the club when the occasion arises.

SONGIN ALMOST A BRUIN

Ed (Butch) Songin, who quarterbacked the Hamilton Tiger-Cats to the Canadian professional football championship recently, almost became a member of the Boston Bruins. Songin, who hails from the Boston area, was an All-American defenceman at Boston College. He was on the Bruins' list and was to be invited to training camp that fall, when he knee was injured in the North-South football game during his senior year. He still makes his home in Boston and is a neighbor and old friend of Milt Schmidt. He is also a pal of Woody Dumart's.

GRAND SHOW!

This department has covered the "Knife and Fork League" for over a decade, and has "taken in" breakfast on the loop menus from hot dogs to sizzling steaks and golden brown turkey. We have seen teams honored, decorated and lauded to the heavens. We have seen figurative balms placed on the aching brows of coaches, managers and players, and have run the "Fork League" gamut from the National Hockey League Stanley Cup winners' Victory Dinners to spam sandwich buffet luncheons in Podunk Corners.

We have seen Syl Apps presented with a handsome oil painting of himself at a Toronto Maple Leafs victory shindig and heard Conny Smythe, George Drew and the late George McCullagh pin the verbal shining wings of hockey angels on the campaign-roughened shoulders of the Leafs. And we have seen a trembling little half-pint moppet, half scared to death by the enormity of his task, get up on his feet, and express the appreciation of "the gang" to a coach who took care of the kids after the morning chores were done. The spirit is the same.

But a radical departure from the usual post-season honors paid to sports aggregations occurred last night at the Shrine Club when Alderman Bryson Reid honored his gallant Regent Juniors baseball squad, which went to the Ontario finals in their first year of organized operation.

The party "boomeranged" as Alderman Reid put it. For after presenting "my boys" with handsome double-blue windbreakers complete with crests, the estimable alderman nearly fainted with surprise when team captain Pat Gilmour presented him with the "handsomest" trophy these echs have glimpsed in a long while. It was a fine tribute to a grand sponsor and manager and a grand gesture on the part of the players he helped steer to a "bridesmaid" status in the quest for the Ontario Junior "A" baseball championship.

It was a grand party from entertainment point of view. And the Regents thoroughly enjoyed every minute of it. Thanks to the generosity of the O'Keefe Brewing Company and its representative, "Toots" Holway, the boys saw a bevy of highly interesting motion picture films covering various phases of sport and other topics. It wasn't known, but "Toots," who is more at home with a hockey stick (or wax) is rapidly fitting himself for an old-age job as a movie projectionist. The Regents didn't know that the big ex-Montreal Maroon has held several secret practice sessions "down cellar" trying to perfect his operational ability. He did a good job. The films weren't run backwards, the sound was good, and all "Toots" has to remember in the future is to "plug in" the connecting wire. Projection machines work a lot better if fed a diet of electricity.

There was a fine buffet lunch, and "Danny Boy" Smith had the Regents gorgle-eyed with his wizardry with a deck of cards, a guitar, and vocal and story-telling entertainment. Jimmy Carroll's piano artistry was excellent — and the speeches were brief. It was a grand show and the Regents summed up their appreciation to their sponsor in the words engraved on the trophy: "To a Fine Sponsor—a Pal—and a Grand Guy." Nuff sed.

LEET TONIGHT

Coaches and managers of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association are reminded of the meeting being held tonight in Memorial Arena at eight o'clock. All are requested to attend.

— PIKE MUM

GUELPH (CP)—Alf Pike, coach of Guelph Biltmores in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, Wednesday declined comment on reports speculating that he may be named coach of New York Rangers.

A defenceman and leftwinger with the National Hockey League club, from 1939 to 1947, he was offered the post before the NHL season opened but turned it down. Biltmore officials deny any knowledge of the reported shift.

The Guelph coach has a sporting goods business here and is in the second year of a three-year contract with the Biltmores who won the Memorial Cup in 1951-52 under him.

Penalties, Fines, Fisticuffs Flare in Furious Fandango As Leafs Hang Collar on Habs

By The Canadian Press

The repercussions were expected to come thick and fast today after what some say was the roughest game in National Hockey League history.

Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs, the two "feudingest" clubs in the business, kicked up such a penalty ruckus Wednesday night that league officials probably will go into a huddle to take some action.

A record 41 penalties, give or take a few, were handed out by referee Frank Udvari as the third-place Leafs blanked the league-leading Canadiens 3-0 in Toronto.

It was a chukker, to say the least. By the time Udvari had finished his work in the third period only nine players were on the ice and the benches were empty. Conn Smythe, Leafs' managing director, said it was the "war of 1812."

The big blowup, which surpassed the 25 penalties given to Detroit Red Wings and Maple Leafs Oct. 12, 1952, came at 18:12 of the third period after Leafs had taken a 3-0 lead. Thirty-one penalties were assessed in that period alone, including four majors and 21 10-minute misconducts and automatic $25 fines.

WINGS, RANGERS TIE

In the only other game Wednesday night, second-place Red Wings and the fifth-place New York Rangers fought to a 3-3 deadlock at New York.

The Toronto game, fairly quiet for the first two periods, broke wide open in the third when the Leafs' Ron Stewart and Montreal's Bud MacPherson started trading blows. It was mayhem after that.

Tom Johnson of Montreal moved in to separate them and Stewart slugged Johnson on the chin. Players rushed from the benches and sticks and gloves went flying.

At one time, Harry Watson tackled three Montreal players: Bob Bolinger of the Leafs and Canadiens' Bert Olmstead started punching. MacPherson switched to Toronto centre Eric Nesterenko. Paul Masnick of Montreal and Toronto defenceman Fern Flaman slugged it out.

The sellout crowd of 13,626 was going wild. Udvari was frantic. Nobody could tell who was hitting whom.

However, Udvari got things squared away and ordered both coaches to clear their benches. After giving four penalties in the first period and six in the second, he threw the book in the third.

Udvari ordered five penalties for fighting to MacPherson, defenceman Tom Johnson of Montreal, Nesterenko and Stewart after the big fight.

Each team had only four players on the ice. Toronto had defencemen Bob Solinger and Tim Horton, centre Ted Kennedy and goaltender Harry Lumley. Montreal went with lightwinger Bert Olmstead, defenceman Butch Bouchard, centre Johnny McCormack and netminder Gerry McNeil.

Said Smythe:

"I don't want to say much. All I want to know is, when the Canadiens will be back here."

MAY BE INVESTIGATION

There was no mention of NHL president Clarence Campbell being asked to investigate the brawl. However some officials said after the game "we don't doubt that he will."

The Leafs took a 1-0 lead on George Armstrong's goal at 4:56 of the first period. Kennedy and leftwinger Sid Smith tallied in the second.

At New York, Rangers, who have not beaten Red Wings this season, came from behind to tie the score

Montreal Royals Best Defensive Club in 1953

NEW YORK (AP) — Montreal Royals, led by Walter Alston, the new Brooklyn manager, were the best defensive club in the International League during the 1953 campaign.

The Royals, who won the circuit's playoff and then the little world series, made only 128 errors all last year for a sparkling .978 average. They finished three points higher than the runner-up Baltimore Orioles. Toronto was third with .973, official averages release, today by the league showed.

"Montreal only had two leaders among the individual defensive standouts. Roy Hartsfield tied Bob Wilson of Toronto for the top spot among second-basemen with .974 and Ed Roebuck had the most chances, 70, among the six pitchers who fielded 1.000.

Other leaders: Charley Kress, Rochester, first base .993; Hector Rodriguez, Syracuse, third base, .970; Billy Daegars, Toronto, shortstop .966; Wally Burnette, Rochester, outfield .990; Nelson Burbrink, Springfield, catcher .985.

FIRST IN ENGLISH

William Caxton printed the first book in English, the history of Troy—at Bruges, Belgium, in 1475.

2-2. Camille Henry, centre Max Bentley and defenceman Hy Buller accounted for the Ranger scoring. Gordie Howe, Tony Leswick and Johnny Wilson tallied for Detroit.

Rangers spotted the Wings two goals in the second period before coming to life. Howe scored at 3:01 when he batted the puck past Johnny Bower and Leswick made it 2-0 at 8:42.

Bentley put the Rangers back in the game at 12:51 and Buller deadlocked the score at 18:40. Then Henry came through in the third period but Wilson ruled that...

Twin Presentations Mark Reception Given Regents Jrs. by Bryson Reid

By GEO. H. CARVEN
Sports Editor.

The Regents junior "A" baseball team may have come within a figurative inch of winning the provincial championship, but when it comes to the "Kinks, Pots and Pokerdots" department they are champions all the way.

They proved it last night at the Shrine Club, when they were the guests of their sponsor Alderman Bryson Reid at the post-season reception.

There were the usual recipients of handsome double-blue windbreakers, complete with colorful crests, grouped themselves at a tasty buffet luncheon,heard and saw excellent entertainment, and relaxed while a series of highly entertaining motion pictures were shown.

Then pending in their toe-tapping accompaniment to Jimmy Orchard's sprightly piano rhythms, the Regents donned their colorful raiment and posed for press photographs.

Special guests at the reception included His Worship Mayor Norman Haig; Jack Yanover, executive member of the Belleville Baseball Association; Jack Carson, manager, Belleville Bulmers senior baseball team; Jack Oglivy, president Wellington Street Public School Association; Charles Mott, baseball executive member; Fred Hamilton, Quinte Amateur Softball Association representative; Harry Watkins, secretary Quinte Hockey Club, and others.

Frank Grandiane, president of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association was chairman for the evening.

But the feature of the evening one that practically gave the windbreaker presentation an anticlimatic touch was the surprise gift to Alderman Reid by team captain Pat Gilmour on behalf of Coach "Red" Carson and the players.

It was a handsome trophy bearing a pitcher in action on the centre column and backed by battery in the proper pose. On the column was engraved "Bryson Reid, A Sponsor and Pal. A Friend Gone But Not Forgotten. His Regents of 1953". On the pedestal were engraved the names of each player and the coach.

Alderman Reid was taken completely by surprise. Caught in the manor in making the presentation said simply "I would like to present you with this trophy on behalf of the boys. You have been a grand manager and we would not want one could not get a better one."

Visibly moved, Alderman Reid recovered from his surprise to say, "I do not deserve all the credit given me. I could not have done a thing without the wholehearted co-operation of the players, Coach Carson and all connected with the team. This has taken me completely off my feet and all I can say is "Thank You". I will be behind you in 1954. You have been great guys and next year we will bring home the title. "Golly" he said, "this thing has certainly boomeranged on me."

Alderman Reid paid tribute to the co-operation given him by Don Leslie and the Belleville District Softball League during the season's operations.

Mayor Haig, admitting he was not a sportsman in the strictest sense of the word, but he said, there are many ways in which one can be a good sport. "I take off my hat to such boys as you who are able to bring credit to yourselves, your sponsor, and your city by your sportsmanlike achievements."

"It does not matter what you do, the way you do it is important" said Mayor Haig said.

"No matter what sphere you engaged in later, always remember that good sportsmanship is one of the best things in life. I congratulate all of you and those who assisted you in bringing credit to the fans and the city and gave us onlookers a higher regard for you not only as athletes but as citizens of the future."

Mr. Yanover said his main sports interest was baseball and during the past few years the senior brand has been handicapped through lack of facilities. He hoped, he said, that with the new Memorial Park development in the offing the baseball things.

The world series today-TV rights being about $1,250,000 into the fund from each game's contract that expires after the 1958 series.

TOO BIG DEMANDS

In a lengthy statement, read to the press by Football League president Warren Giles on behalf of the two leagues, the clubs insisted they desire to continue the present pension plan "but the excessive demands by the player representatives and their attorney have compelled the clubs to consider the possible necessity of terminating the plan in November, 1955."

The statement was built up for a shift of the players' attitude in the next-to-last paragraph of the statement. It read in part:

"If the demands of the player representatives and their attorney represent the attitude of all the players, then it is obvious that the present pension plan must be terminated and a different proposition made of the funds now devoted to that purpose."

They didn't say how they would check on the players' attitude.

Major Leagues May Scuttle Pension Play

NEW YORK (AP)—The major leagues voted to consider scuttling the player pension plan by December, 1955 "due to excessive demands" but left the door open for further check on the players' attitudes.

Norman Lewis, the players' legal adviser, was charged with misrepresenting to the players and the press that all world series and all-star game radio-TV receipts belong to the players and must be applied to the fund. Both Lewis and A. B. Chandler, former commissioner, insist the radio-TV money belongs to the pension fund.

The major league owners claim the central fund, in which the players share, belongs to the 16 clubs as a "joint bank account."

The world series radio-TV rights being about $1,250,000 into the fund from each game's contract that expires after the 1858 series.

CAHA Issues Detailed Statement On The Jacques Marcotte Decision

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Wednesday issued a detailed statement elaborating on its Dec. 7 decision that goalie Jacques Marcotte of Quebec Frontenacs is Quebec Citadelles property.

The ruling, over a Quebec entry in the junior A division of the Ontario Hockey Association, while Frontenacs play in the Quebec Junior Hockey League. With Citadelles last season, Marcotte has been playing this season with Frontenacs despite an unsettled injunction application submitted in Quebec Superior court.

The issue was decided after a six-hour CAHA meeting at which the Frontenac club claimed there had been misrepresentation by the Citadelles in two respects: That Citadelles had entered into a contract with Marcotte that he would be able to attend L'Ecadamie Commercials high school, and in subsequent contract the succeeding year had promised that Marcotte would play junior A hockey.

NOT CO-OPERATIVE

The CAHA said that while Citadelles were not ordered to arrange for Marcotte's tuition at L'Acadamie Commercials, "every effort was made for this at other institutions but the player was not co-operative."

"It was noteworthy that when he entered into a contract, with the vice co-operative with this season who he scored a double heat knowledge and approval of his victory in the class B pace, the parents, no mention whatever was secondary feature.
made as to any educational advantages," the CAHA statement said.

"During the present season, although Frontenacs recommenced Sept. 2, the player had not enrolled at any educational institution until Oct. 30 and during November had attended approximately three hours weekly of evening classes only."

In connection with the claim he had been promised he would play junior A hockey during the 1952-53 season, the contract actually provided only that he would be paid "for participation in junior A classification" at a stated salary, the CAHA found.

"This salary was paid throughout the season, and the player was carried as a substitute goalkeeper for the Junior A club throughout the season, and when he commenced to play as goalkeeper for the club's team in December, it was not because the club (Citadelles) was threatening to discipline his services but because club officials and the player himself understood that the experience would be valuable to him."

TORONTO (CP) — J. L. Van, owned by Tom McCool of Pembroke and driven by Barbara Abedinzad, paced to 2 minute 12 3-5 victory by Hoyt and Davis of Naples N.Y., split the featured junior free-for-all pace on the Dufferin Park harness racing card Wednesday.

Harry Relsek, owned by Reuben and Fraser of Brantford, and driven by Bud Gilmour, made it Carl Sullivan and Chuck Scherza scored for the Reds.

Bisons, Bears Nip Warriors, Barons, Pittsburgh Wins

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The American Hockey League race looks pretty much the same as it has for the last few weeks. Buffalo Bisons on top and Hershey Bears trying to catch up.

Wednesday the Bisons downed Cleveland Barons 6-1 and Hershey edged Syracuse Warriors 3-2. In the other game Pittsburgh Hornets moved up into a fourth-place tie with Providence Reds by beating them 3-2.

At Buffalo, Bisons were behind in the first period on a goal by Barons' Chuck Blair, but later the same frame Ross Kowalchuk of Buffalo tied it up. Don Marshall made it 2-1 for Buffalo before the period ended. In the second, following Stanzas Marshall got his second counter, Gerry Ehman, Fred Wright and Ken Hayden also scored for the Bisons.

At Syracuse Murray Henderson of Hershey broke a 2-2 tie with less than four minutes remaining in regulation time, Arnie Kullman and Red Sullivan scored for Hershey with Bronco Horvath and Doug Powell notching the Warriors' tallies.

Rookie Parker MacDonald scored the tie-breaking marker at Pittsburgh and a first-period tally to pace Pittsburgh's 3-2 win over Providence, Johnny McLellan got the other Hornet goal while Al Rescorl and Chuck Scherza scored for the Reds.

Marcotte Repeats Will Not Play For Citadelles

QUEBEC (CP)—Goalie Jacques Marcotte said Wednesday at a recent statement before the executive of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association that he did not want to play for Quebec Citadelles expressed his personal feelings and was not prompted by legal advice.

In an interview, Marcotte said: "I made the statement at a meeting of the CAHA executive Monday and I repeat it. I don't want to play for Citadelles. . . .

Marcotte was commenting on a Kitchener report that quoted Citadelles coach Phil Watson as saying Marcotte wanted to leave Quebec Frontenacs of the Quebec Junior Hockey League and join the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A club.

Statements to the contrary, Watson was quoted as saying, were "all baloney . . . and statements from Frontenac lawyers."

Bob Attersley 'Hottest Guy' In Junior Loop

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A fire that burned down the Oshawa arena last fall sent Bob Attersley to Guelph Biltmores. He has turned into the hottest guy in the league.

After the fire the Generals were forced to suspend operations in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series. Their players were distributed among the other league teams.

Attersley scored five goals and assisted on two others as the Biltmores' fought to a 10-10 overtime draw with Quebec Citadelles in Guelph Wednesday night. The tie left both teams tied for last place in the league standings.

St. Catharines St'Pres defeated Barrie Flyers in Barrie to increase their first-place margin to four points ahead of Toronto St. Michael's.

GILLES GETS TWO

Johnny Gillis scored two goals for Guelph with Bob Pinkham, Wally Parr and Bill McCreary scoring one each.

Gilles Thibault scored three for Quebec, followed by Mike Ratchford who notched two. Singles went to Gaston Pelletier, Richard Bouchard, Carl Wandervelt, Pat Priestley and Stan Parker.

Rocky Castellani Verdicts Turner In Wild Bout

CLEVELAND (AP)—Rocky Castellani stood off the savage buzzsaw fighting of Gil Turner with toe-to-toe slugging Wednesday night to win a unanimous 10-round decision in a wild bout in Cleveland Arena. The victory strengthens Castellani's bid for a middleweight title shot.

Castellani, No. 2 middleweight contender, weighed 157 to 155 for the Philadelphia perpetual-motion man, fourth-ranking contender.

For three rounds, the Clevelander upward Turner at will with sharp lefts to the head as the crowd booed for more action. Then Turner went into action, and there was scarcely a let-up the rest of the bout.

A crowd of 11,813 paid $72,110 to watch the televised bout on the Cleveland News Christmas Fund show.

Referee Lou Parker scored 11 five for Castellani, four for Turner and one even. Judge Herb Williams had it 5-3-1 and judge Charlie Bill called it 5-4-1.

AT THE McCARTHY—Duty and the tradition of the sea breaks up the all too brief romance between Michael Rennie and Wendy Hiller in Twentieth Century-Fox's heroic saga, "Sailor of the King," now playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Jeffrey Hunter is also starred in the realistic screen drama based on C. S. Forester's modern classic.

Bulldogs, Dutchies Share Top Rung As Five Home Teams Emerge Victors

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's easier to play hide-and-seek in your own backyard. You know the hide-outs there.

The same applies to hockey and it was proved Wednesday night in Ontario's senior hockey action.

In five games not one visiting team could carry away a victory. In the Senior Hockey Association Senior A series Chatham Maroons rolled to an easy 4-1 victory over Windsor Bulldogs who lost sole possession of first place by the defeat.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen took a 6-3, home-ice victory from Sarnia Sailors to move into a first-place tie with the Bulldogs and in Hamilton the Tigers dropped Niagara Falls Cataracts 6-3.

In Pembroke the Lumber Kings blanked Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians during their Northern Ontario Hockey Association meeting and Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds turned back the visiting Sudbury Wolves 6-3 in the other NOHA contest.

MAROONS' NEVER HEADED

Chatham took a 1-0 lead in the first period and were never threatened. Frank Bonello, Ed Dickne, Jim Connelly and Bill Cupolo were the Chatham marksmen. Lyle Wiseman tallied the only Windsor goal.

Clare Martin led the Kitchener players against the Sailors with two goals. Gerry Theberge, Don Rope, Howie Lee and Johnny Marotkin notched the others. Jerry Horton, Ron Castelane and Harry O'Connor divided the Sarnia total.

Tigers spotted the Cataracts a 1-0 lead in the first period and roared back with six unanswered goals to win. Gordon McCinn, Murray Comfort, Al Buchanan, Eddie Busch, Hub Anslow and Jack Taylor shared the Hamilton total. Nick Dubick spoiled Boat Hurley's shutout.

In Pembroke Lionel Barber tallied the Lumber Kings' goal after five minutes of the opening period. The Lumber Kings held off the Indians for the rest of the contest.

The Greyhounds moved back into first place. Johnny Uhriaco, Eddie Mulligan and Ken Ellburger each tallied twice for Sault, Ont. Gord Hoole, Gil St. Pierre and Yarker Flynn accounted for the Sudbury scoring.

Kitchener is at Niagara Falls for the only OHA action tonight. Pembroke is at Sudbury Friday.

Veteran Aussie Tennis 'Pros' Coach 'Kids'

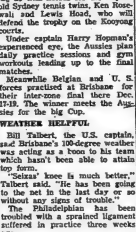
By WILL GRIMSLEY

MELBOURNE (AP) — Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor, who won the Davis Cup from the United States in 1950 and successfully defended it in the last two years, hitched today to help condition Australia's new team for the challenge cup round here Dec. 28-30.

Now professionals, they are serving as trial horses for the 19-year old Sydney tennis twins, Ken Rosewall and Lewis Hoad, who will defend the trophy on the Kooyong courts.

Under captain Harry Hopman's experienced eye, the Aussies plan daily practice sessions and gym workouts leading up to the final matches.

Meanwhile Belgian and U. S. forces practiced at Brisbane for their inter-zone final there Dec. 17-18. The winner meets the Aussies for the big Cup.



WEATHER HELPFUL

Bill Talbert, the U.S. captain, and Brisbane's 100-degree weather was acting as a boon to his team which hasn't been able to attain top form.

"Seizer loses is much better," Talbert said. "He has been going to the net in the last day or so without any signs of trouble."

The Philadelphian has been troubled with a pulled ligament suffered in practice three weeks ago.

Belgium's team of Jacques Brichant, Philip— Washer and Captain Pierre Remaut also have been having brisk workouts.

AT THE CAPITOL—They hope it's friendly! Risking a charge, Armand Denis and his wife Michaela, stay with the camera as an elephant starts toward them while filming "Below the Sahara", RKO Radio's thrilling Technicolor film record of the Armand Denis African Expedition opening tonight for its first Belleville showing at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program and in Technicolor "Thunder Bay" starring James Stewart and Joanne Dru.

AT THE BELLE—Brilliant star, Jennifer Jones scores again as the fiery heroine in "The Wild Heart". The lovely star gives currently as memorable a performance as those she offered in "The Song of Bernadette" and "Duel in the Sun", and once more establishes herself as one of the foremost screen personalities of the day. "The Wild Heart", in color by Technicolor, a Selznick picture, is showing for the last times at the Belle Theatre. A funny Donald Duck cartoon heads an attractive program in short subjects.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

..Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, DEC. 11, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Mars' aspect now favors vigorous activities, military interests and manoeuvres, laborious tasks, hard work generally; other aspects warn against over-working, recklessness. Be of kind manner.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Mighty favored; difficult trades, outdoor labor, mining, road and sewer construction, etc. Fine rays for mechanics, laborers generally. Extra care advised if signing papers, agreements.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — A promising day for advancement through hard work and close attention to duties, but vigilance is urged in conferences, study, singing agreements, etc. Think before speaking, acting.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Some friendly rays linger from yesterday and Mars is well aspected for accomplishment in hard and tedious tasks, industry, trades. Be patient.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Vigorous action encouraged in matters concerned with government, church, civic and home interests. A good day for construction, railroading, handling tools, machinery, chemicals. Caution stressed in writings.

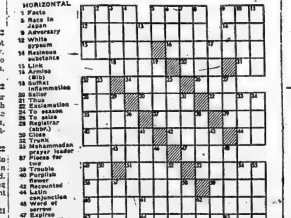
August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Due consideration of self and others urged. Do not strain mentally nor indulge in anxiety, worry; they hinder health and progress. You can accomplish much if you take things calmly.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—Showy gains are not essential to a truly successful day. It is what you do and how you do it that will count. Think of health, also others' rights.

October 23 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Fine indications for your specific talents, the tasks for which you have unusual ability and those that call for dexterity, cleverness, endurance, quick thinking and acting. Alert yourself.

November 22 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — You may have to work harder, be more patient than usual but you will be rewarded. The financial trend is not too strong at present but some achievement can be yours.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Very benefic Saturn vibrations. Should be a happy, constructive day. Tackle big tasks, and small ones, with faith. Consider the future when making plans.



January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Mild influences today, with the promise of very good ones culminating on the 13th. Plan wisely so as to get the most benefit from these fine configurations. No extremes nor overwork.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Beneficent Neptune vibrations now. It can and should be a fruitful period for sound interests. New undertakings favored, also finishing incompleted tasks. Have faith, hope.

YOU BORN TODAY have many fine qualities and assets, among them stability, industriousness, cheerfulness, initiative and the perseverance needed to carry through highly ambitious plans. Opportunity usually awaits the true Sagittarian since he or she knows it and knows how to take advantage of it when it comes, but must guard against extremes, among your fine qualities. Pray Generous, a compassionate life-mate, parent, friend. Soften a tendency to be too outspoken, but when troubled.

Birthdate: His Holiness, Pope Leo X, patron of learning; Hector Berlioz, composer; Ludwig van Beethoven, composer; Jane Addams, social worker.

Gruenther Will Ask NATO For 1200 More Planes

PARIS (AP)—Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther will ask the North Atlantic Treaty Organization next week for 1,200 more planes and a 10-per-cent increase in NATO ground forces, informed sources report.

The plane shortage still is the weakest gap in the Western European defence structure, Gruenther will tell the ministers of the 14 NATO countries which open their 13th meeting in Paris Monday.

It's a good bet ministers will give the supreme Allied commander in Europe all the planes and troops he is asking for, or nearly all.

If they do, NATO will have:

1. An air force of about 5,000 planes. The air force has close to 4,400 planes, but Russia is estimated to have 20,000.

2. Ground forces totalling around 108 front-line and reserve divisions. It now has 88, including the Greek and Turkish armies.

More than 50 foreign, defence and finance ministers of the NATO countries began gathering in Paris this weekend for the three-day meeting. The Canadian delegation will be headed by Defence Minister Claxton and External Affairs Minister Pearson.

"Full of Aches and Pains" ... Tells of Grand Relief"

The many thousands of letters that come from men and women all over the country offer convincing proof that the good results people get by taking Symtons Herbal Compound. So many letters are continually received that it is impossible to publish all of them. But, here is the recent experience of Mr. William Sidall, 7 Pegler St., London, Ontario, who said:

Felt Sick All Over

"For several years I was troubled with rheumatic pains in my limbs, joints and muscles. My condition grew worse until I became run-down, nervous, and sick all over. I could get no proper sleep, would get tormenting headaches and my stomach was so bad I would have cramps, spells of nausea and heartburn after every meal.

Tried Many Things

"I had tried just about everything I knew of to get some satisfactory relief. Then I read about Symtons and I am delighted to say that it gave me the first good results I've had from any medicine. Aches and pains are now relieved, Aches and pains are now relieved, Aches and pains are now relieved, my appetite is splendid, and I sleep well at night. Headaches and dizzy feelings that I used to have are not trouble me now and my nerves are entirely down once more. I will certainly recommend this fine medicine to any one suffering as I did."

OPPOSITION WILL SUPPORT MEASURE ON ANTI-DUMPING

Textile Industry Will Be Protected

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition parties in the Commons indicate they will support the principle of a government measure to tighten anti-dumping laws against imported manufactured goods, particularly United States textiles.

Progressive Conservative and Social Credit spokesmen, discussing the legislation in the Commons Thursday night, said, however, the protection should be extended to imports of other things, such as agricultural products.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said it should not be used to protect an industry that would exploit consumers.

The move, aimed at plugging a loophole in anti-dumping laws, was announced last Monday night by Revenue Minister McCann and went into effect Tuesday. The bill before the Commons writes the changes into legislation.

The action followed representations to the government by the textile industry against U.S. imports entering Canada at cut prices at the end of the textile selling season.

When textiles and other manufactured imports show sharp seasonal price drops, the measure will permit setting a "weighted average" of the price in the exporting country during a period up to six months prior to the date of importation.

FAVORED BY PCs

Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto (Eglinton) said the textile problem developed because Dr. McCann had "his eyes closed and arms folded." Until this late move, the government had not admitted anything was wrong. The opposition welcomed the action, however.

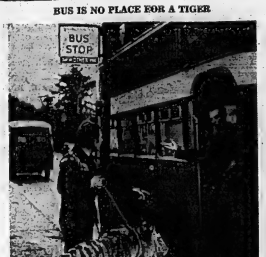
Textile imports in 1952 were $128,-000,000 in the first seven months of this year from $109,000,000 in the same period the year and figures for the last five months probably would show a larger increase.

He said he doubts the legislation is strong enough to enable customs officials to make uniform rulings on individual cases. He also urged that all cover the dumping of all products in Canada and not manufactured goods only.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said: "If we are going to have a textile industry, that industry must be supported."

Other industries, including agriculture, should be protected against dumping and the Social Credit party would propose amendments later "to include some other things that need protection."

EMERGENCY MEASURE



Mr. Coldwell said his party supports the bill "because as it proves unfair trade practices." But he said it is a "drastic measure" which should be reviewed in six months or a year.

A royal commission investigation of the textile industry in 1936 showed it had a "black record." The House should be careful not to provide "another means of those who would use it to exploit the consumers of this country."

Gordon Ford, (PC—Dufferin-Simcoe) described the Liberal party as a "dusty free-trader" trying to find ways to protect industry without changing its "dogma."

He said he is amused to see the party which had been under the Tories "so quick to protest" twisting and turning to look for ways to protect industry.

BUS IS NO PLACE FOR A TIGER

Citizens of Ascot, England, are so used to seeing this full grown tiger being led along the streets by its owner, Alexander Kerr, a circus animal trainer, that they barely give it second glance. But when Mr. Kerr tried to get his outsize mouse-hound into a public bus, the conductor drew the line. Kerr raised the tiger from its eight-months old cub and treats it like an overgrown cat. Marshall Offers Suggestions To Further The Cause of Peace

OSLO (AP) — Gen. George C. Marshall called today for a spiritual rebirth to establish new good faith among men as a prime necessity for enduring world peace.

Such a regeneration, the 1953 Nobel Peace Prize winner declared in a lecture at Oslo University festival hall, should bring good will, faith and understanding among nations.

The 72-year-old American soldier-statesman, honored for his sponsorship of the Marshall Plan which sent $17,000,000,000 in aid to post-war Europe, received his prize Thursday in the same hall. Tonight's lecture was required by the will of Alfred Nobel, Swedish inventor of dynamite, who left the money for the awards.

GREAT FUNDAMENTALS

Marshall offered these suggestions for further the cause of peace, warning that they hold nothing of glittering or early promise:

1. "A careful study of all factors" which have caused wars in the past and a striving "to determine the great fundamentals which must govern a peaceful progression toward a constantly higher level of civilization."

2. Study and understanding by peoples everywhere of the differences between national groups. He suggested that principles of cooperation based on these factors might contribute to a better understanding among all nations.

3. Solving the economic problem of the "millions who live under sub-normal conditions and who now come to a realization that they may aspire to a fair share of the God-given rights of human beings."

"But perhaps the most important factor will be the spiritual regeneration to develop good will, faith and understanding among nations," he declared.

"And with all these," Marshall asserted, "there must be courage and the will to act on that wisdom."

SEEKS RED DEBATE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Herschel Shanks, chairman of the Harvard law school forum, has invited former president Truman and Senator Joseph McCarthy to debate communism in the United States before the forum. Shanks said he sent the invitations Dec. 3 but has heard from the ex-president or the Wisconsin Republican senator.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Southern Ontario will have another autumn-like day with sunny skies and afternoon temperatures around 49 degrees. Northern Ontario will be cloudy. Intermittent snow is forecast north of Lake Superior.

Saturday will see cooler weather in northern Ontario, but there will be little change in temperature in southern sections.

Rain and low pressure centres in Texas will move into the Mississippi valley and threaten southwestern Ontario with precipitation Saturday afternoon or evening.

Norman Mathews Granted Divorce, Wed in 1928

TORONTO (CP) — Norman L. Mathews, 52, prominent Toronto lawyer and former president of the Ontario Liberal Association, has been granted a divorce from his wife, Naomi Mathews, on the grounds of adultery.

They were married in 1928 and have one daughter, Kathleen Frances.

Costs of the four-day trial which ended Thursday were assessed against C. M. Helmer, 78-year-old widower of Endicott, N. Y., named in the action as co-respondent.

Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow said that, while there was no direct evidence of adultery, "inferences may be drawn from all the evidence that appears before the court."

Gordon Ford, Mrs. Mathews' counsel, said a separate action is pending, a $100,000 suit by Mrs. Mathews against Miss Beatrice Lyons, a law partner of Mr. Mathews, for alienation of affections and criminal conversation, (adultery).

PLAN POLLUTION TALKS

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain is to host about 40 countries in a second international conference in London next April on ocean oil pollution. Transport Minister Alan Lennox-Boyd told the House of Commons Wednesday. The delegates of European countries from Britain to Scandinavia have been most affected by pollution, he said.

Children Terrorized by Face on TV Screen That Will Not Go Away

BLUE POINT, N.—(CP)—A television set that has terrorized children because of a ghostly woman's face on the screen—even when the set is turned off—was turned to the wall in a private room in this Long Island community.

Thursday the new set occupied a place of honor in the living room of Jerry Travers' home. But during the afternoon, Jerry's seven-year-old Caroline Travers ran crying to her mother saying: "We can't see little program). A face is in the way."

Mrs. r7avers investigated. One look and she turned pale. There was the face, staring out of the screen as the program went on behind, or through, it.

The children whimpered. Mrs. Travers, a little nervous herself, turned off the set. The face remained, unchanged.

Then she turned the switch on the side of the set to "stop."

When her husband returned home from work, Jerry and the children told him the face was still there.

Radio and TV experts were consulted. One expert said "it can't happen."

Network officials, given a description of the face of the woman, could not identify her.

But Ray Charman, chief engineer for the telephone color television laboratory in nearby Amityville, had an explanation.

The face is probably an image from a previous program which somehow engraved on the picture tube as a result of faulty equipment, he said.

Meanwhile, for the sake of the children, the screen side is still turned to the wall.

Company Reply Awaited On Plan to End Hollinger Strike

TORONTO (CP)—A provincially backed plan for settling the strike of 1,500 employees at Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines in Timmins has been accepted by the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL).

L. S. Weldon, executive vice-president of the mining company, said Thursday night the firm did not issue a statement today.

"This thing takes considerable working out," he said.

The proposal for settling the strike, which began 2 weeks ago is based on an increase of five cents an hour. It also calls for setting up a government-appointed fact-finding committee to investigate the economics of the gold-mining industry.

In accepting the proposal, the union gave up its demand for the check-off—deduction by the company from workers' pay cheques—of union dues.

If the company accepts the proposal, it is believed the plan could be set into motion in a matter of strikes by 3,500 miners at seven of the 10 other Timmins area gold mines.

DALEY OPTIMISTIC

After reading public the proposals, Labor Minister Daley said he feels the plan should settle the strike.

Some of the strikes began in mid-May. The other affected mines are McIntyre, Preston East Dome, Dome, Broulan Reef, hit by a strike and an outbreak of violence in July, since announced it has been carrying on operations with a partial staff. Paymaster mine closed after the union rejected a company offer of new contract terms. The mines are all in the Timmins area.

On strike against Noranda and several other gold-silver mines in northwestern Quebec.

ONE-YEAR TERM

The offer is in the settlement plan:

1. The agreement is to be renewed for one year from the date of signing.

2. There will be a wage increase of five cents an hour across the board.

3. The men are to be returned to work as quickly as they can be absorbed, without discrimination.

4. There is to be no change in any other conditions now in existence at the mine.

5. An industrial fact-finding committee is to be set up by the government to study the economics of the gold-mining industry and its employees on a broad basis and report to the government.

6. The present agreement provides that if the price of gold goes up during the contract period, the union may ask for a review of wages.

Beveridge will be held as a material witness in the case against Houghton. Bail was set at $500.

Civil Servants Stage One-Day Strike in Italy

ROME (Reuters)—Armed police guarding government offices and railroad stations throughout Italy today as a million government-paid workers went on strike for the day to back their demands for higher pay.

The strikers, who ranged from Communists to Christian Democrats, all but halted government machinery. Only a skeleton rail service, working to prevent any outstanding unions and troops, was running. Trains carried armed guards.

The government has threatened heavy sanctions against strikers.

Dresden Negroes Make Protest To Ont. Govt.

TORONTO, (CP)—C. R. Magone, deputy attorney general, told a delegation from the National Unity Association Thursday that Ontario has no laws to fight discrimination against Negroes.

The association, formed five years ago to protect Negroes' rights, visited Mr. Magone concerning problems of Negroes in Dresden, 18 miles north of Chatham. The town has more than 500 Negro residents.

H. R. Burnett, a Dresden carpenter said Negro parents there had to drive to Chatham to get a hair-cut or a meal away from home. He said two pool-rooms and a restaurant refused to admit Negroes.

"A lot of us served overseas in the last war. We're not second-rate citizens," said Mr. Burnett.

Mr. Magone told the three-man delegation that without appropriate legislation, the attorney general's department could do nothing for them.

TWO OFFICERS IN GREENLEASE CASE WILL BE CHARGED

Handling of Ransom Money to Be Probed

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis police board plans to file formal charges accusing former Lieut. Louis Shoulders and patrolman Elmer Dolan of violating regulations in their handling of the arrest of Carl Austin Hall, kidnap-killer of Bobby Greenlease, awaiting execution.

I. A. Long, board president, said Thursday Dolan has been suspended pending hearings for him and Shoulders. Shoulders earlier resigned from the force but the board has not officially accepted the resignation.

The police board president said the charges will be filed under police regulations and that the hearings, which will be scheduled later, will not be criminal proceedings.

NO DETAILS

Long declined to reveal the nature of the charges except that they would deal with the officers' actions in handling the kidnap case here.

Shoulders, in commenting on the development, said that he had not been a party to the $600 theft. Reminded that his resignation has not been acted upon, he said: "They accepted my resignation, that's enough for me."

Dolan's only comment was: "I don't know what it's all about."

The board's action came during a long inquiry into the missing $300,720, more than half the ransom paid for the release of Bobby Greenlease, son of Kansas City, father of the six-year-old victim. Mrs. Virginia Hall Brown Hall Hendy, Hall's partner in the kidnap-killing, also is awaiting execution Dec. 18.

Replies to Question

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government is not aware of any differences of opinion among representatives of the international joint commission in connection with the St. Lawrence seaway.

Health Minister Martin, acting minister of external affairs, made the statement in the Commons Thursday in replying to a question asked Tuesday by Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton).

Mr. Fleming asked the government to comment on a report that differences of opinion had developed between Canadian and American representatives on the international joint commission.

Mr. Martin said the government is unaware of any differences.

Churchill Flies Home To Heap Of House Troubles

Labor Move and Party Revolt Now Chief Issues

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill flew home today from the Bermuda Big Three conference, into a heap of parliamentary troubles.

Caught between a Labor move to overthrow his government on colonial issues and a Conservative party revolt on Egyptian policy, he will have no chance to relax after the strain of the Bermuda talks.

He will, in fact, have to work overtime to prepare his personal statement on the talks for presentation to Parliament—and at the same time map party strategy to block the Labor challenge and calm Conservative rebels.

The one-week period before Parliament closes for a Christmas recess next Friday is packed with one of the heaviest concentrations of problems the prime minister has ever tackled.

Top Labor leaders have signed a motion of censure on the government's handling of Britain's colonial problems in Kenya and Cyprus. A Labor victory on this issue could mean the downfall of the Churchill government.

But with a majority of 18 seats, Conservative leaders are confident they can beat off the Labor move when it comes up for debate, probably next week.

The Labor motion expressed "grave disquiet" at the government's actions in dealing with Mau Mau terrorist murders in Kenya and native rule in Uganda.

War Minister Antony Head told the House of Commons Thursday that a two-man court of inquiry will leave for Kenya Saturday as will inquire into allegations that British troops were offered five shillings a head for Mau Mau "kills," and that scoreboards have been kept of official and unofficial kills to foster a competitive spirit.

The prime minister and his wife will also have a talk on Monday with President Eisenhower and Premier Laniel. The House of Commons has tentatively set aside Thursday for discussion of the conference.

On that day, Churchill will also be expected to give his views on Eisenhower's atomic "bank" proposal to the United Nations General Assembly.

The prime minister will also have to find time to discuss the upcoming meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council with Foreign Secretary Eden.

TOKYO (AP) — An American mother arrived here today hoping to win back her soldier son who has renounced his country for communism. But Pfc. John E. Hull said he had been "obliged to refuse permission" to see Mrs. Portia Hull, 49, up to Korea.

Mrs. Hull arrived by plane today from her Alden, Minn., home. She said the trip out of savings from her son's military allotment. The government announced in Hull's Far East command headquarters.

Just a Holiday For Red Papers Not Publishing

LONDON (Reuters) —Moscow radio started reporting what it remarked as an aside that most of Moscow's dailies except Pravda failed to publish today.

The report struck persons who knew Moscow publishing habits as odd.

The mystery deepened when Reuters Berlin bureau reported that for 5½ hours today the teleprinter carrying news from the official Soviet East German communist agency ADN to the west had been silent.

Finally Reuters' Moscow correspondent got through Soviet censors. His explanation was simple. Moscow had a public holiday, Dec. 5—Soviet Constitution Day. All the Soviet dailies worked Dec. 5 and 6. Today they were due for their extra day off.

Pravda, the voice of the Communist party, appeared. It published 362 days a year, holidays or not.

In Berlin, the mystery of the long ADN news blackout remained unexplained.

It will be sent to the annual meeting, which is to be held during the first week of the new year. Checkoff legislation has been under discussion of the directors for the past three weeks.

Annual Banquet Held by Firemen With 100 Guests

Belleville city firemen were hosts Thursday evening to members of city council, city officials, local members of parliament and visiting firemen, as they staged their annual banquet at the No. 2 firehall on Bridge street.

The banquet, attended by approximately 100 guests, was held following the official opening of the new firehall on Dundas street in the east end of the city.

The city firemen proved themselves excellent hosts as well as excellent chefs as they staged a banquet that would do justice to any flight restaurant or hotel. Roast beef with mashed potatoes, a side dish of corn, vegetables, delicious pies and coffee proved satisfaction complete for the inner man and no one went away hungry.

As master of ceremonies Fire Chief Gerald Vance made it known in no uncertain terms that speeches were to be short, "We hear from city council all year and we are not going to listen to them tonight," he said amid laughter.

FIRE MARSHAL SPEAKS.

Ontario Fire Marshal W. J. Scott, congratulated the firemen and the city of Belleville on its two new firehalls, stating from Owen Sound the fire marshal said his home town had conditions somewhat like that of Belleville, where the business section was divided by a river. Such conditions demanded the best in fire fighting equipment, he said.

Mayor-elect John Both asked for the co-operation of city officials during the forthcoming term of office. "Now that the election is over we are all get together and co-operate to make Belleville a better place," he said.

Other speakers heard briefly included Alderman Angus Duffy as chairman of the fire committee, Alderman Chas. L. Hyde; clerk-controller H. D. Bateman; city solicitor R. A. Pringle; county warden John A. Kincaid of Madoc, and W. J. Sandercock, M.P.P. for Hastings West.

Mayor Houde Has Good Time At Knockers' Club

OTTAWA. (CP)—Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal was guest speaker at the Ottawa Knockers' Club pigtail party Thursday night, but he stole the show as speech. He answered questions instead.

Speakers, he said, would learn more about their audience if they just answered questions instead of making speeches. The real knockers fine—what did he think of the mayor of Montreal?

"I may want to run again. I can't tell you that."

What about the mayor of Ottawa (Charlotte Whitton)?

"I think the same as you do!"

How come Toronto got ahead of Montreal with a subway?

"We want to stay on the level in Montreal."

And asked about the song 'alouette?'

"It's Canada's national anthem —after midnight."

JUST AMATEUR KNOCKERS

Mr. Houde had a word for his hosts. Members of the Knockers' Club of Ottawa were just "bunkleague knockers" the real knockers were "up on the (Parliament) hill. You're just learning the trade."

The Knockers' Club was formed some years ago in a Sparks street restaurant by a garrulous group of customers and maintained by former Mayor Stanley Lewis and others as an unofficial charitable organization. It's annual dinner, at which the principal item on the menu is pigs' tails, is an Ottawa institution.

Dundas Street Firehall Opened Here Thursday

In the presence of civic officials, visiting firemen and a smattering of local citizens, Belleville's new Dundas street firehall on Dundas Street East was officially opened Thursday afternoon.

In the absence of Ontario Fire Marshal W. J. Scott, who turned up late, the ribbon across the main doors of the firehall was cut by Alderman Angus Duffy, chairman of the fire committee. Fire Chief Gerald Vance and members of the fire committee spoke briefly before the ribbon was cut and the hall declared officially opened.

Ex-City Clerk William Lynch was on hand to assist in the opening ceremonies. City Clerk - Controller H. D. Bateman acted as master of ceremonies.

Co-chairmen of the fire committee Ald. Duffy expressed his appreciation to Fire Chief Gerald Vance for his co-operation and for the efficiency of the department.

Chief Vance said he was justifiably proud of Belleville's two new firehalls, both of which he had seen opened since becoming chief of the local department. "With a bit more equipment, the Belleville fire department will not take a back seat to any department in this area in Ontario," he said.

Also heard briefly at the opening ceremonies were Ald. Claude Tice, Ald. Bryson Reid and Ald. Wilbur Countryman.

Following the opening citizens and visiting firemen were shown through the new firehall and inspected fire fighting equipment. Object of considerable interest was the department's new "dilator" truck in which emergency equipment is carried.

Visitors saw the spic and span living quarters for firemen on the second floor of the hall, and also the elaborate alarm system which goes into action when the fire reels roll.

The two new firehalls were built from the same general plan but with some slight exterior appearance. The No. 1 firehall, which saw its official opening yesterday, was completed last February and has been in use by the department since last March.

Certification Of PUC Employees' Union Refused

Three employees of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission and a representative of the National Union of Public Service Employees, F. Kitchen, attended a hearing before the Ontario Labor Relations Board on Wednesday at which a request for certification of the union was denied.

The union reported that it had signed as members 31 of the 39 eligible employees. The Belleville Public Utilities Commission invoked section 78 of the Ontario Labor Relations Act and the union request was denied.

Section 78 of the Act frees the Commission from the jurisdiction of the Act.

The same union is operating in Lindsay. There the Commission invoked section 78 when union certification was sought. The employees claimed that the invoking of this section of the Act left them free to go on strike.

The Lindsay Commission set a deadline for them to return to work and when the deadline passed on Wednesday maintained that the men had quit their jobs and advertised for these positions.

Former Friend Of Truman Starts Prison Term

ST. LOUIS, (AP) —James P. Finnegan, close friend of former president Truman, surrendered today to begin serving a two-year prison term for official misconduct as an internal revenue collector here.

Genial Jim, as he is known to associates, walked into the federal building with his lawyers to surrender to his lifelong friend, United States deputy marshal Les Davison. They left immediately for the Texas, Ind., prison.

DENIES INTENT

"I know that I have not intentionally committed a wrong," Finnegan told newspaper men. "I am a victim of circumstances and I hope some day all the facts over which he is convicted will be brought to light and establish my innocence."

Finnegan has been at liberty on bond since he was convicted by a jury last year of accepting $6,000 in fees from two firms who had government matters pending at the time. Finnegan was revenue collector at the time.

Would Not Recognize Public Accountants

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan's royal commission on public accountancy today upheld the right of chartered accountants to be the sole professional group in the province and recommended repeal of an act which granted similar status to certified public accountants.

In its 45-page report issued today, the commission said:

"The Saskatchewan Institute of Chartered Accountants, beyond any doubt, represents the top level of professional accountants in the province and there is no reasonable probability of their position being challenged by the legislative recognition of one or more other groups.

"The matter may be disposed of with finality and in the public interest by refusing recognition to any other group."

Malan to Extend His Color-Bar To Universities

STELLENBOSCH, South Africa (Reuters)—Premier Daniel Malan server notice today that he will bring in his color-bar policy to South Africa's universities.

He said his government has decided to end the "glaring anomaly" of the mingling of whites and nonwhites in some of the universities as possible."

Malan did not mention any universities by name, but he was obviously referring to Capetown University and Witwatersrand University, which permit Negro students.

At Capetown University today seven non-whites received degrees of doctor of medicine.

The prime minister said a commission has already been appointed to investigate and consult on steps "which must be taken, appropriate and fairly, to separate whites and non-whites in higher education, whether inside or outside of existing universities."

Post Office Staff Increased For Christmas

With Christmas just two weeks away, the local post office is all set to handle the flood of mail expected to be passing through mailing rooms within the next few days.

Postmaster J. C. Waddell stated today that the unseasonal weather has not affected Christmas mailing to any great extent with the volume of letters, cards and parcels passing through being about normal for this date.

"But we are all ready for the rush when it comes," Mr. Waddell stated. "All of our extra help has been lined up and the extra workers will be taken on as they are required."

He added that the first of the extra help was expected to be taken on early next week when the Christmas mail really starts in volume and would then be taken on as increases builds up.

But the slogan "mail early and avoid disappointment" still holds good at the local post office according to Mr. Waddell.

"Mailing early always helps," he said, "it gives us an opportunity to handle the mail pre-mail it available before Christmas and avoids disappointment."

Opposition Urges Move to Increase Reindeer Herds

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—No wonder one famous reindeer is said to have a red nose. Rudolph's ancestors were Communists.

Or perhaps ex-Communists, because they came from Siberia.

Anyway, the ancestry of Santa Claus' Canadian means of transportation was recalled in the commons Thursday as Opposition members urged the government to increase reindeer herds on the reserve near Aklavik, N. W. T. The subject came up during discussion of a government measure dealing with reindeer regulations.

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver Quadra) went so far as to suggest that Santa Claus might be concentrating too much on toys and not enough on reindeer.

CAN SUPPORT MANY MORE

Resources Minister Lesage said there now are 3,711 reindeer in Canada's northland. Mr. Green quoted from an article that the Canadian North can support 40,000,000 reindeer.

Between 1920 and 1902, when the Russians put a halt to it, the United States government brought 1,280 reindeer immigrants to Alaska from Siberia to provide the Eskimos with a new source of food and clothing.

In 1929, the Canadian government agreed to pay $185,000 for delivery of 3,000 reindeer on the mainland to the Mackenzie river delta near Aklavik.

This great 1,000-mile trek started Christmas Day, 1929, and was not completed until February, 1935. Only 10 per cent of the original herd reached its destination but the annual fawnings brought the number finally delivered to 2,370, plus one caribou which sneaked into the herd along the way.

Woman Admits Brutal Slaying Of Sister-in Law

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Mrs. Henry Leibel admitted today the brutal, ax-slaying of her arthritic sister-in-law, Mrs. Hattie Bokker, 53, authorities said.

Deputy police chief Hugh O'Gorman said Mrs. Leibel, 49-year-old mother of four children, signed a confession this morning after 12 hours of questioning.

It was Mrs. Leibel who originally summoned police to the locked apartment she and her husband shared with the victim and who fainted when Mrs. Bokker's bloodstained body was found.

Mrs. Bokker, crippled from arthritis, was the widow of Mrs. Leible's brother.

Mrs. Leibel was quoted as saying she struck her sister-in-law with the ax only after the victim had hit her with the weapod first.

Minor Puckists Play Fine Games

MARMORA — Five games of minor hockey were played on the Dr. Hamilton Crawford Memorial Arena on Wednesday evening on ice satisfactory to all contesting teams. Outside of their own respective fans, there were few to witness the various games.

The series opened with a game between the bantam teams of Madoc and Norwood. Madoc won decisively by 4-1 despite the fact that Norwood got the first counter early in the initial period. W. Empey of Madoc netted twice.

The next game was fought between the midget teams representing Stirling and, Norwood. Stirling won 3-2 the shutout going to Brady on his good performance in the nets.

Stirling's goals were evenly divided over the periods.

The juvenile teams of these two villages played next with the same result Stirling 3, Norwood 0. Ross Ray starred in the Stirling goal.

The fourth game was played between Havelock and Flinton juveniles. It was evenly fought with the issue always in doubt but honors went to Havelock by the count of 4-3; all goals being obtained in the first period. Chase brothers, McMillen and Patterson contributed to their team's score while Fisher shaped well for the losers.

The series wound up with Cobhill juveniles defeating Marmora juveniles by 5-2. The Marmora team were without Kourt their regular goal keeper but Clemence who deputized played well. Some roughness was interjected in this game but was kept under control by the referees.

French Abandon Thai City To Vietminh Without Battle

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — The French announced today that they have pulled their troops out of Vietminh-threatened Lai Chau, capital of the Thai tribal country in northwest Indo-China, without firing a shot. Announcement of the evacuation came after repeated French assertions that Lai Chau would be staunchly defended against the Communist-led rebels.

Brig.-Gen. Rene Cogny, commander of French forces in North Indo-China, proclaimed Dien Bien Phu, 180 miles west of Hanoi and 30 miles south of Lai Chau, as the "new capital" of the Thai country. French paratroopers seized Dien Bien Phu from the Vietminh in a daring drop Nov. 21.

DIVISION 316 ATTACKING

Some 3,500 Meo tribesmen, residents of Lai Chau already had been evacuated to Hanoi and Dien Bien Phu in anticipation of an attack by the crack Vietminh Division 316, which had been reported marching on Lai Chau.

The Reds were expected to lose no time in entering the abandoned Thai capital.

Cogny said the military evacuation of Lai Chau had been approved by Deo Van Long, president of the confederation of the 300,000 Thai peoples.

The French commander termed Lai Chau a "mousetrap." It is wedged between high mountains at the junction of three rivers flowing from Communist China.

Dien Bien Phu, on the other hand, consists of a series of villages on a broad plain and has an airstrip through which the French have been building up their forces.

The Vietminh radio, heard in Hong Kong, claimed the rebel forces had already engaged the French in heavy fighting in the Lai Chau area and that 713 French Union troops had been killed. The advance along a road in the region "has been slowed to heavy enemy concentrations," the Vietminh radio said.)

Paper Says Plan Proposed To Protect Jordan

DAMASCUS, Syria (Reuters) — The Syrian Nationalist party newspaper Albina says today the United States has pledged to guarantee Jordan's borders and increase financial aid if the Arab state makes peace with Israel.

Albina says Jordan would not be obliged to establish diplomatic and economic relations with Israel under the American proposal, and other Arab states would not have to end their state of war with Israel.

In return the United States promises to increase financial and economic aid to Jordan and give her a larger share of the Jordan river's water under a $121,000,000 river control project planned by the U.S. state department.

The paper says Jordan is considering a meeting with Syria and Lebanon to study the proposal.

THE TRUE MEASURE OF BOMBS' POWER

Addressing the United Nations, President Dwight D. Eisenhower said that the U.S. stockpile of atomic bombs and this an explosive power many times greater than the total bis an explosive power many times greater than the total of all bombs and shells used throughout the Second World War.

The terrible might of atomic weapons is here brought partly into focus. But only partly.

Nobody who remembers the stories of the obliteration of Rotterdam and Coventry, nobody who saw the awe-inspiring movie depicting the battle of El Alamein, nobody who recalls the firepower of the armies locked in battle on the Eastern front, certainly no Germans who lived in the Ruhr, no Englishman who resided in London, no Japanese citizen of Hiroshima or Nagasaki, can miss the point entirely.

But habits of mind die hard. The bombs and shells which showered down on cities and armies during the war spread their destruction over five years, the seven seas and dozens of countries.

The delivery of the atomic weapons in the U.S. stockpile—and similar weapons in the stockpile of any other power—could be concentrated in hours or days or minutes.

It is that fact that we are apt to forget—or perhaps it would be more accurate to say that it is that terrifying truth which the human mind is unable to fully comprehend.

Mr. Eisenhower said, in effect, was that the U.S. possesses the power to wipe out the main centres of population of Russia—or of any other nation.

Stockpiles also indicate that Russia, if it does not already possess similar power, will not also possess it at some time in the near future.

IS TWO TO A ROOM A CROWD?

Overcrowding, says the Dominion Journal, is a problem throughout the rest of Canada.

That's the kind of a statement which is guaranteed to make the gentle reader grunt his surprise and adjust the old eye-glasses "speez."

Come, come, Edmonton, did you folks out in the West never hear that Canada is the land of wide open spaces, rivaling Big Bend in the size of its sky?

Further perusal, however, reveals that the Journal was concerned only with indoor living and that it has enlisted the support of powerful allies, the gentlemen who took our nation's 1951 census. This census bulletin defines overcrowding as a household in which the number of persons exceeds the number of rooms. Heads one out of every five Canadian homes is overcrowded.

Just how much trust can be put in such an arbitrary yardstick is shown, it seems to us, by the further revelation of the census men that by this standard overcrowding is worse in the rural areas than in the urban districts.

It apparently never occurred to the census taker that a hay-loft is an excellent substitute for the front parlor when the younger fry are seeking a rainy-day playroom. Many a farmer can tell you that the attic is a better refuge than a cellar when the housewife is a little huffy about storm windows still hanging in June breezes. Even the little woman, we suspect, has found refuge in the chicken pen when the spare-chatter has proven nerve-shattering.

If you are interested in figures, Hastings County in 1951 had 19,740 dwellings, with an average of 5.7 rooms per dwelling; and the national average

Prince Edward County, with 5,310 dwellings, was even more fortunate, the average number of rooms being 6.0. Belleville's 5,665 homes averaged 5.6 rooms per dwelling, well above the average for urban communities, but Trenton was on the wrong side of the ledger, with only 4.9 rooms on the average for its 2,699 dwellings. Hastings county families averaged only 3.7 persons and Prince Edward county had 3.4 persons per family, providing well over a room per person.

Belleville's average was 3.5 persons per family and Trenton's 3.6, giving the latter community just a little better than a room per person, if all the rooms had been equally shared.

But wouldn't we all look silly sitting alone in a room of our own!

A REALISTIC SUGGESTION

A section of the Election Act prohibits candidates or any persons representing them from hiring motor cars to take voters to the polls.

It is great that law has been consistently broken, in every election in recent years.

The Ontario Legislature's select committee on election laws has recommended that this section of the Act be eliminated.

The committee deserves commendation for its realistic suggestion. There is only one thing wrong with it. It comes much too late to prevent the majority of our lawmakers being law-breakers.

If any person deplores the habit of many citizens of ignoring laws with which they do not agree, we can only ask how anybody can expect the governed to be law-abiding when the men and women who are chosen to govern them flout the law.

But if their own experience convinces the law-makers that no law can be enforced unless it has the approval and active support of a majority of citizens, then the retention of that ridiculous clause of the Election Act until the present day will have served a useful purpose.

And the legislators decide to search through the statutes and eliminate a few more laws which are out-of-date and generally disregarded, all the better.

ONE ANSWER

Asked by the youngsters: "Is Santa Claus real?"
I replied: "Believe this:
He's as real as the love you can't see, but can feel.
And if lost you would miss.

"Though only at Christmas he visits, you'll hear
Many grownups declare,
He comes in their dreams every night of the year
With the tenderest care. . .

"You've been told that he lives at the north pole afar,
And from there he must start.
But countless the homes of all Santa Claus are.
They're in every one's heart.

"Though never his presence to you he'll reveal,
For that shouldn't be,
If love and devotion and kindness are real,
Then also is he. . .

30 YEARS AGO

DECEMBER 11, 1923.

The extraordinary mildness of the present season reveals some reminiscences and experiences of the past including the sail on the Bay of Quinte, Prince Edward County, with 5,310 dwellings, was even more fortunate, the average number of rooms being 6.0. Belleville's 5,665 homes averaged 5.6 rooms per dwelling, well above the average for urban communities, but Trenton was on the wrong side of the ledger, with only 4.9 rooms on the average for its 2,699 dwellings. Hastings county families averaged only 3.7 persons and Prince Edward county had 3.4 persons per family, providing well over a room per person.

Belleville's average was 3.5 persons per family and Trenton's 3.6, giving the latter community just a little better than a room per person, if all the rooms had been equally shared.

But wouldn't we all look silly sitting alone in a room of our own!

A REALISTIC SUGGESTION

A section of the Election Act prohibits candidates or any persons representing them from hiring motor cars to take voters to the polls.

It is great that law has been consistently broken, in every election in recent years.

The Ontario Legislature's select committee on election laws has recommended that this section of the Act be eliminated.

The committee deserves commendation for its realistic suggestion. There is only one thing wrong with it. It comes much too late to prevent the majority of our lawmakers being law-breakers.

If any person deplores the habit of many citizens of ignoring laws with which they do not agree, we can only ask how anybody can expect the governed to be law-abiding when the men and women who are chosen to govern them flout the law.

But if their own experience convinces the law-makers that no law can be enforced unless it has the approval and active support of a majority of citizens, then the retention of that ridiculous clause of the Election Act until the present day will have served a useful purpose.

And the legislators decide to search through the statutes and eliminate a few more laws which are out-of-date and generally disregarded, all the better.

ONE ANSWER

Asked by the youngsters: "Is Santa Claus real?"
I replied: "Believe this:
He's as real as the love you can't see, but can feel.
And if lost you would miss.

"Though only at Christmas he visits, you'll hear
Many grownups declare,
He comes in their dreams every night of the year
With the tenderest care. . .

"You've been told that he lives at the north pole afar,
And from there he must start.
But countless the homes of all Santa Claus are.
They're in every one's heart.

"Though never his presence to you he'll reveal,
For that shouldn't be,
If love and devotion and kindness are real,
Then also is he. . .

Top Hat Falls On Evil Days

(The Times, Of London, England)

A sartorial die-hard will read, today, with qualified rapture that no less than 26 station-masters are officially privileged to wear top hats, and that several stations have recently been added to the smart set. But his first hope of a nationalized industry keeping the flag of elegance flying in a utility age must be dashed by the postscript that when some present wearers retire, their successors will be shorn of the glory.

One by one the strongholds of proud, masculine eminence have been stormed. Reference, two years ago, to the House of Commons in the shining array of top hats would be assembled bold hearers. Earlier than that but still within living memory—Ascot racegoers or Edwardian dandies were to be seen among the high reeds on the towpath of Henley. Even the Lord Post Office linesmen wore the invidious crown. Even the old Dublin Fire Brigade, which, in their case, was called a "storm drum" after the stiffly peaked seaside guard stations.

Promotion from the age of 12 or less went to church in top hats, even if they did not to Sunday school. In the rough-and-tumble orders of week-days, Chairmen at public meetings, and auctioneers, on the river or the cricket field followed suit.

Now, except for weddings and occasional ceremonies, the silk hat is worn only by a benign vanity was less long than is sometimes thought. Sir Alfred Butt, M.P., was for long the beaver-shinned topper in the last century. As he was also a public observer might still—though only very occasionally perhaps—be observed on the Turf circum. As early as that, too, the hapless were beginning to abandon their treason.

"How I do hate a top hat," Jerome K. Jerome, of "Three Men in a Boat" fame, confessed about that time. "Another hateful thing is boots." "Do you see anything ridiculous in my hat, Sir?" "Nothing but the head. Sir." That was the swagger given in the old drawings to "well-dressed" gentry. It is the top hat in hand, is bowing his way out.

Unavoidable Decisions

(Montreal Gazette)

In the final volume of his Second World War history, "Triumph and Tragedy," Sir Winston Churchill recounts in detail the fateful discussion at Yalta over the future of Poland, and how Britain and the United States were eventually forced to trust Russian intentions partly because Russian troops already occupied the country, partly because the Russians had lived up to their agreements until then.

He concluded the chapter: "It is easy, after the Germans are beaten, to condemn those who did their best to hearten the Russian military effort and to keep in harmonious contact with our great Ally . . . What would have happened if we had quarrelled with Russia while the Germans still had three or four hundred divisions on the Eastern front? Our hopeful assumptions (that the Russians could be faithful) were soon to be falsified. Still, they were the only ones possible at the time."

At the time, also, top American military and political advisers would take 18 months' more fighting, after Germany fell, for granted before victory came. They were determined it should be 18 months' fighting with no hesitation, high explosive, high fat, low carbohydrate diet.

DIET FOR THE DIABETIC

To the best of my knowledge there is only difference between chronic rheumatic and chronic arthritis is in what you pay the doctor for labelling it. On the other hand, if you asked an arthritic quack who has been dishing it out here for donkey's years and promised him not to be mad at me if I tell you what I honestly believe to be the nature and cause of chronic rheumatism, that would take a structure which inspires full use of the joint. I'll tell you to your teeth that I believe the rheumatic is physical degeneration and the physical deficiencies because it usually appears in the morning through many years.

Dr. Brady

I'm not going to say limited space here to define physical degeneration. If you care to know, consult Webster No. 4 definition of degeneration.

The diet I recommend for persons with early or advanced rheumatic is a high protein, high calcium, high fat, low carbohydrate diet.

High protein diet means plenty of beef, mutton, ham, fowl, bacon, peas, eggs, milk and cheese. Especially cheese whatever kind of cheese one likes. And nuts and bacon.

The less white bread, cake and other delicacies made of refined white flour, the better. Instead of such foods is pumpernickel. chronic rheumatic should go for genuine whole wheat bread, made by freshly ground wheat, ground is your own hand power or electric power mill or in a commercial mill if any in your vicinity where you can get the flour within a few days after milling, because genuine whole wheat flour will not keep long in storage—that's why more and more people are grinding their own.

High calcium foods are milk, skim milk, most milk products, particularly cheese, any and all kinds of cheese genuine cheese, that is, not make-believe), peas, beans, nuts, peanuts, greens, leafy vegetables, salad vegetables. If you have the chronic rheumatic or a condition that you are developing rheumatic, or call it arthritic if you laugh at having the latter is worth at least $18.75 more than the lowly rheumatic. If you want to make these high calcium foods a fundamental part of your every day diet, and for goodness sake don't exclude any of these foods because you think they are "difficult to digest."

Seals Show Love of Music

(Manchester Guardian)

The fact that seals have a fondness of seals that follow a ship for miles when music is being played on deck has been said to been less of an old salt's yarn than is generally supposed. At least, the beach officials at Hunstanton are beginning to think so. Recently they were wondering why their customary invasion of seals had temporarily ceased, but baby seals chose to come ashore on one particular day of the week.

Then they discovered that an electric organ, newly installed in the Sea Lion Hotel, was directly opposite the beach where the seals gathered. Could it be coincidence, it seems, was music, as any old tar could have told them.

This is certainly one up for those who still believe that music can soothe the savage breast—a theory which has had such eminent supporters as Shackleton, who charmed penguins with a gramophone-in the Antarctic, and Thomas Hardy, who owned a musical dog. But on what appears to have possessed a pet with anything like the acuteness of Pericles Gaulier's cat. From his account, this tabby not only listened to music but had all the makings of a first-class critic. "Seated on a chair or sofa," he relates in his memoirs, "she would listen attentively and with evident signs of pleasure to the ladies who came to our house to play. If a wrong note was made her nervous, and when the night was over she never failed to shut the mouth of the singer with her paw."

KICKBACK JOY

Nothing is more true than the statement that the more you give the more you receive. It is true to you. There is a famous saying that, "the only things we ever keep are what we give away." It is a good keep corresponding and returning to us in the firm of increased joy and personal satisfaction. They may even be termed spiritual kickbacks.

Ever note the pats on the back that a home runner in baseball receives as he returns to his bench after he has scored? Football player completes a touchdown? That player has had done for him one. That teacher replied: "It has been worth all the hardships and discouragements of being a teacher just to have had a boy like yours for a pupil!" What a kickback of joy that was to both teacher and father.

Many years ago I got a letter from the keeper of a city lockup near Harrisburg, Pa. He said that he had never read a book until he had read "Strength One Day at a Time" and expressed how much it had helped him. "Your book is my constant companion," he added. "I always keep it under my pillow." Now I have had a library of 400 books." That was a heavy kickback of joy that I received. I know I had been the means of adding to another's joy, as well as my own.

There is so much joy to be found in giving and not without price" just by trying to give yourself away—your ideas, your encouragements and your knowledge. Without this accumulative joy we would be poor indeed, regardless of many possessions.

WATCH THOSE ROOTS

Agricultural experts told us last fall that unless the rains started and the plants and trees went into the winter months with plenty of moisture about them we would have a fall victim of disease.

It's the old story over again of the necessity of keeping the roots healthy. Water does something more than just refresh plants. It feeds them and keeps them free of devastating blights.

What is true in the realm of nature is true also in the realm of spirit. Some people look upon religion as a mere factor of refreshment. It is supported in many people happy and to give them peace, security, and freedom from fear (all of which things it does). It is all very well to hope and expect such things from religious faith, but religion calls for more than merely more than these things. Religious faith keeps the roots healthy.

The roots of our lives consist of our philosophy of life—that is, our attitude toward others—and in the upreach of the human heart to God and his divine power. We can have a superficial type of religion—which is more psychology than religion—and it will snap us out of our moods and give us a pat on the back and tell us to cheer up. This is good—but what about the roots?

Unless the refreshing rains of God reach the roots healthy and keeps them so, then all other advantages are vain.

The PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Christmas falling on a Friday this year, thus affording a long weekend, the transportation companies are looking forward to it with more than usual anxiety. Railroad, bus and air services, together with those responsible for highway traffic, including police, service stations, hospitals and eating places along the way, are expecting the busiest week-end they have ever had. Not only will they be on an all-time high in Christmas travel, Prosperity plus Christmas plus a long weekend make a powerful combination.

We think of Christmas as the one great, universal holiday of the year. But as we survey the mere traffic of that wonderful holiday, not thousands but scores of thousands of us are going to have to work hard-er on Friday, Saturday and Sunday than Christmas Day or on any other season of the year. The regular emergency crews are going to be augmented by special crews. Every piece of bus equipment and aircraft is to be pressed into service. All the auxiliary services associated with these transportation systems will have to be increased, the clerks, ticket sellers, baggage handlers, red caps. No service station man, no hospital nurse, no waitress in a station or highway restaurant can expect to see Santa Claus except during a week-end off-hours when Santa Claus should have come and gone long ago.

If the weather turns bad, the situation will be desperate. Only a right-of-way clearance will not be sufficient; Christmas demands superlatives.

And many of us, most of us pay for that. But we accept the price for granted. We'll reach our destination that night. But whether who got us there will be a long way from home.

Every year Christmas dinner last year, at which a family, was gathered from near and far, the head of the clan, when the feat was over, raised his glass and said:

"And now, dear friends, let us drink a toast to all those who, to serve us, are late for dinner this day!"

Luke, The Physician

CHAPTER 12.

In the very planning of new travels Paul was faced with fresh troubles.

"Let us go again," Paul proposed to Barnabas, "and visit our brethren in every city where we have preached the word of the Lord and see how they do."

Good! Barnabas thought it was an excellent plan. And, he added, why not take his cousin, young Mark, along with them again?

"No!" said Paul. And the argument was on. Paul could not forget his previous disappointment with young Mark. Had Mark not deserted Paul and Barnabas on the first journey, leaving them to carry on their arduous task alone? Why trust him again?

Paul's logic was sound. He intended not only to revisit his first mission outposts but to go on into unknown lands, facing incalculable perils. (Though Paul did not then know it, this second journey was to last more than three years.) For such an enterprise, they would need a helper who could be relied upon. Could Barnabas contend that fact?

Barnabas' reply put an end to one of the most remarkable of friendships. The contention between them had become so sharp that only action could conclude it. The two men parted in silence and heartache.

Let Barnabas and his nephew call on the churches the two missioners had founded on the island of Cyprus. As for Paul, he would go another way. For companion he chose a man he had learned to trust completely, Silas, called Sylvanus, who had originally come down from Jerusalem as one of the agents of the grand council.

But Paul could never shut Barnabas out of his heart. The tentmaking Pharisee from Tarsus could never forget that it was Barnabas who found him in the streets of Jerusalem and led him to the Cenacle. Barnabas had stood up for Paul against all those who feared his presence because of the stoning of Stephen. It was Barnabas who had started the evangelizing tour and had invited Paul to join, taking him into partnership. And when Paul's eloquence plainly exceeded his own, even on his home grounds of the Cypriote had taken second place with quiet humility. He seemed never to know smallness or meanness.

Together the two missioners had converted thousands. They had run desperate dangers, had been persecuted together, and escaped together.

Perhaps Paul still had a lot to learn, and this second missionary journey would help to school him, not in the concentrated wisdom of books, but in warm flesh and blood human relations. Many of his companions would have said that Paul was hard to get along as an additional companion in spreading the Gospel.

Luke, the Greek, the physician and painter—Luke of the tender and compassionate heart.

Surrounded by many and varied antagonists, he may well have been too suspicious.

Whatever Paul's motives, over the question of Mark he stood out against Barnabas and lost him.

It is a severe grief to lose a friend.

On donkeys, Paul and Silas left Antioch together, heading through the mountains to South Celatia, scene of Paul's first missionary journey.

Now Paul, back in Lystra, was visiting at the house of Timothy and Eunice, when suddenly he felt a divine direction, through "the prophecies which pointed him out" in the soul of the apostle. He felt he had been directly commanded to take this youth in Asia. And when they were come into Mysia, they attempted to go into Bithynia, and the Spirit of Jesus suffered them not. And when they had passed through Mysia, they went down to Troas."

Paul, Silas and Timothy had been stopped in their tracks. They had embarked on an extended tour of the Roman province called Asia — and the unmistakable inner guidance of God forbade them to carry out their plans. They must not preach any longer in Asia.

Promptly then they had been their steps northward through Mysia, toward the province of Bithynia, bordering on the Black Sea. Again, on their behalf, the Spirit of Jesus would not let them enter there. And again Paul and Silas and Timothy obediently changed their course. They turned their feet to the west, retraced their way through Mysia, and followed the promptings of the Spirit. They went down to the city of Troas. But now Paul and Silas and Timothy entered the battlered walls of the city, they found a metropolis complete with theatres, baths, and aqueducts, all in the latest Roman fashion.

But Troas was still in the province of Asia — and that whole area had been "closed" to Paul by the Holy Spirit. Why then had he been guided to this spot?

Paul spent a sleepless night in Troas, tossing in tormented restlessness. Suddenly his room filled with brilliance. Sitting bolt upright, the apostle stared at his open window, and saw a lightbathed apparition facing him. He saw a vision of a man "standing and beseeching" him, saying:

"Pass over into Macedonia and help us."

Macedonia! The mainland of Europe. As the vision faded and disappeared, Paul sat gazing out of the shadowed window. Slowly he breathed in deeply the salt air of the Aegean Sea.

"Macedonia. Then it will be", Paul vowed. He recognized a call that was equal to a command. He resolved to obey at once.

But when Paul left Troas, he would have a new companion, the man, whose new name as St. Luke.

The Bible says simply:

"And sailing from Troas, we came with a straight course . . .

"We came!" Without warning or fanfare, the narrative of The Acts of the Apostles switches from the third person to the first person. Quietly, unobtrusively, the author suddenly includes himself in the drama of the early Church.

With humility that frustrates the curious reader, Luke tells almost nothing of himself. He is silent about that most dramatic of meetings when he joined himself with Paul, the beginning of a working friendship. In his last fateful years, Paul was to tell Timothy that of all his co-workers only Luke remained faithfully by his side as the tragic climax of his captivity reached.

They met in Troas, these two converts. Paul was Greek; Luke, Paul, the tentmaker and scholar, and Luke, the physician and painter.

In his letter to the Colossians, Paul was to refer to him: "Luke, the most dear physician." Most dear to Paul he was, a loyal and tireless worker: "My yokefellow," Paul called him fondly.

Actually, Luke is mentioned by name but three times in the Bible, and then only in letters written by Paul. Carefully, deliberately, Luke effaces himself from both his own Gospel and The Acts. Yet he was to leave an unmistakable imprint of his personality on every word he wrote.

Nearly one-third of his Gospel is new material, not included in the other three "Synoptic" Gospels. Luke was not an eyewitness but put together, ferreting out facts with the scientific care of a modern historian. Yet his life of the Lord glows with his own profound love of Jesus and His tender mercy. Luke himself had a tender and compassionate heart.

The meeting of Paul and Luke on the shores of the Aegean Sea was to affect their lives to the death. Surely they must have known their ends would be tragic, realizing that evangelists in such a cause were destined to follow their divine Leader into martyrdom. Yet they decided to travel that path together. Paul and Luke, Silas and Timothy left Troas and, following the vision of the Macedonian, sailed northwest across the sea — out of Asia.

Paul and Luke, a Pharisee and a Gentile, neither of whom had ever seen Jesus during His lifetime, were charged now with the tremendous task of bringing Christianity into Europe.

They would be older and far wiser men before that task was done.

"And sailing from Troas, we came with a straight course to Samothracia, and the day following to Neapolis . . ." and there Paul set foot for the first time on European ground!

Still on sea legs, the four missioners tramped the ten miles from the noisy port of Neapolis through gray swamplands to Philippi, capital of Macedonia.

Philippi was both a city and a fortress, situated on a steep hill overlooking the inland green valley of the Gangites river. Only recently, while Jesus was still on earth preaching and healing, the Emperor Augustus Caesar had given Philippi the distinction of being a Roman colony, and the citizens the proud boon of free citizenship.

Arrogant in its imperial preference, claiming the title of "first city" outside of Rome, Philippi was a proud place in the year 50 when Paul, Silas, and Timothy entered the gates, ready to found the first Christian Church on European soil.

Weddings

HUBEL—BAILEY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Bailey, Carmel, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, November 28, when their elder daughter, Anita Mae, was united in marriage to Mr. Glenn Ferguson Hubel, son of Mrs. Hubel of Carmel, and the late S. Hubel. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. R. Baker. The rooms were decorated with pink and white streamers, while bells and chrysanthemums.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Arthur Pyear, aunt of the bridegroom. Preceding the ceremony the lovely hymn "The Lord Has Breathed O'er Eden," was sung by Dawn and Dale Hubbell, sister and younger brother of the bridegroom. They also sang, "Love You Truly," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was charming in a floor-length gown of pale blue faille marquisette over pink taffeta. She carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations and wore a matching headdress in her hair.

Miss Joyce Bailey was her sister's bridesmaid, wearing a gown of mauve nylon marquisette over pale taffeta. She carried a muff of mauve and yellow baby mums and matching hair headpiece.

Talk on Marriage Given A.Y.P.A. By Archdeacon

Marriage is more than a marriage ceremony. That was the essence of a talk given by Archdeacon J. R. Creeggan to members of Christ Church Anglican Young People's Association.

Stating that many people permit their emotions to govern the choice of a mate, the speaker said more attention is often taken of the good and the bad points of the new automobile, which will be kept for a few years, than is given to learning the true personality of the husband or wife, which should be kept for life.

It is Mr. Creeggan's belief that less attention were paid to the externals, the material requirements for a 'correct' marriage (as expounded in books by Emily Post and company) and more attention were paid to the spiritual, the Christian requirements for a happy marriage (as expounded in the marriage ceremony) there would be fewer unhappy homes and fewer people trying to put asunder what God has joined together.

"If more young people would think about the important step they're taking when marrying, would pray about it, were less in love with love, his talk would be made easier and the cupple's life together would be made happier," he declared. Using examples from his own experience Mr. Creeggan showed how young people walk blindly along the road which should lead to happiness, permitting psychological blocks to cloud ordinary common sense.

Marry someone you really know and not a comparative stranger. Build your relationship on the solid rock of Christian ideals and practices. Work together, the way two horses do when properly harnessed and directed. Give the biggest step in your life prayerful thought, love and preparation. Talk your plans over with your spiritual adviser well in advance. These were some of the major points Mr. Creeggan mentioned.

Following the rector's talk the A.Y.P.A. captains for games and dancing. The meeting was under the supervision of Phyllis Kerr group and Fred Page called the square dance.

Refreshments were served.

Mr., Mrs. James Vance Celebrated Their Golden Anniversary

Fifty years ago last Friday, a pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ellwood Robinson, 9th Concession of Tyendinaga, when their daughter, Martha Jane, became the bride of James Vance, also of the 9th Concession of Tyendinaga, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Vance. The minister of Rollin Methodist Church, the Reverend W. McCullough, officiated, and the bridal party stood under wedding bells.

Mattie Gerow and Mr. William Robertson, brother of the bride.

In commemoration of this outstanding event, the immediate family of Mr. and Mrs. James Vance were present at their parents' home in Roslin to enjoy with them a banquet supper provided by the daughters-in-law, highlighted by a lovely and delicious anniversary cake.

For some years now, Mr. Vance has been living retired at his present address, his son, Roy and family, managing the farm. Both are enjoying fairly good health. Mrs. Vance was years ago had the misfortune to break her hip, which still gives her considerable pain. Both are keenly interested in the day's happenings, and like to keep abreast of the times. Mr. Vance is a natural 'green thumb' gardener and in the summer spends considerable time among his flowers and vegetables.

Mr. and Mrs. Vance have two sons, Roy, of Roslin, and Donald, of Shannonville, who manage as a grist and saw mill there. There are five grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Vance were the happy recipients of two lovely bouquets of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums, one from the Menogrove Guild and the other from the W.A. of Roslin. They were also the recipients of an electric heater as well as several other useful and lovely gifts, greatly cards of congratulations from far and near, and a letter from the Menogrove Orange Lodge, of which Mr. Vance is an honorary member, extending congratulations and best wishes. Their pastor, Rev. E. J. Kersey called during the afternoon.

The community joins in extending to Mr. and Mrs. Vance, its sincere wishes for health and happiness for the future and for their diamond anniversary.

Opportunity Shop Presents Cheque for Substantial Sum

The monthly meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary took place at the Nurses' Residence of the Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday. The president, Mrs. J. J. Cronkwright, was in the chair.

Many new articles were received for the Christmas table at the Opportunity Shop. Additional gifts will be most welcome and may be left at the shop.

CHEQUE PRESENTED

Mrs. Finkle, Opportunity Shop convener, in her report, suggested the formation of a sewing group in connection with the shop. This group could make over good material in out-of-date articles into clothing for children. She also presented the treasurer with a cheque for $700. This represents the profit from the shop since the fall opening.

Mrs. Finkle expressed hop thanks to the staff and to all who have donated, without whose help the Opportunity Shop could not have been realized.

With this cheque, plus the bank balance, it was decided to authorize the treasurer to buy a $1,000 bond to be applied to the sum which is being put aside to fulfil the Auxiliary's pledge to the Hospital Building Fund.

NEW "COFFEE SNACK"

Mrs. Lennox Smith, convener of the "Coffee Snack", announced that it is now under construction, and will, when finished, accommodate from 12-14 people.

Christmas came to the Coffee Snack at the meeting, when a beautiful sandwich toaster was presented by the Alpha Lambda Chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, who have been for many years a source of tremendous support to the Auxiliary. Another gift, which was a delightful surprise, was that of an electric tea kettle, presented by the honorary president of the Hospital Auxiliary, Mrs. W. F. Mikel.

The report of the 1953 convention held in Toronto in October was given by Mrs. James Forrester, Mrs. John O'Flynn and Mrs. John Buchan.

There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned. Tea was served, and two members, Mrs. W. N. Ponton and Mrs. David McDonald, were made welcome.

A number of new members have been received at each meeting this fall.

A panel discussion on the subject, "Hospital visiting from the point of view of the administrator, the doctor, the nurses and the patient," will be presented at the January meeting.

New members are always welcome.

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

I feel like putting S.O.S. in big letters at the top, for I feel sure you can offer some help and cheer.

Some years ago my husband deserted us, leaving me with a family of eight children . . . nursing training came in handy, two older boys went to work and we managed . . . a few years later he was killed in an accident . . . and I married again. We now have a family of our own and hubby is wonderful. . . . we are trying to fix up our home and live on a civil service salary . . . could you tell me how much I should be spending on food? the smallest that is. The family is: daughters 18 and 15 who take lunch to work and to school; hubby, lunch to work; myself, doing all my own work; and seven daughters 11, 8 and 4, and 3 months; son: 22 months (both twins died in first six months due to an accident). I'm busy but happy. If I could only cut food costs which at present are about $35 to $37 a week. This includes milk and bread (which I bake), also soap and cleansers, etc. Can you offer any suggestions. I try most of your cheap-recipes. I buy by case of Magic-. . . had two years, eight months' nursing training but had to stop, when 2nd was killed in train accident.—J. B.

ANSWER:

You certainly have had a big share of misfortunes, but your letter shows lots of "grit and grace." I have a folder entitled "Let's Talk About Your Grocery Bill" printed by Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc., 205 East 42nd Street, New York 17, N.Y. It is not as specific as I think you would like but it will show you why you should not buy pre-packaged foods when you want to drastically economize. I am mailing you the release of Nov. 13, in which Florence M. T.'s letter appeared. She is the girl who manages on $60.00 per week with husband and four children.

As you know it is labor costs that make the price of food high all along the line. Further since you have a large family for efficiency and economy buy your staples in cases or bulk. If you have a good cold storage cellar buy your vegetables, fruits, etc., by the bushel or wholesale-sized bag.

Cereals in packages are not for you. Examine the outside of a package of ready-to-eat cereal. You will find the net contents weigh 10 or 12 oz. for which you have paid about 17 cents. Then examine the cereals which have to be cooked. Sometimes they contain more than 2 lbs. for about 30 cents, and often are made up of a variety of grains with wheat germ too. (When you make hot cereal add wheat germ (11 cents per lb.)—as much as 1-2 to 3-4 cup for each batch.)

However, since you live in a city you can go directly to the flour mill for your cereals and buy them in bulk. You can get them at a much lower price than the packaged cereals to be cooked. Packaging and packages add tremendously to merchandising costs. It is obvious that packaged foods are more sanitary so you have to be sure of your dealer.

Buy powdered skim milk in 5 or 10 lb. lactose and use up at least 3 lbs. ordinary cheddar cheese per week. You can buy cracked eggs at the egg-grading station at a very reduced price. I have sent you other reading matter to mail over.

QUESTION:

(Nov. 13) column inspired me to write . . . taking time is highway robbery, for four small children (5 months to 4 1-2 years) make time more precious than diamonds. The letter from Florence M.T. did it. That wonderful woman must be a miracle worker. My monthly budget is around $80, plus $16 for milk; baby foods take a goodly portion. Our baby is allergic to milk and has quite an expensive substitute. I bake my own bread and since I'm a novice I'm afraid to tackle whole wheat . . . could you give me specific instructions? Do you think Florence M.T. would give some general outline of how she spends her food budget, getting everything essential for growing children. If she's so astute as to manage on $60, she must have more economy ideas, I would be so grateful for her help . . . we're trying to save enough to start building our own place . . . four children in just six years have slowed things up but aren't children wonderful. We're both just 25 so can stand it. . . . your column is such a help not only for recipes but hints on child-raising, housework and just plain living.—Kay B.

ANSWER:

See letter above yours Kay and my answer. I have sent you what you asked for and when Florence responds will let you know.

Florence M. T. would you care to come to the rescue of two gallant souls?

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

HINT FOR CHRISTMAS PLANNING

"Christmas would not be Christmas without the interchange of good wishes."

Dickens

EVERYONE LOVES TO RECEIVE A CHRISTMAS CARD!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I've never sent out many Christmas cards—just a few, to relatives and close friends. But this year I seem to have an urge to send more "greetings." Is it really proper to send Christmas cards to mere acquaintances? And perhaps to those who serve you in some way during the year, the nice boy who delivers our newspapers, for example?

Anne

Yes! . . . my enthusiastic answer to both your questions. A Christmas card is a pleasant gesture of Good Will, carries a good thought. And please, dear lady, always remember this: to so many people who are mere acquaintances of yours, sending a Christmas card may mean more than you would possibly think. Hearts are always touched by a kind thought.

It's a perfect plan to send for gifted Christmas cards to those kind people who serve you during the year, "The butcher, the baker, the candlestick-maker." The "nice boy" who delivers your newspapers. The errand boy at the grocer's or fruit the corner drug store. Your partime helper. The baby-sitter. The postman. And if you give a gift or a Christmas tip to any of these-who-serve, always graciously accompany it with a thoughtfully-chosen Christmas card. And it's nice to add a personal message-of-appreciation to the printed message. Perhaps: "My friendly greetings to you, my deep appreciation, and every good wish for your New Year's."

LITTLE GIRL'S NAME ON ENVELOPE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I want to send individual Christmas cards this year to several little girls, two nieces of mine, two goddaughters, several cute little daughters of friends of mine. Some of these children are as young as five years and six (Parents) may I have included them on the mother-and-father cards, but when I read in your column the other day your suggestion to send an individual card to every member of the family, I agreed with you that it would be a fine idea. How do I like to know how I should address the envelope to such a little girl.

"Auntie"

No matter how young the young lady, write "Miss" before her name on the envelope.

Miss Elizabeth Clark
123 Fourth Street
Haven

These little girls will, naturally, be enchanted to receive their "very own" Christmas cards . . . and they will be proud to see, or to be shown, that the cards are graciously and politely adressed to them, with "Family" before the name. A good lesson for "Auntie" to show them. Such amenities, grams, can't begin too early in a child's life!

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LEARNING TO BE A GOOD CONVERSATIONALIST

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A few weeks ago I met a boy a couple of years older than myself and fell for him hard. I think he liked me right away, too, because he has asked me out several times since then.

While each one of our dates has been very enjoyable, there is one thing that bothers me, and that is that I am not a very good conversationalist, and would like to improve myself on this.

Sometimes I can't think of anything to say, and the harder I try to talk, the worse it gets.

How can I overcome this trouble? The young man is 19 and I am 18.

Mary D. .

Dear Mary:

If this boy has taken you out several times, he must certainly like you as you are, so I wouldn't worry too much on this score. However, to be able to talk easily is an asset in any situation. It's a good idea to learn a few tricks along that line.

The best rule I know is to find out what the person you're with is interested in, and then ask questions that give him an opportunity to talk about his favorite subjects. Let him see you're interested in hearing what he has to say, and it will not only keep you from feeling the need of finding topics to dis-perhaps you would enjoy him more if you did see him less often.

If I were you, I'd try this plan and see how things develop.

Stroud's 'Gift Court' An Open Sesame for Christmas Shoppers

"Only 12 more shopping days till Christmas," says the seemingly jubilant sales girl over the local radio, as he ticks off, day by day, and one by one, the available shopping time left for securing that extra special gift for that extra special "someone"; and day by day, the "fiddlement" grows. But listen, O comrades in befuddlement, there is an open sesame to "Gift Court," just a step from the four corners, up a short flight of stairs in Stroud's gift shop, teeming with lovely articles from India's coral strand, China's vast expanse, the chalk bound shores of Merry England, and Ontario's fair land.

Just a few steps up the new blonde steps a turn to the right and there before your eyes is the counterpart of Ali Baba's cave, glowing and gleaming with gifts fit for royalty and for the special someone.

PRETTY DISPLAY CABINETS

The green-tinted plywood walls with their pleasing grain, are lined on three sides with natural and rose colored sectional display cabinets, each cabinet containing its own particular wares, while in between the cabinets, each wall space also displays its own handicraft. In the centre of the room are two tables, each one holding a fine assortment of articles, both useful and ornamental. Here, one may walk around, without fear of catching some delicate piece of bric-a-bac by a voluminous cuff; there is room to think, to walk, to gaze, and to choose, unhurried and unworried.

INDIAN CRAFT

On entering the first to meet the eye was the lovely display of Indian craft, with its delicate hand-made fretwork wall brackets and tea-pot stands in rich, dark wood, brass vases encrusted with crimson and blue enamel designs, jewel cases, lovely oval trays, all hand-wrought in many designs.

On the wall, one mentally travels to England, as glowing brass, plate-like plaques are seen depicting old galleon ships, chess players and the ukelele strummers. Just below, sitting so attractively grouped is a whole pig family—"Pigs is Pigs", sleek and shiny black, their sides embossed with colored flowers, and right behind, some turquoise-shaded vases and urns, also flower embossed. These are the Bromley ware, so much admired some years ago, and now again have entered the front lines of pottery.

CHINESE POTTERY

Above these, occupying the rose colored cabinet, is a gleaming collection of Chinese fancy pottery in shades of rich charteuse. There are floral centrepieces of many shapes; one in particular showed a tiny white garden with the Ming tree and little Chinese figurine near by. Others to catch the eye were the little Chinese fisherman with dangling fish; the Honey Changer; little pagoda bridges, so dainty and colorful; pretty boudoir lamps, also in charteuse, and Chinese temples, slender and pointed, and then, the lovely, white Chinese goddess of Mercy.

In the wall space were woven wicker baskets' made by the Dutch settlement south side of Orillia. These little baskets were filled with tinted wild flowers, and artistic milkweed pods in shades of blue, crimson, yellow and mauve; unique gifts not found in other stores. Other wall ornaments consisted of pink-dressed Chinese musicians in pearl grey frames, and plaques of colorful fruits.

ROYAL HAIGZE

A cabinet contained the Royal Haegar pottery in dark brown, having a most lovely sheen. These were in centrepiece dishes; attractively shaped vases; each one so pretty it was hard to choose.

A mahogany, Duncan Phyfe table and silver cabinet combined was of fine proportions and the accompanying silver flatware, beautifully designed.

In the lamp section there were many unusual and very nice lamps, each one for its own purpose, and ranging from the floor living room with tall standards of chartreuse with matching shades, floral trimmed; dainty bedroom lamps with matching shades, thinking of those back in book-lined rooms and knee-desk table; others had figures of blue dressed ladies holding aloft the light-giving rays and some with gracefully turned brass standards held pots of air fern or flowers.

BESWICK POTTERY

The Beswick pottery was also in showrn in deep rose shades and in shapes simulating vases, urns, table centres, and some were merely ornamental depicting resting antelopes.

There were fine, bevelled plate mirrors, round, oblong and square, with frosted floral decorations at the corners, and in wreath effect.

The artificial flowers which lend their borrowed color to the dark and dreary days of autumn and long winter evenings, were replicas of bronze dahlias, daisies in glowing yellow; pink-tipped water lilies; lovely purple pansies with piquant little faces; mauve iris; graceful fronds of pale, pink wisteria, and rich red poppies with dark centres.

DERWOOD HANDCARVING

In one corner was the Derwood exhibit, showing reproduction of hand-carving made from Canadian pulp wood, done in designs of horses and dog bookends; salad forks and spoons; cigaret boxes and candle holders and wall brackets, mottoes and shadow boxes for holding tiny ornaments.

The two centre tables displayed a fine collection of ash trays in both floral still life, and animal design; there was an ash tray to suit nearly everyone's taste or hobby. There were some for the reader; some for the golf enthusiast, and some for the patient fisherman. Here also were bookends, one pair which held the attention was of grandpa smoking, and grandma knitting. Another pair was made from lovely pink-tinted Italian marble showing a pair of parakeets.

And then the wooden sandwich trays of all sizes and decorative effects, which were useful as well as ornamental, adding up to a most comprehensive whole of wonder gifts to meet the whim or taste of every Christmas friend or loved one, all in one open Sesame so close at hand.

Belleville W.T.F. Holds Christmas Meeting

The Christmas meeting of the Belleville Women Teachers' Federation was held at Lattimer's Town Room Wednesday last.

The program, prepared by Queen Alexandra School, was presented.

Miss Helen Sulman gave an impressive reading, "The Woolly Lamb of God," followed by the rendition of two solos, "No Candle Was There," and "A Miracle Came to Me," by Miss Margaret Hills.

At the close of the meeting each person was presented with a gift.

ACTRESS RESCUES BOY

URUAPAN, Mexico (AP)—Hollywood film star Susan Hayward risked possible serious injury Thursday to save a young Indian boy from sliding over a 30-foot ledge during a heavy rain. Miss Hayward sprained an ankle during the rescue but director Henry Hathaway said he expected her to be on the set today. The film concerns the building scenes of the edge of Mexico's extinct volcano, Paracutin.

Parish Guild Enjoys European Scenes

Christ Church Parish Guild met on Tuesday in the Parish Hall. It was the Christmas luncheon party—and a most bountiful and delectable meal. Mrs. Cleo Colling presided and introduced the guests at the head table, after which each member introduced the person at her right.

A sing-song was led by Archdeacon J. B. Creeggan with Mrs. A. Jordan at the piano.

All business was laid over till the next meeting. Mr. Creeggan thanked the Guild for its work and co-operation and the Rev. Everett Smith told of how happy he was in his work in the parish.

Mrs. Ted Follwell gave a most delightful travel talk of her trip to England, Scotland, Switzerland, and Belgium, showing beautiful moving pictures—from the beautiful Cathedrals, the rose gardens, the green fields of England to the ice-capped mountains of Switzerland—the colors were exquisite.

Mrs. Follwell's humorous account of her trip made a most pleasant afternoon.

Mrs. Earl Hickey tendered thanks to the speaker, and reminded the Guild how fortunate it was to have in its own circle, so many travellers.

Women Doctors From India Are Impressed

MONTREAL (CP)—Two women doctors from India, doing post-graduate work in Canada under the Colombo Plan, have been impressed by the large number of teachers here and the great strides made in medical research in Canada.

Dr. Prema Naidu, professor of obstetrics at Osmania University, Hyderabad, and Dr. E. V. Kalyani, instructor in obstetrics at the government hospital for women in Madras, have been studying medical education at the Royal Victoria Hospital for several months.

Both doctors believe the Colombo Plan might work both ways, to the advantage of India and Canada or other countries concerned.

Dr. Naidu said: "In the cities of India medical aid is well organized. The hospitals and teaching are as good as anywhere in the world, but 98 per cent of the people live in villages where there is a shortage of medically-trained people.

"More and more women are taking up medicine in India, where the course is five years, and at every university 30 per cent of the seats are reserved for women," she commented. "But it will be years before there are enough doctors and nurses to practise in the country where babies are still delivered by mid-wives."

CAMBRIDGE, England (CP)—When three 13-year-old boys were charged with stealing a crucifix, the Bishop of Ely said: "To what extent can I inflict punishment without being summoned myself?" The boys were put on probation for two years.

Lace Curtains On Bus? The Comrades Are Getting Soft!

Spandau prison in Berlin is where Rudolph Hess and six other high-ranking Nazis are serving war-crime sentences. Each month one of the four occupying powers takes charge of the prison exchanging guards in a simple routine ceremony. A squad of Russian soldiers (right), equipped with Tommy guns, is shown moving out of the prison with a Russian officer at the rear barking out orders. The sign at the left warns passers-by, both in English and in German, not to approach the barbed wire fence surrounding the prison. At the last changing of the guard and for the first time in seven years, the Soviets left the prison in a bus, instead of a truck. As the photographer snapped a picture of the Soviet soldiers in the bus, one of the Russians quickly snapped a picture of the photographer, too. The Soviet bus even boasts lace curtains on the windows.—Central Press Canadian.

Press Hunt for Kidnapped Girl; Companion Taken To Scene for Crime Enactment

PRINCE IS FIVE

This portrait of Prince Charles was taken for his fifth birthday which he celebrated November 14, a few days before his parents and the Duke of Edinburgh left London on their Commonwealth tour.

TORONTO (CP) — A reward poster is to be circulated throughout Canada and the United States in the continuing hunt for kidnapped Marion McDowell, 17.

It will offer $2,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the masked gunman reported to have snatched away the baby-faced blonde in a car trunk last Sunday.

The girl, a junior typist with a yen for roller skating and motorcycles, is said to have been drugged unconscious along with 18-year-old James Wilson as they sat in Wilson's parked car on a lovers' lane in suburban Scarboro township.

Wilson told police the assailant was a tall, dark man with a Balaclava masking his face.

At first, police expressed belief the attacker might have been a jealous suitor. After questioning some 200 of the girl's friends and acquaintances, they announced they had ruled out that theory, the man probably was a sex criminal, possibly one recently released from an institution.

EXTENSIVE SEARCH

Searched by 70-man police force, assisted by members of other suburban departments and by townspeople responding to police broadcast tips and to direct a vast hunt along lonely roads through farmers' fields and into ravines and woodlands.

The girl's father, Ross McDowell, accompanied by a group of friends, helped search lumber and outbuildings, culverts, railway bridges, flashlights and shouts. Mr. Dowell appealed to farmers in the buildings to look around their property for evidence of the missing vivacious daughter.

His sister-in-law, Mrs. William McDowell, offered to act as intermediary between any informants and the police.

"If anyone with helpful information is afraid to go to the police they can come to me," she said. "I would be happy to help in this way."

In early-morning darkness Thursday, police staged a re-enactment of the napping scene to see how well he might have seen Miss McDowell. They parked two cars 50 feet apart. In the darkness, police found that while standing beside one car they could easily see the trunk of the other.

Wilson's story was that he and the girl were parked, necking, when then driven in his car about half a mile to a point where another car was parked. He said they then gained consciousness in time to see the gunman-chauffeur apparently unconscious girl into the trunk of the other car and drive away.

Mr. Rowe, former member without portfolio in the Mr. Bennett's Conservative government in 1930-35, said:

"Never has a party been in power which has so many stripes of different politics as the party who was to your right, Mr. Speaker. We have free traders; we have free-balances; we have socialists; we have yinks, and we have those who are bordering on red in the party that is in power today."

Mr. Rowe said the Liberals "constitute the most mongrel political concoction I have seen since Confederation."

Big Three Plans To Ask Israel To Delay Project

By TOM HODGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Western Big Three today were reported preparing a call for the United Nations Security Council to ask Israel to hold off work on her disputed Jordan river project until she settles the issue with her Arab neighbors.

The 11-member council was set to resume the debate this afternoon on Syria's charge that Israel is threatening peace in the Middle East by plans to shift some seven miles of the Jordan river to a canal, largely in Israeli territory, for irrigation and power purposes on an Israel hydro-electric plant.

A Western source said the reported resolution would give force to the requests by the UN truce supervisor, Vallhia Mal. Gen. Vagn Bennike, that Israel stop work on the project until both parties to the Israeli-Syrian armistice agreement reach some settlement.

COMPROMISE PLAN

This source said Britain, France and the United States have worked out a formula designed to bring the touchy issue to solution with as little friction as possible. He said it has softened the Arab demands that the Israeli project be frozen indefinitely and has given some time seeks more flexibility from Israel, which has agreed only to stop work while the council considers the Syrian complaint.

Syria has labelled the Jordan project a direct violation of the armistice and warned that new fighting might break out in Palestine unless the project is dropped. The Syrians argue that the canal would give Israel a military advantage and rob Arab farmers of water needed to irrigate their fields.

Israel contends that the project is a peaceful economic one and has no bearing on the Palestine armistice sponsored and supervised by the UN.

New Wheat Seed May Save Farmers Millions of Dollars

OTTAWA (CP) — A tiny new wheat seed, which may save growers many millions of dollars in the event of a rust epidemic, is being speeded up in Prairie farms.

Product of 14 years of research, the new seed, named "Selkirk," is the creation of a group of Canadian scientists working to protect Canada's huge wheat crop from the dreaded destroyer, race 15-B, of stem rust.

The fungus growth, first discovered in the United States in 1938, has spread northwards, its spores setting mainly over Manitoba and eastern Saskatchewan.

Many millions of bushels of wheat already have been lost through the destroyer, and in the event of an epidemic, Prairie farmers could lose between 300,000,000 and 400,000,000 in rotted wheat, said Dr. C. H. Goulden, chief of the agriculture department's cereal division and one of the men who participated in the research.

Selkirk, to be distributed to Manitoba and eastern Saskatchewan farmers, will give Canada protection against race 15-B, as well as other five years, Dr. Goulden said.

Selkirk is not the only seed developing in nature. One is 15-B-3 part of the 15-B family, scientists now have plunged into new seed breeding work, to build up a variety that can combat these other rusts, and the U.S. will

Contract Dispute Will Be Placed Before Board

MONTREAL (CP) — A contract dispute between Canadian railways and 10,000 of their non-operating employees will be placed in the hands of a federal conciliation board.

Frank H.Hall, spokesman for unions representing the workers said Thursday the decision to ask for conciliation board was reached Wednesday when discussions with the railways broke down for a second time.

In Ottawa, Labor Minister Gregg said he will act quickly to establish the conciliation board as soon as a formal request for one is received.

The board will consist of three men, one each nominated by the unions and the railways, with a chairman selected either by these two or by Mr. Gregg if they fail to do the minister.

The unions are not seeking across-the-board wage increases. They are asking for so-called "fringe" benefits such as longer vacations with pay, sick pay allowances, overtime pay for Sunday work and an increased number of statutory holidays with pay.

The railways estimate the demands would cost them $60,000,000 annually. Involved in the negotiations are the Canadian National, Canadian Pacific, Hamilton and Buffalo and Ontario Northland railways. Fifteen unions, representing all categories of non-operating employees, are involved in the discussions.

DOCTOR FINED $100

WINDSOR (CP)—A Windsor doctor had a charge of driving while intoxicated reduced to impairment Tuesday and paid a $100 fine. Dr. Othello Chatters said he had three drinks Nov. 7 before his arrest, but also took a nerve sedative and was under the influence of barbiturates. Police said he was in a stupor when arrested and his blood showed a .115 alcohol content. In reducing the charge, the magistrate said evidence indicated unusual circumstances.

Would Extend Military Code To Civilians

OTTAWA (CP) — Servicemen's dependents outside Canada, auxiliary services and newspaper correspondents with the armed forces would be brought under the military code of discipline under a bill introduced Thursday night in the Commons.

The bill would make dependents of servicemen outside Canada liable for trial by court martial. Members of auxiliary services, such as the Red Cross and Salvation Army, and correspondents would be liable if necessary—be tried by court martial.

Though the bill was not immediately explained in the House, it was understood that its general effect would be to bring all civilians serving abroad with the armed forces under the jurisdiction of Canadian law.

As it now stands, such civilians are subject to the laws and courts of the country where they are serving. The bill would be similar to American provisions.

Housing Program Being Pressed At Kitimat

KITIMAT, B.C. (CP)—An ambitious housing program to accommodate workers and their families at the $263,000,000 aluminum project here is being pressed forward by the Aluminum Company of Canada.

The first 80 of a planned 1,500 homes now are under construction by a Vancouver contracting firm. This first stage, under pre-agreemental fixed-price agreement, will serve as a guide to consultation costs. Alcan will encourage building by private contractors.

McNeely Dubois, Alcan vice-president, said this week the company will invite tenders for construction to encourage workers to own their own homes.

He said the high costs of construction at this port, some 400 miles inland from Prince Rupert, dictated the housing subsidy or "mortgage bonus" plan. A $10,000 home in Vancouver would cost at least $14,000 in Kitimat.

FIRST-MORTGAGE LOANS

Under the plan, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation will make loans on first mortgages, but the Kitimat houses will be appraised on the Vancouver basis. Alcan will then step in with an offer of a second mortgage loan to make up the difference. This second mortgage will be written on 10-20 years.

Prospective home buyers will be required to make down payment of 5 per cent of the purchase price. If a buyer leaves within 10 years, Alcan will buy back his equity.

In the first phase of the aluminum operation, scheduled to begin late next spring, about 1,100 men will be employed in the smelter here. Others will be housed at the hydro-electric project at Kemano, 50 miles inland. Eventually, Kitimat is expected to develop into a city of 50,000 population.

SUNDRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — A string of nine toy balloons was found on the shore of Lake Bernard by Mrs. Isobel Brimacombe. An attached card reculted in discovery they had been released by sixo-aways at a grocteria in Rochester, Minn., more than 650 miles distant.

U.S. Considers Its Next Move In Atomic Plan

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, undeterred by Moscow's initial coldness, weighed today the nature and timing of the next step in pressing for acceptance of the Eisenhower plan for an international atomic pool.

Officials speculatively pointed out two possibilities for action:

1. A formal request may be made in the United Nations disarmament commission for appointment of a sub-committee consisting of countries with atomic resources.

2. State Secretary Dulles will have an opportunity at a forthcoming conference of Big Four foreign ministers in Berlin to discuss the idea privately with Soviet foreign minister Molotov, if that seems to be a good idea at the time.

Dulles takes off for Paris late today to attend a meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council. It is expected that while there he may discuss the next step on the atomic plan with British and French officials.

First Soviet reaction to the president's proposal for an international atomic agency under the UN, to develop peaceful uses of nuclear energy was given by Moscow radio broadcast Wednesday. The Russians derided Eisenhower's speech as a "propaganda" address and contended he had "threatened atomic war."

The official U.S. reaction to this Soviet blast was that it did not "necessarily represent the considered decision of the Soviet government."

For the time being officials said the U.S. will just wait -and- see attitude, allowing ample opportunity for reflection in the Kremlin.

Former Deputy Speaker Defends Mossadegh

TEHRAN (Reuters)—A former deputy speaker of the Iranian Majlis (parliament), Ahmad Razavi, has defended Iran's Premier Mossadegh, the deposed former premier, on the 28th day of his trial for treason.

Razavi maintained that Mossadegh's dissolution of the Majlis was on the question of the dissolution of the Majlis in June, 1952. He said Mossadegh decided that "since the Majlis was elected by the people, the people have the right to call armed forces under the jurisdiction."

He told the court that there has been no precedent in Iran for such action, but in some other countries, governments had often asked for referendums on subjects between parliaments and their parliaments—often with the consent of the Royal Courts.

Razavi's defence came after a series of direvowals of responsibilities for some of Mossadegh's action by his former colleagues. Saleh Jafarabadi, former minister of interior, testified that Mossadegh had told him the Shah's decree ousting him from office as premier was to be charged with defying this decree.

Mossadegh's defence was halted after the court heard that he had tracked the late Reza Shah, father of the present Shah. It is expected to be resumed after the prosecution witnesses give their evidence.

U.S. Senate Investigators Prepare to Meet Gouzenko

NEW YORK (CP) — United States Senate investigators were prepared today for their forthcoming meeting in Canada with Igor Gouzenko and a top-ranking Soviet secret declared he regards the forced Soviet exile of the defector as "important to the internal security of the United States and Canada."

Senator Pat McCarran (Dem., Nev.) in a statement in Washington after the Canadian announcement that Gouzenko, who fled from the Soviet Embassy in Canada's capital in 1945 and exposed a Soviet spy ring, has agreed to answer questions, said he is "interested in" security sub-committee. McCarran is the judiciary committee chairman of the sub-committee.

Gouzenko has been quoted as saying he has no new information but perhaps some useful advice.

In New York, Robert Morris, counsel for the sub-committee, said Thursday night that the meeting may be held "tomorrow or next week." He said Senator William E. Jenner (Rep., Ind), the subcommittee chairman, had told him he would be in touch with him and the state department today to work out a meeting date.

"We've scheduled no hearings of the sub-committee for this coming week," he said. "We're just standing by, ready to go."

The state department has designated James Reed Morris as U.S. representatives to question Gouzenko, Morris said.

McCarran said he suggested to Jenner that he and McCarran go along to represent the Democrats on the sub-committee. He said Jenner was agreeable but "the state department, as far as I can determine, is not inclined to accommodate us."

The New York Times meanwhile carried a long interview which its Ottawa correspondent, Drew Pearson, said she had with Gouzenko Sunday in an Ottawa suburb. Miss Long quoted Gouzenko as saying he believed the U. S. investigators that "unorthodox methods" are needed to break up Soviet spy rings and "fifth column" units operate in North America.

He said that at the time of his defection from the embassy there were five espionage networks operating in Canada. However, he said he had only been attached to one of them and thus could disclose to Canadian authorities only the activities of that one spy ring. Thus, the other four presumably could have continued to operate since then.

Neutral Commission Considers Halt to PoW Explanations; Today's Program Is Suspended

By MILO FARNETI

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Allied efforts to woo home war prisoners who stayed with the Communists were threatened today by Red slowdown tactics which forced suspension of interviews with South Korean PoWs.

Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, Indian chairman of the neutral nations repatriation commission, said 30 South Koreans will be called up for interviews Saturday. But there was no indication whether the sessions would be held.

Thimayya suspended the Allied explanation program today after 25 of 30 prisoners insisted on making their own explanations to Allied interviewing officers.

Thimayya said he'd let PoWs refuse to accept NNRC conditions for the interviews "I'm afraid the explanations will come to nothing."

RED REQUESTS REFUSED

The Indian general also announced he had a Red request to interview 250 anti-Red Koreans Saturday was turned down because the prisoners refused to leave their compound. Some of these prisoners were interviewed earlier and the rest have refused to budge.

Arthur H. Dean, special United States envoy, said meanwhile that he may fly to Washington before Christmas and leave the stalled talks on arrangements for a Korean peace conference in the hands of his chief aide.

If Dean leaves, Allied negotiations probably will be taken over by Kenneth T. Young, the state department's director of northeast Asian affairs and Dean's No. 1 adviser.

The diplomats made no progress today toward resuming the big road block to a peace conference. Communist insistence that Russia be added as a neutral nation rather than as a full participant.

The stand on PoW explanation program has delayed the start of interviews with the 22 American and one British prisoner.

Allied officials said the Red slowdown appears to be aimed at tying up the explanation program before the non-Koreans are called.

Party Platform For Liberals To Be Discussed

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Liberals meet here Friday and Saturday to work out a party platform.

The platform is to be submitted to the party's leadership, convention head April 2 and 3.

Colin Campbell, Ontario public works minister in the Hepburn administration of the 1930's, heads the policy committee. He said Thursday night:

"Our job is to devise the broad principles of a party platform. I expect all decisions reached at this conference will be submitted to the April convention for endorsation."

The April convention will choose a leader to succeed Walter Thomson, who resigned after the party's defeat in the 1951 provincial general election.

Radio Helps Warn Man 'Medicine' Really Poison

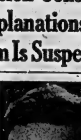
HAMILTON (CP)—A drugstore clerk in nearby Burlington told police Thursday he had just given a man a bottle of poison in mistake for stomach powder.

Radio stations broadcast a description of the customer and appealed to listeners to call the police if they saw or knew him.

Mrs. John Kapusty of Hamilton was one of those who heard the broadcast.

"It sounded like my uncle," she said. "I listened more closely when the description was repeated. After that, I phoned my aunt in Burlington. They had been out shopping and he had gone into a drug store to buy something."

Police uncle, Alexander Kapusty, 73, of Winnipeg, visiting in Burlington, was in custody.



By the time the warning reached him, he had already taken some of the powder. He was taken to hospital, where officials said he was recovering.

Wants Tourists To Buy Goods Tax Free

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Exporters Association urged Thursday that Canada become a "free port" where tourists could buy goods tax free.

S. A. Mitchell-Smith of Ottawa, president of the association, said in a statement a way should be devised to induce tourists to purchase Canadian goods in export quantities.

This could be achieved by making goods available at duty free fees of all duty, sales and exise taxes, J. G. Wherry, Peterborough, was among directors appointed.

Earl T. Moore, president of the Montreal Boy Scout council, has been appointed international commissioner for Canadian Boy Scouts. Mr. Moore represented the Canadian general council of the Boy Scouts Association at Coronation. He will represent Canadian scouting when the Scouts' international committee meets in Ottawa next year. Minimum Prices For Oats, Barley Set by Assoc.

TORONTO (CP) — Reductions were included in recommended minimum prices for seed oats and barley announced Thursday by the seed trading and publicity committee of the Ontario Soil and Crop Improvement Association.

Recommended prices for commercial No. 1 barley would be $2 and for registered No. 1 $1.05. Commercial No. 1 barley would be $2 a bushel and registered No. 1 $2.05.

The prices are based on retail sales at shipping points for treated seed with bags included, and show a drop of 10 cents a bushel for oats and 25 cents for barley from last year's level.

The prices are recommended only as a guide but have been followed almost without exception other years, Keen demand is expected for seed this year, since prices for registered seed are lower.

Stalin and Lenin Tomb National Shrine of Russians

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP)—As the bells of Spasski gate's clock tower sounded the three-quarter hour, the bronze doors of Stalin's Mausoleum opened.

Two workers' delegations placed a huge wreath of artificial flowers at either side of the doorway. Then a score of foreign diplomats and many more Soviet officials entered the building, leading a queue of thousands of Russian citizens lined up in the Red square snow.

Two flights of stairs below the street, Stalin and his predecessor Lenin lay in death before us.

Their joint tomb is a massive but simple monument of highly polished red and black stone. It is the national shrine of the Russian Soviet and serves as the base from which party and government chiefs review the parades of the army and people on May Day and Nov. 7 each year.

STATELY SURROUNDINGS

Stalin many times stood 'atop the building that now is his grave. In 1945, German standards captured by the Red armies were dashed to the ground at his feet before the entrance.

The interior is of a grey-black stone called "Labrador" although it is mined in the Caucasus. It glistens like glass. The building is heated and air-conditioned to preserve the embalmed bodies. In cold weather, it is open only a few hours daily.

Admission is by ticket, said a Russian guide, because of the population's great interest in seeing Stalin's body. Later, general admission will be restored as when Lenin was here alone.

The caskets rest de shoulder-high stone slabs. At first glimpse Lenin can be seen, lighted by amber lamps. Their caskets are identical and bronze, level with the cosy the profiles of Stalin and heads of the militia guards.

Visitors turn right and climb a few stairs to a gallery about 10 feet from the heads.

Lenin, the master architect of modern Russia, is clothed in a blue-black uniform. Both arms are outstretched, the right hand tightly clenched and the left with palm extended downward. There is a fuzz of beard on his cheeks but his moustache and beard are neat.

MARSHAL'S UNIFORM

Stalin, Lenin's pupil who died this year, wears the uniform of a marshal of the Soviet Union, the left breast ablaze with ribbons and two small medals. He is more splendidly attired than he looked in most photographs taken during his life. The face and iron-grey hair, no longer bushy, are familiar but there is an unexpected refinement in the hands and an unusual length in the index finger.

The bodies are exposed only from the waist up. Legs and feet are covered by a black cloth. Stalin' looks less waxen than Lenin who died 29 years earlier.

The casket canopies are supported by a column at each corner. The sides and ends are enclosed by glass which slopes inward from the top.

The crowd files by in a slow shuffle, but one may pause to take in the scene.

Leaving the mausoleum, visitors walk along the Red square sidewalk to the Kremlin's Nicholas gate, then through a grill to a spruce-lined avenue.

This is the national cemetery for heroes of the U.S.S.R. The avenue leads to the flood-lit Spasski clock tower. On the right is the Kremlin wall, holding the ashes of political and literary figures of the revolution, including Maxim Gorki.

On the left is a low stone monument about 150 feet long, 10 feet wide and 18 inches high. Under it are buried many who were killed in the revolution, mainly in the battle on Red square.

Immediately behind the Stalin Mausoleum are a number of individual graves.

—Kalinin, first president of the Soviet Union.

Frunze, who commanded the revolutionary Red Armies; Dzerjinsky, former minister and one-time head of the secret police; Zdanov, who died after the Second World War; Sverdlov, chairman of the executive committee during the uprising.

Half an hour after the mausoleum gates opened, a long queue of dark-suited, fur-capped Muscovites reached two abreast across Red square beyond the National Institute and around into Alexander Gardens beside the north wall of the Kremlin. Still more hundreds of ticket-holders were being marshalled into line to walk through Russia's national shrine.

Greatest Adventure Story Of '53 Was Scaling of Everest

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Two men reached the top of the world's highest mountain in the great adventure story of 1953.

On a bright May morning, 23-year-old Edmund Hillary and Tenzing, a native guide, struggled to a tiny wind-whipped patch of snow atop Mount Everest and stared down from the roof of the world.

In 52 years the stone flat of Everest, thrust from a rugged cuff of Himalayan peaks, had smashed 11 major attempts to touch its top. Sixteen men had been killed since 1921 when the first party clawed its way up the slopes toward the 29,000-foot summit.

Word of the ascent sped round the world. It reached London on the eve of the Coronation and went whispering down the ranks of sleepy all-night watchers who lined the royal route. To the rest of the world, it was a testament of human will and courage.

CAREFULLY PLANNED

The assault, led by Britain's Brig. John Hunt, 43-year-old professional soldier, was as carefully planned and cunningly executed as a military manoeuvre. The Royal Geographical Society and the Alpine Club, sponsors of the expedition, invested £20,000 in the endeavor.

The 13 members of the party left Britain early in February and by the end of March had established their base camp at the foot of the mountain.

In the next two months the expedition, employing some 700 natives to carry food and equipment, hunched its way through nine successive camps to a point little more than 1,000 feet below the peak. After one unsuccessful attempt by two other members of the party, Hillary and Tenzing, both carrying packs of 60 to 65 pounds and breathing oxygen from tanks strapped to their shoulders, brushed through the clouds and emerged on the summit.

It was 11:30 in the morning as they stepped onto the peak, described by Hillary as "a symmetrical, beautiful snow cone." They rested there 15 minutes, snapping photographs, drinking lemonade and nibbling cakes, and then descended to their camp.

Acclaim and honors were heaped upon them as they journeyed back to London, where knighthood awaited Hunt and Hillary and the George Medal for Tenzing.

FIVE-MONTH TOUR

A five-month tour of lectures and banquets throughout Europe and Britain followed for the members of the expedition and before the end of the year both Hunt's book, "The Ascent of Everest," a detailed account of the assault, and a feature-length color film, recorded by a member of the party, had been released.

"From Hunt's book came the account of an incident which sharply illustrated the pressure on the men who struggled against nature for so many weeks. He recalls finding a tin of fish among the ruins of an earlier Swiss camp:

"It is an interesting commentary on appetite and animal instincts at 28,000 feet—and a fact which I mention not without a certain feeling of shame—that I was unsocial enough to conceal this titbit from my companions. I took it into the little 'blister' tent and emptied the tin myself."

But Hunt is also the one to define the impetus which drove him and his companions to the feat that may be marked as one of the most outstanding of the century:

"From the possibility of entering the unknown; the simple fact that it was the highest point on the earth's surface—these things goaded us on."

Sunday School Lesson:

Danger of Fences

BY ROY L. SMITH

The late renowned Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, world famous clergyman, in addressing a group of preachers on one occasion, said, "Let me warn you against the danger of building fences to shut yourself in. If you will take time to climb up and look over you will discover how many good people you have shut out."

DENOMINATIONAL FENCES

A wholesale condemnation of denominations is as stupid as a wholesale defense of them. There is good and there is bad in the denominational system. It is inevitable that people, being different as they are, will find themselves congenial in different religious atmospheres. The person who feels a great spiritual thrill in the midst of a liturgical service finds it hard to understand that other person who senses the same spirit of exaltation in an informal hour of worship. But the Quakey and the Holy Roller have more in common than they have in their disagreements, and it becomes their responsibility to preserve that "unity" and leave one another undisturbed in the incidentials.

DISCIPLE'S CONVERSION

The Apostle Peter had been reared in the strict law and pattern of the Jew, which declared that some food was "clean" and other food was "unclean," that the Jews were the chosen people and that the Gentiles were "unclean." Everything the old fisherman held sacred was bound up with that concept.

But the Gospel Jesus had preached was too big—too all-inclusive—to be shut up inside of Judaism and become a sectarian viewpoint. It had to be let loose upon the world. And before that could happen a few of the disciples had to undergo a spiritual operation by which their minds were to be opened. Peter was one of the very first to have the experience.

In a dream he saw a great sheet let down from heaven, on which were "clean" and "unclean" animals. In any other situation Peter would have shrunk from seven the slightest contact with the "unclean." To have failed to do so would have been to him a terrible sin. But in his dream he heard a voice commanding him to eat both the clean and the unclean. He knew what that meant. The old fences were down! The Gospel was to be preached to the pagan Gentiles!

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for December 13: "One Human Race," Matthew 5:9; 22:34-40; Acts 10; 17:24-28; Romans 10:12-13; Galatians 2:11-14; 3:28.

SURRENDER OF FENCES

One of the most difficult decisions any man ever makes is that one by which he surrenders an old fence, and consents to have it torn down. The story is told of an old Confederate soldier who never surrendered. He just left his regiment when he saw the Confederacy breaking up, and returned to his mountain home in a cove back among the hills of East Tennessee. Years afterward, accompanied by his son (who today became a more or less famous character), the old soldier walked out of the mountains into "the settlement." It was the Fourth of July, and the Stars and Stripes were flying from numerous windows and poles. The white-haired man said nothing until he came squarely under a flag hanging from an upstairs window. Then he stopped suddenly, stood staring up at the little emblem for nearly two minutes, and turning to the boy at his side, he said, "Son, I reckon we'd better surrender." With that he took off his cap, walked under the flag, and went on his way.

There comes times when, for the sake of our youth, our future, the cause of the Kingdom, or some other good thing, it seems better to surrender. If so, then let's do it reverently!

BANCROFT

Ministers Hear Splendid Talk On Delinquency

BANCROFT — "God and Juvenile delinquency" was the subject of an address given by the Rev. Canon E. Rhind at Monday's monthly meeting of the North Hastings Ministerial Association, held at the United Church parsonage, Coe Hill.

After describing the work done at St. Frshcia, a home for delinquent boys, in Kansas, where he was previously installed, Father Johnston went on to suggest ways in which the churches and clergy could help with the growing delinquency problem in Canada. As a result of the talk, the Association decided that an endeavor be made to obtain the Hastings County Probation Officer, Mr. Don MacKinnon, as speaker at one of their spring meetings.

Present were; the Rev. A. L. Borland, Bancroft United Church; the Rev. Theo Smith, L'Amble; the Rev. Leslie Hardy, Coe Hill United Church; the Rev. Herbert Gastmeier, Maynooth Lutheran Church; Mr. Sam Fuller, St. Ola United Church; the Rev. E. Owen Johnston, Incumbent of the North Hastings Anglican Mission.

The group asked the secretary to write expressing their sympathy to Mr. M. C. Wright, who is on sick leave from the United Church at Maynooth.

It was announced that the next meeting would be in Bancroft in January, with the Rev. Theo Smith as speaker. The meeting was closed by Mr. Fuller.

Beliveau Sparks 'Rocket' To Three Goals In Habs 5-3 Win Over Hawks

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

DODGE-PODGE

All five teams of the Senior "B" loop swing into action over the week-end and the results may cause some startling changes in the standing.

Tonight the Memos of this village trek to Kingston where they join conflict with the Goodyears of Reddenville, while the thrice-beaten-in-a-row Oshawa Truckmen travel to Peterborough where a vengeance-hungry bevy of Lift-lock hockey laddies await their arrival with fire in their collective eyes, and goals at the tips of their bludgeons.

Saturday night here the Memos will go all out in an effort to halt the amazing five-game winning streak of the potent Ponties from Orillia, while the Goodyears journey to Bowmanville for a return joust with the Truckmen.

Orillia and Kingston are now engaged in a leap-frog battle for second position. The Pontiacs took over at the beginning of the week but the Goodies toppled the Truckmen Thursday night to regain the spot. If the Memos beat the Goodies and Orillia blasts our side Saturday, the Pontiacs swop spots again with the Carr-Harris aggregation. The way these teams are switching positions would make a Mexican jumping bean look like Nelson's monument.

WHAT'S UP, DOC?"

Strange sounds emanated from beneath a wrestling ring in Hamilton the other night. They sounded like a cross between those made by a hay-fever victim and a Thomas kitty which has discovered his light o' feline love in the paws of a rival.

But they were almost drowned by the roars of an infuriated mob of the Faithful of Pachydermia who sought blood—were out to get it—and did.

If you listened closely you would have recognized the blows of defiance by the familiar "Hoicha's" of one "Bunny" Dunlop, the pear-shaped arbiter of rassledom who has survived the wrath of many a sore-bunny pack of fandom.

"Bunny" was trapped underneath the squared circle. He had sought refuge there after the "mob" converged on him and presented him with a tossed salad. They tossed fists, feet and fury at first, following through with a side order of coke bottles two of the latter bounced off the Dunlop noggin and "Bunny" thought it time to retire.

"I don't want no richochet lovers," warbled La Bunny as he shoe-horned his bulk into the safety of the below-the-ring blackness.

The canvas of the ring heaved intermittently as "Bunny" botched-w'ffle defiance until the limbs of the law came to his rescue. The gendarmerie escorted the puffing "Bunny" to safety with blood streaming down his face from a head injury. They took him to hospital where the medicos hemstitched the Dunlop noggin with five sutures.

What incurred the wrath of the Hamilton faithful?

Next to the Grey Cup champion Tiger Cats, or on a par with them, is a guy who can get the freedom of the city; free taxes on any industrial site; can name what he likes and get it, and is the darling of the patrons of pachydermic pleasantries. He is to Hamilton what Jean Marc Beliveau was to Quebec City and is to Montreal hockey fans.

His name is Whipper Billy Watson, and no prowling Gargantua of grunt-grimace-and-groan-dom is going to snatch any victory from the handsome Whip as long as the Ambitious City faithful has its pitchin' arms in good condition and plenty of bottle ammunition is handy.

Unfortunately for the rotund "Bunny" it seemed the dastardly villain from Lower Slobbovia pinned the Pride of East York flatter than a disc jockey's favorite weapon, to earn the official duke, and the throwing war was on.

SUCCESSORS?

Down Boston and New York way they are hailing two rookies as successors to Eddie Shore and Ching Johnson, bull-dozers of a former era of hockey.

Ranger fans are ballyhooing Ivan "The Terrible" Irwin as King Ching the Second, while bashing, bustling, battling Ray Garipey is getting the kudos as Shore Number Two.

Garipey, former Barrie Flyer, who spent seven years in the minors before he was beckoned to Beantown, comes recommended as a knock-em-out, drag-em-in-same-way type and has a record to prove it.

He bounced one player back in 1940 and left a fractured cheekbone as a calling card. He caressed Larry Wilson of the Black Hawks three years ago when Wilson was with Indian spolis, and he went to hospital with a fractured collarbone. A year later Rockabye Ray love-tapped the Bruins Joe McIntyre, and he, too, nursed a broken clavicle for a while.

When the Basher and Boom-Boom Geoffries of Les Habs, were playing Junior "A" hockey, Gariepy caught the Boom with a terrific salvo 'abaft the poop-deck and 'Boom' went into drydock for repairs.

Richard Was Old Former Self With 'Le Gros Bill' Playing; Sandford Gets 3 for Boston

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Frank Selke always said it was fierce pride that made Maurice Richard a great hockey player. Jean Beliveau would make him even greatest.

Richard, the last fellow who'll deny it, was his reckless, tempestuous self Thursday night and reminded 14,573 fans and Chicago's goalkeeper Al Rollins that he's just about the most dangerous player in the game.

The 32 - year - old rightwinger scored three goals against Rollins and Chicago Black Hawks to lead the league-leading Montreal Canadiens to a 5-3 National Hockey League victory.

Everything was made to order for the fiery Rocket. The Forum was sold out and Beliveau, the sensational high-priced rookie, was back in the line-up. That's where the pride came in.

"Maurice is too proud to let any body replace him as the fans' favorite," Selke, Canadiens' managing director, has said. "He's not bitter or jealous over Beliveau. But because he's so proud he'll be a bigger help to himself."

Meanwhile, Glenn Brulae, led by Ed Sandford's three goals, beat the second place Detroit Red Wings 6-3 in Boston in the only other league game.

There was no bitterness but plenty of drive when Richard got his goals. However, one of them was disputed when the puck carromed into the nets off his leg. That lifted his goal total to 16 for the season and put him in the leadership.

NOT IN TOP SHAPE

Beliveau, a 22-year-old centre, was in action for the first time since Oct. 22 when he sprained an ankle bone. He obviously wasn't in top shape and missed several scoring chances.

It was Montreal's 14th victory in 15 home games.

The other Montreal goals were scored by Dick Gamble and Floyd Curry, Bill Gadsby, Pete Conacher and Doc Couture tallied for the last-place Hawks.

Referee Jack Mehlhaendler called 17 penalties, two majors, one misconduct and 14 minors.

Richard scored his first goal when Montreal centre Ken Mosdell fired the puck, which hit Richard and went past Rollins.

Gamble made it 2-0 at 13:32, before Gadsby beat goaltender Gerry McNeil for Chicago's first goal. Richard scored the team's goal in the second period, one on Bert Olmstead's rebound and the other on a pass from defenceman Tom Johnson.

THREE-MAN ATTACK

Conacher scored on a three-man attack at 6:28 of the third period and Curry and Couture came through a few minutes later.

Eddie Maunr of Montreal and Larry Zeidel of Chicago got the minors in the second period for fighting.

At Boston, the Bruins retained fourth place with their victory. Defenceman Hal Laycoe, centre Milt Schmidt and rightwinger Johnny Peirson got the other Boston goals. Rightwinger Gordie Howe, defenceman Red Kelly and Glen Skov accounted for the Detroit points.

The Bruins came from behind three times to take the victory. It was the first time this season that so many goals were scored in one game against Detroit goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk. He made 27 stops, as compared to 22 made by Sugar Jim Henry in the Boston nets.

No games are scheduled for tonight. Saturday night fifth-place New York Rangers meet the Canadiens, Black Hawks travel to Toronto and the Bruins clash with Detroit.

Will Bar Certain Horses From Racing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Non-winning horses and fillies judged unsuitable for breeding are to be barred from British Columbia racing.

Members of the B.C. Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association have approved a plan to buy up registration papers of barred horses in co-operation with track operators. Under the plan a portion of every purse will be deducted, then matched by track operators. Owners of barred horses will get $200 for the registration papers, eliminating the animal from racing.

Barred fillies or mares will also be eliminated for breeding purposes.

Sarnia Sailors Withdraw From Senior Hockey

SARNIA (CP)—Sarnia is dropping out of the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A series because of lack of support from the public.

Withdrawal of the Sarnia Sailors, decided on Thursday night at a meeting of the Sarnia arena commission, is effective immediately.

It was announced the team has lost $6,000 this season.

R. N. Taglietti, sponsor of the Sailors, announced the move.

"In my opinion, the blame rests 100 per cent on the shoulders of the public of the city of Sarnia."

Attendance at home games has averaged 1,500, the commission said at least 2,000 admissions a game are needed to break even.

It also said the high cost of operating a team in the senior circuit, and the neighbor-team league with Niagara Falls Cataracts.

LACK PROTECTION

The commission's hockey committee also accused the Canadian and Ontario hockey associations of failing down on protecting the Sarnia team against raids by United States clubs. It said the International Hockey League lured away players Jim Wilson, Skippy Frezell and Mac Beaton from last year's club.

This season the Sailors have won four of their 22 games and tied three—about the same record as at this time last year, when total attendance was 5,246 higher.

Earlier this year, the club was offered for sale. There were no takers.

Canadian Kids May Attend Milk Bowl Game

OTTAWA (CP)—The Milk Bowl, annual football classic between small fry teams held in Texas, has enlisted the prime minister's office to see whether 37 young Canadians are interested in a free holiday in Texas next year.

A letter from Jack G. Weaver, executive secretary of the bowl, has reached here asking the prime minister's office to make public the story of the holiday.

The letter says a selection committee of the Milk Bowl will decide within 90 days whether to invite 37 Canadians. It asks that Canadian groups with small fry football teams—players under 145 and weighing no more than 160 pounds — communicate with the bowl, at 1008 Trinidad St., Bryan, Tex.

The 1954 milk bowl will be held at Houston, Tex., with proceeds going to the Texas Lions Camp for crippled children. A Texas team will play a team from out of the state.

In a postscript to his letter, Mr. Weaver said his family name means Servia, and that his grandfather was a railroad engineer for 55 years with CP Rail service, the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Blue Bombers Fire Trafton

WINNIPEG (CP)—Fiery George Trafton said today he has been fired as coach of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, 1953 Grey Cup finalists.

Earl Sloomb, Bomber president, said he had no comment to make, but a spokesman for the Winnipeg Rugby Football Club would be held tonight.

Trafton made no secret of his dismissal. He said he was called into Sloomb's office yesterday and informed of the club's decision.

The former Chicago Bear centre, who still had one year to go in a three-year contract, said he had refused to sign a new pact for less money. It is assumed he will receive a full-year's salary, estimated at around $12,000.

Sport in Brief

NEW YORK (AP)—The appeal of such teams as Notre Dame, Southern California, Maryland and Minnesota offset smaller fan turnouts for other teams and kept major college football attendance unchanged during the 1953 season in the United States.

Figures compiled today by the Associated Press show a decrease in home games of all major conferences from last comparable "independent," show that overall attendance in 1953 was 3,000 less as the change was so small as to be insignificant.

The success of a few teams hoisted the national total to the right side of the ledger.

Southern California, for instance, drew 432,72 spectators at six home games as compared to 342,486 in 1952.

Maryland and Notre Dame, staging a tight race for No. 1 ranking, also helped in the fans in large numbers. Notre Dame's attendance at five home games this year was 286,406, as compared to 213,661 at four games last year. Minnesota's revival as a Big Ten contender brought an average home attendance of 56,560 a game.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—A Court of Appeals ruled Thursday that a former University of Maryland student must go to jail for trying to bribe one of the college's football players.

The court upheld the conviction of Louis Glickfeld, 22, of Washington for offering a roll of $100 bills to hold down Maryland's score in a game last year with Louisiana State.

Centre Tom Cosgrove said Glickfeld held out the money as a reward if Maryland won by less than 21 points. Maryland, with Cosgrove playing a key role, defeated Louisiana state 34-4.

The court upheld Glickfeld's $1,000 fine and reformatory sentence of a maximum of 18 months.

LONDON (AP)—Randy Turpin, Britain's middleweight champion left Thursday for an exhibition bout in Brussels—against doctor's orders.

Turpin is suffering from an infected eye which he right now. His doctors advised him against going into the ring.

"I have to keep faith with the Brussels promoter," said manager George Middleton. The bout is set for Saturday.

Minor Puckists Must Decide On Insurance

A meeting of all minor hockey league coaches and managers was held at the arena last night where it was decided that all minor players must obtain the insurance offered by the OMHA, or else bring a note from their parents saying they do not want the insurance. Forms for this insurance, or the note, along with the player's certificates must be submitted to "Red" Doran or one of the conveners by December 19 or they will not be able to play.

Joe Courreyes said at the meeting last night that at the end of the season he will donate a silver shield to the most improved player in each league, while Hugh Jones will present a trophy to the most sportsmanlike player in each league.

These donations will more than likely further the clean play and also encourage the boys to give their best at all times so as to be in the running for one or both trophies.

"Red" Doran stated that because of the money, shoes and skates that have been donated from the dressing rooms this season, the rooms will be policed from now on and anyone caught taking anything from the arena that does not belong to him will be dealt with by the proper authorities.

Ottawa Regains Top Position In Quebec Loop

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa Senators picked up two points Thursday to take over sole possession of first place in the Quebec Hockey League.

Senators' 5-1 win over the last-place Valleyfield Braves to move ahead of the idle Sherbrooke Saints. Ottawa has 30 points. Springfield Indians downed Chicoutimi Saguenenns 4-1.

At Ottawa Leo Gravelle, the league's top point-getter, Claude Gauthier and Red Johnson tallied for Senators in the first. Andre Corriveau got one back for Chicoutimi in the second, but Ottawa came rushing back in the finale with Hugh Bolton, Gerry Foley and Danny Poland counting.

Rus Kasyluk, Jerry Dower, Hal Tarala and Ed Leier were the Springfield sharp shooters when Pete Thakchuk scored for the losers.

Jerry James Works Out With Leafs

TORONTO (CP)—Jerry James, a Winnipeg Blue Bomber standout this year's Grey Cup football final and later a Marlboro hockey star, Thursday was set to sign with the Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL.

Although a contract for practice purposes and picking up experience, James impressed managers and coaches.

Said assistant general manager Hap Day:

"I have heard he might not be the outstanding type of hockey player he is as a football player, but the way he hit out there today, he could be."

Minor Hockey

Six games were played in the minor hockey leagues on Thursday evening with the Maple Leafs and Black Hawks battling to a 2-2 deadlock in the squirt section. Team four downed Team one 4-3 while Teams two and three played to a 3-3 tie in the juvenile-junior league. The midget action saw Team one hand the boys of Team six a 3-2 defeat. Team four edged five by a 3-2 count as Teams two and three fought to a scoreless tie.

JUVENILE-JUNIOR

Bill Vesterfelt paced the attack for Team four as he hit the twine on three occasions and helped on another. Gerry Lavery, working on the same line scored the remaining marker and fed Vesterfelt passes on two other pay-off plays. John Casey, another ex junior "B" player of last year's Black Hawks in Belleville slapped in the lone goal for Team one on a pass from Ken Bovey.

Play was very rough in this game with Day drawing two minors and a match-conduct for carrying on a feud with Bobby Hall of Team four. Hall was also rejected from the game.

Wayne Bovey scored twice for Team three with Gary Little drawing assists on both. Walter got the odd one. Paul White, Sherman Brant and Cam Buskard hit the sheet for number six. Ronnie Murray and Wayne Bovey were both given penalties for fighting.

MIDGET

Bill Jones, Jack Calnan, Bob Crull were the Team one marksmen in their victory over Team two with Ted Wallbridge and Frank Cris getting assists. Jim Campbell notched the first goal for the losers while George Pearson claimed the second on a pass from Hughes.

Bill Foster scored the winning marker in Team four's 3-2 victory while he helped in another. Goalie Allan and Bob Wanamer got the other pair goals. Rowbotham and Ric Dennis had assists. Jim Sandford and Gary Durno were the Team five goal-getters. Team four was assisted. Team four received two penalties but still managed to hold the Maple Leafs to a tie in the column.

Teams two and three did no scoring in their game but fists, sticks and anything else within reach did. Both teams at the end of the game when the two teams hooked up in a brawl. Referee Jerry Mahoney finally restored peace.

SENIOR

Bobby Jefferies and Harold MacDonald of the Maple Leaf senators while Jim Woodcock and Bob Blaker came back with a pair for the Hawks.

Marcotte Case Blazes With Two Law Suits

QUEBEC (CP)—Two suits to annul goalie Jacques Marcotte's 1952-53 playing contract with Quebec Citadelles were taken Thursday in Quebec Superior Court.

The suits were taken by the 18-year-old player's sister, Suzanne Marcotte of Grand'mere, Que., and by les Sports Frontenac Inc., owners of Quebec bfrontenacs.

Lawyer Mark Drouin said the suits claim Marcotte signed the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and its executive members.

Mr. Drouin, acting for the Frontenac club of the Quebec Junior Hockey League, said aim of the suit is to break off the 1952-53 contract he has with Marcotte. It was taken as a result of a CAHA decision that Marcotte should complete to leave the Frontenac club and report to Citadelles of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Dodgers Dream Of New Park To Seat 52,000

BROOKLYN (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers president Walter F. O'Malley disclosed Thursday that the Dodgers are negotiating for the erection of a new stadium and said there was a strong possibility it will be ready within five years.

"We hope to make enough progress within the next six months to know one way or another whether the Dodgers will have a new baseball home," O'Malley said. "We will have to have a certain amount of governmental support."

O'Malley said three sites have been picked but declined to name them. He specified, however, that the present site that contains Ebbets Field is not one of these.

O'Malley said the proposed new stadium would cost approximately $7,200,000 and would seat 52,000 persons. He said it would take three years to build.

Springfield Cubs Boss Resigns

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)—John T. Sheehan has resigned as president of Springfield Cubs, Class C Cubs farm team in the triple-A International League.

Sheehan, who spent 17 years in the National League team's farm system, said he has not been happy with "recent developments concerning the Springfield club situation."

Last month, the parent organization put the Springfield franchise up for sale.

Sheehan said he hoped to remain in Springfield and take another baseball job soon.

Red Wing Stars Lose Christmas Shopping Money

NEW YORK (CP)—Frank Boucher, who has been holding down two jobs as coach and manager of New York Rangers, says he's looking for a new Ranger coach in the near future. But he adds:

"It's no secret that I've been doing more work than I should be doing in order to do my best job in either position," Boucher said after a meeting of hockey writers Thursday.

"So, naturally, I've been scouring around for a good man and keeping an eye out for a man who in case he should become available."

He didn't name the coach that he's been "keeping an eye on."

NEW GETS HIM

The search for a new coach comes at a time when police are searching for someone who stole about $700 from Detroit Red Wings dressing room at the Garden during Wednesday night's game when the Rangers tied the Wings 1-1. Garden authorities are trying to figure out how the thief got into the Red Wings room during the first period and nicked Gordie Howe, Ted Lewicki, Glen Skov and Marty Pavelich of the money in their street clothes.

There were reports that the thief missed $1,000 which Ted Lindsay had reported carrying.

The Wing players said they had an unusually large amount of money in their possession because they planned to go Christmas shopping during their New York visit.

Cataracts Edge Dutchmen 3-2 In Senior Clash

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Fighting off a late rally, Niagara Falls Cataracts moved into a seventh place tie Thursday as they outlasted the league-leading Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 3-2 in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game.

Nick Dubick shot Cataracts into a 1-0 lead in the first period. Eric Unger made it 2-0 in the second session as he came out of the penalty box to take the puck from Art Hurst at centre and go right in on goalkeeper Bill Harrington. On a power play with a man advantage, Ted Fauteux made it 3-0 with a 30-foot sizzler.

The Cataracts were playing four men to six when Kitchener put the first goal past goalie Don Lockhart. Ken Laufman made it 3-1 at the 15-minute mark.

TV NEWS

by Gene Hitchon

If your TV reception is not what it could be the trouble could lie in your antenna. Don't make the mistake of thinking that all you have to do is buy the best set and all that is needed to catch the maximum signal from the air.

In the trade the three main types of antenna are known as, the dipole, the type used on earlier models which is both simple and effective; the folded dipole, which uses separate antenna for high and low channels and the new or conical type. The type given best results depends on location. The conical type has it more than others.

In fringe areas a "stacked" arrangement is built, consisting of three antennas, one above the other. This is the most insidious. Contrasted with these monsters are the built-in types of some sets. They are occasionally good, at times and weak signals.

The main thing to remember if you have antenna worries is to consult a firm that knows its business. Here at HITCHON RADIO & TELEVISION, TV is our "First Love" (also we've been going steady for several years) and we're always willing to talk antenna problems, or if the complex business of you scratching your head, drop in and have a chat. When you've been well like we have you look over our the selection of TV antennas we have in stock and have seen on the market today. We'll happily provide you with a set for home appraisal and you can set up your own financing if you so desire. The BEST TV'S IN TV are waiting TODAY at our store.

This cleared the decks for dummy to ruff the second south spade. Now south had two trumps left for the last two tricks.

For scores to go climbing take heed of your timing.

DEFEAT LABOR MOTION

LONDON (Reuters) — The government Thursday night won a victory of 36 in the House of Commons for its plans to transfer Britain's atomic energy development from the supply ministry to a corporation run on industrial lines. A Labor motion seeking to reject a government order making the lord president of the council, Lord Salisbury, responsible to Parliament for the corporation's activities was defeated by a vote of 158 to 122.

With timing on his hands, south did his duty by preparing the by establishment of his diamond suit.

Take a look at his combined hands and you will quickly see the mess he seemed to be in. There was a possible spade loser, a possible trump loser, and two possible diamond losers.

Hope of saving the trump was with a finesse. Hope of saving one diamond loser was with a finesse. Hope of saving the spade loser was on an established diamond. This determined the plan of play.

He simply led a small diamond and let it. The hurried return of the spade king from east was plucked by dummy ace. A diamond return caught east's king in a lock. South got it in round three.

On the two last south diamonds dummy stuffed a spade and heart.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Ribbiter

The friend or foe of every good bridge player is timing. With it he can manipulate. Without it he is handcuffed. The time element is usually master of the situation in a tough contract.

A deal we are discussing is shown again here:

NORTH
♠A 4
♥A J 7 5
♦9 5 2
♣10 5 2

WEST EAST
♠9 8 6 3 2 ♠K Q J 10

♦8 7 ♦K J 10
♣8 ♣K 9 7

SOUTH
♥4
♦A Q 6 4 3
♣A Q 6 4 3

South lifted himself into a small contract of six clubs which east doubled. In fast circles, that double of a slam signals partner to lead the suit bid by dummy. So, west led a heart.

If west had started with a spade lead, the club ace would die for lack of timing. But the heart lead was just what the doctor ordered for south to get well. He thrived on it.

Dummy's heart ace took the first trick and trump lead caught east club king in three rounds.

Apathy of Voters at Elections Criticized at Warden's Banquet

PICTON — The apathy of voters at election time was scored by speakers at the Wardens' banquet in Picton — Crier Reeve, Warden of Prince Edward County, Wednesday night. The absence of interest in public affairs and of exercising the franchise in order to preserve freedom and present form of government was stressed.

The two hundred guests included members of county council, county officials, former wardens and many from Athol township of which the warden was five years a councillor and five as reeve.

Many tributes were paid to Warden Green on his long and distinguished service in municipal affairs and the able and fair manner in which he presided over county council sessions.

On behalf of county councillors, Deputy Reeve Clifford Wilson presented Mrs. Green with a basket of chrysanthemums.

SHERIFF TOASTMASTER

Sheriff H. J. Colliver was the toastmaster. Telegrams expressing regret at inability to attend were read from Premier W. A. Fraser and George Tustin, M.P.

A group of entertainers from Toronto, headed by Morley Plunkett of "Dundelli" fame, as pianist, gave an excellent program of music and magic.

Warden Green, in welcoming his guests, expressed appreciation of the support which had been given him.

Toast to the province was proposed by W. S. Lane and responded to by Norris Whitney, M.P.P. His honor stressed the duties of good citizenship and Mr. Whitney emphasized the necessity of conserving the natural resources of Ontario.

BRIGHT FUTURE PREDICTED

A bright future for Prince Edward County in the light of the St. Lawrence Waterway Development and as a centre with special natural advantages was seen by John deB. Arnaud, and G. T. Walmsley, Q.C., who gave the toast to the county.

A glowing picture of the county in the not too distant future was seen by Mayor H. J. McFarland in his toast to local municipalities.

He urged a united effort and said he planned to go to England this month to further interest an industry there locating a branch near Picton. Reeves and deputy reeves responded briefly.

Reeve H. S. Colliver, of Picton, elected reeve of Athol township, for 1954, said there was no apathy there on election day as 94.5 per-cent of voters had exercised their franchise, practically every person able to do.

Warden of Northumberland and Durham counties, Hartwell Lowry, extolled the value of municipal government and urged more good men to offer their services.

Speaking on behalf of people of Athol township, Phillip Dodds expressed their appreciation of the fine service given them by Warden Green. He has added lustre to the offices he has held, said the speaker.

Council to Build Bridge Across Outlet River

PICTON—The County of Prince Edward will call for tenders to construct a bridge across the Outlet river, in Athol township, subject to approval of the Ontario Department of Highways. Estimated cost is $19,000, of which the Provincial government gives a subsidy of 80 per cent.

At its meeting this week, County Council authorized the calling of tenders, also purchase of necessary materials. Tenders are to be opened Jan. 20.

Council named Gordon T. Walmsley, Q.C., as representative on Prince Edward Collegiate Institute Board.

County engineer R. C. Preston reported that $175,457 had been expended on roads, bridges and machinery up to the end of November and the estimates have not been exceeded.

In reviewing the year's work, County councillors had many words of praise for the leadership of Warden Clinton Green.

Decision Reserved

TORONTO (CP)—Decision was reserved Thursday by the Ontario liquor licence board on a case involving a complaint of anti-Negro discrimination by the William Pitt Hotel in Chatham.

The Negro who was allegedly refused a glass of beer is Alvin Ladd, president of the Chatham local of the Union of Public Service Employees (CIO-CCL).

Hotel manager Harry Tennant admitted the incident but said the headwaiter, who since been fired, was responsible for it and that it was not the policy of the hotel to discriminate.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, DEC., 12, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Maintain a standard of consistency during this uncertain period; avoid repeating since time and effort are valuable. Study each problem separately and move with confidence to achieve set goals.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Do your best with the tools at hand. Use your innate intelligence and your inherent knowledge of right and wrong. You can make better gains today, than you expect.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Even if today's influences are negative and the stars do not offer much help, you can forge ahead with your innate skills. Don't be spasmodic in effort, but steady, calm, even-tempered.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — With perception and know-how keener today you can solve difficult problems more easily. Control emotions to obtain clearer vision, calmer judgment.

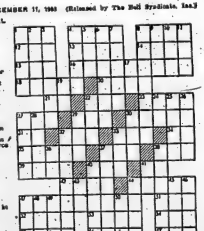
July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Don't permit unessentials to obstruct your better judgment, your duties to home and loved ones. The main question before you: how to capitalize on efforts expended.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Rather dull and uninteresting rays from some planets. However there are some good possibilities which you can turn to advantage if you are shrewd and consistent.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Do the best you know how—even if the other fellow does things differently. To make gains you will require resolute will and logical effort.

October 24 to November, 22 (Scorpio)—A somewhat unusual period. In some situations little can be gained, but for matters pertaining to personal affairs you can expect good returns. Be alert; know your capabilities.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Any drastic changes in your work or plans now running smoothly not advised. Jupiter's injudicious aspect warns against risks to health, property. P.M. vibrations brighter.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Similar now to Scorpio and Sagittarius. Be sure you know which interests and tactics are good, which adverse. Keep in line with soundly progressive ideas and thinking.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Do urgent, necessary duties before starting something new. Influences can be helpful if you are ready to think and work with despatch. Don't hesitate to say "no" when advisable.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—More care urged in financial and business matters. Don't put off what you can do now, or progress will be retarded later. No hasty decisions or words, please.

YOU BORN TODAY are usually keen, clever at any type of work you really put your mind to; good at speaking, planning, debates. You have good perspective and make excellent teachers, judges, doctors, nurses, business managers. You have great ambitions as a rule and should constantly seek the necessary education to further them. You think ahead but at times are likely to jump to conclusions. Guard against resentment and a tendency to gamble. Birthdate: John Jay, American statesman; Gustave Flaubert, French novelist

GRAHAM GREENE ELECTED

LONDON (AP)—British novelist Graham Greene Wednesday night was elected first president of the Anglo-Texan Society at its initial meeting here. RE-NEWED CARS
WHAT ARE THEY?

THEY ARE CARS that have been turned in on later models. They have been thoroughly inspected by our skilled mechanics. The necessary work has been done and guaranteed by the manufacturer. Any body work has been built back into form. Because this work has been done, we feel that they are a little better than ordinary used cars, therefore we chose the above name to distinguish them. The initial cost may not be the lowest but we feel sure that the cost in the long run will be considerably less.

JUMPER LOSES NERVE

NEW YORK (AP) — Herman Rozsine was rescued Wednesday night from a tower of the George Washington bridge more than 200 feet above the Hudson river after a three-hour effort by police. Launches stood by under the big bridge, searchlights played over the superstructure and policemen swarmed around the girders before the man was taken to hospital. "I wanted to jump," he said, "But I didn't have the nerve."

House to Study New Housing Act

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons will study the government's new housing legislation next week, Public Works Minister Winters informed the Commons Thursday.

Mr. Winters said a resolution preparatory to introducing the legislation will be debated early next week, and he expects to issue the bill to members before the Christmas recess starts the end of next week.

The legislation would permit banks to make loans on guaranteed mortgages and also would provide for reduced down payments and longer mortgage periods.

FOXBORO

Presbyterian WMS LG 1953 Officers Returned to Office

Mrs. Earl Ketcheson opened her home on Wednesday evening and entertained the Foxboro Presbyterian Ladies' Guild and Women's Missionary Society.

They held a special Christmas program, part of it taken from the "Glad Tidings", the latter half of the program being contributed by each member giving a number.

Several beautiful Christmas readings were given. Mrs. Reg. Skinner rendered a lovely instrumental solo; a medley of Christmas carols, Mrs. William Barry sang "O Little Town of Bethlehem," and Mrs. Johnston gave a reading taken from the Record, or observing Christmas.

"We have largely paganized what should be a sacred, happy day, Christmas has become to many a weariness to the flesh; a commercial orgy and an excuse for a big blow-out.

"The great lesson for the season is that, Christ has come with hope for all and a way of life for all mankind. Yet even in that land of Christ's birth, tens of thousands of Arabs are dispossessed and but barely live; while others will drink and dance in shameful abandon in celebration of the event. What is Christmas coming to? A trite question, but a serious one."

The present slates of officers were re-installed for another year, both for the Guild and the W.M.S.

The offering amounted to $4.25.

The singing of "Silent Night" and prayer brought the service to a close.

Mrs. Ketcheson served bountiful refreshments, and a social time was enjoyed by all.

Pop came home and hung up his hat and overcoat, and ma heard him from back in the kitchen, saying, Is that you, William?

It's what's left of me, pop said, and ma came out in the hall, saying, What on erth do you mean?

I lost a button off my topcoat, pop said, and ma said, There, I knew that would happen when you left the house this morning with that top button dangling like a lost sole, instead of waiting one small fraxion of a minute so I could sew it back. Well, you'll just take the consequences, she said.

I've already taken them, my dear, pop said. I lost the button, he said, and ma said, And the consequences are, you'll high yourself to Hoobinders and buy yourself a matching button. Their button department is fabulous, they're supposed to have the largest stock of buttons in the known world, she said.

Yes gods, do you want me to walk into an enormous building representing an investment of millions of dollers and ask for one small button? pop said, and ma said, In the first place, it's a large button, and in the 2nd place it's a rare and unusual button that they'll be proud and happy to be able to produce for you.

That's another point, pop said. Suppose I walk in there with a smerk on my face and defy them to produce this rare and exceptional button, and they're not able to come across with it? It'll give me a feeling of smug superiority that's libel to have a blighting effect on my caracter, he said.

Oh, leave the coat home tomorrow and I'll snip another button off, and match it myself, sutch a man, ma said.

Meaning him.

Man Eludes Police For Short Time By Swimming River

Hectic Chase Over Rooftops In Cellars Ends in Capture

Joseph Leon Bouchard, alias Leon Burette, 25, wanted by the Montreal police on a sectional charge, was apprehended by Ontario Provincial Police Friday afternoon, after a chase through tenroom, after a chase through downtown Belleville, in which the suspect tried to elude police by swimming the Moira River and by fleeing across Front Street and Bridge Street, rooftops.

Corporal Verne Morden and Constable James McBride of the local OPP detachment started an investigation for Bouchard, Friday morning, acting on notification from the Quebec Provincial Police. They traced him through Selective Service to his home at 211 Coleman, where police think he has been living with his wife and child for about a month.

Bouchard fled out the back door of his riverside home as police approached. He went into the river and swam from the west side to the east side. He entered the back door into the basement of the store formerly occupied by Little's Hardware, which is currently undergoing renovations.

Corporal Morden went into the building after him.

BELIEVE HE HAS CONCEALED KNIFE

Police believe that Bouchard was carrying a hunting knife and it is thought that he left it in the basement.

Bouchard then fled, dripping wet across Front Street. He entered the stairway next Meyer's Studio and climbed to the roof.

He then made his way across the rooftops for more than 100 yards, re-entering the building through the washroom window of the Traders Finance Company, which is located above the Bank of Montreal.

He picked up a purse owned by Mary Cory of the finance company. He was spotted by Jim Seeking and Dorrell McLaughlin, employees, who, unaware of the police chase started after him.

Bouchard dropped the purse with Seeking and McLaughlin in pursuit.

FLED INTO FRONT ST.

Bouchard then left Front Street into the thick of Friday afternoon's shopping crowds.

Belleville police constables Tom Schreiber and Elmer Minaker entered the area at this point after having been notified by the Provincial Police. Constable Schreiber recovered Mary Cory's purse.

Bouchard fled across Bridge Street and went up on the roofs on the south side of Front from Top Tailor's store with Corporal Morden in pursuit.

After travelling another 100 yards on the roofs he was forced to the ground from the top of the Frosted Foods Locker plant.

Bouchard was charged by Constable McBride as he tried to escape across a parking lot within 20 yards of the police station. He was held in the city police station prior to his appearance in the Hastings County jail until further word is received from Montreal.

Three Airmen Of Camp Borden Killed by Train

BARRIE (CP) — Three airmen from Camp Borden were killed and two others injured when the automobile in which they were riding was demolished by a freight train Friday night at a level-crossing near Allandale.

Air force officials withheld the names of the victims pending identification of next-of-kin.

Investigators said they believe the men, in a hurry to get to Barrie, passed another car that had stopped at the crossing and tried to beat the train.

Witnesses said the train crew said their first indication that the car was on the crossing was the shattering of glass and the sight of pieces of wreckage glancing off the sides of the locomotive.

The train, a way freight from Hamilton to Toronto, covered the car for a distance of 100 feet.

The injured were taken to Camp Borden service hospital.

Weather Turns Cloudy, Overcast On Royal Tour

ABOARD S. S. GOTHIC (CP)—Brilliant sunshine of the last week which has brightened the voyage of Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh towards Fiji Islands vanished today.

The weather turned cloudy and overcast, with rain showers visible five miles away from this royal liner. The wind was moderate to strong on the Pacific rollers.

The Queen and the duke were sun glasses Friday as they stood on the sheltered platform above the bridge of the Gothic and watched a ceremonial change of escort ship, which the Queen filmed with her own camera.

The Queen flew at the Fiji group Dec. 17, where they will spend three days, including an overnight trip to the Friendly Islands, 430 miles distant.

Before going ashore, the Queen and the Duke will be met in the south reef harbor of Suva by a fleet of native Fijian canoes and modern steamships, headed by Governor, Sir Ronald Garvey, Lady Garvey, and a Fijian master of ceremonies, Ratu Sir Edward Cakobau.

Ratu Cakobau, a representative Fijian chief will perform "cavukitcakele," the ceremonial invitation to land on the soil of the Queen's realm. This will be the first of many such ceremonies the royal visitors will undergo in their woven garments of vividly-patterned tapa cloth, will perform for the Queen.

COMMONS HOLDS SPECIAL DEBATE ON WHEAT ISSUE

U.S. Decision May Force Down Canadian Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States decision to sell surplus holdings of subsidized wheat in markets outside the International Wheat Agreement has brought repercussions in Parliament.

In a special Commons debate on the subject Friday, CCF members were joined by one Liberal in invoking concern that the U. S. action may force down Canadian prices.

Trade Minister Howe, the cabinet minister responsible for wheat marketing, replied that Canadian prices will not be affected. Americans had the right to compete with Canada in world wheat markets but had not exercised that particular objection" to this.

Walter Tucker, (CCF—Rosthern) said Canada should tell the U. S. that nothing should be done "to break the prices of our product."

Regular business of the Commons was set aside at the request of M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, to discuss the U. S. move, which he described as a "very serious threat" both to the International Wheat Agreement and to Canada's traditional market in the United Kingdom.

Canada should take immediate steps to have the wheat exchange economy from what would probably be "disastrous competition."

DEFEND U.S.

It was evident, Mr. Coldwell said, that the U. S. government had decided to withdraw from IWA and monopolize the world market, as far as possible "without regard for the consequences to other wheat-producing countries.

Canada should call for an immediate meeting of the recently-established Canada, U.S. economic and trade committee to seek "redress" of the unilateral action. The U. S. move announced in the White Washington announcement that it plans to sell wheat to IWA countries will subsidize a "limited" quality and government officials have said to non-IWA countries at IWA prices. The current WA price is $1.89 in Canada, $2.00 in Australia.

Mr. Coldwell said the U. S. announcement that it plans to sell the 780,000,000 bushels held by its agency, the Commodity Credit Corporation, at competitive prices on the world market.

Canada, with 400,000,000 bushels for export outside the IWA, was the next country to enter into "out threat" competition with the U. S. or holding its wheat unsold in storage, only major non-IWA country, is traditionally Canada's best customer. Mr. Coldwell declined to sign the IWA when elected government because of a ceiling of $2.05 a bushel.

Mr. Coldwell said British wheat purchases, in reply, said the U. S. has the right to compete in world markets with Canada and that Canada "has to be expected." Canada was informed in advance that trade was made "on particular objection."

Greenish Light, Exploding 'Thing' Are Sighted in District Skies

A greenish light in the sky over the Shannonville area and a multi-colored object which approached RCAF Station Trenton at an estimated speed of 800 knots and later expanded and exploded over the station are incidents puzzling officers of the authorities and district residents today.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lancaster of the sixth concession of Tyendinaga township, Brooks and Jacobson, both reported seeing a greenish light in the sky at 6 p.m. A greenish-blue light was seen by a Trans Canada Airlines' pilot about 6 p.m. on his flight from Toronto over Lake Ontario at about 8,000 feet. Similar reports of a greenish-blue light were made from Smith's Falls and from Perth.

Flying Officer Wider, a Trenton-based officer, reported seeing a multi-colored object approaching the airfield at an "amazing speed" last night around 8 o'clock. He told control tower officers the object was flying between 500 and 800 feet and as it reached the airfield it exploded and then exploded in the air.

Air Force radar teams at Ottawa have had their devices trained for such an object, but report nothing has been picked up on the screens. Since reports of the reports say the object was seen over Lake Ontario it was believed the object might have been beyond the range of the radar.

Another airman is believed to have seen the same object as Wider. He thought he saw it, but Sgt. G. H. Barr spotted something in the sky around 8 o'clock to be an object. Flying Officer Wider made his report shortly after. Sgt. Barr was similar in all respects to that of the officer's and the sergeant reported he "definitely" exploded. He sighted the object in the direction of Long Point and Port Hope, north of No. 2 Highway.

One RCAF officer said the greenish-blue light was "definitely not" moving in the air." Command public relations officer at Trenton could not offer any explanation as what either object might be. He said "there is no definite clue as to what it is." He said that there have been several sightings by RCAF aircraft in flight over Lake Ontario.

Series of Plane Losses Kill More Than Score; Nine Missing

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

More than a score of persons were killed in two widely-separated air crashes Friday night and another nine are missing in a British observation plane which vanished during an Atlantic weather flight. Thirteen persons were killed, one of an Indian government airliner munist labor leader, in the crash of an Air Force transport plane near Nagpur, India. Other victims were said to include a Frenchman and an American.

In the United States, a giant B-36 bomber, shuddering in for a landing through swirling snow, rammed into a mountain near Fort Paso, Tex., and exploded, killing nine men. Five of those aboard, including the commander, had parachuted to safety from a similar plane which crashed in England last April.

An RAF Shackleton with nine men aboard was reported overdue Friday night from a weather observation flight over the Atlantic Northern Ireland base. Fears for its safety were felt after reports of a "ditching" in the area found of Mull, West Scotland.

The Indian crash was under way over the Mull area today.

In the South, the blast reduced the 10-engined craft to bits of charred metal. Wreckage dotted a blackened patch about the size

NEARLY TO LAND

The bomber groped low through thick clouds and a blinding snowstorm as it let down to land at Biggs air force base.

It drove nose-first into a thundering roar as the ship smashed into the west slope of block, 7,100-foot Franklin mountain, most north of the El Paso outskirts. Buildings shook, flames and smoke shot skyward. The crash happened shortly before 6 p. m.

Miss Benny Buchanan heard it and "through white fog rolling down the mountain I could see the smoke," she said.

"The body was on fire. It was soaked with gasoline."

In 1944, a B-24 bomber crashed on the same mountain's east side, killing eight.

TWO SHILLINGS KILLED

In a South American crash, two members of the Chilean air force died Friday during a routine training flight at Algarrobo, seaside resort on Chile's Pacific coast.

Two American Panther jets in formation collided, killing serious injury when their planes, flying off the Chilean coast, crashed into the Hawaiian islands Friday. They bailed out and were rescued from the sea.

Frogman, Radio Operators, 'Copters Join Hunt for Girl

TORONTO (CP) — A frogman, amateur radio operators, helicopters and scores of ground searchers today joined the massive hunt for Marion McDowell, 17-year-old girl missing from her home since Tuesday.

The high-spirited blonde collected Canada Hay records and was enthusiastic about roller skating and swimming. Many lovers' lane in suburban Scarborough township.

Her escort, 18-year-old James Wilson, said a hooded gunman stuck him in the back and said what is believed to have been a pistol. He said that during brief intervals of consciousness he saw his assailant place the apparently unconscious girl in the trunk of a strange car and drive away.

MAY BE ALIVE

However, Police Chief Wilfred McLellan said Coldwell said that day he believes the girl may be alive.

As the police check of the immediate area reached the stage where none of the area had been covered, Chief McLellan said the search has been so thorough that he is convinced the girl, dead or alive, is not in the township.

He said he believes that, since no body has been found, there is a good chance that she is still alive.

"Although the boy (James Wilson) did not hit himself, I'm satisfied there is more than one way to skin a cat.

"I'm convinced the girl is somewhere else in the province and that she is well. Further, I believe she will be home by her own free will."

The girl's father, Ross McDowell of Toronto, was questioned all week, said he cannot believe she has run away without informing her parents.

"If she's gone away, it's because someone else took her," he said. "I'll keep on searching even if everyone else drops out."

STILL NO CLUES

Police have directed a thorough search for the girl, poking into thickets and gullies, checking abandoned buildings and dredging streams. The girl's picture has been televised and her description broadcast on radio broadcasts. So far the offer of $2,000 in reward money has brought no tangible clue to her disappearance.

Also, police have received several reports of the sighting of girls answering Miss McDowell's description. Several women at Thamesville, 20 miles south of Chatham, said they saw a blonde girl in a restaurant with a man who had registered from Detroit. A telegram believed to concern the case came from Timiskaming, Que., but its contents were not made public.

The helicopter was assigned to climb down into a well 10 miles north of the point where the girl disappeared. It was a dry 40-foot unagged something in the well but not found in it.

The helicopters were to take searchers aloft.

PROJECT LINCOLN BEING PROBED FOR SUBVERSIVES

McCarthy Aide Says Matter Super-Secret

WASHINGTON (AP) — An aide to Senator Joseph McCarthy says "project Lincoln" is a super-secret study of how to keep North Amerjea safe from atomic attack, is being probed for subversives by the Senate Investigations sub-committee.

The Boston Post, in a copyrighted story, reported today that such an investigation was under way. Francis P. Carr, executive staff director of McCarthy's committee, confirmed that the project is among defence establishments in the Boston area being investigated for subversives.

The project uses facilities of Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Cambridge, which is within Boston's metropolitan area.

The Post said it is believed that "some top British and Canadian scientists work on project Lincoln."

It added that the "chief recommendation of project Lincoln' to be disclosed to date called for the erection of a $50,000,000,000 radar screen around the United States and the creation of the strictest of security regulations governing 'protect Lincoln' so that no one will know exactly what has come out of it."

SAID TOP PROJECT

"But a spokesman for the 'hush hush' project said the decision whatever that "project Lincoln" is our top project—and has been given top priority."

The story also said:

"It is reported that 'project Lincoln' ranks in strategic importance just behind the manufacture of atomic and hydrogen bombs. The project, it was explained, is responsible for the safety of the United States itself."

McCarthy said earlier that his sub - committee's search for evidence of spying at the Fort Monmouth, N.J., radar laboratories will be resumed in New York Monday.

The Post quoted an unidentified sub-committee source as saying the "project Lincoln' investigation is an outgrowth of the Monmouth case.

Carr declined comment on the Post story, saying only that in making the sub-committee has investigated "all phases of espionage and that the project is one of the defence establishments under study.

Airwoman Not Saying Where She Spent 19 Months

VANCOUVER (CP)—It's not a story, it's just my life. . . ."

That was Isobel Burton's answer to questions about where she spent the 19 months she was absent without leave from the RCAF.

The 28-year-old former airwoman vanished April 15, 1952, from the RCAF station at Aylmer, Ont. A widespread search followed.

Miss Burton was given a discharge and not seen again until she flew to Victoria Nov. 30 from Montreal. Now she has been hiding "for personal reasons."

Brought to Vancouver, she appeared before Wing Cmdr. D.C.F. Hemsworth, station commander, and confined her to barracks for 21 days, to be followed by a discharge.

She was released Friday, two weeks before her term expired on "on grounds of" compassion.

Miss Burton refused comment, she refused to discuss the disappearance.

"My life is my own and I'm going to keep it private always," she told reporters.

Allies Break Off Negotiations For Peace Conference

Dean Walks Out After Reds Say U.S. Aided to Free PoW

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Negotiations to set up a Korean peace conference were broken off today by Arthur H. Dean, United States envoy, after a meeting that lasted five hours and 45 minutes, longest since the preliminary peace talks began Oct. 26.

The Allied and Communist diplomats had made no progress toward arranging a peace conference since the preliminary talks began. Today Dean, who is spokesman for the 17 United Nations countries which fought in Korea, walked out after the Reds accused the U.S. of plotting with the South Korean government to release 27,000 Korean war prisoners last June.

"I treated these charges as reason to break off the talks and left the meeting," Dean told correspondents. "I said they accused my government of treachery and perfidy. It was withdrawn I would interpret it as a motion on their side to recess indefinitely."

Dean added that no further meetings will be held unless the communists withdraw their accusation and ask for a meeting.

He would give the Communists a "reasonable time to decide what they want to do."

SAID REMARKS RUDE

The charges against the U.S. were made by Communist delegate Huang Hua. Dean said Huang's remarks to him were "rude and crude" and it became "evident they wanted to become so rude and abusive as to force discontinuance of the talks."

Earlier in the session Dean accused the Communists of holding Americans and South Koreans as prisoners as slave laborers in China and Manchuria, and said that he had been obtained from PoWs who escaped from "your dictatorial control."

Dean told the Communists they are "playing all prisoners captured in the Korean war were repatriated except for a handful who chose to remain with the Reds."

"The representatives of your side several times announced that all prisoners of our side who declined repatriation have been returned," Dean said. "You even put this in writing."

"It is agreed that your statement is completely false. You are playing fast and loose with the truth. You are playing with human lives. You can military personnel in China or Manchuria."

"You have kept thousands of Koreans captured from the Republic of Korea armies."

Dean also told the Reds that he and President Syngman Rhee of South Korea see "eye to eye" on the "problem of release of PoWs and the political (peace) conference."

EXPRESSES SOUTH KOREANS

The U. S. envoy said that several times during the sessions Huang had accused the United Nations government of releasing the South Korean prisoners, and called compounds. Rhee has also openly that the release was ordered by him.

But shortly before the Allied delegate left Huang said evidently switched his attack and accused the U. S. of "sabotage" and conspiring with South Korea.

The break came after seven half hours of discussion during which Dean had been speculation for days that the talks were on the verge of a breakdown, but Dean had repeatedly said he would make every effort to

At Last Old Enough to Fly Ocean, Brockville Boy,4, Rejoins Parents

MONTREAL (CP) — A four-year-old Canadian boy met his parents today for the first time in more than four years after a complicated transatlantic flight from London to Montreal.

Donald McGinnis of Brockville, Ont., should have come home from England in 1949 with his parents but in September but he wasn't old enough. The age limit for unaccompanied children flying the Atlantic was raised from three to four this year.

Frazer had his fourth birthday Saturday and got his passport at once.

The crew of the Trans - Canada Air Liner described Frazer as "a model passenger" but two young fellow-travellers — also above Frederick Katz, 6½, and Peter Frederick brother Jorg, who flew from Dusseldorf, Germany, were a different proposition.

They insisted on playing hide-and-seek all the time and eventually the hostess had to strap them into their seats to keep them from "it," CTA official said.

Frederik and Jorg flew on to Toronto later today to join their parents.

Frazer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James McGinnis who drove from Brockville to meet their son, said his homecoming had one "happy coincidence"—it was six years to the day since Mrs. McGinnis left Canada to marry her husband.

Hydro Chairman Will Not Grant Pay for Layoffs

TORONTO (CP) — Robert H. Saunders, chairman of the Ontario hydro commission, said Friday that the commission will not assume any responsibility for wages lost due to the electrical conversion of a plant.

"Such an obligation was never contemplated at the time the legislation covering frequency standardization was drafted," Mr. Saunders said in a letter to Eamon Park, representative of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL).

Mr. Park had protested lay-offs due to conversion work at the John Inglis plant in Toronto.

Orillia Mayor Accuses Manager Of Intimidation

ORILLIA (CP)—Mayor Wilbur M. Cramp Friday night accused Ontario Hydro of "attempting" and of instructing employees not to vote for him in Monday's civic election.

Mr. Cramp, speaking at a public meeting, said:

"I understand Mr. Beament (T. G. Beament, manager of Fahydro Canada Limited) at a meeting today intimidated his men not to vote for me."

Mr. Beament was not available for comment. A member of his household said he was on his way by train to Falconbridge in the Sudbury area and would be away until Sunday.

Opposing Mayor Cramp is Hugh Johnston, present reeve, and John MacIsaac, deputy reeve.

Sentence Sustained

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Another prison sentence was sustained Friday in connection with a blockade thrown up on Tecumseh road during the Ontario trucking strike last summer.

Lawrence Parent, 42, president of the bus drivers' union, will have to serve 10 days in jail. The union was not involved.

The crown argued Parent caused a disturbance by ordering the driver of a bus not to get off his route when a policeman was trying to get the vehicle moved from the area of the blockade. Parent was a pedestrian at the time, protesting as president of the union.

Branch No. 99 of the Canadian Legion has been advised that any application for war claims compensation must be received at the War Claim Commission's office at Ottawa before midnight of December 31st.

The Dominion Command have investigated the possibility of an extension of the deadline but there does not appear to be any chance of such an extension. Bailey, will be glad to give any assistance to any persons having claim against the Commission.

KIT INSPECTION FOR ANTI-TANK REGT.

There should be a good turnout of the "troops" when the 8th Anti-Tank Regiment RCA (A.L.) holds its regular Tuesday parade next week. It is the annual pre-Christmas pay parade, and in addition there will be a bit of spectacle. It will be the same old army story, "No Kit, No Pay."

O.S.D. Pupils Give Splendid Portrayal of Nativity Pageant

Last evening the large auditorium of the Ontario School for the Deaf was filled to capacity by parents and friends from out-of-town as well as many from the city, for the two presentations by the school students of the "Nativity," the old, old, but ever new story of the birth of Jesus at Bethlehem.

The Nativity play, which was in the form of a pageant, was adapted and directed by Miss Helen Keeler, with the music and dialogue arranged by Mr. S. Alec Gordon, assisted by the teachers' chorus. The pageant portrays the events leading to the birth of Christ as recorded in the Bible. Immediately preceding each scene, the portions of Scripture describing the following scenes were read with the distinctness and clarity of tone, by the following students: Vivian Augustine Brown; Joanne Bronsdon, Rosemary Burnads and Mary Taylor, all of whom were pro foundly deaf.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

Preceding the play a short musical program, consisting of choruses by the girls' choir, "Snowflakes" and "Whistling Wind," and a trio by R. Burnads, V. Curtis and M. Lafrenier, who rendered "Away in a Manger," and "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," were given with pleasing accent.

The "Rhythm Band" by a senior which followed, added forward to with pleasure, rendered "Santa Claus is Coming to Town" and "March of the Little Lead Soldiers" with precision, under the leadership of Miss Marjorie Caldwell. The audience, as well, entered into the spirit of the season by singing "Silent Night, Holy Night."

The Nativity consisted of five scenes, the Annunciation, with Mary, Miss Jeannette Marzi, and the angel, Miss Shirley Ann Reid, which was presented with appealing simplicity, during the reading of "Shepherds, Watch," by Mrs. M. Davidson.

NO ROOM

Scene II. depicted the arrival of Joseph and Mary at the Inn, where there were "no vacancies," but they might find shelter in the cave-like animal stalls. Those taking part included the inn keeper, Mario Micetick, publicans, Robert Reid, and Lawrence Hall, Roman soldiers, Wilfred Saumure and William Hemphill, page payers, Roy DeRose and Robert Eberle, Joseph, Norman Ruttan and Mary, Edwarda Masci.

The publicans were most realistic in their demands for the extra sheckels, which were demanded by a resounding "thump" of the fist on the table. The Roman soldiers were true to the pattern, including the lot, Joseph, in his rich soft wine-colored velvet, his gentle manner, and the fondness Mary in her enveloping blue, were outstanding in their portrayal of the principal characters of that scene. It might be noted here, that the new lighting the part of Mary most merit that exclusive, for her deportment and scholastic attainment throughout the preceding portion of the year, to be selected for the part is a high honor.

SHEPHERDS' SCENE

Scene III depicted the Shepherd scene on the Judean hills in the dead of night, watching the sleeping flocks; the fire of the coals, and the first glorious arrival of the littlest shepherd, who comes running, shouting the appearance of the heavenly angel, who bursts through the grey curtains at the back in glorious white satin with outspread snow-white wings. Then the arrival of the heavenly host with their trumpets, completed a most impressive picture.

Those taking part were, shepherds, Donald Dennis, Delbert Green, Douglas Leeman, Leroy McGregor, Raymond Panke, Billy Willis; Young shepherd, Marshall Wick; Herald angel, Mary Chong; heavenly host, F. Westbrook, F. DeLaFontaine, K. MacKerron, J. Laney, Jean Drury, taking the place of Lillian Gordon, who was absent due to illness; M. Penfold, J. Ratz, M. Wadsworth, C. Benedict and M. Ganasky.

HEROD'S COURT

Scene IV. showed King Herod's Court, the king upon his high throne, with golden crown, and cunning character, portrayed by John Fossum, who understudied for Peter Klym, who was suddenly called home due to the death of his father; the high priest in his ceremonial robes, Kenneth Searson; the altar boy, Jackie Walter; the scribes, Irvine Hayes, Charles Beaumont; the Roman guards, Ronald Saumure and William Hemphill; the slave girls Ellen Howe, and Diane Wilson, and the dancer, Miss Jeannette Marzi, who understudied for Gloria Gordon, all of whom were prodigally deaf.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

Scene V, the Nativity was most lovely, showing the three guardian angels, in their gleaming white robes, and bejewelled crowns, Joseph and Mary, and the little cherubims with folded hands, seated around the manger cradle; the arrival of the shepherds in their native dress, the presentation of the three kings, slowly wending their way down the aisle, the gold, frankincense, and myrrh gifts, the solid, flesh of additional light, showed the acceptance of the gifts by the Babe above, and then to complete the beautiful picture, the reverend supreme appeared on the scene through the long auditorium of the choristers' chorus, in white, each walking with bowed head, hands crossed upon the breast, made the most impressive long to be remembered.

Those of the cast were; Jeannette Marzi, Mary; Donald Norman Ruttan, as Joseph; Mary Chong and Claudette Gravell, as guardian angels; Merry Blodernagel, Bruce Daniels, Richard Moogy, Barbara Rowe; Terry Stewart and Brian West as cherubs; D. Dennis; Douglas Leeman; Leroy McGregor; R. Panke; W. Willis; and M. Wick, as shepherds; David Elliott; Burton Foster and Donald Sattler as wise men, and Susan Allen, M. Hayes, M. Wadsworth; J. M. Laney, J. Rath; F. DeLaFontaine, J. Scott, J. Drury; S. Girdler; J. Hopkins; C. Benedict; Judy Hollingsworth; Moon; J. Saunderson; S. Warren; F. Westbrook; S. Brant; S. Trost; L. Keys and D. Runstedler, as angels.

MARY MOTHERS

During each scene soft music in keeping with the scene being portrayed was played, and "We Three Kings" sung as they brought their gifts.

Stage manager was Willy Habermehl, assisted by Keith Gardner and Tommy Dallaire.

Preceding the program, Mr. J. H. Duncan, superintendent of the School, spoke briefly, extending a most cordial welcome to the many parents assembled, also to old friends of the school, for the most pleased to see. He mentioned the pageant as one way of celebrating the Christmas end of year, reciting the Christmas story by the older pupils of the school to the younger pupils. That the presentation had now become a tradition of the school. There was no change in the story itself, the only change being in the pupils, as some graduated, and others took their places.

A profound and memorable portrayal of Earth's 2nd Greatest story.

Baptismal Font Presented Bethel United Church

In an auditorium tastefully decorated with ferns and flowers, and with a large congregation of worshippers assembled, a service of unusual interest was held at Bethel United Church on Sunday last.

Mrs. McGregor Easson, of Ottawa, accompanied by her husband, Dr. Easson, was in attendance to unveil and present a memorial font in memory of her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. James Phillips.

In a brief address, Mrs. Easson presented her gift, a beautiful pedestal carved oak baptismal font for the children, trusting it might prove a means of deepening the worshipping their spiritual lives to the betterment of both church and community.

Mr. Cecil Ketcheson, speaking on behalf of the congregation, gratefully accepted the gift, making reference to the outstanding characteristics both Mr. and Mrs. Phillips rendered their church through many years of unselfish and secure work and find some new friends.

It was only a boy of school age but willing to take anything to help add to the family income.

Finally got a job as printer's devil in the Intelligencer, owned then by Sir Mackenzie Bowell. I worked and learned the print feeding art, for a time under the leadership of George Warhams, also John Neate and Miss Emerson. I got along and as years rolled by, I became a full-fledged printer.

But to continue, regarding Belleville, I changed work sometimes with the Ontario, then owned by Thomas Carlisle. His pressman was Clayton Crook. I still have a paper in my possession announcing the death of Queen Victoria, January 22, 1901. The same editorial was through myself and retained one copy of which I am proud.

Well, I came to Belleville sometime and when I do I shall call on Mr. Crook. I remember one friends and I remember A. W. Fleming, who looked after Jimmie Boy's brewery for a few years and took a position with Harry Corby. I remember William Ault, of the Hotel Quinte; Robert Bateman of the Crystal Hotel; George Butterfield and Col. W. H. Ponton. Later I became a member of the Sons of England, Telford Lodge, and joined the Cycle Corps and won a famed race for them to Picton and a team race on the White Rose Lodge. Also I became a member of the 15th Battalion's bugle Band under the eye of Mr. Sharah. E. Bowen and Mr. Stewart were at the send-off of one of the first men who volunteered for South Africa. His name was Jack MacNair.

Yes, there have been many changes during that period and I say that Belleville is one of the best loved cities. I have travelled a great deal since entering on my printing trade which I gained in Belleville. I worked in a little town in Alberta called Stettler, The Stettler Independent, of which I was proud to be appointed in not finding Indians. I thought the would see plenty.

As an old member of a grand paper, The Intelligencer, I wish you all the best.

Arthur M. Fleming.

Former Printer Recalls His Early Experiences in Belleville Since 1898

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

I have read recently in your paper an article describing the changes in Belleville during the past 60 years by Edgar S. Vanderwater. Well, it was most interesting and I can assure you that his knowledge of Belleville at that time was extremely accurate.

I would like to say something regarding Belleville since 1898. I came to Canada from England on the "California," one of the Allen liners. With our family of six we came to your city and took up residence on Great St. James Street, close to the Marsh and Henthorn foundry. My early work in those days was not too hard to find as wages were low and help in short supply.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

By HORACE B. POWELL

Methodism has had its share of singing poets and they have contributed generously to Christendom's treasury of sacred song.

Mary Artemisia Lathbury, the author of the exquisite evening hymn, "Day Is Dying In The West", came from a devout Methodist family in Manchester, New York where she was born on August 10, 1841. Her father and two of her brothers were Methodist ministers and Miss Lathbury herself, after a brief career as an art teacher, decided to devote her life and talents to Christian writing. Her religious songs, stories, and pictures have brightened the lives of thousands of Sunday School youngsters in churches of all denominations and creeds across America.

William Fisk Sherwin, who is also widely known in Sunday School circles for his music and hymn tunes, set Miss Lathbury's hymn to music. Both the hymn and its tune were written in 1880 while Sherwin and Miss Lathbury were attending the Chautauqua Assembly, a summer religious conference on the shores of Lake Chautauqua, in New York.

Dr. John H. Vincent, founder of the Chautauqua Assembly and prominent bishop of the Methodist church, wanted a new song for use at his conferences and in response to his request for one, the two young people—hymnist and composer—turned out the hymn which has been popular in all similar religious rallies ever since.

Day Is Dying In The West

Day is dying in the west,
Heav'n is touching earth with rest;
Wait and worship while the night
Sets her evening lamps alight
Thro' all the sky.

Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of hosts!
Heav'n and earth are full of thee,
Heav'n and earth are praising thee,
O Lord most high.

Lord of life, beneath the dome
Of the universe, thy home,
Gather us who seek thy face
To the fold of thy embrace
For thou art nigh.

While the deep'ning shadows fall,
Heart of love, enfolding all,
Thro' the glory and the grace
Of the stars that veil thy face
Our hearts ascend.

When, forever from our sight
Pass the stars, the day, the night,
Lord of angels, on our eyes
Let eternal morning rise,
And shadows end.

Head of Branch Against Coupons For Consumers

TORONTO (CP) — Estelle LeBlanc, head of Montreal's French branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers, says coupons and premiums offered with so many products encourage childishness in adults.

She told the Advertising Sales Club of Toronto the majority of women would prefer a good product with the price down a few cents rather than coupons and premiums.

"We know we pay, in the end, for all these little surprises," she said.

Miss LeBlanc said manufacturers should offer women more information in capsule form when advertising their products.

Earlier in an interview she said manufacturers wishing to sell their products to French Canadian house wives in Quebec don't have to think up some new approach.

The French women like variety of color and styles as do any other women, she said.

The only thing manufacturers must watch were mistakes in translating advertisements. It took skill to translate an English advertisement into French, or for that matter a French advertisement into English.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

LITTLE MEN

Penguins belong strictly to the Antarctic, never leaving home either summer or winter. Any, therefore, that are seen, except by people living as far south as the Falkland Islands or a few expeditions, must be those kept in zoos.

The little men in black frock coats and white shirt fronts that all erect along rocky ledges near our North Atlantic seaboard are definitely not Penguins, though looking so like them, but are auks, murres, or puffins.

All these are diving birds which frequent the seas and coasts in the breeding season, unless they have been driven inland by some misfortune—which does occur every few years. Then, unable to cope with the new situation, they generally die of starvation.

All have small wings used to swimming under water, and all but one though most at home in water, can fly, and walk on land better than grebes or loons, to which walking is practically an impossibility. Indeed little auks, or dovekies as they are generally called, occasionally migrate in winter from north of the Arctic Circle as far south as Cuba.

LARGEST GROUP

Much the largest of this group of curious birds was the great auk called in French "Le Grand Pingouin".

More than 400 years ago European fishermen visiting Labrador's breeding grounds near the Grand Banks found that these birds were helpless on "their own land". Thousands were clubbed to death for their easy prizes. Finally the great auk was wiped out by professional feather hunters.

The International Convention Act of 1917 has made it illegal for anybody in Canada or the United States, with the exception of Eskimos and Indians, to kill the great auk's smaller relatives.

These penguin-like birds are all "inclined" to be colonists, often several different species on the same rocky ledge or island, or some inaccessible cliff overlooking the sea.

The large egg is laid directly on the bare rock, generally at the very edge of the cliff, quite expect it to roll off when pushed by the owner that is preparing to incubate. But Mother Nature has provided for this by greatly tapering the large end of the egg, so that when knocked it merely swings round.

Most of these birds have but one egg, which receives the utmost attention as do the four or five laid by land in the safe hollow of a tree.

The puffin has two characteristics peculiar to itself. In summer it acquires a large, bright-colored bill, and it digs a burrow at the far end of which the one egg is laid.

ture were read with reference to the birth of Christ.

Mrs. Rowley read a Christmas story entitled "The Surro's Burden". The story as told by the donkey, Surro, to Mary and Bethlehem gave a new slant to the Christmas story.

A solo was sung by Mrs. Daniels, "Jesu, Jesu, Gently Sleeping".

In the business part of the session, the 1953 officers were reinstated for 1954 by Mrs. Davidson.

A Lift for Living

Whom Can We Trust?

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

A postmaster in a small town once owned a St. Bernard dog. This dog possessed physical strength and unusual intelligence. He was a one-family dog and became the devoted protector of the youngest daughter of the family. The pair were therefore usually found where the little girl was.

He slept outside her bedroom door. Occasionally—he proved through the leaves—he could be sure that no one molested his master and his "flock."

His great shaggy head and superb dignity won the hearts of the neighbors.

One day the owner said to a friend: "Folks are seem to think somehow he has become a sort of anchor here in our family. He has received faith in this household." The father wanted to demonstrate his faith in his dog.

One morning he took his friend, his small daughter and the dog to the railroad station. Half a mile down the track, the engineer pulled the whistle cord.

PREPOSTEROUS

The father placed his little daughter on the rails. He said, "I want you to see the faith I have in our St. Bernard." To his friend the thing seemed preposterous.

The dog, alarmed at the danger, leaped to the rails. He snatched the child by an arm and deposited her safely on the platform.

That father's act may be so extreme as to seem foolish. A dog's fidelity, beautiful as it is, can hardly be counted on in life's extreme emergencies.

A certain trust in oneself is essential to success. Horace, the old Roman poet, had a kernel of truth when he said: "He who relies on himself is the leader to guide the swarm."

FAITH IN-SELF

We all know persons whose faith in themselves serves them as the whiskers of a cat serve that animal. I have no inside information on this subject, and I may be wrong, but my understanding is that a cat's whiskers enable it to tell whether a hole is large enough for it to get through. Some people have a faith which makes them feel confident they can get through a situation.

This helps—but it is not a faith worthy enough and strong enough for these times. I cannot trust completely my conscience, my will, or my strength. I need God these days to keep me from drifting.

FAITH IN OTHERS

Likewise, our faith in our fellowmen is good—but not good enough. If I received a telegram tomorrow that someone dear to me had just died, I could not comfort myself by going out for a walk to look at the men I met on the street.

When I walk through the "valley of the shadow of death," it is not the crowd which comforts me. Nor is it enough to know that other people are going through their sorrows. I need to feel the care of a Divine Shepherd.

Faith is an anchor—faith in ourselves, in our fellows and in our nation. All these are not secure, however, unless our anchors of faith lay on the rock bottom, which is God. As we draw near to Christ Jesus, let us drop anchor in the Bible's promise: "The Eternal God is your dwelling place, and underneath are the everlasting arms."

Think what life would be in a land like Russia, whose leaders do not believe in God. How far could we trust dictators who recognize no higher law than their own desires? Who could be sure what the law would be tomorrow? What trust could one put in the future?

PROMISES NOT ENOUGH

When I was in Russia seven years ago, I could feel the fear and uncertainty which hung like a pall over the people. I saw the peasants crowding the churches because they knew that the promises of Godless dictators are not enough to live by and die by.

President William McKinley once tapped his desk in the White House and said, "No man will ever sit here who does not believe in God." What confidence it gives us in lands like Canada and the United States, to have leaders who look up to a Higher Power!

Read again the motto on U.S. coins: "In God we trust." And take heart.

GARBAGE WORKERS STRIKE

NEW YORK (CP)—Drivers and helpers went on strike Monday night against 500 private garbage collection companies serving hotels, restaurants, hospitals and other private institutions in the New York area. The Private Sanitation Truck Union (AFL) asked a $10 weekly raise and other benefits while the employers offered a $4 package. Current wages for drivers average $62 a week.

REVERSES MOVIE BAN

BALTIMORE (AP)—Judge Herman M. Moser Monday reversed a Maryland censor board ban on the film "The Moon Is Blue" and termed the actions of the state's motion picture censors "arbitrary and capricious." He ruled the film is "neither obscene, indecent, immoral, nor tending to corrupt morals," but actually a story of "virtue triumphant."

APPOINTED PRO

TORONTO (CP)—John F. McGivern, Toronto teacher, has been appointed public relations director for the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation. The federation has 6,000 members.

Council Wants Govt. to Take Off Oleo Tax

OTTAWA (CP)—The National Council of Women of Canada today called on the government to remove the 15-per-cent sales tax on margarine.

In the council, in a prepared brief said margarine is "an economic necessity in many homes" and called the tax unfair.

The NCWC also asked the government to scrap the means test in the Blind Persons Act, grant more favorable pensions to dependent parents of dead Canadian war veterans and provide better treatment of early sex offenders under the Criminal Code.

It lauded the CBC for banning alcoholic liquor advertising from its programs, but asked government for appointing women to the board and urged the government to implement the labor department's recommendations regarding employment of older workers. It deplored the fact that no women are represented on the civil service commission.

Tabernacle United WMS Returns Officers

The December meeting of Tabernacle W.M.S. was held in ladies' parlor. Mrs. Mason Shows What is to be, What he Does, With What he Has."

Mrs. Robb gave a report on the sale which was packed a few days ago to be sent to Korea. A bale full of good stockings, dresses, coats, socks, gloves, mitts, flannelette, children's clothes, in all, about 90 pounds.

A special collection was taken up to help defray cost in sending the bale. There had been 25 calls made.

The service was taken over by Mrs. Archibald, assisted by Mrs. R. Rowley, which was a lovely Christmas service including Christmas carols and passages of Scripture.

NOSTALGIA AT THE NATION'S HEART

We fear that one of the casualties of the industrial revolution is going to be the editorial page of the Ottawa Journal.

The Journal is currently one of the most quoted newspapers in Canada. One of the principal reasons for this eminence is the liberal sprinkling of homey editorials about life down on the farm, and horse and buggy anecdotes about life in the rural, and semi-urban areas that dotted the countryside fifty and sixty years ago.

Faithfully each week come nostalgic reminiscences about the old dinner bell ringing over the hushed fields at eventide as the weary, but hungry, field hands come silently home after an honest day's work. Long winter evenings with water eventually on the oil heater, is superbly lighted with fluorescent tubing. With the disappearance of most horses, cows are the animal aristocrats and enjoy the sterilized benefits of milking machines and innoculations by the government veterinarian, while the local laboratory issues a bacteria count along with its fat analysis on the quality of milk.

No one can accuse the Ottawa Journal of being remiss in presenting its readers with ancient editorial fodder because it also deals succinctly with current problems. But the machine would seem to have overtaken the nostalgia editor, and unless he can come forward soon with a more up-to-date rendition of the old homestead, he seems doomed to be another writer of ancient history whose readers, while delighted by his whimsy, will not know what he is talking about.

ACTIONS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS

He was a very young boy to be delivering a homily—but he was certainly doing it in the most effective way, by his actions.

He stood on the curb in the gathering dusk and looked anxiously both ways at the streaming Bridge Street rush-hour traffic.

There is the first virtue—caution!

Noting the way was at last clear, he darted hurriedly across the street.

Action!

Reaching the safety of the opposite sidewalk he dis-dained to tread it, but promptly climbed atop the concrete wall that kept the lawns from trampling into the street.

He decided to leave the beaten path!

Tripping along the wall, he came to a gap, measured it with his eye, retreated and then turned and took a run at it.

Readiness to remedy a defective approach to a problem!

Reaching the gap once more, he did not leap, but came to a sudden halt.

Discretion!

Tentatively he stretched out his foot to see whether he could step across.

A willingness to search for an alternative solution to the problem!

Unable to span the gap, he turned aside, climbed down to the sidewalk, then jumped atop the wall again.

An acceptable compromise between two solutions!

Off he raced into the gloom, already well equipped to face life's problems, though his school days had not yet begun.

SOME GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS

Are you interested in totem poles?

Does the folklore of the Haida Indians of the Queen Charlotte Islands intrigue you?

Would you like a list of annual flowers best suited to this part of Canada?

Do you want a description of ornamental shrubs useful for planting around homes?

If one or more of these subjects interests you, the Canadian Government is eager to meet your needs.

Books and pamphlets on these subjects are among those published by the Queen's Printer.

Don't ask us what totem poles, Indian myths, annuals, ornamental shrubs and ducks have to do with good government.

And, above all, don't ask us to express an opinion about a government policy which authorizes the publication of books on such matters.

Some facts you ought to know:
Glove size: twist seven and eighty.
Necktie—always a bow.

Belt: thirty-two or four.
Seven and three-fourths, the hat.
Robe: not to sweep the floor;
I'll tell, before too late,

Loved ones remember that.

Shirts: I prefer them white;
Sixteen the collar size.
Socks: Lots one would list right;
None that will blind the eyes.

Everyone in Belleville, we are sure, will join the Intelligencer in regretting the resignation of the Rev. M. W. Maclean as minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. During his 30 years' residence in Belleville, Mr. Maclean has made many friends and no enemies. That he may enjoy the rest to which he is so well entitled will be the sincere wish of all who know him.

Ald. Lorne W. Marsh has announced that he will be a candidate for re-election at the coming municipal elections.

Members of the Masonic Order in this city will attend service in St. Thomas' Church on Sunday, December 27th, which is St. John's Day. The sermon will be delivered by the rector, the Rev. G. R. Beamish, M.A.

Mr. James H. Mills is spending a few days in Kingston.

Mr. Walter O'Flynn, of Madoc, was in town today.

Mr. J. F. Wills, barrister, has returned home after a visit to Paris, France.

From our file copy at this time in the year 1873: The members of the town council will occupy, during the winter, the new town hall at the next meeting of the council. They do not regret leaving the old hall which was most uncomfortable in cold weather. Also the following item on the same date: Tenders are being called for the construction of the new iron bridge across the Moira River at Bridge St.

Profitable Farming
(Port William Times-Journal)

A 200-acre farm, situated about 25 miles from the city of Toronto, was bought in 1946 for $12,000. Recently it was sold to an electronics firm for $110,000. That is just about twice as much as a liberty farm found selling on an oil well.

Tanks Saved Fine Horses

(Waterloom Times)

Any lover of horses would travel some distance for an opportunity to witness the Shrine circus being held in Detroit this week. One of the most interesting feature of this annual affair the performances of one of the famous Lippizan horses, trained in the equally-celebrated Spanish Riding School of Vienna. More than 100 gaits will be executed by the handsome white horse, Pasha, which is to be ridden by Gilly Feindl, a German equestrienne.

The Lippizans have a remarkable history which goes back to 1580 when the Archduke Karl Hapsburg of Austria founded a stud farm for the propagation of Arabian horses. Then were the Lippizans introduced in Europe with their long heads, deep chests and short, slimmed legs. At birth they were brown or brown-black, but between the ages of four and ten years they developed the fine white coats which have distinguished them. The stallions are trained at the Spanish Riding School, and became the favorites of emperors and kings, whose royal coaches they drew, and before whom they performed.

In the savagery of the last war however, there was an evil one planned for the beautiful animals by the Germans, who, in the preservation of the school and the herd, had taken over the Lipizzaners and foals were saved through the skill of the Austrian riding master Podhajsky, who, with the co-operation and today the school is again set up in the United States section of Austria, where Count Salm and St. Martin's castle offers the necessary space.

There are also instances of Lippizans being raised in this country since the army at Fort Reno, Oklahoma, offered a few for sale after the war. Other importations of sire mares and a stallion to his farm at Gainsville, Kansas, added to his pride he has today 23 young Lippizans, and as a matter of interest who knows how to school and care for them.

Oil Is Canada's Top Mineral

(Edmonton Journal)

Canadians have always thought of their country's mineral production chiefly in terms of such leading products as gold, nickel, copper, lead, zinc and aluminum, and of course the pulp and paper industry. This year, however, a comparatively new member of the Canadian mineral production is taking over the spotlight. When the records are all in for 1953, it will become apparent, it will be found that oil has become Canada's leading mineral product.

This is stimulating news for the people of Alberta, where most of the dominion's oil now is produced. Many Albertans have scarcely time to think of our province as a mineral producer, except as the site of the additional association of mining with metals, in the production of which Alberta has long played a part. But Alberta is clearly a leading place in the national mining picture.

This association of oil in the leadership long held by gold is disclosed in statistics just recently compiled by the Northern Miner, the authoritative Canadian mining journal, for its annual review issue. The predicted value for oil is $215,000,000, which would be a gain of fifty per cent over the 1952 figure and more than twenty-one times the 1946 value. The next most valuable mineral, according to the Northern Miner, is nearly $200 million with copper a close third, and gold, leader for forty years, in fourth place. The figures for gold are expected to be slightly more than $180,000,000.

Although the general trend of mineral production is definitely upward, the dominions total production of metals and non-metals is expected to be nearly $1,400,000,000, compared with $1,278,000,000 in 1952. The NM report will be nearly three times that of 1939 and six times that of 1913. During the last thirty years, the value of mineral production has been doubling itself every ten years. Continuation of growth would make it $1,600,000,000 by 1963.

It would not be surprising to see this mark attained, as a result of the oil and gas development, the very rapid expansion of nickel and copper mining, and the great new additions to our aluminum production and magnesium mining. Alberta may be confident, moreover, that oil will hold its leading place for some years to come.

Railway Love Story Traced

(Hamilton Spectator)

A very small boy of our acquaintance has said, and emphatically, what he wants for Christmas: A train and a diesel train. Some parents being indulgent, he will probably get them. The railroading fury form, for he is still at the age at which one does not quite comprehend that not all broken things can be made whole.

Thus there will soon be launched another of the myriad love affairs of small boys (and of not a few grown men) for the flanged wheel running on the steel rail.

It is desirable to forecast at least the early stages of this infatuation with some accuracy. In the beginning, anything that runs on rails will do for an inamorata; it won't matter if the cars are only four wheels under a poor travesty of a type of locomotive. One should have a dozen, nor if the colors of the cars clash with the boy's taste maker's nightmare, nor if the track is only a little circle not much larger than the train is in length in circumference. But that stage will soon pass; there will be a demand first for more trackage, then for more cars, then for more engines and more cars to be pulled by them. (In this period, the boy whose love affair is developing should be careful not to have a goose, l

The Greatest Faith Ever Known

By Fulton Oursler and April Oursler Armstrong
The Widow and The Slave Girl

CHAPTER 19.

There was no synagogue in this Gentile metropolis, but the few Hebrews in Philippi welcomed the four wayfarers into their own homes to preach. Over the years other travelers had brought garbled tales of the heroic new faith that was spreading since the death of Jesus. The Jews of Philippi were eager to get the truth from Paul and his cohorts.

They asked all the questions which Paul had answered those hundreds of times. Were there living witnesses who had seen and known Jesus Christ? Many! Who were they? Peter, the man of rock, who was still preaching and travelling and healing. Peter was just one of hundreds who had seen Him on earth. Had Paul ever seen Jesus? Oh, yes! Where? On the road to Damascus.

On the Sabbath day, having no synagogue in which to worship, a little band of Philippian Jews always marched together through the city gate and out into the country. There, by quiet, gladsome place on the bank of the Gangites River, a Sabbath prayer service was held by a group of ten men.

Paul preached to those women, long and earnestly. When he had finished, one of the women stepped forward and declared for all to hear that she had always worshipped God and now she knew that her heart had been opened by the Lord "to attend those things which were said by Paul."

The apostle called her to come near to him and questioned her.

"Daughter, your name?"

"My name is Lydia. I am a seller of purple cloth in the city."

"And from where do you come?"

"From Thyatira."

Paul's eyes gleamed with excitement. From Thyatira — a city notorious among the good Jews of the Empire! The large Hebrew colony of that city had corrupted the ancient faith of Abraham, with witchcraft and magical rites and four pagan practices.

Yet here was Lydia, the career woman from Thyatira, standing unabashed in the presence of Paul's burning holiness, his first convert on European soil.

At her request he baptized her with all her household; and then Lydia said:

"If you have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house, and abide there."

The four missionaries followed Lydia from the river bank, musing on the Providence that had brought this successful business woman into the vanguard of the faith. Her household, a retinue of servants and secretaries and clerks schooled in the intricacies of trade, trudged with them back toward the gates of Philippi.

Suddenly Paul halted, staring.

A slave girl stood near the city wall, hands pressed against the grimy old stone blocks, her head thrown back, eyes fixed on Paul as if she were seeing a vision.

"Turn away from her," someone urged the apostle. "She has a pythonical spirit! People believe she divines the future, tells their fortunes."

"For gain?"

"Oh, yes. Her owners send her out every day, and she comes home at night with a bag of coins."

As he studied her, Paul concluded that this slave girl was possessed of a demon. Some outside entity had burglarized her soul and seized authority over all her behavior. Here was magic, spiritualism for gain in the guitars, in the midst of ancient Philippi, a city proud of its learning and sophistication, its commerce and industry.

At the sight of Paul, a curious compulsion seized the slave girl. She screamed as if some unknown alien raging in her soul sent and recognized this man who had the power of exorcism, and could drive it forth as once Jesus Christ drove a legion of such spirits out of a possessed man into a herd of swine. Rigid against the wall, the girl cried out:

"A slave girl stood near the city wall, hands pressed against the grimy old stone blocks..."

"These men are the servants of the most high God, who preach unto you the way of salvation."

That first time, Paul walked resolutely past her in silence. But day after day, the same words were repeated; the slave girl near the city gate would stare and scream —and the words were always the same.

Paul was moved to pity. The girl was nearly torn apart with the anguish of inner struggle.

One morning after prayer, Paul could be silent no longer. He passed the girl by the wall, heard again that tormented voice:

"These men . . . the way of salvation . . ."

Paul wheeled on her, his eyes burning on her pale, distracted face, and spoke to the evil spirit which inhabited her:

"I command you, in the Name of Jesus Christ, to go out of her."

Instantly his order was obeyed. The insane look faded from the girl's wide eyes. The pallor in her cheeks fled before the honest flush of health and youth. With maidenly concern, she fussed with the confusion of her hair. A devil had been inside her, and was gone.

She turned to Paul with thanksgiving on her pale, distracted face, and spoke to the evil spirit which inhabited her;

Q.S.T. Club Installs New 1954 Officers

The annual meeting of the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club Ladies' Auxiliary was held Tuesday at the clubhouse.

Following the business meeting reports were read by the various officers. Mrs. F. C. Miller, retiring president, reviewed the activities of the year which have all been most successful and gratifying financially.

The objective at all times of this group has been to assist the Board of Directors materially, financially, socially and to promote and interest in the Tennis and Skating club. The number of active workers is not large but members of members have responded willingly to requests for assistance and donations for all functions.

The auxiliary thanks each one for her help which guaranteed each venture a success.

Much credit goes to senior members of the club for their time and interest. Many happy hours have been spent under the direction of Mrs. Blake Weese to further the art of figure skating. Senior members of the tennis club have done much to help the young player.

Mrs. Miller graciously thanked her executive and concluded with a summary and brief reading of the constitution.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

Mrs. W. Sherry was then called on to install the new slate of officers. She pointed out that they have the privilege of working for a large group of citizens since the membership extends to all parts of the city, rural and nearby towns and should ever be mindful of this responsibility in the conducting of office. Mrs. Sherry's remarks were instructive, encouraging and closed with a wish for a year of success.

The following were elected: Past president, Mrs. F. C. Miller; president, Mrs. J. T. Davis; 1st vice-president, Mrs. A. Wilkes; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. H. B. Weese; secretary, Mrs. R. O'Connor; treasurer, Mrs. G. Brearley; executive officers—Mrs. R. Smith, Mrs. E. Whitfield, Mrs. S. Summers.

Skating members of last year can enjoy free skating this Sunday at the arena but must renew their membership for the following week.

The annual bridge marathon will start early in January and a tea will be held in February.

Awards Made To Separate School Pupils

The annual Commencement Exercises followed the Parent Teacher Association meeting. They were conducted by Michael Rashotte. The entertainment part of the program consisted of choruses, readings, songs, a piano duet and a short play entitled "Midnight and Christmas Eve."

Very Reverend Dean L. B. Gauthier presented intermediate certificates to the pupils who graduated from Grade Ten at St. Michael's Academy last June.

Awards were then presented for the following:

Highest standing in the diocesan catechetical examinations.

Highest standing in each grade at St. Michael's Academy and Holy Rosary School.

Highest standing in home economics, shop work, commercial, and music.

Outstanding contribution to sports combined with good academic work.

The donors of the prizes were: Very Reverend Dean Garvin, the Catholic Women's League, the Knights of Columbus, the Parent Teacher Association, the Catholic Separate School Board, Mr. S. J. Black and Sons, Mr. R. Richards, Mr. J. R. Rashotte, Dr. F. R. Ross, Mr. K. J. Soden and Mr. J. J. Fraser.

Refreshments served by the parents of Sr. M. Thrasilla, Sr. M. Frances, Clare's and Mr. Ryan's class were enjoyed by the students and their parents.

Parent-Teacher Meeting Held

Mr. Robertson Collins presided at the monthly meeting of St. Michael's Holy Rosary and St. Joseph's Parent-Teacher Association Monday evening.

The recording secretary's report read by Miss K. Morrell was adopted. Correspondence read included letters of thanks from Mrs. Agnes McFee for the association's assistance in making the recent C.W.L. bazaar a success; from Jack Doran for remembrance during his illness, and from Miss M. J. Miley for a scholarship. Highlights from the minutes of a Archdiocesan P.T.A. meeting held in Kingston on November 22 were also read.

Mr. J. Colligan gave the treasurer's report.

Attendance plaques were awarded to the classes of Sr. M. Andrew, Sr. M. Rose, Sr. M. Helen Rita, Miss Kearns and Miss Murphy.

For Parents Only

Junior's Gifts

(By NANCY CLEAVER)

"Can I go shopping for the presents I'm giving this year?" Junior asks eagerly. Last Christmas Mother bought all his gifts. It was simpler and quicker for her that way, and she was fearful that he would get over-tired and catch a cold. But Junior was disappointed that she left him at home on Daddy's half-day. Mothers has been wondering about giving her child the opportunity to do Christmas shopping.

The crowded stores the week before Christmas are exhausting for adults, and even more tiring for children. If Junior is to be allowed to buy his presents, he should make out a list—and scored the First Christmas or creche. This impresses on him that the true meaning of Christmas is that it is the Christ Child's Birthday.

Mother soon discovers that if a child buys two or even three gifts on a shopping trip, he does well. A child hates to be hurried and if he is making a choice between two articles he must have time to decide. Mother may have to remind him that the stores are busy, and often it is wise not to ask for the service of a clerk until the gift has been selected.

In shopping, a child becomes more familiar with different coins but he also discovers that money is not elastic. If he uses a good deal of money on one gift he has less to spend on another. Perhaps he is not very experienced in counting. But the problems and errors show him the importance of knowing how to do simple sums at addition.

If at all possible, Mother should take time for a cup of tea or coffee for herself and a drink or fruit juice or milk and a cookie for Junior at a lunch counter before starting home. This gives them both a little rest from walking around and is a real treat for Junior.

A child can get a great deal of fun from a shopping expedition with a parent. He also acquires a good deal of knowledge. By watching mother be courteous to sales clerks, and patient with delays, he learns how to act in public. This indirect teaching by example is more effective than any polite orders such as "Say, 'Thank you!'" Mother can point out quietly, "We take our

A typical scene in the nurses' stations at the Belleville General Hospital is this crowded group of nurses attempting to do their routine work in the limited amount of space the undersized stations permit. K. E. Box, hospital administrator, describes the stations as being only one-quarter of the required size and he said the utility rooms were little larger than room closets. The nurses' stations will be provided in the new wing and the present ones will be re-located and made more spacious.

Nurses' Stations in Hallways Overcrowding Problem at B.G.H.

The overcrowding problem at the Belleville General Hospital not only reaches into every department but to the nurses' stations on each of the three floors. The stations are more or less headquarters for the ward where the nurses attached there operate from in the administration of nursing care and attention to the patients.

Kenneth E. Box, hospital administrator, said the stations at the present time are only about one-quarter the size they should be and the utility rooms are little larger than broom closets. In several instances the stations have been forced out into the corridors where the entire nursing station consists of a desk, chairs and chart holder.

Another inconvenience which hampers the stations in corridors are beds which, through necessity, have had to be set up in the hallways. Lack of examination rooms for patients and the inadequacy of linen closets are other problems facing the nursing and medical staffs.

The administrator said that in many cases the existing nurses' stations are not centrally located which has resulted in a great deal of extra work for nurses.

When the new wing has been built, new and larger stations will be provided. However, in the old section, there will be a re-location and expansion of the present stations.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

TONSILS

Medical men are getting more business-like these days. First indication of this came when the surgeon for our youngster's tonsilectomy handed us a mimeographed sheet of instructions for care of the child following the operation. The sheet consisted of eight points clearly and briefly stated. It took care of our worries and saved us from asking the doctor plenty of questions.

First point gave diet suggestions for the patient for a week after leaving the hospital. These were soft foods such as puddings, cooked cereal, eggs, ice cream, soup, fruit juices, milk. To be avoided were spices, salt, pepper, bread crusts, toast and cold, dry cereal, which smart the throat.

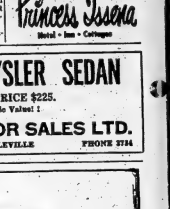
Mild laxatives if needed, such as milk of magnesia, cascara or cassweta, were suggested.

"Children often have pain in the ears following a tonsilectomy," according to this medical bulletin. "This is no cause for alarm as it is caused by the throat and is not an infection in the ears. It will clear up as the throat heals. When the child complains, give an aspirin tablet (ground up in applesauce or dissolved in water if small child) and apply hot water bottle to the ears.

PLENTY OF REST

"Children usually run an afternoon temperature for the first few days. Keep the child in the house for the first few days and be sure he has plenty of rest. If temperature should be very high, notify the doctor."

New to us, was the tip to buy some aspirin chiclets at the drug store. Children love gum and these are recommended for the first few days after the operation.



Everybody fears hemorrhage. Doctors say that occasionally a child will bleed in from five to eight days either from the nose or throat. If this happens, mothers are advised to keep the child quiet in bed. If the bleeding doesn't stop at once, the doctor should be summoned right away.

One week after the tonsil operation the child's throat should be checked by the doctor to ensure that the wound is healing satisfactorily.

MEN'S GIFTS

If you want a gift or presentation piece for a business man, get him a thermos desk set in brown and chromium. For a few cents extra, most stores will letter a personal note on the side of the jug in silver. Nobody seems to drink enough water for their needs. Best way to make sure we do, is to have water always handy.

Uncle Frontenac says it is always the mystery to him how the wiriest things can come out of the darkest places, like white shirts out of a Chinese laundry.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

CAN YOU "BE GOOD AND STILL HAVE FUN"?

A widow in her early thirties, who writes me that she has seven children, is "fairly intelligent" and "not bad-looking" rings up a pseudo-humorous oldie:

"Is it possible to be good and still have fun?"

The question, she goes on to say arose in the course of a conversation with a man friend who asked if she was "still being good." When she told him she was, he replied: "But not having any fun?"

Then the letter goes on to say:

"At the time, I thought, 'Well, it all depends on what you call fun.' But since then, I have been thinking this over and realizing that I have been having fun, but that it is children fun.

"I have joined a couple of groups, I put more time into caring for my children and my house, I read a lot, couldn't live without my car and television set, and go shopping in neighboring towns for grocries and such.

"Now and above all this, I am conscious of a lack of something in my life and as far as I can see, 'man' go on feeling this way indefinitely. To be honest, the lack I feel is male companionship, but all the males I know and meet have the same 'Be good and you won't have any fun' philosophy. They all seem to have a repelling look in their eyes as if they were sizing me up with the idea of seeing how far they could go. With me, it's absolutely nowhere, so that even I wonder if the way I live must consist-of 'being good, but not having any fun.'

"Fun to me is talking with a man who has much the same interests that I do, going places with him, and sharing the same activities, looking forward to seeing each other, joining together to fight your way out of difficulties, knowing that someone is there beside you to be a good companion under all circumstances.

"Remember the woman who wrote 'Love Alone and Like It'? She got married.

WHAT IS THE ANSWER?

"So—what is the answer to my question?

Here, obviously, is a woman who is hopelessly confusing her issues and using the same phrases to mean two or three different things.

From the way she describes her idea of what is fun to her, she is quite plainly talking about the companionship of being married to a loving and congenial person. When she says that she wonders if her life must be limited to "being good but not having any fun," she seems to mean something entirely different, because, unless she is married to the kind of person to whom she would like to be married, she certainly isn't going to have the kind of fun she describes.

Naturally, she is quite right in thinking that the lack she feels in her life is a lack of male companionship, for it is lack every young woman forever feels who has once been married and then is not married any longer. But this does not mean an end to all fun in life. By any means.

It all comes back to what this woman says in the very beginning that "it all depends on what you call fun." In other words, she was not right the first time.

Relatively young as she is, there is a good chance that a second marriage will come along in time, though I admit the number of men who would be prepared to take on the responsibility of seven children all at once is almost certainly limited. I say, even, I would advise her not immediately to start looking some fun into her life by broadening her interests, which now are definitely too limited, and enlarging her circle of acquaintances. While seven children certainly must get a woman down, she can still organize her life in such a way as to train the older children to help with the care of the young-er ones and free herself sufficiently so that she will have some time for reasonable activity outside her home. I suggest that, as a first step, she ally herself with some community organization definitely devoted to helping others, for there is no better way to fill a gap in one's own life than by putting time into it within a few days.

I would also bring a Christmas cake to a PTA meeting. . . hoping you will never stop writing. . .

Readers' Saturday Column

QUESTION:

Some weeks ago I wrote asking for . . . Sweden Rice. . . forgot to enclose stamped envelope and to thank you for your prompt reply to my first letter. . . your columns have been a great help . . . feel I am voicing opinion of all who read it . . . have you a recipe for Potato Cakes (fried in pan on top of stove). I never seem to cook them the way my mother did. . . best wishes.—Vera R.

ANSWER:

Very I have just received another letter from you, and want to apologize for not including the menus for 50 in the "Five Oaks" article on Thursday last. I'll get you those quantity recipes soon though.

POTATO CAKES

Two cups left over mashed potatoes, 1 large egg, 1 tablespoon butter (reduce butter by a few minutes until it is golden, then add 1-4 cup boiling water and boil until dry. Cover and steam over lowest possible heat for ten minutes. Now melt 2 1-2 tablespoons butter in another pan and add 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 2 tablespoons chopped pepper, 1-2 teaspoon sage, 1-2 teaspoon salt and saute them for about 3 or 4 minutes. Sprinkle over them 1 1-2 tablespoons flour, stir in, then add 1-3 cups thick tomato pulp and stir until thick. Boil gently 2 minutes. Pour over dry rice, puree and steam over low heat until sauce is of desired consistency—about ten minutes.

QUESTION:

Could you give a few recipes for macaroni. . . isn't there a special rice now to use as a vegetable?—Elizabeth M.

ANSWER:

It was very pleasant to hear from you again. Any rice may be used as a vegetable, but I think you refer to the very quick-cooking product. Please see the recipe above for Spanish Rice.

I am not sure what kind of macaroni dish you would like. Here is one that calls for cheese and meat. You mentioned combining macaroni and rice, however. Directions should be followed carefully. There is no danger in stopping the flow of moisture in the armpits; it will be recorded elsewhere.

Perspiration is increased by heat, muscular activities, warm garments, sluggish circulation and nervousness. Nervous women usually lose not only body moisture but sweat in the palms of the hands, which is most unpleasant. They need more fresh air and outdoor life and a good working philosophy that keeps them from worrying and falling into morbid moods.

There are a number of other matters to be kept in mind. Wool dresses and sweaters should be aired before being put away. Undies must be changed frequently, socks ings every day, and foot powder sprinkled into shoes.

As the scalp is likely to be moist when sweating is excessive, the hair should be shampooed weekly. Some shampoo mediums are contraindicated especially for oily hair.

Resorting to perfume is futile. The real cure for excessive perspiration is found in fastidious cleanliness. If you do hard work, then one should see a physician since there is always a possibility that some glandular disturbance may be the cause.

your column is a wonderful morale builder.—Mrs. M. H. F.

ANSWER:

We help one another. . . I received so many recipes for Queen Elizabeth cake. I had to put them in a separate filing basket. I could write reams of thanks for the people and Toronto earned. One big thank you will have to do. I'll not cut the cake . . . we cut ours the day after it was made. However it is wise to have it ice cold or it may crumble when it is so fresh.

EXCESSIVE PERSPIRATION

Excessive perspiration is a definite threat to popularity. No girl should endure this affliction as it can easily be overcome by hygienic habits.

The daily bath must not be a hop-into-the-tub-and-out-again matter. Exudations from the sweat glands cling to dead skin scales and these wastes must be thoroughly removed. The only way to do this is to give the entire skin surface a rousing scrubbing with a well-soaped brush. Before doing that one should rest in the warm water for at least five minutes to soften the epidermal coat. After the thorough going-over there should be an alternating hot and cold shower and a brisk rub down.

An anti-perspirant or deodorant should be used when the flesh is warm and moist. Have the bath in the morning, if you are worried about this matter, and apply the deterrent at bedtime.

These preparations come in various forms—creams, liquids and powders. Directions should be followed carefully. There is no danger in stopping the flow of moisture in the armpits; it will be recorded elsewhere.

Perspiration is increased by heat, muscular activities, warm garments, sluggish circulation and nervousness. Nervous women usually lose not only body moisture but sweat in the palms of the hands, which is most unpleasant. They need more fresh air and outdoor life and a good working philosophy that keeps them from worrying and falling into morbid moods.

There are a number of other matters to be kept in mind. Wool dresses and sweaters should be aired before being put away. Undies must be changed frequently, socks ings every day, and foot powder sprinkled into shoes.

As the scalp is likely to be moist when sweating is excessive, the hair should be shampooed weekly. Some shampoo mediums are contraindicated especially for oily hair.

Resorting to perfume is futile. The real cure for excessive perspiration is found in fastidious cleanliness. If you do hard work, then one should see a physician since there is always a possibility that some glandular disturbance may be the cause.

FORMAL NAMES ON CHRISTMAS CARDS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I understand what you mean by writing the informal names (Mary and John, or John and Mary, if Mary signs the cards) following the message on Christmas cards. But when can one ever use "Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown" on Christmas cards?

D.

There are two correct ways to use the formal name on Christmas cards:

1. With a formal third-person message, written, printed, or engraved. Like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

(In this case the name is not a signature to the message.)

2. When there is no printed or engraved message on the inside page of a folded Christmas card, the formal name may correctly be imprinted on the outside. Like this:

Mrs. Charles Brown. (Doctors and other professional people sometimes use this formal form.)

AFTER AN ELOPEMENT, WHAT ABOUT RECEPTION, SHOWERS, PRESENTS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When the bride and groom return after they have eloped, is it correct for the parents of the bride to give a sort of wedding reception? And is it correct for friends to give a shower?

2. Does a marriage announcement (if the marriage was an elopement) call for a gift? Or do those who wish to send to the couple send them whether or not there is the customary wedding and reception?

J.K.

1. If the brides parents wish to give a post-elopement party of an informal kind, this is quite proper. And although it might be considered more or less permissible for friends to give a shower, it really isn't in very good taste. The point is that when the couple decide to follow the unconventional procedure of eloping, they shouldn't expect the parties and presents they would have had if they had followed conventional wedding plans.

2. Even if formal announcements of the marriage are sent, after an elopement, the couple should not expect many wedding presents. Relatives may send gifts, close friends may send gifts . . . but generally the gifts are very few compared to the number that probably would have been sent if wedding invitations had been issued.

NO TIME LIMIT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How soon after a funeral should the Thank-you Cards be mailed? I mailed the Thank-you cards a week after my sister's funeral. Since then I have heard that the proper time is two weeks.

P.

There is no stated time in which to send these Thank-you notes. It was very courteous and thoughtful of you to send them so promptly as one week after the funeral . . . I am sure your relatives and friends appreciated your good thought. (There's a basis at all for the idea that two weeks is the proper time.)

Fashion Flashes

As icy look that is warm is the pleasing paradox presented by a set of white capeskin, a tucked helmet that words into a twisted peak that is encircled with rings of rhinestones and pearls.

As always, there's a wealth of white in resort clothes. White fleecer, with pipings of white satin, makes a handsome sheath dress that is worn with a novelty pop-corn-stitch wool sweater jacket that boasts a white satin collar and white, satin-covered buttons.

Appearing everywhere in smart resort collections, and a surefire thing for Spring, is the fox-trimmed wool coat. Very pale loose nub woolen, in palest pink, is used for an interesting coat made with a collar that opens wide at the neck, spans the shoulder line and curves into a fly-front closing. Enormous muff cuffs of white fox finish the bracelet-length sleeves.

Brightly youthful nicely describes a sheared raccoon jacket lined with brown taffeta with chenille embroidered yellow poodles dotted here and there. Identical poodles cavort on the skirt-tail flap of a matching brown taffeta umbrella, the fabric especially treated.

Colorful dresses mark the holiday season. Grenadine-and-silk taffeta has been deftly worked into a handsome dinner dress, the bodice with a V neckline, fore and aft, that widens to the shoulder tips where there are two Victorian puffs forming a sleeve. The folds of the full skirt are drawn to the waistline in back and finished with a brief but full bow.

Archbishop Officially Opens Six-Room St. Joseph's School

His Grace, Reverend J. A. Sullivan, Archbishop of Kingston, officially opened the six-room St. Joseph's elementary school on Bridge Street East Friday afternoon while members of the clergy, municipal, provincial and federal government officials, and upwards of 300 parents and children looked on.

His Grace also announced the formation of a new Catholic parish in Belleville's east end to be known as St. Joseph's. It will include Point Anne as a mission. Rev. John Buckley, assistant at St. Michael's Church here was named pastor of the new parish. He will set about the organization of St. Joseph's parish at once.

While the ultra modern school was officially dedicated yesterday afternoon, four class rooms have been in operation since the opening of school in September. It is the second Catholic school built in Belleville in four years.

The one-story structure, ultra modern in every respect, includes six classrooms, a teachers' room and a kitchen. Two of the class rooms are separated by a folding partition, which can be withdrawn to make a spacious auditorium.

RECESSED LIGHTING

Combination sky-lighting and fluorescent lighting, with the latter recessed windows provide excellent illumination in all classrooms. Acoustic tile on the ceilings deadens all noise of movement.

Greetings from the municipality were brought by the city of Belleville, the public and high school area boards, the separate school area boards, the latter on behalf of the Dominion, were extended to the Separate School Board and to the pupils and children of the area served by the new school.

Reeve of Thurlow township, Fred Mitchell, assured the school board of the co-operation of the township in the future as it has been forthcoming in the past.

Aldermen Aaron Duffy, representing His Worship A. McLean Ewing, said the city fathers appreciated the planning, hard work and sacrifice that had gone into the building of the school.

EXPRESSES THANKS.

"Our most important assets are the children," said Chairman Duffy. He expressed Mayor Haig's thanks to the property owners in the area for their support during his two years as mayor of Belleville.

L. A. Kelly, inspector of public schools and administrator of the Belleville and Hastings County Separate School Board, stated that he was impressed by the building. He congratulated the Separate School Board for the work stating the Public School Board appreciated the problems involved because it had been faced with the same thing in recent years.

Clifford Barber, chairman of the High School Area Board congratulated all those who were responsible for the erection of the new school.

Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A., Hastings West, stated that the school problems of one facing citizens all across Ontario as the province grows at the rate of more than 10,000 persons per month. He congratulated the trustees for erecting "such a beautiful building in a lovely section of the town."

Mr. Roscoe Robson, M.L.A., Hastings East, congratulated the foresight of the Board in erecting a school not only to meet present requirements but to accommodate anticipated increases.

He spoke to students to study, and expressed the hope that the children using the school realized the efforts of the Board in erecting it.

MEMBER BRINGS GREETINGS.

Frank Follwell, MP, for Hastings East brought greetings from the Prime Minister and the federal government to His Grace, Archbishop Sullivan, to the parents and to the boys and girls.

He expressed the hope that the graduates of the school would supervise in their spare time, and become outstanding citizens in a Canada "that is on the threshold of outstanding greatness and development".

C. F. Matthews, Kingston, Separate School Inspector, spoke briefly stating that he hoped that the beauty and utility of St. Joseph's school would be combined without the exclusion of the other.

In speaking of the staff he said, the "ideals and methods they have learned will be combined with new enthusiasm in their new environment. The fundamentals of reading, year writer, arithmetic, plus instruction in the Christian virtues will continue to be taught at St. Joseph's," he said.

Mr. Matthews then introduced Mr. J. C. Walsh, B.A., B. Paed., assistant inspector of Separate Elementary Education, Province of Ontario, a native of Hastings County, whom he described as "the first Separate School man in the inner sanctum of the Department of Education."

SCHOOL FOR 180 YEARS

Mr. Walsh, in noting that Belleville has had a separate school for more than 100 years, said that school accommodation had always been satisfied by St. Michael's Academy. He noted the growth of the separate school system here, stating that the growth of the city and annexation had made necessary the building of Holy Rosary School on College Street and then a subsequent addition to that addition.

"It is significant, I think," said Mr. Walsh, "that St. Joseph's, and its neighbor, Queen Elizabeth School, and our homes in this new section of Belleville should have replaced the County of Hastings Home for the Aged.

"It is significant that the older generation is being displaced by the younger. What is happening here is happening all over Ontario," he said, in noting that the elementary school population in the province had grown by 42,000 in 1953 over 1952.

He commended all those responsible for the erection of the school and said "that bricks and mortar do not make a school.

"The Department of Education knows the staff here and congratulates the teachers," he said.

He paid special tribute to Sister Mary Lenore, principal of St. Michael's School, who, he said, "is well known for her capable work and planning for the welfare of teachers in Ontario as well as for education."

SISTER IS PRINCIPAL

Sister Mary Lenore, "who is past president of the Toronto Separate Teachers' Federation, is the newly elected third vice-president of the Ontario Teachers' Federation.

In making criticism of the Department of Education and School Board, Mr. Walsh said that "everybody wants to know how schools should be run because everybody has been themselves for a few years. But improvements which are tried are criticized," he said, "but many critics don't know what they are talking about. The Department always welcomes constructive criticism.

"One feels confident that the schools are in safe hands," he concluded in urging everyone to co-operate with their school boards.

Very Reverend Dean L. P. Richard, St. Michael's parish, welcomed Archbishop O'Sullivan on behalf of the Catholic population, and asked His Grace to convey to Pope Pius the prayers of the school children and congregations in Belleville at the beginning of the new Marian Year.

REVIEWS GROWTH

Mr. T. J. Fluery, acting-chairman of the Separate School Board, was chairman of the meeting. He reviewed the growth of the Separate School system in Belleville and the many of the difficulties which the board faced in providing the class room facilities; from 12 rooms in St. Michael's Academy to the present additional accommodation of two six-room schools.

Members of the clergy present for the opening ceremonies were: in addition to His Grace, Archbishop O'Sullivan; Very Reverend Dean Garvin, St. Michael's, Belleville; Rev. Michael Simaco, pastor of Queen of the Holy Rosary Church, Belleville; Rev Cletus Fitzpatrick Queen of the Holy Rosary Church; Rev. Francis Hyland, Madoc; Rev. Walter Lynott, Archbishop's secretary, Kingston; Rev. Robert Fluery, Kingston, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Fluery, 19 Pine Street.

English Farmers Use TV 'Radar' To Spot Thieves

NOTTINGHAM, Eng. (Reuters) Farmers near here are using television as a weapon against motor-driven gangs of Christmas poultry raiders.

The farmers employ TV like radar. After the programs finish at about 10:30 p.m., they leave their sets on and adjust them so that screens are completely black and white and concentrate on the area coming within range is detected by a flash on the screen.

Then the farmers grab on their shotguns and set out to repulse the turkey thieves.

WINS COURT JUDGMENT

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—J. Walter Cootee, who claimed he suffered from ulcers after a truck ran into the side of his barber shop, won a $3,500 court judgment Friday. Cootee, 37, said he was cut and bruised when the truck rammed into the building and that anxiety and nervousness resulting from the accident last December brought on ulcers.

Text of Address By Archbishop At Dedication

The following is the text of the address delivered by His Grace, J. A. O'Sullivan, Archbishop of Kingston, at the official opening and dedication of the new St. Joseph's School on Bridge Street East Friday afternoon.

Mr. Chairman and Friends:

Because schools reflect the character of the home which form the community or city they serve and at the same time have an influence for good on the whole of society and God's temple about them, it is customary to dedicate or bless every school to the aid of the Royal Psalmist who said: "Unless the Lord build the house, they labor in vain who build it, unless the Lord guard the city, the labor in vain who guard it." (Ps. 126).

Before all else we are anxious that the teachers have more than a government certificate that they have the necessary knowledge and pedagogical qualifications; they may have some heavenly wisdom in dealing with the manifold problems which children of all types constantly present and that they approach their tasks with unfailing reverence for the different souls committed to their care, each of whom they see the image of God reflected.

For the pupils we ask God to give them a love for learning, young minds so they can grasp the lessons which are daily presented to them and build a love for learning and a desire for new knowledge as they grow older; at the same time to strengthen and develop their characters in the right conduct, guiding them to put the results of their education to good use in after years. And all praise that God may be honored in all things and that Christ's kingdom may be worthy citizens of this great country and may merit finally the love of heaven when this life is over for them.

This seems to summarize what education means for us and for the Christian child. It explains why Catholic parents have such great responsibility in the education of their children and why we are willing to accept heavy financial burdens in building on our separate system of public education.

Our schools under government, financial supervision undertake to follow the curriculum which the Department considers necessary for the proper education of children and youth in this enlightened age of scientific progress. They strive to develop future citizens who will be thoroughly patriotic, honest, sober, industrious and co-operate with all fellow citizens in the common good, but the religious instruction given them, we trust that they will not forget their higher destiny as God's true servants and children of Christian parents.

We cherish our schools as our greatest responsibility for the welfare of our children and we are grateful to the forefathers of our ancestors who fought strenuously to obtain the freedom of education written into the laws of our province. We are grateful to our present Provincial government for putting no road-blocks in the way of our progress and for the sympathetic support we receive in our educational work from the vast majority of citizens in this province.

Without co-operation and sacrifices on the part of many, we would have great difficulty in managing our schools. First of all I wish to pay tribute to the Religious Sisters who mainly staff our elementary schools. In spite of grants and government grants, it would be almost impossible for School Boards to carry on, without enormous deficits, without the help of these Sisters. They bear a great portion of the financial burden and this fact is largely responsible for saving citizens untold sums for their own people.

The Sisters teach for small salaries because they have taken vows to be poor women, simply in order that others may gain from their poverty. They also take a vow of obedience and at the command of their superiors they teach in this school or that, without personal choice, according to the greatest needs of others. And because they look upon the school as an extension of the home, they take another vow, sacrificing the natural maternal instincts of womanhood as they may take the place of parents in teaching the children of many homes and be spiritual mothers to the ever-changing classroom of pupils, year after year, with heroic constancy and little thanks. I hope the people of Belleville realize how much they owe to the Sisters of Providence who conduct the Catholic schools here with such splendid efficiency.

It is fitting we have a public opportunity to pay tribute to our Lay Teachers, too, who likewise serve our gratitude and appreciation. They also serve constantly without any recompense except the joy of doing good for others. No school board in this diocese has done better work than the Belleville Separate School Board. Under their jurisdiction, a fully-rounded system of elementary education has been organized and schools are erected in vital places to supply for the needs of this rapidly-growing community.

It is a perplexing problem which faces all school boards at the present time, the question of how to locate schools in new suburbs. For Separate School Boards the problem is more complicated on account of our limited resources. To handle this problem, our parish have to subsidize in less fortunate years, in order to carry on, without enormous deficits, without the help of these Sisters. They bear a great portion of the financial burden and this fact is largely responsible for saving citizens untold sums for their own people.

Inspirational Book By Archer Wallace

I Believe In People, by Archer Wallace (The Ryerson Press) price $2.00—Once again Rev. Archer Wallace has put forth a book of genuine but simple inspiration in his latest entitled "I Believe In People." It is a collection of heart-warming and philosophical stories and sermons.

Mr. Wallace, who has been described as "the great Canadian preacher," needs no praise for distinguished, courage, to those who are afraid and general all-round enjoyment of those who wish fi spend a quiet evening with a good book.

The author more than a little looking at the world through rose colored spectacles but his deep and clear average insight into people's hearts, minds and emotions, Archer Wallace has been a successful and quote a good deed for every wrong one perpetrated.

He is able to look over and around the base instincts of hate, jealousy and revenge to all people to fine one, who placed in the same position of he who sought revenge, and discover a person who could overlook a personal wrong and turn his other cheek, as the expression goes.

Archer Wallace's book, "I Believe In People", will offer more to the reader than an evening's enjoyment. It is recommended reading for those in search of Divine guidance for themselves. There should be more authors and books of this calibre to-day and today.

Mr. Wallace one of the outstanding preachers of Canada is well known in Belleville where he has frequently been guest speaker at Bridge Street United Church.

It has been erected on a hillside overlooking the cearred main road north of Seoul. Built by Canadian army engineers, the new centre will be under the command of Capt. W. E. Manley of Ottawa and Toronto.

Issue Revived In Broadcast

LONDON (CP)—British authorities still are divided on whether horses are being bled to death to provide meat for dogs, a BBC broadcast revealed Friday.

The issue was revived in a BBC broadcast, "Horses Don't Talk." An Irish horse dealer, later identified as J. C. Brady of Tara, County Meath, claimed that the horses were killed by a new device better known as the electric pump.

Brady said this happened at a Belgian slaughterhouse.

In a statement Nov. 30, the British Veterinary Association Association said the charges made by Brady were justified. It said the electric pump is also being used secretly in the Midlands and North of England.

The Daily Telegraph, on the other hand, quoted a veterinary surgeon as saying he was "quite certain" no such cruelty took place in Britain. Even if the pump were used, the veterinary said, the animal would remain alive and unconscious only a few seconds.

The pump question came to the forefront in November, 1952, after a series of articles on horse-slaughtering written by the Manchester Guardian by Patrick Kealhofer, Belgian-born young newspaper man here on an exchange plan.

REEVE ELECTED AGAIN

HAMILTON (CP) — Burton E. Corman Friday was re-elected reeve of suburban Saltfleet township. He defeated Rena Gilliam by 935 votes, polling 1,289 in a light turnout of voters. "I've lost track of the number of years I've been reeve," Mr. Corman said. "But I've been on council 21 years."

Five Residents of Belleville Are Honored at Indiana Banquet

EVANSVILLE, Indiana (Special)—Five employees of Mead Johnson and Company of Canada were guests of honor at a dinner given at Evansville, Indiana, in the United States on Wednesday. The banquet was given in recognition of the service of employees who had been with the company for 25 years or more. A total of 122 employees from the company's plants located at Zealand, Michigan; Evansville, Indiana and Belleville attended the dinner.

Following an address by the company's president, L. D. Johnson, Sr., each employee was given an engraved gold watch.

In recalling highlights of the company's history, Mr. Johnson paid tribute to his father, Edward Mead Johnson, founder of the firm, and indicated that his vision, high principles, and foresight in the company's difficult formative years were responsible for the solid foundation on which it is built.

Mr. Johnson expressed his personal pride in the "team spirit of employees" which he said had accounted for the outstanding growth of the organization and the respect it enjoys. He indicated deep appreciation for what he described as the efforts of employees to perform "unstintingly and with good cheer." To these qualities he attributed the progress and success that has marked the company's growth.

Those receiving the dinner-gift from Belleville were: Mr. E. P. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Peter R. B. Wickerson, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Trice, Sr., Mr. R. G. Wickerson, and Miss E. Irene Boyle.

Federal Welfare Payments In Hastings South $2,817,600

Federal government welfare payments totalling $2,817,600 are expected each year in the riding of Hastings South according to figures prepared by the Department of National Health and Welfare. A summary of federal government grants was prepared, with the cooperation of Frank Follwell M.P. for Hastings South at the request of the Ontario Intelligencer.

The Department, in issuing the figures, stated that "these figures are only estimates, as it is impossible to give accurate figures for each riding or each municipality."

VETERANS CARE AID NOW

The Department of Veterans Affairs, in a letter to the Ontario Intelligencer, stated that they "do not" have a breakdown for payments for the City of Belleville or they have only total payments for large areas which might even stretch from one province to another."

Their figures however, showed that, according to the 1951 census, there were 2,472 veterans in Belleville, of whom 2,132 were Canadian veterans; 151 veterans other than Canadian; 30 who have served in the Canadian forces and some other forces, and 160 not stating what force they were in.

In the town of Trenton there was a total of 1,394 veterans; 1,262 Canadian veterans, 79 veterans other than Canadian, 13 who served in the Canadian Forces and some other forces, and 40 not stating what forces they were in.

Athabaskan Home After Third Tour In Korean Waters

VICTORIA (CP) — The sleek, proud Royal Canadian Navy destroyer Athabaskan, veteran of three tours of Korean waters, slid into her berth at Esquimalt Friday.

She is the first Canadian ship to complete three Korean tours.

Her crew was met at the Athabaskan, loaded with Christmas packages, mail and toys.

It was the first rain the 200 officers and men had seen since leaving Japan, Nov. 17. One officer commented:

"It's good to be back in Korea. The weather's better."

Blind persons and friends swarmed aboard to greet the sailors who had been away from home 14 months.

Hunter Claims He Shot Horned Jack Rabbit

TRENTON (Special) — The Canadian district in Prince Edward County south of here is widely known as a locale for giant jack rabbits. One of the residents tells a story about a "jack" with ears so big that it slept on one and used the other as a blanket. Seriously there have been some huge rabbits killed in the flat country 12 miles to the south.

Now a young game hunter and amateur taxidermist named J. D. Tice of Trenton, claims he recently shot a horned jack rabbit. The mounted headpiece of a very large hare bears three inch horns the shape and size of your little finger. They appear to have grown out of the skull back of the animal's long floppy ears.

Mr. Condette, of south Dafferin Avenue, a taxidermist of 20 years' experience, examined Mr. Tice's headpiece and shook his head. "I don't believe a rabbit can grow horns," he said. "If this is a freak then it is worth lots of money." The elderly man who prepared skins of animals as a business until recently would like to get permission to examine the horned head thoroughly.

Husky Pup Makes 2,000-Mile Trip by Rail

TRENTON (Special) — A cute roly-poly husky pup by the name of Rex arrived here on Thursday after a 2,000 mile ride by rail from Churchill on Hudson Bay. A wooden box, a little larger than a canned milk carton served as home for the baby sleigh dog during the five-day trip.

Pte. Fred Genereaux, with the Royal 22nd Regiment in the far north, addressed the box to his mother, Mrs. F. Genereaux, living on Dundas St. West, near Lorne Avenue. He wrote her a letter telling how he was sending the pup. Oddly enough the letter and the box reached Mrs. Genereaux on the same day.

The covering letter attached to the box read: "Fort Churchill, Dec. 6, 1953. To whom it may concern: Would you kindly take care of this little dog for me. He has to go all the way to Trenton, Ontario, which is about 2,000 miles from here. He is only two months old. His name is "Rex". There is dog food in the box. If you would give him water and feed him it would be greatly appreciated. Thank you. F. Genereaux, W 22 Regt."

The husky appears to be liking its new surroundings. The sender informed his mother not to be afraid to leave the pup outside to sleep in the snow. There is no snow in Trenton so Rex has to be satisfied for the time being with a bed in an unheated building.

National Hockey League Discovers That Its Referees Have Midas Touch

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

...UPPER AND LOWER!

The Memos took a flyger grip on the bars of the group dungeon in Kingston last night when they bowed to the rejuvenated Goodyears by a 9-6 count. Meanwhile up in Petes erbor ough the Peles wrecked vengeance on the Oshawa Truckmen and handed the group leaders their fourth successive defeat by a 7-5 count. Kingston is now breathing hot hard down the Truckmen's exhaust pipes with 16 points, two in arrears of the faltering leaders. Meanwhile the Peles picked up a couple of much-needed points that hoisted them into a third-place tie with the Orillia Pontiacs and three points in advance of the Memos.

The Dorsn crew has its backs to the wall tonight when the Pontiacs are their guests and must come up with a win if they want to stay within striking distance of that fourth slot. Kingston can step into a top-slot tie with the Truckmen tonight if they can decision the Dickens crew in Bowmanville. Should be a tidy fray.

With both Vern Goyer and Bob Taylor missing the Memos did not have their defensive strength last night in Boddenville. They started off like a house afire, scoring twice in the early minutes of the first heat, but the inspired Goodies rallied and shelled by a new face or two were not to be denied and went on to win.

It's probably wishful thinking but the Memos can pull out of that dungeon spot if they can take the Pontiac to-night and go and defeat the Petes in Peterborough on Monday evening. H-mmm, I dunno. The defence is definitely weakened by the loss of Goyer and Taylor, and observers at last night's game state that therein lay most of the story of defeat.

BASKETBALL!

The Belleville District Basketball League gets away to a start on Monday, December 14, when the official schedule starts with the Belleville Crawford (nee Meirax) tangling with the Kiltie Kiltie's crew in Belleville. On Wednesday next the Crawfords play their second tilt with the Trenton team, also on the latter's home grounds.

The league, it says here, is comprised of five teams, with Picton and Trenton RCAF playing rounding out the quintet. The schedule will be published sometime later.

THE GIRLS PLAY, TOO!

Switching to the distaff side of basketball, Betty Alcorn of Northern Electric, has rounded out a team composed of Northern Electric and city business gals, which is anxious to get into district competition with teams of its own calibre. The Trenton RCAF Women's Division has a team lined up and will, in all probability, enter the proposed loop. The other night Betty's team and the W.D.'s hooked up in an exhibition game, with the result being a 42-all tie. Teams from possibly Picton, Napanee, Wellington and Trenton town, are requested to get in touch with this department or Miss Alcorn (2438) with a view to organizing the ladies' league.

BUT CAN IT!

Notwithstanding the fact that the loop-leading Oshawa Truckmen have been defeated four times, it remained for the Belleville Memos to adopt the role of "giant-killer." The Memos and Peles were the first teams to stop the unbeaten Truckmen after they had acquired an early-season unbeaten string of five games.

Tonight the Dorsn "Jacks" will have to step back into character with the Orillia Pontiacs, playing the part of the 'Giant' in this hockey beanstalk drama.

The potent Pontiacs, the only team in the group that can toss three goal-keepers in action without breaking the rules are here for their second visit of the present encounter, and you can bet that Dorsn's battle the Councillorship Cutlers will be out to extend their undefeated record to six games. Playing Coach Vic Grigg, or is it Gregg, has perfected a hitty-bar-the-door defence that would have been the envy of the old Ottawa Senators in their palmiest days.

On their last appearance here when the Pontiac made our side kowtow to the tune of an 8-3 shellacking, Grigg experimented with the three-man doorstop defence. It paid off. It seemed when the Memos' attackers raced in the defence backed up so far, both players flanked the goalie in an effective closed-door stance.

From that game on, and that was seven title ago, the Pontiacs have said "uncle" but once, knocking off the opposition six times, five of them in a row.

The Memos stopped the Truckmen at five straight. Tonight's battle will prove whether hockey history can repeat itself. The teams have clashed twice before and each time the Orillians have emerged victorious. Should be a honey of a hockey scrap. Game at 8.30.

'Thar's Gold in Them Heels' Mass Misconduct Madness Means Much Moola to Moguls

By Ed Simon
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The way things are going, the National Hockey League can stop worrying about its dwindling attendance figures. It threatens to become the first self-supporting professional hockey league in history.

League officials have discovered the answer to their financial woes in the minor misconduct penalty, a device which permits them to chase all the players to their dressing rooms and collect a $25 entry fee from them as they file through the door.

Referee Frank Udvari introduced the sure-fire money-maker in Toronto Wednesday night when he broke up a free-for-all between the Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens and tagged everyone with misconduct penalties, which carry an automatic $25 fine.

League officials reviewed the sentence Thursday and reluctantly decided to let the eight players who were permitted to remain on the ice and those who were riveted a minor penalty at the time of the outbreak.

Even so, the league was enriched by $375 and was able to make it an even $400 when Chicago goalie Al Rollins was nicked for $25 for mauling assistant referee Jack Mahachcher as the Hawks dropped a 5-3 decision to Montreal the following night.

WEEK-END GAMES

It remains to be seen whether the players or the customers will pay the freight. The NHL's next big round of week-end activities, but the schedule promises a few attractions that are likely to keep the fans interested.

Detroit Red Wings, served by the news that the Red Wings haven't won a game in Detroit in four, can be expected to turn up either for Boston Bruins' Saturday night or Montreal's appearance Sunday.

Toronto fans will get a chance to celebrate Conn Smythe's 56th birthday as the Leafs entertain Chicago Saturday night. At the same time they can check on goalie Harry Lumley's progress as he leads the pack in pursuit of the Vezina Trophy.

New York Rangers will be in Montreal Saturday, trying for their first victory at the Forum since February, 1950. Sunday they play host to Toronto Maple Leafs in the last-place Hawks.

Remember When

By The Canadian Press

Freddy Fox, one bf England great jockeys, was killed in an automobile accident in England eight years ago today. Fox had retired in 1936 after a 30-year career in the saddle, during which he twice won the Derby and for two years was first-string jockey for King George V.

MONTREAL (CP) — National Hockey League officials came wearily out of a long huddle Friday and announced they have established three new fines in connection with the Wednesday game between Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs—the game that was almost blown to smithereens late in the last period.

There were 36 penalties in all—a record. There were 18 penalties to each club. Research showed the previous high in total penalties was 35—all minors in a game Nov. 12, 1951, with New York Rangers in Montreal.

The Leafs had nine minor penalties, two majors and seven misconduct penalties.

Canadiens had eight minors, two majors and eight misconduct penalties.

Total penalties in minutes were 294, another record. Previous high was 282 Oct. 28, 1952, when Leafs played at Detroit, and the total was 76 minutes. In that game there were 25 penalties—19 minors, four majors, one misconduct and one game misconduct.

NHL $375 RICHER

Canadiens amassed 106 penalty-minutes and Leafs 96.

The 13 misconduct penalties, at an automatic fine of $25 against each man, means the NHL will collect $375.

It took a lot of telephoning and telegraphing before referee-in-chief Carl Voss decided he had the records straight. He talked with referee Frank Udvari and other officials connected with the game. At the end president Clarence Campbell of the NHL said he was satisfied Voss had correctly analyzed the whole business. There was no further statement from Campbell.

The official now shows these players received misconduct penalties: Including George Armstrong and Eddie Mazur who got the heave-ho on minor and misconduct counts before the melee broke out:

Montreal—Maurice Richard, Geoffrion, Dick Gamble, Maurice Richard, Calum MacKay, Paul Meger, Tom Johnson, Ken Reardon.

Toronto—George Armstrong, Leo Boivin, Ted Kennedy, Ron Stewart, Sid Smith, Harry Watson, Danny Lewicki.

St. Mikes Defeat Barrie for 8th Victory in Row

By The Canadian Press

Mixing studies and hockey doesn't seem to bother Toronto St. Michael's College Majors.

The only school team in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, the Collegians are also the most improved of any team since the season started.

Raised as the team to beat in pre-season predictions, the Majors got off to a slow start and at one time were sitting second from the bottom in the nine-team loop.

Today they are riding an eight-game winning streak and are two points behind the league-leading St. Catharines Tee Pees. They chalked up their eighth in a row Friday night with a 5-1 victory over Barrie Flyers in the first game of a Toronto doubleheader. In the second game Toronto Marlboros, led by rookies, shaved seven behind a three-goal deficit to take a 4-3 victory over Galt Black Hawks.

Hamilton Tigers edged out Guelph Biltmores 4-3 in Guelph during the other league game.

BROTHER ACT

Les and Dick Duff racked up seven points between them for St Mike's goals, with three goals and assisted on another and Les notched up two assists and a goal. Defenceman Noel Price netted the other Toronto tally. Jim Robertson broke Ron Dodds' shutout.

Galt led 3-0 going into the final session. But Marlboros, paced by rookies Mike Nykoluk, who scored two goals, and Al Larose, who got one that won it, roared back with four markers in five minutes to steal the victory. Walter Maxwell scored the other Marlboro goal.

Pete Kowalchuk, Ed Sleaver and Ron Halstead shared the Galt goals.

Bill Stewart scored a goal a period for Hamilton. Ted Reid notched the other marker for the Tigers. Bill Gadsby, Paul Midgley and Bob Attersley were the Guelph marksmen.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen are expected to be back at full strength when they meet the Black Hawks in Galt tonight, Quebec Citadelles are at Marlboros and Guelph at St. Michael's in a doubleheader at Toronto Sunday.

ACCIDENT FATAL

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Gertrude McNab, about 60, died in hospital Thursday night of injuries received earlier when struck by a car at a downtown intersection.

Detroit Lions Worried Over Giants Game

NEW YORK (CP)—The U.S. pro football schedule ends Sunday and Detroit Lions, attempting to clinch the western conference title, are worried over their winding game with New York Giants at the Polo Grounds here.

A victory or a tie will clinch a spot for the Lions in the National Football League's title game with Cleveland Browns, and Detroit coaches and players alike have been working grimly all week.

It is not though they are preparing to play the mighty Browns, undefeated eastern conference champions, instead of the lowly Giants.

New York has a 3-8 record and was crushed 62-14 by the Browns last Sunday. But Detroit players have been told to pay no attention to these past records.

If the Lions beat or tie the Giants—and they're favored by 11 points—the NFL title game will be played in Detroit's Briggs Stadium Sunday, Dec. 27.

Cleveland will be attempting to make it a perfect season in a game at Philadelphia on Sunday. One Saturday night game is scheduled, Green Bay at Los Angeles, and other Sunday games are Pittsburgh at Washington and Chicago Cardinals at Chicago Bears.

Clarkson Trims Golden Gaels

POTSDAM, N.Y. (AP)—Clarkson trounced Queen's University of Kingston 78-50 in a basketball game here Friday night.

The Engineers piled up 46 points in the first half. Queen's, unable to click on shots, managed only 15.

Dick Pierce, Clarkson's high scorer with 24, equalled the eight points of the Queen's team in the opening period.

In the second period, with a 28-10 lead, the Clarkson substitutes took over. Queen's outscored the hosts 20-16 in the third quarter and 21-17 in the fourth, but the margin was too great.

Frank Donnelly led the visitors with 23 points.

Kenora Thistles To Tour Japan

WINNIPEG (CP)—Jimmy Dunn of Winnipeg, vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced Friday night that Kenora Thistles, 1953-53 western intermediate champions, have been granted permission to represent Canada in an 11-game tour of Japan next year.

Dunn said it was decided at a recent CAHA meeting in Toronto that if the Ontario team turns down the offer, then it will be passed on to the senior Trail Smoke Eaters.

The Canadian team will leave Vancouver March 1 and return April 13.

Goodyears Defeat Memos 9-6 In Spirited Senior B Battle; Now Crowd Leading Truckmen

KINGSTON, Dec. 12 — Kingston Goodyears gained a firmer hold on second place in the Ontario Amateur Senior B Group race when they vanquished the Belleville Memos by a 9 to 6 last night in the community memorial centre. This was not a sensational exhibition of the sport but it had its lolerasting features and a crowd of 2,100 fans seemed to appreciate the swift and deadly attacking.

The Memos, bereft of the services of big Vernon Gover who illegally sent his hefty skating equipment, looked like championship aspirants during the first seven minutes when they rushed to a 2 to 0 lead but their pressure if they rifled and before the intermission came the champions had fired the rubber and the Belleville cage five times in succession.

The tide turned a bit the other way during the final twenty minutes but Goodyears had the situation well in control and were in no danger of losing the verdict. Moreover they have a game to play against the Oshawa Truckmen in Bowmanville tonight and conservation of strength was a "must".

EFFECTIVE LINE.

Jack McKeown, Ken Purtle and George Chalkley formed the most effective line in operation. McKeown netted the winning goals MacGregor one counter and had three assists while Purtle the playmaker engineered three successful assaults. MacGregor boosted his personal points total to 37 and Don Murray who scored twice went up to the 30 mark, two in the group.

The Belleville defence, missing Glover badly, did not offer stout resistance to the onrushing Goodyear puckchasers and Nolly Barsalt spent an uncomfortable evening between the pipes. Barsalt made some splendid stops — so did Ken Johnson of Goodyears—but the latter helpers moved to each close quarters before firing that the veteran net guardian was badly handicapped.

Those early goals by Edwin Duncan and Ted DeGrey became flashes in the pan when McKeown, Murray, Jim Lee, Ted Nicholson and Murray again flashed the disc past Barsalt and sealed the verdict in the opening period. Seven penalties were inflicted during the session in which the referees, Ken Holmshaw and Andy Bellemer, decided that they would tolerate no nonsense.

FIRST PERIOD.

DeGrey drew the first penalty eighteen seconds after the game began and six more were inflicted before the intermission. Interpretations of the rules left the fans and public view by Holmshaw and Bellemer in no way resembled, matched or approached those previously aired here this season. The "new deal" in officiating had a bit of revelation to all concerned.

Six sentences were inflicted during the second period in which McKeown scored twice and "Bud" Chilko once for Goodyears and Irwin Duncan replied for Belleville. The visitors served four of these banishments and, thereof, achieved no dividends. Chilko got his counter after breaking away from a Belleville ganging attack. Chilko played heads-up hockey going both ways and has seldom been seen to better advantage.

Dave Jones netted the park for the Memos at the 7.40 mark in the final period but MacGregor got that one back at 11.36 while Bob Londry was serving a penalty. Londry, incidentally, had been charged with interference though it did not appear that an opponent had obstructed him. Following face-off near the Goodyear net MacGregor broke after taking the puck from Doran and at 18.45 Erwin Duncan sifted Ed Duncan and "Dubs" Doran brought the tally-log to a conclusion while Don Harrington was viewing proceedings from the penalty bench.

Bombers Deny Trafton Fired; Want New Man as Head Coach

WINNIPEG (CP)—Tough-talking George Trafton says he figures the ax fell on his coaching job with Winnipeg Blue Bombers when he decided against dodging out the door marked "Canadian Citizens."

But this is denied by Blue Bombers, who say at the same time that they don't plan to have Trafton masterminding the Western Interprovincial Football Union champions next season.

Wilf Trafton pointing out that his three-year contract still has a year to go, said the club no longer has fingering the ax the situation is stalemated.

Trafton said Friday before leaving for Chicago that he had been fired from the football team but not into this year's Grey Cup battle, which Blue Bombers lost 154 to Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The former Chicago Bear centre said he was informed of the club's decision Thursday by president Kiel Siocomb. He said he had been asked to resign but had refused to do so.

Friday night Siocomb said the club executive had unanimously agreed to a management committee recommendation that a new man be hired as "head coach" for 1954.

In the past, he said, Bombers have had a head coach, a "coach," Trafton was signed as "a coach," and "he still is a 'coach' with the club."

ISSUES STATEMENT

Siocomb issued a statement which said in part:

"At a meeting of the management committee held at noon Tuesday, Dec. 8, the contract of George K. Trafton was discussed and it was unanimously decided by those present to recommend to the executive that it be best in terests of the Winnipeg Rugby Football Club Inc. that the head coach should be hired for 1954."

Siocomb said he talked with Trafton Thursday and "informed him of the recommendation to be submitted to the executive Friday night."

The club president said he suggested to Trafton that "in his own interests he should consider dissociating with a view to seeing whether some other coaching arrangement could be worked out."

Siocomb said he is call Siocomb by noon Friday to advise him of any decision which he had reached. He did not comment when the call came but he had agreed."

Siocomb said Trafton can "look for another job if he wants to," indicating the club would not stand in the way of the $12,000-a-year coach.

COLOURFUL CAREER

The 36-year-old Trafton had a long and colorful football career in the National Football League. He played ball at Notre Dame under the late Knute Rockne and professional ball with the Chicago Bruins, now Bears. He was assistant coach at Chicago, Pittsburgh and Los Angeles pro teams.

In Canada, he has been one of the game's most controversial figures. A man with a colorful vocabulary, he has been involved in arguments with executive members, sports writers, radio broadcasters and even, it is said, with his own players.

Despite previous rumors that Trafton was on his way out, much speculation in Winnipeg sporting circles prior to noon Tuesday, Dec. 8, centred around Tommy Thompson, Calgary Stampeders' Eagle quarterback cut from Bombers' playing roster at the Oct. 1 cutoff deadline.

STOLEN TRUCK RECOVERED

TORONTO (CP) — A transport truck loaded with several thousand dollars worth of tobacco and cigarettes was stolen Thursday and recovered about an hour later. Police said the truck was taken when the driver stopped for lunch. The truck was found half-unloaded.

Harry Lumley Takes Lead From Sawchuk

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Goalkeeper Harry Lumley, whose early-season efforts last year left Toronto Maple Leaf fans cold, has the crowd cheering him these days. He has taken the lead from Detroit Red Wings' Terry Sawchuk in the race for the Vezina Trophy.

In 37 National Hockey League games, the 27-year-old netminder from Owen Sound has scored four shutouts and has allowed 42 goals for an average of 1.13 goals a game.

Sawchuk, trophy winner the last two seasons, slipped behind Lumley this week. In 36 games he has scored five shutouts and allowed 46 goals for a 1.91 average.

Both the last five years Lumley has recorded two shutouts, over National Canadiens and the Wings.

The Vezina Trophy and $1,000 cash is awarded annually to the goalkeeper who has helped the most games for the team with the fewest goals scored against it.

LUM PLEASED

Lumley wears no feather in his cap.

"Ah, there's not much I can say about it," he said in an interview Friday. "I'm pleased as far and I hope the front office is too."

Harry has made his best showing this season for the Leaf crowd who gave him a verbal blasting early in the 1952-53 season. He's scored all four shutouts at the Gardens and has played every game in the league except the last-place Chicago Black Hawks who play Leafs here Saturday night.

Experts figure Lumley is playing his best season this year. He turned pro in 1943 with Indianapolis of the American Hockey League. The same season he played two games with Detroit and allowed 13 goals. Hustling Harry, determined to further experience he returned to the Wings in mid-season the following year and remained with them until 1950, when he was traded to Chicago Black Hawks.

Rhubarb Marks Barons 3-2 Win Over Buffalo

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Barons scored twice in the last period to defeat Buffalo Bisons, leaders of the American Hockey League 3-2 in a stormy game Friday night.

With four seconds left, a fist fight between Fred Glover of Cleveland and Frank Eddolls, Buffalo playing manager, cost them both a game misconduct. Neither touched off a free-for-all. Glover got a five-minute penalty box and Eddolls outside the rail when they started swinging.

Bob Solinger took the lead at 8:14 of the second period on Don Marshall's 19th goal of the season, but Jack Gordon soon tied it. In the final period, Gordon and Eddie Olson gave Cleveland a 3-3 lead.

Steve Wochy scored the Bisons second goal.

Minor Hockey

Three games were played in the peewee division of the minor hockey at the arena this morning with the Red Wings proving victorious over the Canadiens 5-3, the Rangers edged the Bruins 3-2 and the Black Hawks came out on the big end of a 4-2 score with the Maple Leafs.

Bobby Gilmore paced the Wing attack in the first game with a pair of goals while Leon-Gregory, Brian Townsend and Bill McGuire got the others. Donald Paul had two assists.

Bob Langabeer potted two of the Canadien workers and Jimmy Potts notched the other.

The second game saw the Ranger goals were split up between Jim Rogers and Ross Follwell. David Dies with one goal each. Terry Kelly and Jack Boulter were the goal getters in a losing cause, both unassisted.

The Hawks took an early 3-0 lead in their game on goals by Gilmore, Paul and Bruce Hall to have the Leafs tie it on goals by Wilson and two by Everett Keller. Gilmore's marker was the winner with a minute left. Garry Doggett, Brian Val Camp, Paul Zakes and Gil Archer claimed assists. The three were on for the Leafs' team while Duggan is a Hawks player.

Ken Holmshaw and Bill Davidson were the referees.

Volunteer Fire Fighters

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT,
Outdoor Sportsman, Author And Creator Of Sabaw Tabasi

Last fall, 1952, a great many of the states in our Union underwent a serious extended dry spell immediately in advance of the hunting season. The woods and the fields were hideously inflammable and an overwhelming fire hazard.

You know what happened. In a great many states hunting was prohibited until such time as sufficient rain should fall to diminish this fire hazard, All too many men, who had reserved this time for their annual vacations, found themselves sitting around home on hunting range unable to set foot into woods or fields.

So in the fall this year the hazard was nearly as great and some states were closed to hunting. Fortunately, in the latter, thousands of men and women must lose their days in the field and simply because a comparatively few fools are careless.

The State of Missouri, which has a smart and resourceful Conservation Commission, has come up with an idea which, according to the way I see it, can't help but pay off. They propose to enlist their army of 800,000 hunters into the ranks of fire fighters. Thousands of them.

The first move was to sound out the various hunting groups, clubs, and organizations on a field and archery group, first to take the field, signed up as a body. Others have just followed suit. The movement is spreading with gratifying rapidity.

PLEDGE SERVICE

The basic idea is this—when a man buys his hunting license, he is also presented as a Volunteer Fire Fighter. Not only does he promise to lend a hand to combat fires while he is in the field, but he pledges himself on call, to be available in an emergency.

The sportsmen's groups are being briefed by forest rangers and by a qualified warden or ranger in the business of fighting fires. Each man carries his car the basic fire-fighting tools—a rake, a shovel and a bucket. Also he is equipped to get some real work done when the need arises.

In each county of the state the Conservation agents are locating headquarters where the hunting groups may sign up, pledging themselves to help fight fires any time they are afield. Not only will the individuals be instructed in methods of fighting fires but they will be given identification stickers for their cars.

DOUBLE PURPOSE

These latter serve a double purpose; they let the wardens or rangers know who everybody is, they can secure ready assistance (the hunter, as a rule, is not far from his car and they advise the farmer, on whose land these men have been, that they are willing to meet him halfway in case of emergency.

After all, when you hunt on a farmer's land, kill some game there and have fun, in effect, become his guest for the day, it is pretty much a matter of good form and courtesy the Volunteer Fire Fighters, you let him know that you are willing to help him, for the time, exercises within the bounds of your capabilities.

Regarding the matter from a purely selfish standpoint, a man can go far to insure his annual sport that he finds in upland-game shooting if he and his crowd join up with the Volunteer Fire Fighters. With several hundred thousand of them in the field, ready for duty on short notice, the probabilities are that the authorities will think twice before issuing a ban on hunting, regardless of the condition of the woods and fields.

RITUAL FOR SMOKING

We who hunt woodcock each fall, the season for which comes well in advance of the regular upland-game season, know full well that we, too, will be banned from the woods during dry weather should we become careless with fire. Thus, we have an established ritual regarding cigarettes. When we want to smoke, we call in the dog, find a comfortable place to sit down, open the guns, and light up. To extinguish our cigarettes, each of us digs a hole, right down to moist earth. Each stub is placed on moist soil and then ground out with a boot heel.

Not until each cigarette is definitely out do we pick up our guns and resume our hunt. In more than fifteen years our covers have remained untouched by fire. I can say this with my fingers crossed, as others beside ourselves hunt these areas.

The whole movement of Volunteer Fire Fighters, it is thinks, is a good one, any way you look at it. Goodness knows, we do little enough for the farmers' land. It is a big step in the right direction.

THINK IT OVER.

As for the once-in-a-while hunter, who goes forth only once or twice a season, I'm afraid that he will if the idea grows as it should, be left severely out in the cold and disposes of his cigarette stub carelessly.

It is known that he is subject to emergency call at any time of day or night, you can bet that he will do what he can to avoid woods or brush fires. After all, he values his sleep as much as we do.

Missouri has come up with a good idea. Here's hoping that other states will follow suit.

Mercurys Maul Maroons 4-2 In 'Peaceful' Game

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's games like the one in Chatham Tuesday night that cause old-timers to say modern hockey is going soft.

Only two minor penalties were called as Owen Sound Mercurys defeated Chatham Maroons 4-2 to take sole possession of third place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings.

In Sudbury, the Wolves regained first place in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings by downing Pembroke Lumber Kings 4-2.

Chatham's Bill Cupolo and Owen Sound's Ralph Hosking were the only offenders in Chatham and both penalties were called in the third period.

Herb Carnegie, Roy Leckie and Bill McCombe were the Owen Sound marksmen. Jimmy Campbell and Al Pinella knocked the Chatham goals.

In Sudbury Andy Milne, Yacker Flynn, Rub Beaudry and Frank Kelly scored goals for the Wolves. Hal Mayer and Marcotte tallied for Pembroke.

Week-end action has Windsor at Stratford, Chatham at Hamilton and Niagara Falls at Kitchener tonight. Owen Sound is at Windsor Sunday.

In Jr. OHA tonight Pembroke plays Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Sudbury meets the Troopers in North Bay. The Lumber Kings tangle with the Greyhounds in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sunday.

Bud Smith Gets Decision Over Zulueta

NEW YORK (AP) — Wallace (Bud) Smith, 138, No. 7 challenger for Jimmy Carter's lightweight title, stopped Chuck Zulueta, 135, in seventh and eighth-round knockout here Friday in the unanimous 10-round decision over the clubby lab-and-clutch artist from Havana.

Always moving after his fleet, dancing opponent, Smith managed to slam home enough solid looks in the first half of the bout to convince all three officials.

Smith weighed 138, Zulueta 134½.

Referee Ruby Goldstein and Judge Bert Grant 5-4-1, all in favor of Smith.

There were no knockdowns in the bullish bout but it was watched by a crowd of 2,201 and a television audience.

Zulueta was on the deck three times but never from a punch. He was pushed down in the third when Goldstein started to count and Zulueta thought the fight was stopped over Smith's leg in the eighth and fell through the ropes to the dancing punches that never landed in the stalls.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look'in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, DEC. 13, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Don't listen to tales or rumors and keep smiling even when things go wrong. Help where you can, but don't run down health. Remember church.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — It isn't always easy to get things going smoothly, but to keep them progressing that way. But you may find it a better day than you thought at first/ Don't be too anxious about matters.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Light, pleasant, variable — that's what we so often wish our day to be. But even when it isn't, we are the gainers if we learn to accept what-we have.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — A bigger, better day than you are likely to give it credit for being. We think of giving certain things the benefit of a doubt, but completely forget others. Attend your church services.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Take a little time out today to review facts—not fancies. Use your imagination, too, of course, but familiarize yourself with facts first. Keep figures straight and don't repeat days without thought.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Sometimes you are wont to wait too long before beginning an assignment or before accepting a social engagement, at other times, you overwork and fret. Don't forget—there is a happy medium!

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—If you have some free time today, devote part of it to revitalizing the energies, refreshing the mind. Look for the advantageous "little things." Sidestep arguments.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Strain, anxiety, misgivings, thinking too much about the past must be avoided now. Satisfaction comes from the simplest things most of the time. Spiritual values first.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Always looking for something different, seeking the new or unusual, eager for changes? These traits promote uneasiness, dissatisfaction.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Look into the reasons you made past mistakes and aim not to repeat them. Through the goodness of God we have numerous graces with which to combat ills and wrongs. How are you doing?

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Friendliness and companionship are wonderful stimulants. But don't let anyone cause you to forget good intentions, habits or the hour the Our Creator at church services.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—How many times have we heard, "every little bit helps"? And yet we don't we apply it when it is most needed and when! Today's for a smile, a boost to a neighbor, a service, prayer.

YOU BORN TODAY are intelligently industrious, shoot straight for your mark—and usually hit it! You know how to cut red tape and gain the assistance needed to reach your goals. But be careful in so doing that you aren't too abrupt, outspoken or too ready to discard methods before giving it a fair try. You are innately honest, often ingenious; are a loyal, staunch friend and a true patriot. Be prompt, but not rigidly so. Relax, enjoy due recreation oftener than you do. Birthdate of: A. Lawrence Lowell, American lawyer, educator.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

"POPCORN" POPS PERIL

SUMTER, S.C. (AP)—Billy Lane's popcorn popped with a bang Wednesday, sending the 11-year-old youngster to a physician for treatment. He said he had walked into a movie with a bag of popcorn in one hand and torpedoes in the other. Inadvertently, he dropped the torpedoes into the bag and, excited by the movie, he bit down on a torpedo.

RE-NEWED CARS
WHAT ARE THEY?

THEY ARE CARS that have been taken in on trade. Completely reconditioned. They have been thoroughly inspected by our skilled mechanics. The necessary work has been done, accompanied by many thousands of miles have been built back into them. Because this work has been done, we feel that they are a little better than ordinary cars. Therefore we can choose the above name to distinguish them. The initial cost may not be the lowest but we feel that the saving in the long run will be considerably less.

Bass Population in Quebec To Be Killed Off for Trout

By ROMEO MACERA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — When Quebec sports fishermen meet this winter they will have more to argue about than the size of the big ones that got away.

Much of the discussion will stem from a Quebec government order aimed at killing off the bass population in certain parts of the province. The order may affect bass fishermen in the same way a red flag affects a bull, but the government is not likely to change its mind.

The order affects Argenteuil and Terrebonne counties which include the picturesque lakes in the Laurentian mountains north of Montreal. The lakes are natural, trout waters, but the trout population has been decreasing at an alarming rate.

A survey indicated bass had invaded the lakes and were killing off trout, mainly by gobbling up fingerlings. The government ordered removal of all restrictions on bass in the two counties.

WARN PRIVATE CLUBS

Recently, in warning private fishing clubs not to set small-mouth bass to spawn in their reserve lakes, the Quebec fish and game department had this to say:

A recent study by biologists showed speckled trout became extinct in a number of Laurentian mountain lakes because of small-mouth bass activity. Bass population increased rapidly at first by feeding on small trout. But when trout is depleted bass tend to die off for lack of food.

The department cited the case of a lake in which bass was spawned 15 years ago. The trout is almost extinct and the bass, too, is dying off.

Thousands of pleasure - seeking fish men outside Quebec invade the province annually solely for its trout.

Private fishing clubs have been blamed largely for the infiltration of bass. True, their aim is to stock only their own waters with bass—sometimes termed the greatest fighting fish pound for pound. But the fish spread from the point of introduction into streams and other lakes.

RETREATING GLACIERS

A member of an expedition to Baffin Island this year said recently glaciers on the island are gradually retreating north and eventually may change the habitats of Eskimos.

J. Marmet, a research assistant at the Federal Institute of Technology, Switzerland, told the Swiss National Society in Montreal that as the water off Baffin Island becomes warmer, seals would move north and fish from the south would take their place.

"The Eskimos, perhaps within fifty years, will be fishermen rather than primarily seal hunters," said Mr. Marmet.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Saturday walk with pop, and I saw a cent on the sidewalk and picked it up, saying, Heck, that's just my bum luck, finding one measly cent.

For Pete sake, I've heard reports that inflation was just around the corner, but I didn't know it was unlucky to find money, pop said, and I said, Well jimminies, pop I seen G rosnaleen, Lucky Lucy Shooster hardly ever finds less than a dime. I bet he wouldn't even stoop to pick up just one cent. If I could find one a minute for about an hour, I wouldn't mind, but heck, what's just one cent? I said.

Yep, gosh, when I asked my father for a cent at your age, I always washed my face and combed my hair and shined my shoes first, pop said. That's how much a cent meant to me, he said, and I said, Well good nite, what could you do with it after you got it?

I could do wonders with it, pop said. I could buy a string of tickeris a yard long. I could buy a handfull of sour balls or a whole dipper full of jelly beans or a lemon stick or a bewtiful sticky peanut bar. If I wanted to make a permanent investment I could buy a wooden top that would spin for 2 minutes without stopping for breth. And as for finding a cent, well when I find one even now, I still feel the old glow, he said.

Well jimminies, pop, if it makes you feel all that good, I'll sell you this one and you can pretend you were the one who found it; said, and pop said, What's your lowest figure?

How about a nickel? I said, and pop said, I call that a bargain, hand it over.

And he exchanged me a nickel for the cent, saying, Now maybe the next time you find a cent, you wont feel so unlucky.

Which maybe I wont, especially if pop is with me again.

H-Bomb Blast May Exceed Total Of U.S. War Bombs

Bikini Atoll Will Be Scene of Tests in Spring

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The hydrogen weapon blast the United States plans for the Bikini atoll test this spring may exceed the total power of all bombs dropped by the U.S. air forces in the Second World War.

That figure was slightly more than 2,000,000 tons of TNT. President Eisenhower said in his speech Tuesday to the United Nations General Assembly that "hydrogen weapons are in the range of millions of tons of TNT's equivalent."

The test at Bikini atoll next year could happen to the United States as well as to Russia in a war with hydrogen weapons.

The last atomic explosion at the remote and uninhabited atoll probably will become, by comparison, a puny pop.

The two test bombs used there in the 1946 tests had an energy equivalent of about 20,000 tons of TNT. An air-burst bomb sank ships, crushed others with the shock wave, set others burning.

An underwater blast sank a carrier, a battleship and other vessels. Neither burst left any mark on the surrounding land or water.

But some time next spring, when the seasonal winds are right, the direction of the trade winds which blow energy-charged air molecules long distances, the face of the atoll may change in an instant.

Release of a force equaling two or more million tons of the exploding TNT could erase all trace of not only the possibly sensational of the islands ringing the lagoon. There were reports, never denied by the Atomic Energy Commission, that the 1952 test of a relatively small hydrogen device destroyed the island upon which the device was mounted.

Earlier in the year the commission announced it was including the long-named shot Castle Bravo in its Marshall islands group, with Eniwetok in the testing ground.

This made it apparent that projected tests were to be of such magnitude that the Pacific proved inadvisable to endanger permanent installations at Eniwetok.

22 AMERICANS STALL SECOND DAY OF EXPLANATIONS

Talks May Not Get Under Way for 5 Days

By GEORGE McARTHUR

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Indian Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya said today he believes the 22 United States prisoners of the Korean war who refuse to join the Communists are attempting to stall permanently Allied attempts to coax them home.

Thimayya said the Indian command will make every effort to get the explanations started, but there was little hope Wednesday they would get under way in less than five or six days. The explanations period ends Dec. 23.

Before they were scheduled to meet with U.N. explanation teams, the 22 balky Americans refused to meet with interviewers. They said they won't leave their barbed wire compounds unless fellow pro-Communist South Korean prisoners also agree to attend the sessions. Thimayya's command has refused to do for three days.

The neutral nations repatriation commission, headed by Thimayya, Tuesday began studying protests filed by both the South Koreans and U.S. prisoners.

Thimayya labelled absurd some of the South Korean complaints and said they probably would be rejected unless made to stall the explanations.

The Korean POWs, Thimayya said, would be given the right to make counter - explanations and "there are many of these."

AMERICANS FETTION

He said 21 of the 22 balky Americans signed a petition asking that "several points be clarified" in the South Korean POWs stand.

Thimayya said he couldn't understand why the Americans suddenly changed their position and refused to go to the explanations.

Meanwhile, the mother who flew across the Pacific from her Minnesota home in an effort to see her prisoner son received a letter from him bitterly attacking the United States.

Mrs. Lloyd Howe of Alden, Minn., read the letter from her son, 20-year-old Pfc. Richard B. Tenneson.

"I don't misunderstand me," it said, "I still love my family, my people and my country, and whether you are able to understand it now or not, believe me when I say that it is for them that I am fighting and it is impossible for me to live in the United States because I want no part of it.

"United States authorities . . . have committed a few that I was forced, doped, brain washed or tortured into confessing that they use to slander and defile and belittle myself who will stand up for it. Its falsities and lies are rife.

Her face showing the strain of the last few days, she said: "I'm where did I fail—I don't know where I failed. . . .

"I still want to see my son—I still want to see him."

HOGS REPORTED STOLEN

BRANTFORD (CP) — Pig rustlers are operating in the Brantford area. Alex Hajas reported the loss of 10 hogs from his farm. On the farm, the third such theft in three days. Previously, Arthur Hunter reported the loss of seven and Harold Fawcett, nine young pigs.

2,000 Fiji Natives Rehearse Silent Welcome for Queen

SUVA, Fiji (Reuters)—Ceremonial drums throbbed and natives gathered around in primitive splendor, conducted the rehearsal here today, Lady Carvery played the part of the Queen while government officials represented the duke and other members of the royal household.

Excited islanders watched as the guard of honor paraded and 200 Fijian and Indian regular and reserve police, bolstered by a tall, able men of the Fiji military forces, took up ceremonial positions as the make-believe royal procession drove through the streets.

The thermometer recorded 83 degrees in the shade.

A slate ball will cap the first day's program.

TIMES CHANGED A LITTLE

Today's rehearsal included the last minute changes in the various ancient Fiji rite in which guests are offered a drink from the coconut shell.

Anyone interrupting a ceremonial welcome risks punishment. One Fijian remarked, "In ancient times, anyone who stepped between the kava bowl and an honored guest would be killed."

Things added thoughtfully, "But of course, we were cannibals then."

Suva's population is about 15,000 but it will be trebled for the ceremony by visitors from outlying points.

ENVOY ANNOUNCES RETURN TO U.S. TO GET ORDERS

Chief Aide to Dean In Charge in Korea

By STAN CARTER

PANMUNJOM (AP)—U. S. special envoy Arthur H. Dean leaves Tuesday for consultations in Washington, leaving his chief aide in Korea "so as if the Communists wish to resume" the ruptured negotiations it can set up a Korean peace conference.

Dean, who met for eight weeks with the Reds in an effort to reach agreement, walked out on the Communist diplomatic Saturday after they accused the Allies of "perfidy."

He told reporters today that his aide, Kenneth Young Jr.—the U.S. state department man who has "full authority to resume the talks . . . if the Communists withdraw the perfidy charges and give some sign they are ready to negotiate in good faith."

However, the Communists' Peiping radio today had reasserted the perfidy charges and laid the blame for the breakdown on the "contemptible cold war policy of the United States."

Peiping said Dean's walkout was "an ominous sign that the U.S. government is determined to carry perfidies of grave consequence."

Dean's parting statement said it is "the definite policy of the United States of America that there should be no further delay" be made to work out the difficulties and issues at the political (peace) conference, but it could not compromise a slur on its integrity.

RUSSIA CHIEF OBSTACLE

Dean again repeated the United States stand that Russia be invited to the peace conference as a full voting participant on the Communist side and not as a neutral as the Reds have insisted. That was the big stumbling block in the talks.

The preliminary Panmunjom talks were aimed at fixing the agenda, date and composition of the long delayed peace conference.

Bitter disputes over which nations should sit at the table have bogged down the discussions. Dean has walked out on the Reds because the U.S. government of deliberately stalled the release of 27,000 anti-Red North Korean prisoners June 17-18. The Koreans were under the order of South President Syngman Rhee of South Korea.

In Paris, where U.S. state secretary Dulles arrived to attend the North Atlantic council, correspondents were told Dean's walkout was a "deliberate, calculated reaction to Communist provocation."

Dulles, on the eve of a pondering heard, it was due to "failure of the Communists to change one dot of an unacceptable plan."

Orillia Woman Saw Missing Girl In Car Saturday

Man Came to Farmhouse And Asked for Cup of Coffee

TORONTO (CP) — An elderly woman today looked at a picture of Marion McDowell, kidnapped eight days ago, and told police: "That's her. That's the girl who came to my door Saturday."

The woman, whose name was not given by police, said a girl and a man stopped at her lonely farmhouse near Orillia and asked for coffee.

This was the latest lead in the search for the pretty, 17-year-old typist abducted from her boy friend's automobile on a suburban lover's lane Dec. 6.

Provincial police constable Morley Wright said the woman told police a car pulled into her driveway about 4 p.m. Saturday.

She said the man came to the door and asked for coffee "for my girl friend."

MAN ARGUED

The woman said she had no coffee but directed the man to a restaurant several miles away. She was said his "girl friend" had been in an accident and after an argument with the woman, the man and girl drove away.

Today, the woman said the man she was married her that "You'll be sorry."

Police in nearby Scarborough township, who are conducting the search, said they have definitely formed of the incident near Orillia and are checking with provincial police for further information.

Japanese Wife Bewildered As Texan Turns Red

By FRED SAITO

TOKYO (AP) — A bewildered Japanese wife of one of the 22 American men who refuse to go who spurned repatriation said tonight she cannot understand why he stays behind.

As she talked she clasped a packet of love letters from Claude Batchelor of Kermit, Texas.

"Claude always wrote he would come back to Tokyo—that he would go dancing again—that we would be the happiest people in the world," said little Kiyoko Araki.

She showed the letters—all written from North Korean prison camps by Batchelor, who was captured by the Reds in 1951.

SUSPECTS COERCION

"There is something wrong—I know him through and through. He would never stay back unless they made him or had some power over him."

That before he was moved to Panmunjom during the post-war prisoner exchange, he told he wrote "in the same old tone—that he would come back to me."

This last letter she has mislaid, but the earlier ones were tender outpourings of love and yearning to his sweetheart.

The couple, already married in Japanese eyes, had just completed their last forms and were to be married at the city registry with the American consul here when Batchelor went to Korea.

He was captured in the October-November retreat when the 1st U.S. Cavalry Division suffered heavy losses.

BSC PENETRATES "CURTAIN"

LONDON (Reuters)—Many BSC transmissions are getting behind the Iron Curtain and have a big audience, despite the efforts of jammers, 1,000 Communist "jamming" stations, the corporation said today. Listeners risk penalties death, yet from East Germany alone 60 or 70 letters of appreciation were said to reach the BSC every week.

Family of Five, Maid Killed In Train Crash

ROYSE CITY, Tex. (AP) — Twisted red-and-silver wreckage and a shattered station wagon today littered the railroad tracks in this little farm town, where a family of five and their maid died in a car-train collision.

The charge was entered Sunday night as the whistling diesel streamliner slammed the station wagon out of its path.

The hurtling automobile tripped a switch that derailed the twin engines and 10 cars. Five rear cars held in the train.

Five train passengers were sent to hospitals. An estimated 30 more were bruised or shaken up.

The crash stopped the M-K-T Texas Special's fast trip from Dallas to St. Louis as it pounded through less than 40 miles an hour.

WORE HEARING AID

The six dead were identified as: Vivian Shaffer, 47, Dallas real estate agent and former Southern Methodist University and New York Giants football player; his wife, Harriti, 39, their sons, Bill, 8, and John and Jim, 5, and Irma Davis, the maid.

Shaffer wore a hearing aid. A cold wind was blowing and it was presumed he had the windows rolled up.

The engineer said he was blowing his diesel whistle.

Quebec Flyer Left Kingston, Is Unreported

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Flying Club has asked the RCAF to help find one of its members who unreported since Friday, at when he took off from Kingston, Ont., for Montreal.

A club spokesman said today Jack Lawson, 28, of Baie Comeau, Que., and Quebec City, left here Nov. 18 on a three-week cruise with a Fleet Canuck belonging to Lawson's brother-in-law.

Lawson was not due back here until last Wednesday. A check of airports in eastern Ontario brought no clue as to his whereabouts.

The request for a search was made to the RCAF at Ottawa Sunday.

Says Only Tenth Of Three Million Went to Charity

NEW YORK (AP)—A state senator charged today that the National Kids Day Foundation, which solicited funds over the names of Bing Crosby and Mrs. Bob Hope, raised $3,931,000 last year but spent only 10 per cent for charity.

The charge was made by Senator Bernard Tompkins, chairman of a joint legislative committee which today began a series of public hearings into charity rackets and what happens to money contributed by New Yorkers to philanthropic organizations.

THE WEATHER

Santa Claus Becomes Key Issue As British Railway Strike Looms

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (AP) — Santa Claus found himself a key issue today in Britain's railway strike threat since the general strike of 1926.

The immediate issue is whether the railway men are entitled to a pay raise, but an important factor is the old man with the whiskers.

The National Union of Railwaymen has called its 400,000 members to strike next Sunday midnight.

A strike on the state-owned railways would paralyze this nation of close to 50,000,000 persons looking forward to their gayest Christmas today since before the war —with plenty of food and drink and unrationed things to buy.

"Railway scrooges," shouted The People, Labor party Sunday newspaper, in a front-page headline denouncing union leaders.

"You'd almost think the leaders of the NUR had no children of their own and never believed in Father Christmas."

The Sunday Pictorial cried out in a big black headline: "Children Must Stop Christmas Rail Strike."

Interjection of Santa Claus into the dispute brought this sharp report from an NUR organizer at a meeting of railway workers:

"You are not to feel ashamed of yourselves when people say to you, 'Are you going to strike at Christmas. There will be little or no Christmas festivities in the homes of railway men on the wages they are getting."

The chairman of the British Transport Commission, Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, was reported ready to ask for government intervention if the union refuses to compromise.

The unions are demanding a 10 per cent pay raise for men now average £8 11s 11d ($24.07) a week. (The present National Thrift Bonus, whose rulings always have been accepted in the past, awarded a weekly increase of only 4d (36 cents).

The unions unanimously rejected the award, although unions of 70,000 salaries staff employees and 90,000 salaries staff employees and they will accept it as the basis for further negotiations.

Rudderless Liner Making Headway As Atlantic Calms

OSLO (AP) — The rudderless Norwegian liner Stavangerfjord headed into calmer Atlantic seas today with good prospects that her 644 passengers will reach Norway well before Christmas.

The 13,344-ton ship, whose rudder broke Wednesday, rode out a weekend gale and was reported slowly plugging along on her own power, steering only by its propellers.

Weather experts here predicted calmer seas for the ship, which was some 600 miles west of Ireland Sunday. Her owners, the Norwegian American line, estimated she would reach here Friday or Saturday. She left New York Dec. 4.

The British sea-going tug Turmoil, famous for her heroic but unsuccessful attempt two years ago to tow the ill-fated Flying Enterprise, joined the Norwegian liner Sunday to shepherd her home.

Canadians Make Good Use Of Bell Telephone

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadians make more use of their telephones than any other people in the world, Bell Telephone officials reported.

The annual world telephone survey, released here Sunday, showed Canadians averaged 388.7 telephone calls a person in 1952 while the United States average for the country was 382.1, Iceland ranked third with 360.1 calls.

In number of telephones and number of phones a hundred persons, Canada ranked first. The United States was tops in both departments with 48.66 and 36.39 phones or 30.3 for every hundred persons.

The United Kingdom was second in number of phones with 5,915,-972, Sweden second in number a hundred with 28.4. Canada had 4,284,000 phones, Switzerland 1,-722,000 and Australia 1,-

In number of telephones per hundred persons, Canada ranked 13th and Toronto 14th among cities of the world. New York, the leader, had 3,531,916, nearly twice the 1,-760,000 telephones installed in second-ranking London.

Statistics for the annual were compiled by the International Telephone and Telegraph Company from data supplied by companies in 200 countries.

Man Existed in North America 20,000 Years Ago Says Expert

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Frank H. H. Roberts, University of New Mexico anthropologist, announced Sunday there is "incontrovertible proof" man existed in North America 20,000 years ago—10,000 years earlier than any previously proved date.

Hibben said the tusk of a mammoth found in Sandia cave 16 years ago established the new date after a radiocarbon test at the University of Michigan.

"This is not geological guesswork," Hibben said. "It is exact, mathematical method of dating.

"A great many skeptics did not believe man existed in the new world 10,000 years ago. We now have incontrovertible proof."

Dr. Volney H. Jones, University of Michigan anthropologist, wrote Hibben:

"The Sandia date is a pretty prime success for us. I feel just about double any previous date for man in the Americas."

"Prof. H. R. Crane, who is in charge of the radiocarbon project, Michigan, "says that it (the tusk) dates somewhere in the range of 20 years plus or minus."

The tusk was found in Sandia cave near Albuquerque by Frank Sylvia, a university student, in 1937,

Shot by Hunters, Man Abandoned In Little Shack

MIDDLESBORO, Mass. (AP)—A hardy cranberry bog worker told today how he was shot and abandoned for dead by a group of hunters and how he lay without help for three days in his little shack at home. His plight was discovered by a chance visitor.

Benjamin de Silva said in his hospital bed that a group of hunters accidentally mistook him for a deer last Thursday and shot him three times, filling his back, neck, right leg and arm with buckshot.

DIDN'T COME BACK

The hunters took him to his shack and left him, then they were going for help. They never returned, de Silva said.

He yelled for help for two days but none came, de Silva said.

Then a friend, Raymond Pannenen, called on de Silva Sunday. The visitor knocked on the door but got no answer. He was about to leave, he said, when he decided to look inside. There he saw de Silva in a coma from loss of blood.

Doctors said de Silva has a good chance for recovery.

Davis had helped build the giant advertising figure, and was photographing gathered to take pictures of the display he fell 33 feet from a steel cable on which he stood to be photographed.

GULLS KNOW HOW TO GET BREAKFAST

Gulls are not so dumb.

This morning at half-past-8 bread floated down the Moira between the lower city bridges and the CPR structure.

A hungry gull tackled the bread from the rear. But it was not getting its breakfast quota this way. So it flattened out on the water, using the water in front of the floating cereal and sedatory backed downstream as it enjoyed its early morning meal.

Still Puzzling Over Queer Light Seen Friday Eve

Air Force officials at R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton, are still puzzling over the "greenish light" that rushed over the station on Friday evening, expanded and contracted about 800 feet above the airfield.

Command Headquarters, Realcliffe 5/1 Wood said whatever it was it had nothing to do with the Air Force. He plans to be in touch with Ottawa this afternoon and ask for further details if there are any. Meanwhile investigation into the object that appeared in the skies on Friday night still continues. Many persons, civil airline pilots and ground observer stations along Lake Ontario reported seeing a greenish-blue light in the sky at about 8 p.m.

Saturday, December 26th, 1953
BOXING DAY

In accordance with a resolution passed at a meeting of the City Council of the City of Belleville held on Tuesday, December 8th, 1953, fixing Saturday, December 26th (Boxing Day) as a Civic Holiday.

I hereby proclaim Saturday, December 26th, 1953 (Boxing Day) as a Public Civic Holiday for the City of Belleville and would respectfully request that it be observed as such by all citizens as far as possible.

McLean Haig, O.B.E.

Bob Wood, Tweed New President Garage Operators

Santa Claus spoke directly to more than one thousand children in Belleville and the district over the week-end. The jolly old gentleman called children Friday evening, Saturday and Sunday afternoons under the sponsorship of the Recreation Committee and the Chamber of Commerce.

Santa conversed with each boy and girl for three minutes asking them such questions as to what they would like Christmas and if they had been on their best behavior during 1953.

Many were requests he received from children for snow and in most instances Santa demurred. However, in one particular case, a little girl was so worried Santa would not get to the city because there would be no snow for his sleigh that Santa went out on a limb and promised snow for Monday. He must have been surprised Santa Claus on arising this morning.

On the heart-warming side was the request of an eight-year-old girl who didn't want toys for Christmas. In answer to Santa's surprised question as to why, the little girl replied that the benevolent old gentleman would cure her mother of polio, this would be Christmas present enough.

COULD NOT AFFORD MORE

Another little girl asked if she might have a doll for Christmas and only a doll "Surely" said Santa, "there is something else you would like as well?" "No," replied the little girl, "that's all my mother can afford, so that's all I want."

Santa Claus must have been in good voice on Saturday for when he asked a little girl how she knew to whom she was talking, the answer was the solid tell by the voice.

According to the recreation director, Red Doran, Santa spent nine hours on the telephone to complete more than one thousand calls. Mr. Doran said the undertaking was a tremendous success. Some children were not at home, when Santa called but special letters will be mailed to them. The others, who were contacted will also get a letter.

Three Inches Of Snow Fell In City, District

More than three inches of snow fell on the city and district this morning with only a let-up in sight. For the most part it was snow making city streets somewhat slippery and slushy and bringing out garage tow trucks.

Although there has been no reported damage to hydro or telephone wires due to the storm, the city engineering department reports sanding of city streets was in progress during the morning.

The city's scrapers were not working as it was felt a sufficient depth of snow on the streets had not at that time been reached.

The snow is accompanied by reasonably mild temperatures but it is expected the mercury will drop well below freezing towards evening and snow will continue to fall. A high of 33 and a low of 25 is forecast for this area on Tuesday.

Rash of Minor Crashes Reported

A rash of minor accidents in which little more than fender damage resulted occurred in the city during the week-end, with at least half a dozen of this nature being reported to police.

John C. Whitney of Havelock had a front fender completely ripped away in an accident on Church street near Bridge, which saw the driver of the other auto charged with leaving the scene of an accident. George Lapointe, Picton, was arrested in the city centre police court through his licence number, taken at the time of the accident.

Police said that the fender of the Whitney car had been ripped away by a hook and was carried away hooked to the bumper of the other car. The torn fender was found abandoned near the old Coca Cola plant on Church street.

Belleville's new No. 2 fire station on Dundas St. East, was officially opened last week when W. J. Scott, Ontario fire marshal, ely officials and out-of-town firemen were on hand for opening ceremonies. . Members of the local department along with out-of-town firemen are seen watching the ribbon being cut by Alderman Angus B. Duffy, chairman of fire, with Fire Chief Gerald Vance at left and ex-Fire Chief William Lynch.

The new fireball is almost an exact replica of the Moira Street fire station built several years ago. Nothing has been spared for efficient operation of the firehall. Heating is by oil and firemen have clean and pleasant quarters on the top floor. Hall was built in eastern part of the city to give protection to hospital and other important public buildings and properties east of the river.

Hospital Employees Give Average of $38.65 to Fund

Employees of the Belleville General Hospital have contributed $6,686 to the Hospital Building Fund. The total was announced today by George Williams, Chairman of the Hospital Employees Committee. He said that the employees have responded extremely well to the Fund, and that the average gift per employee is $38.65.

Canvassing on the results of the employee canvass Kenneth E. Box, administrator of the hospital, said "we are very proud that our employees have contributed so generously. Every employee in the hospital knows the need is great from personal experience. They are aware that to give patients the necessary care that they so justly deserve, and are entitled to have, that the addition must be built."

Mr. Box said the voluntary contributions made by hospital employees 'would be an inspiration to all employees of Belleville generally.

Hundred Attend Parents' Night

Close to one hundred parents attended the "Parents' Night" at the Y.M.C.A., last Friday evening, to be entertained by a variety of gymnastic exercises, put on for them by their sons, members of the Y.M.C.A. The exercises consisted of relay games, a rope-climbing contest, low bar exercises, parallel bars, tumbling, springboard and box horse and basketball.

The program started with a brief talk by Mr. N. A. Beech, chairman of the Physical Education Committee, who on behalf of the Physical Education Committee welcomed the parents. Physical Director Di Diamanides then explained the boys physical program, and introduced instructors Don Cherry and Neil Judge as the members of the Intermediate Leaders Corps.

The parents had also the opportunity to watch their sons swim in the renovated swimming pool, to walk around and see the other parts of the renovated physical education department, and to meet with the instructors, staff members and members of the Physical Education Committee at the end of the Board.

Refreshments, served by the mothers of the Junior Leaders Corps ended this most enjoyable evening.

Union 'School' Held at Trenton Over Week-End

TRENTON (Special) — Officers and delegates representing local unions in the district went back to school for two days during the week-end. Classes sponsored by the education department of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada were held at the Queensway Hotel in co-operation with the Trenton and Belleville Trades and Labor Councils.

Some 30 delegates were welcomed by council president Harold Blakely of Trenton. The short course program consists of five subjects. Max Swerdlow and Gordon G. Cushing of Ottawa were the instructors.

On Sunday George Fortune and Bill Williams of the Compensation Board from Toronto outlined benefits provided by the Compensation Board and the proper approach to obtain them.

The school was the first held in Trenton and the wind-up of the congress' educational activities in Ontario this year. The various past registrations of delegates split cost of attendance.

Arthur Firth, secretary of the Belleville and district labor council, attended Saturday sessions.

FIRE IS IN STOVE

A reflection from a stove in the Pinch woodworking shop on the Carrying Place Road caused a resident nearby to call the Trenton Fire Department Saturday night. Firemen played safe by removing the fire from the stove. There was no damage. A drizzle of rain was all that was on hand when the firemen were called to answer the alarm. Driving conditions were only fair.

BURNS MORE A LEGEND THAN A POET

An English poet, William Kean Seymour, has announced that he will publish an English translation of the poems of Robert Burns. Burns, long regarded as Scotland's national poet, has achieved a degree of fervent national acclaim that has transported him beyond the realm of poets and put him into the same category in Scotland as leather, thistle, Scotch whiskey and the Stone of Scone.

He is as much of a legend as Bonnie Prince Charlie.

All this, of course, does not mean that Burns does not need translation. In his most certainly he does. And since the English-speaking world has wrestled manfully with Burns for the years, it seems only fair that it should be rewarded for its persevereance with a translation, if any translation it to be made at all.

Greatly as any translation is needed, no translation will be able to faithfully capture the spirit of Burns. Because he has become a legend, and because his legend is built solidly into the Scottish character by the use of local dialect and Scottish idiom, it becomes a fearsome job to contemplate the faithful rendering of his works even into such an expressive medium as English. Much of Burns is practically unreadable in the original and quite likely a great deal of his popularity has been based upon the recreation of much mystery relieved only by the glittering nuggets of homely truth that peep through at intervals.

Bumper crops of niches in the vast fog of most of Burns' dialect has created the impression that a solid vein of ore must run through the misty volumes.

If Mr. Seymour succeeds in what he has had to accept the experts' word for the value of Burns' poetry simply because he lacked the equipment and the time necessary to mine the nuggets himself.

With a readable translation that portrays as accurately as possible Burns' original thoughts, it will be possible for the first time for the average reader to judge him himself. It will be possible to realize that the lax is a just and equitable one and is levied the same in all cities

HEED THAT SIGNAL

Recently as I sat in a taxi and we stopped at an intersection, I saw a chap coming from the opposite direction who got halfway across the street when he discovered that the signal had changed to the red light. Most people would have been going. This fellow came to a shrieking stop, backed up and took his proper position.

This may appear a little thing but it is a reflection of a man's disposition and probably of his character. There are a lot of people who, when they do something wrong, cast it over the shoulder, as it were, and go on with their business. There are others who acknowledge the authority of the red light and back up and take their place where they belong.

This is what I mean. If you have run into a red light as regards the Golden Rule, or even or somebody else's money then back up before you hear the whistle of the law and know that trouble is in store for you. If you are playing fast and loose in some domestic situation and think that nobody is looking, be quite sure that a red light is about to flash upon you and you will be up against more trouble than you ever anticipated.

Red lights are real, and they mean stop right where you are. If you have been unwise in going through against a danger signal, then have sense enough, courage enough, and decency enough to back up to the place where you are supposed to be.

PARTY TRANSPORTATION

When party bound, from friends who drive,
Rides I receive.
Last are we always to arrive
And last to leave.

I love my friends. Not one I hate,
Not even he
Who for a bridge game stays too late
Delaying me.

This never will I understand:
When lit is late
While he must play "Just one more hand"
I have to wait.

I'm grateful to and fro to go
With every friend,
But seldom get the ones who know
When parties end.

Where Errors Make Money

(Philadelphia Inquirer)

In most fields of human endeavor it costs money to make mistakes. In the world of postage stamp collectors, boners pay off.

One example of this occurred last week when it was announced that some New York stamp dealers had discovered an "error" in the current $1 United States postage stamp. Seems that some fool had been printing on the wrong kind of paper — a watermarked paper, normally used for United States revenue stamps. So, the dealers figured much of the United States quietly trying to buy up these "errors" at post offices.

How much will the "errors" be worth? By postage, one dollar. To a stamp collector, however, the price will be whatever the greatest sucker will pay Willies to pay for them. So far, 401 copies have been found.

A Toronto collector reportedly has paid for one copy of the $2-000 for a postage stamp. It is a Swedish stamp of 1855, printed in yellow instead of green, and another "error."

What makes the stamp so valuable is that it is unique. Only one copy ever has been found in the nearly 100 years that it was printed. So, again a boner—of ancient vintage—pays off.

The wonder is mistakes occur so rarely. Government, after all, Sam's printers turn out millions of stamps a year. Also it is one right to have the privilege of a lot of fun out of stamp collecting without paying fancy prices for printers' bad momentis.

Reading Is Preferred

(Detroit News)

"Listening is all right, but I like to read it."

With that, one New Yorker pretty well summed up the frustration of 1,400 million Americans who live without a newspaper. By radio and TV, which have greatly extended their news services, New Yorkers remain as familiar with what is happening in the world as other Americans. But somehow it isn't the same thing.

New conveyed by voice and picture simply isn't news to Yorkers. It must also represent a narrower selection. The selection may be exercised with brilliance and judgment, but still tends to force individual acceptance of a kind of judgment of what is important or interesting. A newspaper can afford to devote a few pages to stories and features which it is certain a majority of its readers will pass over.

The listener can reject what is offered only by choosing silence. The reader can choose between other offerings. Even Arthur Godfrey, of the great pleasures of reading—the sense of choice to be taped and the corresponding sense that a paper was made to be discussed at will and another explored.

Reading, because it requires a deliberate decision and a positive effort of concentration, has the excitement of intimacy. It is not accustomed to read, that excitement is lacked in the passive process of listening.

What the New York newspaper dispute proves, in short, is not that newspapers are superior to broadcasting but simply that the media are so different that their services scarcely overlap at all.

To Prove It

(Fort William Times-Journal)

Moscow is at it again. The communist party radio claims Russians supplied the engine for the British Navy for the fleet that beat the Spanish Armada in 1588, and this aided the Russians in beating the Spaniards. Moscow should furnish the invoices to prove it.

Trout Picked Wrong Smoke

(Cleveland Plain Dealer)

A Corpus Christi (Tex.) fisherman came up with this one recently after a gulf coast angling excursion.

He ran into a school of sea trout and began pulling them in just as fast as he could bait his hook and cast. Finally he became hopped and stopped for a smoke.

While fiddled, the fisherman tossed the butt in the water. Another big trout rose and swallowed it. But in a few seconds the fish came up again and spat it out.

Well, what's so fishy about that? Probably wasn't the trout's bread!

Stabling Of Cattle

(Windsor Star)

With the onset of wintry weather, Ontario beef cattle will be stabled their cattle. This is not always an easy job.

There is no difficulty with older cattle accustomed to being tied up in the stalls. But a bit of tread on the hangers and they color and take their places without trouble. But with calves born last spring and now good-sized chunks, some a bit overfed, a struggle is required.

Every Ontario farmers buy West-ern "feeder cattle" to stable and fatten during the winter. These can be hard to handle if they are straight from the ranches and never have been in a stable. Sometimes they have to be roped, and half-crushed, half-dragged to their stalls. Big steers, not used to men, can be mighty obstreperous.

In such cases the best way is to leave them tied in their stalls a couple of days, carrying the water to them and giving them plenty of meal and hay. Then, after they are let out for their first walk outside, they are glad to come back in their own stalls. They soon learn to know their right stalls.

There is a new trend underway in Ontario. This is to let the cattle run loose in the stable, without any stalls. This gives them more freedom of movement and, if a dog-fight breaks out, they can come in or go out at will. Some fe- ding is found this method successful, as the cattle seem to eat and fatten well.

Mexican Bulls Get New Deal

(Edmonton Journal)

Mexican bulls are no fools. By the centuries-old custom of religious cowardice, many of them have taken to avoiding slow death and humiliation in the bull-fighter's matadors.

Until recently, however, these bashful bulls have been led like lambs to the slaughter and sold at very inferior prices. This is an ignominious end for any bull. Therefore, the Mexican bulls suffered the degradation in the eyes of their fellow-bulls that has come along; and, anyway, dying like lambs was profoundly unbecoming torture for the amusement of bullfight fans.

Then something better has come along. Their passive resistance has paid off. Now they are known as cowards and their mothers are to be salvaged as possible stock from which to breed a new race of matadors. The cows are to be re-ced Aberdeen Angus bulls im-ported for the purpose. T- is a breed to inhabit ranches in the once Andalusian cattle as a pure breed to inhabit ranches in the south.

Still, this longer lease of life is not to be the only many bashful bulls. The majority are painfully aware that they are still on the horns of a dilemma—whether bullied or beef, man will get them sooner or later.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

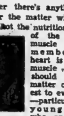
FOR A QUIET MIND

I wonder how many people wake up in the morning with the feeling that they are housed in a cage?

Trapped by some act, or experience, or decision of the past on hand, what a feeling it is to feel you are trapped yesterday, because you have refused to be trapped by failure or defeat, or to be bound by fear or indecision.

How blessed it is to face the new day with a clean conscience, knowing that you have performed in the best way you know. Every day of our lives is filled with meanings that characterize us as we are known by others and as we are revealed to ourselves. To live simply and kindly is an art in itself. If we look for beauty we are sure to find it. But we can be trapped by neglects and foolish designs.

Yesterday is a thing is itself. It is something in the past. Your worries and anxieties are a part of it. Leave them all behind. Do not allow them to trap you into what lies within today. Set yourself apart. Be free, alert, and daring! It is possible that they are still on the milestone in your life. Something noteworthy can happen.



He who puts traps in the woods is trapped himself. He who is seeking the habits and characteristics of the animal. Carefully are his traps concealed. That's the way traps are set for us. We step into them unconsciously and we are not to fall into them.

We can all expect at times to be misunderstood, even maligned without cause. There are often traps to make us angry or careless. It has been said that those whom the gods would destroy they first make mad. What a thing of satisfaction to know that you are always untrapped by any event of yesterday! Free and unchained as well.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

NUTRITION OF THE HEART

Dr. Brady

Whether there's anything in particular the matter with your heart or not the nutritional state of the heart muscle should be a matter of interest to everybody—particularly a young person who engages in athletic activities.

Tell me, mamby-pamby, do you know what second wind means? Any idea how it feels to get second wind?

It's too bad you were not born and raised in Canadaigua. We Chapel Street kids, running to the fires — which seemed to occur before the days of second wind at the Presbyterian Church. That was probably the result, from the starting line, No. 13 school — now, alas, converted to apartments. It was a glorious feeling.

In his classic Exercise in Education and Medicine McKenzie has free goes at it, but even this great teacher does not prescribe what you feel when you get second wind. The mile runner, said McKenzie, usually gets this relief in the third quarter—a sudden relief from the agony of breathlessness, the movements of the chest and abdomen become are amplified, the diaphragm makes tiaphragm makes itself felt, each breath, the chest dilates more steadies and adapts itself to the increased task, the look of distress disappears from the face, the lungs gain fresh power to expand, the head becomes clear, and the muscles act with renewed vigor and elasticity.

I can't tell you how sorry I am for you poor geeks who have never experienced second wind.

I was going to congratulate boys who are being brought up in Canadaigua but a disturbing thought intrudes — it may be that the football peril has invaded Canandaigua schools.

The heart dilates before second wind occurs.

That means the heart is stretched, overfilled with blood. If it is a flabby, poorly nourished, partly trained, inefficiently developed heart, such dilation or stretching may do harm, strain the heart, and handicap the individual indefinitely. This is one reason why I say high school football is an evil. Football is a grown man's game. Certainly boys of high school age should not be permitted to play football.

Whether a runner will get second wind or collapse depends to a considerable extent on the elasticity of the heart muscle, that is, on the tone of the heart. Muscle tone depends on nutrition, and most important of all, dependably efficient nutritional factor is vitamin B.

The best heart tonic, I believe, for growing child or mature is the diet and medicine rich ration of vitamin B complex, manganese and iron. This is not medicine, but just a supplement for the ordinary diet.

How Did He Avoid School?

(Ouen Sound Sun-Times)

It is possible to be born and brought up in Ontario, reach manhood and marriage without ever having gone to school, or without having taught to read and write. Incredible as it may seem, such a case was reported in Hamilton a few days ago.

A defendant in a traffic accident case in Supreme Court was a man of 21 years of age, married, who testified that he had never gone to school and could neither read nor write. He had learned to read, he said, from comic books.

It is recalled that during the war years, enlistments had disclosed some cases of young men in Ontario who had little or no public school education and who had also been born in this province. The explanation was that these young Canadians had been brought up in remote sections of Northern Ontario and were without schools during their younger years. It was indicated that such a thing could never occur except under such circumstances.

Stranger by report of the Hamilton case neglects to say where this man had lived in a child except he had been brought up on a farm. He was obviously in early school age at the period of the uneducated soldiers were being discussed, yet somehow he became lost in the shuffle in the war years. He was not driven living with his mother and father. He was reached by another meagre scrap of evidence that he had married.

Apart from the fact that both the psychiatric and educational aspects astonishment at the young man's admissions, there was no effort made, apparently, to discover how this boy could have been so completely overlooked by school authorities.

So long as any living person can remember, compulsory education has been in effect in Ontario. For over 20 years the minimum age has been set at 15 and 16 years dependent on exceptional circumstances. The man in this instance was a big sub-normal type who would have been noticed from school.

It strikes us as an interesting problem to investigate a little investigatin if for no other reason than to satisfy curiosity.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Sitting with a woman bank official in a hotel lobby yesterday, I asked her a question. There is never any way of generalizing about any contrasting sense of economy between men and women.

"It's wholly individual," said I. "You find as many thrifties among women as you do men, I suppose?"

"Absolutely not," said she. "And the proof is right in front of you."

"Where?"

She smiled and nodded at the ash tray on the coffee table before us.

"Look at those cigarette butts," she suggested. "All the short ones will have smears. All the long ones are unstained by lipstick."

I looked. Several people had been at the table before us. Out of eleven cigarette butts, three had lipstick on them. They were the three shortest in the tray.

"Is that a general rule?" I asked in astonishment.

"Come on," she said, riding. "It's circumstantial evidence and do a little psychological scavenging."

To the mystification of several of the loungers in the lobby, we went from table to table, and then sat by tray to ash tray, peering and poking. With one exception, every butt with lipstick on it had been smoked to within an inch or even less. The one exception was almost a whole cigarette, with lipstick on it, which obviously had been squashed out in a hurry or a tantrum. Maybe the lady had been kept waiting.

And all the unstained butts were definitely longer, many of them a full half cigarette or more.

"Trivial little things like this," said the banker, "reveal the innate sense of economy in women. It is a subject you don't talk your way out of or around."

And I couldn't.

Paul Starts His Letters

CHAPTER 20

For the past three years Paul had been travelling visiting distances on foot and by ship, pausing only to pour forth the sacraments of the faith, and his own eloquent skill in teaching and debate. Rest and hours of quiet prayer and meditation were needed to recharge his energies.

Yet Paul did not wait long before launching his third missionary campaign. He had promised Ephesus to Ephesus, the port at which he had preached so briefly on his way to Jerusalem. His dear friends, Aquila and his wife Priscilla were waiting for him there now. With Silas and Timothy, Paul started off again on foot, revisiting his mission churches on his way westward. Within a few months the three were back in Ephesus.

Here was a city of Gentiles—and of dark-hearted pagans—one of the thousand Roman cities—and even worse, a hidden stronghold of black magic. Witchcraft nested in the new buildings of Ephesus, thaumaturges, diviners of the future and practitioners of the iniquitous secret rites known cryptically as "Ephesian letters."

Yet inside two years, Paul was to transform Ephesus into the third Christian city of the world.

Aquila and Priscilla met him breathlessly, impatient with news. Another preacher had visited Ephesus in Paul's absence—an Egyptian Jew named Apollos, carrying an odd, half-breed version of Christianity.

With no rest, Paul must correct the false teachings of this uncommissioned preacher, meet his converts, rebaptize them and lead them in the Way of Truth. That was the start of his mission in Ephesus the first day of a two-year labor in that city.

He began in the synagogue, disputing and exhorting concerning the Kingdom of God. But agents of the synagogue, crew of elders, scribes and Pharisees soon fomented an opposition party. They detested Paul and all that he stood for. They interrupted him, heckled him, challenged him.

So Paul decided to teach elsewhere. He selected the famous school of Tyrannus, which had gained for Ephesus an enviable reputation for philosophical enquiry. Tyrannus, himself an enlightened man, was quick to see the logic as well as the revelation of the new faith. Hearing Paul in the synagogue, he invited the apostle to use his lecture hall. From the fifth to the tenth hour, the fashionable, perfumed for philosophers of the time, Paul taught Christian doctrine from the platform of the school of Tyrannus.

His old followers, deserting the synagogue, trooped in to hear him, and new disciples jammed the auditorium. Silas and Timothy spent hours daily catechizing the hundreds of converts preparing them for the sacraments. . .

Paul's eloquence was potent, but more startling yet were his miracles and spectacular healings. His prayers and touch opened blind eyes, restored the maimed, and exorcised those evil spirits that roam the world seeking the ruin of souls. And a new gift came to Paul—the power of remote healing.

Yet, amid these brilliant demonstrations of the power of Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, in the rush of his daily routine of teaching and tentmaking, Paul never abandoned his concern for his spiritual sons across the Aegean Sea in Europe. Travellers kept him constantly attuned to the progress and problems of the churches he had established in Macedonia and Achaia. Paul received each morsel of news with paternal eagerness and prayer.

But then three men with worried faces came to Ephesus seeking Paul. Their names were Stephanas and Fortunatus and Achaicus, and they came from Corinth with word of serious trouble.

That glittering city where the fervor of belief had shone like new marble under the spell of Paul's teaching, had fallen into a slough of sinful degradation and unspirituality. Every bestial sin of paganism now paraded boldly in the outward trappings of Christianity; men even dared to receive Holy Communion reeling, staggering drunk. Corinthian morals were perverted, their faith now a travesty of what Paul had preached.

Each of the hairsplitters and self-styled sages taught a new theory of Christianity.

Paul's sharp eyes grew black with sadness. Eighteen months he had lived in Corinth, stitching his tents while he forged the new church, with such seeming-ly overpowering success!

Now the faithful of Corinth were in danger, as surely as if the city lay under siege.

In answer, Paul wrote his First Epistle to the Corinthians.

The letter was addressed not only to them but to all Christians, not only of the year A.D. 57 but of A.D. 2,000 or 20,000. Paul knew the Corinthians' weaknesses, their recurrent doubting. And he knew ours.

Outside the tentmakers' booth the hue and cry of the bazaar hung heavy in the summer air, but Paul sat at his table wrapped in an invisible cloak of silence. One by one he answered the specific questions of his friends in Corinth, dealing with their queries on faith and on morals, on the punishment for fornication, and on proper conduct at Communion.

But under all these lay one basic question — What is a good Christian life?

Paul bowed his head, implor-

Paul sat at his table, wrapped in an invisible cloak of silence. The letter was addressed not only to them but to all Christians, not only of A.D. 57, but of A.D. 2,000 or 80,000.

"If I speak with the tongues of men and of angles, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal . ."

All of the fire of Paul's own love of God went into that deathless epistle, the greatest letter ever written. And yet, the moment it was finished, the stalwart little apostle must immediately wheel his thoughts to meet new problems elsewhere — this time in churches to the east, the churches of Galatia.

Perhaps never before or after, in his living or his dying, did Paul serve the Lord more effectively than in his Epistle to the Galatians.

Paul had hoped that the spectre of the Jewish-Gentile problem had been recently interred and forgotten. But latest reports from Galatia proved that the Judaistic enemies of the new faith were still attacking the converts' beak and claw.

In order to become a good Christian, you must first become a good Jew: that was the essence of their preaching.

And the people of Galatia submitted. Grown men, raised as Gentiles, baptized as Christians, were letting themselves be circumcised and submitting to the rigorous Jewish code of diet. They were putting on the outward shackles of the Pharisees as if there were the required costume for a follower of Christ.

Paul thought back to his first visit to Galatia, remembering the swamp fever from which those men had nursed him; recalling the day in Lystra when he and Barnabas had been stoned after being mistaken for gods. Things seemed desperate to him then, and yet, when an divine command he had retraced his steps through Iconium, Lystra, and Derbe, the eager and believing sympathy of the converts he made proved their worth.

He cherished these Galatians with a father's love. The thought that anyone was perverting their hard-won faith infuriated him. No one knew better than he the danger of trying to reduce Christianity to the level of a Jewish cult.

When the crowded auditorium was empty and his daily chores with canvas and thread in the tentmaker's booth were done, Paul sat alone by rushlight in his room, pondering the best answer to the Galatians' problem. Ephesus was asleep, and the tireless apostle was alone in meditation with his God. In that silent hour was conceived the precise explanation of the difference between the ancient "works of the Law," the fulfillment of ten hundred different regulations of conduct — and the salvation that comes through faith in Christ and works born of that faith.

Paul took up his quill and began to write a circular letter addressed to all the churches of Asia—and to us.

"O senseless Galatians, who hath bewitched you that you should not obey the truth, before whose eyes Jesus Christ hath been set forth, crucified among you? . . .

There is neither Jew nor Greek; there is neither bond nor free; there is neither male nor female. . . .

For you are all one in Christ Jesus. . . . Stand fast, and be not held again under the yoke of bondage . . . for in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth anything, nor uncircumcision: but faith that worketh by charity." ✠

There was the key to the freedom of Christianity, if the Christians would but seize it. "Faith that worketh by charity . . ." And patiently, lovingly Paul explained it all once more to his friends in troubled Galatia.

But no sooner did the letter go off to troubled Galatia than trouble broke around Paul right in the streets of Ephesus, where for two years he had been working marvels of healing in comparative peace.

There were never any truces in the battle between Paul and Satan; few resting periods between struggles; little time when evil went off to lick its wounds and leave the Christian to catch his breath. Now the silent struggle of saint and devil burst into open flames amid the white marble glory of Ephesus.

At the conclusion of the meeting, refreshments were served and a social half-hour enjoyed.

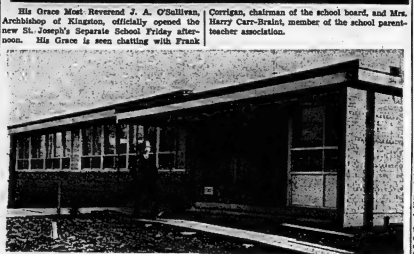
Cheese Dips

Cheese dips are becoming more and more popular for entertaining. They are very easy to make. There is almost no chance of a failure and they can be made in a very few minutes. The following Cheese Dip recipe which came from the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture is very tasty.

NIPPY CHEESE DIP

1 4 oz. package cream cheese
1 4 oz. wedge Canadian Blue Cheese
1-2 teaspoon Worcester sauce
2 teaspoons lemon juice

Mix the cream and blue cheese together. And the Worcester sauce and the lemon juice. Whip with a fork until light and very soft. This recipe makes two-thirds of a cup. Put the dip in an attractive bowl, garnish it with chopped parsley. Place the bowl on a tray or plate and surround it with potato chips or tiny crisp crackers.



A quick cheese spread especially good for holiday entertaining also recommended by the home economists, is made by mixing about a tablespoon each of cranberry sauce and chopped nuts with cream cheese.

CLERIC OUT OF HOSPITAL

The St. Joseph's School is the second new Separate School to be built in Belleville in the past four years. Archbishop O'Sullivan announced a new parish for East Belleville to be named St. Joseph's.

'Christmas in The Home', Topic At Albert College Women's Guild

The Christmas meeting of the Albert College Women's Guild was held in the ladies' parlor of Bridge Street Church, on Friday, with the president, Mrs. Arthur May presiding.

Mrs. R. Riedel, accompanied by Mrs. Egerton Boyce, sang two solos. The first was entitled "Jesu Bambino", and the second was an old French carol, which were very much enjoyed.

Mrs. F. C. Adsett as in charge of the devotional service. She chose as her Bible reading, St. Luke's story of the "Birth of Christ". St. Luke was a poet and his story of the angels appearing to the shepherds is full of music and a charm which never loses its appeal.

APPRECIATION EXPRESSED

Mr. MacKenzie, principal of Albert College, spoke a few words to the ladies of the Guild, expressing appreciation for the help they had given the college at the Manor and also at convocation. He also thanked Mrs. May, the retiring president, for the efficiency with which she had directed the activities of the Guild during her two years' tenure of office. He said that Albert College was enjoying a most useful and prosperous year and that there was a waiting list to enter the school.

Albert College will hold its centenary from September 1956 to June 1957. Plans have already been made to enlarge the girls' residence, "The Manor," as there is not sufficient accommodation for the pupils who wish to enter the school.

Mr. MacKenzie welcomed Mrs. W. H. Finkle, the new president.

PRESENTATION

Mrs. Northcott, on behalf of the Guild, expressed to Mrs. May appreciation of her splendid leadership and efficiency as president of the Guild and presented her with a miniature Japanese garden, the gift of the members.

The new president, Mrs. W. H. Finkle, when accepting the position, made a graceful and witty speech in which she outlined her connection with Albert College. She then mentioned the former presidents of the Guild, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Northcott and Mrs. May, and said that she felt honored to follow them.

GUEST SPEAKER

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. R. W. T. Middleton, from Bayside. Mrs. Middleton opened her address by comparing the preparations made now for Christmas in the homes with those made in Bethlehem when the decree was issued that people must enroll themselves for the payment of taxes. Then, the dwellers in Bethlehem made ready to receive guests and relatives from the surrounding country. Houses were swept and garnished and provisions were laid in to feed the visitors. But the coming of the greatest Visitor of all was known only to a few. The wise men knew, and came bringing gifts, and the angels knew, and appeared to the shepherds, singing carols and the shepherds came to worship Jesus in the stable. So today, homes are decorated to welcome friends and relatives, gifts are bought and Jesus is worshipped by the singing of carols.

To small children, Santa Claus the social commitee served tea.

Christmas Thinking Needs Revision, Says Col. Effer, S. A.

The auditorium of Prince Charles School was filled to overflowing on Thursday evening for the Christmas meeting of the Queen Mary-Prince Charles Home and School Association.

A short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Willis G. Jackson, who warmly welcomed the large gathering of parents, teachers and students. Minutes, reports and small items of business were quickly disposed of and a most enjoyable program followed in which pupils of both schools participated.

The opening numbers consisted of a group recitation "I'd Like To Be," and two group songs, sweetly sung, "Deck the Halls," and "Away in a Manger," performed by Grade four pupils of Prince Charles School.

Brenda Black, of Queen Mary School, followed with a pretty "Mexican Skirt Dance." Prince Charles pupils then rendered three choruses, "While Shepherds Watched", sung in three parts by Junior and senior children; "Oh Jesus Sweet," by the little grade three pupils and "I Wish You a Merry Christmas," sung in three parts with descant by the whole group. Joanne Whalles recited "An Essay on Husband" which provided much merriment.

Eight little Prince Charles pupils then offered a "Christmas Clap Dance," and the program continued with three numbers by Queen Mary pupils; Carol Daugharty, in a delightful reading of "The Christmas Angel's Song," a clever piano selection by Ronald McBride, and an amusing recitation "Who's Afraid?" by Merle Jones, who is now attending B.C.I.

Between program numbers, several Christmas carols were heartily sung by the audience accompanied by Miss Horton.

Mr. Jackson thanked the teachers and pupils for their excellent program and then introduced Col. Wm. G. Effer and S. Capt. F. W. Brightwell of the Salvation Army. Col. Effer, District Commissioner for the Army, told the gathering that "we must revise our thinking about the true meaning of Christmas. No one would think of depriving people of any of the joys and merriment that come at the Christmas season, but sometimes we are so busy with the material side of the occasion that we spend little time pondering over its inner meaning.

"We must always keep in mind that Christ is the central figure of all our rejoicing, and without Him and all He stands for our Christmas celebrations would be pointless. In our gift-giving we should remember that 'it is easy to give without loving, but that is the central figure at Christmas, but Santa Claus represents the spirit of giving, and to older people the spirit of Christmas, is the gentle art of giving out love and of gratitude to God for the gift of His Son, and so

The homes of folks like me and you."

Mrs. Gillis, of Albert College Manor, thanked Mr. Middleton for her inspiring address.

The meeting then closed and

Comrade Club Elects 1954 Officers

The Comrade Club of Tabernacle United Church met on Friday at the home of Mrs. H. R. Varcoe with a good attendance of members present.

The following officers were elected for 1954: president, Mrs. H. R. Varcoe; 1st vice-president, Mrs. G. E. Wambolt; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. L. R. Wannamaker; secretary, Mrs. W. D. Embury; treasurer, Mrs. S. L. Jose; travelling basket convener, Mrs. R. H. McBride; card and flower convener, Mrs. H. R. Moorman.

A Christmas party followed the regular meeting with an exchange of Christmas gifts.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mrs. C. A. Mott, retiring president, graciously expressed thanks to Mrs. Varcoe for her kind hospitality.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LETTERS AND ANSWERS

NEEDED: A YOUTH CENTER—WHY NOT GET BUSY AND START ONE?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are a group of teen-age girls who live in a small town with no decent place for young people to go. If we want to go anywhere after the movies at night, we have to drive way out of town to some roadhouse or other, and we don't feel they are the right kind of places for us to go.

The trouble is, that since there are no other places, the boys can't see why we don't want to go there and if we refuse, they can always find girls who are willing. It's getting so that because of that we often find ourselves without dates, while the boys pass us by for the girls who aren't so fussy about where they go.

Do you think there is anything we can do about this, or will we just have to be content to stay home every night by ourselves?

Patricia H.

Dear Patricia:

I don't think your problem is hopeless by any means, but to solve it, you girls are going to have to put your heads together and work hard, with all the initiative you have.

What you all should do is to get busy and work up some sort of recreational program that would be so interesting for the young people of your town that the boys won't want to be left out.

To do this, you will have to enlist the help of some of the adults in town who are sufficiently interested in young people to get together and work with you. My suggestion would be for you to appoint a committee of three or four of you who would go to see some of the men and women whom you feel would be most sympathetic toward your problem, picking them out from different fields.

For example, have your committee visit the minister who seems most interested in young people. Let them pay another visit to the principal of the high school, or some popular high school teacher. Also, have the committee call on some of the mothers and some of the fathers who should be interested in what their sons and daughters are doing.

In each case, tell the person you call on that you young people need a teen-age center and want their help in campaigning for one and working out a good, lively program of activities to go on there. Since you girls have the good sense to recognize the need for recreational facilities in your town, and to avoid letting the lack of them drive you to places where you know you should not be, I believe you have the energy, imagination and enterprise to put a teen-age program over. Lets see what you can do!

SHE IS 18, HER FIANCE IS 30 — DOES IT MATTER?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 18 and engaged to a man who is 30. I have known him since I was ten years old, and we seem to have everything in common. Even when I was much younger, we liked to go around together and seemed very congenial, probably because I am an only child and have been used to being with adults more than with people of my own age. How to Address Christmas Cards to a Clergyman

To a Protestant clergyman without a scholastic degree:

The Reverend Peter Allen

To a Protestant clergyman with a scholastic degree (D.D., for example):

The Reverend Dr. Thomas Phelps

(or: The Reverend Thomas Phelps, D.D.)

To a clergyman and wife:

The Reverend (or The Rev. Dr.) and Mrs. Paul Davis; (or: The Reverend Paul Davis and Mrs. David); (or: The Rev. Dr. Paul Davis and Mrs. Davis).

To a Roman Catholic priest:

The Reverend Joseph Kenna

(This is the correct form of address also for Greek Orthodox priests, and Anglican priests who are addressed as "Father.")

The initials of the order may be added:

The Reverend Joseph Kenna, S.J.

To a Monsignor:

The Right Reverend Monsignor Paul E. Breslin; or: The Very Reverend Monsignor.

Here is a most important note: The word The should always be written before the word Reverend used with the name of a clergyman or priest. The Reverend ——. The Reverend Dr. ——. The Right Reverend ——.

Why? Because "Reverend" is not a little like "Mr." or "Dr." It is an adjective and correctly used in addressing those in the spiritual profession. Therefore when you address the envelope never write "Reverend John Smith" — always preface that with: The

In Mourning . . . Should She Send Christmas Cards?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My father passed away a few months ago. Will it be improper for me to send Christmas cards this year?—M.C.

It is not necessary for you to send Christmas cards this year, but it is entirely proper if you wish to. Do just as you feel you wish to — of course your friends will understand. If you send cards choose ones with a religious or traditional theme, and send cards only to relatives like this man very much, and my age would matter? I feel sure myself that we would have a happy life together, but I would like your opinion, too.

E.S.H.

As a general rule, I would certainly feel that the marriage of an 18-year-old girl and a 30-year-old man would be exceedingly ill-advised. In general, also, I'm not very enthusiastic about a girl of your age getting married at all. While I am quite willing to admit that, in exceptional cases, this sort of age difference seems to work out all right, I do think it has its hazards.

That is my frank opinion, but if you and your parents look at it differently, that is your own affair, and you are the ones who should make the decision.

A Birthday Party For a Young Lady

By Mary Moore

"Dear Mary: . . .I have a daughter who will be eighteen, just thirty seconds after midnight. . . .I would like to have her last birthday at home for some time. . . .she enters nurses' training next year. . . . the guests will be mostly teen-agers who are not overly but like lots of fun. . . .I want a menu that is not sandwiches . . . and any games that will appeal to this crowd of thirty. —Mrs. Roy F."

That letter arrived the day after my Marianne's 21st birthday and since she is just finishing her second year of nurses' training you can imagine how happy I am to have a hand in the party for an 18-year-old embryo nurse.

Let me steal the show for a minute to tell you how we celebrated.

The 20th of November was a Sunday and by good fortune a day off for Marianne, for she was transferring from The General for affiliation at the Maternity Hospital. (The day after she was 21 she became born. To her it was such a world-shaking event you would think the baby was her own.)

I know the manager of the beef department of a packinghouse. I knew this packing plant had bought prize beef carcasses at the Royal Winter Fair so I naively telephoned to see if I could get a small part of one of those prize carcasses, and to my utter surprise the answer was "Yes." So I ordered a 4-rib standing rib roast which weighed 9 lbs. This I roasted at 325 deg. Fahr. for three hours, then shifted it to the burning oven and poured into the pan a 6-egg Yorkshire pudding, that had raised the temperature to 450 deg. Fahr. meanwhile.

Marianne chose the menu all through: Duchess potatoes, spinach, green salad with cucumbers and tomatoes, fruit cup with "big chips of grapefruit in it" and a professionally frosted birthday cake (courtesy of her doting friends) decorated with "Happy 21st Birthday Marianne".

I ran through the house because Mrs. Roy F. might pick up an

Don't Affix Sticker to Front of Envelope

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to put a Christmas seal on the front of a Christmas card envelope? I have a supply of seals of a certain charity in which I am particularly interested and I would like to put these in the most conspicuous place to call attention to them.—Sarah W.

Christmas seals and any other kind of sticker should not be affixed to the front of the envelope. They might divert attention from the name and address.

Sign Your Name Last on Christmas Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When signing Christmas cards, whose name comes first — "Mary and John Smith" or "John and Mary Smith"?—D.M.

ides (and because I wanted to tell you about the prize beef which was certainly a hit), but my suggestion for her 30 late-teen-agers for a midnight supper as is follows:

Chicken Casserole (see below)
Oven Toasted French Stick
Celery Hearts Carrot Sticks
Stuffed Olives
Birthday Cake Cocoa
(see below)

CHICKEN CASSEROLE

(This is given for a double recipe: it serves 10 to 12 adequately. Mrs. Roy F. will have to make 2 or 2 1-3 of these. Many of you will be serving 12 during the Christmas entertaining season. It may be made the day before the party, kept in refrigerator and baked when needed. It definitely is an extra good party dish. The national president of the Women's Press Club is serving it at a pre-Christmas party in a menu we arranged together.)

Your tablespoons each butter and flour, 1 cup chicken stock, 1 1-2 cups evaporated milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 cups cooked pigs (1 1-2 cups when raw), 1 7-lb. boiling fowl, 1-4 lb. sliced mushrooms, 1-4 cup each chopped pimento and green pepper, 1-2 cup sliced blanched almonds. Make a white sauce of the first six ingredients. Boil chicken until tender and take meat from bones in rather large pieces. Add mushrooms, pimentoes and pepper to hot sauce. Arrange in large casserole in layers: some sauce, some rice, some chicken, repeating until all are used, being sure to have sauce, then almonds on top. Bake for 35 to 40 minutes, at 350 deg. Fahr.

If you want to make a "different" birthday cake, make an angel cake, frost it with sweetened whipped cream into which you have folded sliced red and green cherries and shaved Brazils. Outline the number 18 in deep colored candles on top.

Games—Charades and Twenty Questions. Be sure to make them difficult—for the more obscure they are too more fun the folks have.

The one signing cards should write her or his name last. If Mary is signing the cards (as she usually does), she signs John and Mary. John signs Mary and John.

Canada's Political Picture Ends Year Much As It Started

By JOHN D. REID
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)Despite one federal and three provincial elections Canada's political picture ends the year much the same as it started.

Prime Minister St. Laurent's Liberal government was returned to office last August after a hectic summer campaign with a slightly reduced majority. British Columbia's minority Social Credit government, elected in 1952, was re-elected with a small working majority last June. The Liberal-Progressive government of Manitoba and the Liberal government of Nova Scotia won elections in June with their strength slightly decreased.

The Liberals held 181 seats in the House of Commons when the federal election was announced last June; the Progressive Conservatives 48, CCF 13, Social Credit 10, Independent Liberals one and Independents two. There were five vacancies in the 263-seat chamber.

ELECT 179 LIBERALS

After the votes were counted the Liberals held 170 of the 265 seats, three more than the last Parliament as a result of redistribution. The Progressive Conservatives strength was 51, CCF 23, Social Credit 15, Independent three, Independent Liberals two and Liberal-Labor one.

The PC membership was reduced to 30 by the death of Gordon Graydon, member for the Ontario riding of Peel, by-election will be held early in 1954.

The Social Credit party won 20 of the 46 seats in the B.C. legislature, but lost one in a by-election in Victoria in November. The CCF has 14 seats, the Liberals five, the Conservatives one and Independent Labor one.

Premier Angus Macdonald went back into power in Nova Scotia with 22 of the 37 seats. The Conservatives formed the opposition with 13 seats, and two CCF members were elected. In Manitoba, Premier Douglas Campbell's Liberal-Progressives took 32 of the 57 seats; the Conservatives opposition 12, the CCF 5, Social Credit two, Independents four, Independent Liberals one and the Labor-Progressives one.

FEDERAL VOTE LOWER

Four of the members elected to the 22nd Parliament are women. They are Mrs. Ann Shipley, 53, (L—Timiskaming); Miss Sybil Bennett, 44, (PC—Halton); Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, 48,; (PC — Hamilton West), and Miss Margaret Aitken, 45, (PC—York Humber).

A total of 5,640,837 of 9,384,178 eligible voters cast ballots, compared with 5,848,971 in 1949. The Liberals received 2,318,038 votes, the Conservatives 1,171,673, the CCF 636,191 and Social Credit 305,903.

All members of the armed forces voted, since the regular services went on active duty after the outbreak of the Korean war. They included 19-year-old apprentices in the army and navy.

The election was held after a long campaign by opposition parties against government trade, taxation and defence policies.

The Liberals sought and won re-election on previous performance and made no promises to the electors. The Conservatives promised a $500,000,000 slash in taxes as their main plank.

CABINET CHANGES

The election date had been announced by Mr. St. Laurent after his return from the Coronation in London, where he also attended a meeting of Commonwealth prime ministers. At the same time he announced the resignation of Works Minister Fournier, who was appointed to the Exchequer Court, and named J. W. Pickersgill, clerk of the Privy Council, as secretary of state.

The Coronation was attended by a large number of cabinet ministers, private members and senators and their wives. A special armed services contingent and the RCMP's musical ride highlighted Canada's contribution to the ceremony.

After the election, Mr. St. Laurent announced a minor shuffle of his cabinet. Resources Minister Winters was transferred to the vacant works portfolio and Jean Lesage, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, took over Mr. Winter's post.

Before the opening of the 22nd Parliament, Mr. St. Laurent appointed a female of 13 parliamentary assistants. They included W. G. Weir, Liberal whip from Portage-Neepawa, as assistant to the prime minister.

The election victory marked the start of the 19th year of Liberal party government and Mr. St. Laurent's sixth year of party leadership.

NEW SENATORS

During the year, Mr. St. Laurent appointed 11 senators, bringing the strength of the upper house to 81 Liberals and eight Conservatives, with 13 vacancies. The new senators include former Commons speaker W. Ross Macdonald; former secretary of state Bradley and three women—Mrs. Nancy Hodges, Victoria; Mrs. Mariana B. Jodoin, Montreal, and Mrs. Muriel McQueen Fergusson, Fredericton.

Besides attending the Coronation, a number of cabinet ministers visited other countries on state business.

External Affairs Minister Pearson, Defence Minister Claxton and Finance Minister Abbott attended NATO meetings in Paris, Mr. St. Laurent in Washington last May and President Eisenhower returned the visit in November.

Trade Minister Howe was in Geneva for a meeting of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. Agriculture Minister Gardiner represented Canada at a meeting of the UN food and agriculture organization in Rome. Fisheries Minister Sinclair headed the Canadian delegation to the Colombo conference in New Delhi, India, and Health Minister Martin led the Canadian delegation at the UN while Mr. Pearson was president of the general assembly.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was in the kitchin watching ma making lam curry out of yesterday's left over lam, and she was stirring it in the pot while it was cooking, saying, My men are so funny. They hold up their hands in horror at the thought or suggestion of left over lam, but just give it to them in a highly spiced curry, and the, think they've strayed into an expensive French restaurant.

Which just then the telefone rang and ma said, I think that's for me, Benny, stir this curry till I come back, she said.

And she went to answer the telephone, and I remembered my new Atomic Age electric book on the hall table, and I ran and got it and started to reed it with one hand while I was stirring the curry, and pritty soon I stopped stirring on account of the comic book getting so intriziting, and the next thing I noticed was a few smoak, and I thought, Heck, it's berning.

And I quick started to stir it again, being a little harder to stir, expecially on the bottom, and I thought, Gosh, I better do something.

Which I did, pritting in some curry powder and then some more, ma came back and took the spoon back and tasted the lam curry, making her cawf with her hand on her throat, and she said, Goodness, did I put in all that curry powder for, land sakes?

Me-thinking, Heck, and I said, Are you asking me, ma, or just talking to yourself? Making her reailze what happened, and she said, Benny Potts, I declare I'd tell your father, but the way he feels about left over lam, he would probably just loff.

Which he probably would of, and the result was we had stake under onions.

$750,000,000 Seaway-Power Project Seems to Have Sound Prospects of Start Next Spring

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The $750,000,000 St. Lawrence seaway-power project seemed to have sound prospects of a 1954 start as this year closed.

After a half century of controversy and inertia—largely south of the river—this greatest of all Canada-United States peacetime enterprises had come up to the last two visible hurdles.

And Canadian officials were hopeful these would be cleared in time to get the huge navigation and hydro development into construction within the year.

OPPONENTS' LAW SUIT

The two remaining obstacles:

1. A lawsuit by opponents before the United States Court of Appeals, on which final hearings were due to start Dec. 23.

2. An expected appeal by the same opponents to the U.S. Supreme Court in the event they lose out before the lower body.

Seaway advocates are confident of winning any appeal to the top U.S. court, but it is believed here a final verdict would be needed by late May or early June to ensure a 1954 start. After that, the court would be in recess for the summer.

Meanwhile, Canadian authorities looked back with satisfaction on the second year in a row in which long strides have been made.

MAJOR DEVELOPMENT

During the year, the U.S. Federal Power Commission took the major move of naming the New York state power authority as the U.S. entity to share with the Ontario hydro-electric power commission the $450,000,000 cost and the 2,200,000 horsepower of the power phase of the seaway.

That was one of the biggest steps ever taken on the seaway in the U.S. And it is the decision that may be under challenge in the American courts.

After the action, Canada and the U.S. got together in the fall on the naming of a joint board of engineers to give over-all supervision to the hydro construction job. The board is one of three top appointive bodies that would have a hand in the project.

Others—still to be named—are an "authority" to build and operate the $300,000,000 deep navigation system around the International Rapids section of the river, and a board of control to regulate the use of water with an eye to levels in Lake Ontario and in the river below the development.

PRELIMINARY WORK

Along with these moves, the federal transport department and Ontario Hydro launched preliminary work in the seaway area, to clear the decks for actual construction as soon as a definite go-ahead is received.

Apart from the question of a final clearance from the U.S. courts, one more big question mark remained:

Who will build the navigation facilities to route deep-sea ships into and out of the Great Lakes past the hydro development?

The Canadian government, after waiting more than 10 years for Congress to ratify a Canada-U.S. treaty for a joint job by the two federal governments, decided last year to go ahead on her own.

This year, Congress once more had before it legislation for joint participation. Once again, the legislation was pigeonholed.

PRESIDENT HOPEFUL

President Eisenhower, addressing Parliament here Nov. 14, exercised the hope Congress will vote next year to have the U.S. go in jointly with Canada.

If it does not, the Canadian government is ready to finance the waterway part of the development. In fact, it would be just as happy to do the work alone and thus retain control over the canals, which then would be built on the Canadian side of the river.

One worry in this respect is that, should Congress fail to act in 1954, there might develop pressure from Washington on the Canadian government to "wait until next year" in the hope of getting joint action.

Whether or not a start is made in 1954, completion of the seaway is still some years in the future. The hydro construction will take about four years. The waterway's finish will take a year or more longer.

Narcotics Squad Arrests 7 Men In Buffalo Chase

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Police arrested seven men Friday night and seized 52 capsules of suspected heroin when two speeding automobiles failed to break through an electronic police net set up south of this city.

State police said they pursued both cars at speeds greater than 90 miles an hour before forcing them to stop.

The Buffalo narcotics squad said the net was set up when it learned an attempt would be made to bring narcotics here from Cleveland. State and local police patrolled roads leading into the city for more than 12 hours.

All the arrested men gave Buffalo addresses.

So You Think You Have Woes? Ever Been Shot By a Rake? Does Fido Drive Your Car?

BY PAUL JONES
Director of Public Information
Making Safety Counsel

CHICAGO — So you think you got troubles — that everything happens to you?

Well, have you been shot by your lawnmower lately? Or by a rake? Or by a deer?

—Have you had to go around wearing a kitchen sink on your finger? Has your little girl driven the family car into the living room?

No? Then down, boy! You haven't had it at all. For all those wacky things, and many others, happened in 1953 to people who were just as surprised as you would be if they happened to you.

Take a look at the dizzy doings turned in by the National Safety Council in its annual roundup of odd accidents:

SHOT BY LAWNMOWER

Robert Heinbaugh was cutting the grass in the yard at Painesville, Ohio, when all of a sudden he felt shot—and it wasn't from heat or fatigue. His mower had run over a bullet and plugged him in the big leg.

In Santa Cruz, Calif., John Plumbe was also by a rake he had always regarded as trustworthy. He was raking rubbish into a bonfire. In the rubbish was a shotgun shell. Bang!

And in Payson, Utah, Shirl Kelsey knelt triumphantly beside the deer he had just shot down. The animal kicked defiantly, struck the trigger of Kelsey's gun, and the bullet hit Kelsey in the thigh.

Any hospital attendant will tell you that some patients bring everything with them but the kitchen sink. Four-year-old Joan Williams, of Texarkana, Ark., even brought that! She had to—it was attached to her finger. Joan had stuck the finger in the drain of the sink, and it stayed there. After simpler methods failed, her father unbolted the sink and took it and Joan to the hospital. They eventually were separated.

DROVE INTO LIVING ROOM

Safety experts do a lot of talking about the minimum age for safe driving. The parents of Mary Jane Rodden can tell them that two and a half years is too young. That's how old Mary Jane was the day she somehow managed to start the family car as it stood in the driveway of the Rodden home in Memphis. She had no place in particular to go, so she drove into the Rodden living room. The only thing not expensively damaged was Mary Jane. She felt fine.

And before you sneer "just another woman driver" at Mary Jane, ponder the case of young Anthony Wiley, of Detroit, who got behind the wheel of his family car, started it up and drove it slambang into the home of his next door neighbor. Tony got off scot free with the police, too. Maybe it was because he was only two years old.

DOG DROVE CAR

Well, if babies can drive cars, a real smart animal ought to get away with it too. At least that's what a dog in Lincoln, Nebr., figured. So when Mrs. Jewell Norman left her car with the motor idling, her pet pooch climbed from the back seat into the front, pawed the gear shift a bit, and backed the car accurately and resoundingly into another car. His licence has been suspended.

In Memphis, Tenn., J. C. Lightfoot stood beneath a tree on a gentle day and drank deeply of the sunshine and the fresh, clean air. He was struck with the beauty of nature. Then he was struck by something else—an ear of corn dropped with precision and force by a squirrel in the branches above. Mr. Lightfoot left the beauties of nature to go home and nurse a long, deep gash in his head.

Voters are asked to swallow a lot of things in a political campaign, but most of them don't go quite as far as nine-year-old Charles Scheurger, of Mitchell, Ill., did in the last presidential election. He swallowed an "I Like Ike" button and had to go to the hospital to have it removed.

Thirteen-year-old Horace Boutwell, of Houston, Tex., watched breathlessly as Wild Bill Hickok pulled the bad men on TV. Then Horace got out his trusty air rifle and blazed away at a 22 calibre rifle bullet resting on a saw horse several feet away. His dead-center shot sent the casing of the 22 cartridge whizzing back into his shoulder. At the hospital he smiled happily. "Let's see Wild Bill stop that!" he said.

LATE SHOT

Historians may dispute it, but the last shot of the Civil War was fired in 1953—not in 1865. It happened in the living room of the Ishmael Lynch home in Port Gibson, Miss. A Civil War shell, found long ago on a nearby battlefield, fell from a mantel and exploded, blasting holes in the floor, walls and ceiling. No Union or Confederate casualties.

Sign Your Name, PAGAN

Historians also will be interested to know that George Washington and Benjamin Franklin met again in 1953—not in Independence Hall, but in Richmond, Va. Their trucks collided on a downtown street.

When Eugene Duda's car jumped the curb and knocked down a lamp post in Windsor, Ont., his girl friend took "the blame. "It wasn't his fault," she told police. "I kissed him." Her name? Betty Loveless. After this she probably will.

And in Santa Barbara, Calif., the Coffey-Post accident really had things perkin'. A car driven by Thomas C. Coffey collided with one driven by Ben Post. Police didn't hold either driver. No arounds!

LIGHTS TOO BRIGHT

Charles Carter wasn't the least bit excited when he hurried to the hospital to see his brand new baby daughter. The only reason he walked through the new glass front of the Washington County hospital in Hagerstown, Md., he insisted, was because he was dazzled by the bright lights in the hospital lobby.

And in the same city—Hagerstown, Md.—17-year-old Donald Springer made a hit all right—but he didn't get to first base. He took a big swing at the ball, missed it, and his jaw go hard he fractured it.

Police get used to almost anything in the way of traffic accidents. But even they were impressed when a wrecked crashed into an automobile at Holland, Mich. High winds picked the boat out of Lake Michigan and hurled it into the side of the car on a lakefront road.

When Joe Fee fell from the top of a tree he was pruning in Portland, Ore., he didn't get a scratch. But his wife did. She got a lump on the head, a bruised hand and other injuries. He landed on bed.

And in New Orleans, young Carmen Harris had too much bounce to the ounce as he jumped up and down on a sofa in his third-floor apartment. He bounced right out an open window into a sand pit 45 feet below. The soft sand and the hard stamina of a rugged four-year-old boy enabled him to escape with minor injuries.

Dry Ray, of Miami, Fla., was burned and injured in a fall from his front porch, but he still figures he was lucky. He fell asleep while smoking and awoke with his clothing in flames. In the resulting confusion he fell off the porch, landed on a water faucet and broke it. The stream of water put out the flames.

Many a man has been saved, as the saying goes, by the seat of his pants. But none perhaps as literally as David Causey, of Tuscaloosa, Ala. Causey's car went out of control and came to rest hanging over a railroad overpass. Causey was thrown out. The seat of his trousers snagged on the undercarriage of his car, and he was left dangling 60 feet above the railroad tracks. "Best seat I ever had," he told his rescuers.

LIGHTNING OBLIGING

In Grand Rapids, Mich., lightning struck a furniture factory and started a fire. A minute later a second bolt struck a fire alarm box in the factory, set off the alarm and brought fire engine companies to put out the blaze.

Seymour Korn unfortunately did not get to see the safety parade he had helped arrange for the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Washington, D.C. As Mr. Korn made a last-minute checkup of a float, an artificial tree fell over and bopped him on the head. By the time the doctors had taken up, the parade was over.

And in Lakewood, Calif., Eugene Peele, a careful man, decided to stay home over the Fourth of July and avoid the hazards of holiday traffic. He did decide to go for a inspect his lawn. Bending over to admire a tender shoot, he was knocked flat by a brass brass which had been shaken loose from a passing plane.

So you think you got troubles — that everything happens to you? Just keep on smiling, bub, and be glad for the humdrum life you live!

Volunteer Searching Ends After Week-Long Hunt Fails To Reveal Any Trace of Girl

U.S. JUDGE IN GERMANY REFUSES TO OBEY ORDER TO RETURN TO U.S.

Chief Justice William Clark, is shown as he continued to work at his desk in Frankfurt despite his dismissal by the U.S. state department and an order to return by December 7 to Washington for consultation. In suspending Clark, the state department named as associate Justice Carl W. Fulghum to replace him as head of the American court system in Germany. Refusing to step down, Judge Clark said: "They'll find me because I would not take their orders. I am going to remain and hold court as usual." Later, he declined to comment when he learned that Judge Fulghum would take over his duties immediately.

TORONTO (CP)—The search for Marion McDowell has entered its second week without a trace being found of the lively 10-year-old tyke last seen kidnapped from her boy friend's car on a suburban lovers' lane.

Volunteer searching was called off Sunday night, a week from the time it began. Police said their investigation will continue.

The high-spirited, baby-faced blonde, whose tastes run to motorcycle riding, roller skating and listening to Johnnie Ray records, vanished the Sunday night of Dec. 5 after going out for a drive with James Wilson, 19-year-old laborer.

Wilson told police a strange dark man, masked and armed, yanked open the left door of his car, demanded his wallet containing $18 and then slugged him. Wilson said that, when he regained consciousness, he saw his sedan planing the apparently unconscious girl in the trunk of a car which he then drove away.

During the days that followed, police aided by hundreds of volunteer searchers made a foot-by-foot search of the lovers' lane area of suburban Scarborough township and gradually widened the search to the whole of the township and parts of suburban municipalities.

SEARCH VAIN

Searchers in helicopters, in divisions, equipment, many on foot, and with portable radio equipment, poked into virtually every building, field, ravine or stream that could hold the girl's body or any other clue to her fate. They found nothing to help.

The girl's photograph was televised and printed in the newspapers. Her description went out to the papers and over the air. Her father broadcast appeals for help over the radio.

The offer of $2,000 in reward money brought countless tips, all of which were checked, including sembling the missing Marion were reported to the Thamesville, 20 miles north of Chatham, and in many small places. Police interviewed more than 200 of the girl's friends and acquaintances.

Tuesday night of last week, Police Chief Wilfred McLellan of Scarborough announced that, as a result of the thorough search, he was satisfied the girl was not in the township, dead or alive.

He also said he thought the girl still alive, that she had left home of her own free will.

Early this morning Inspector would not run away without telling her father. Her father said she would only leave him again if someone forced her to do so.

And that left the father thanked the volunteer searchers and praised the work of the police. He said:

"I don't want to give up, but I don't know where to turn next."

Sleet and Rain Pelt Eastern United States

CHICAGO (AP)—Rain, sleet and snow pelted the eastern United States today and a great mass of cold air was expected to settle in central plains as it moved southward.

The storm that was expected to dump a heavy fall of snow in western Pennsylvania and New York State, was dropping up to 75 of an inch of rain in the Carolinas and Virginia.

Pennsylvania had snow, sleet and rain. There was rain and snow in the eastern Great Lakes region. Southern Missouri had snow flurries.

A northeast storm moving up the Atlantic seaboard was expected to bring winds of occasional gale force and steady rain to New York before noon. Forecasters said the rain will stop in the afternoon, with the wind diminishing somewhat but continuing strong into the evening.

Makes Newsprint Of Poplar Wood

CLEVELAND, O. (AP) — Kimberly Chemical Co. announced Saturday night it has successfully produced newsprint from a pulp composed 40 per cent of relatively plentiful poplar wood.

Edward R. Tinklenoll, vice-president and technical director, said previous experiments were unsuccessful mainly because only 20 per cent hardwood was used.

Hardwood such as poplar, gum, wood and eglionwood are so plentiful they are regarded as "waste."

The Cleveland Plain Dealer, one of the firm's owners, sponsored the project. Tinklenoll said more than 1,000 tons of the new paper were turned out in the experiment at the Hennepin Paper Co.'s mill at Little Falls, Minn.

The Kimberly Company said it believes it can manufacture the paper for slightly more than the present $126 a ton Canadian price. Almost all the newsprint consumed in the United States is produced in Canada.

In Montreal, general manager Frank Mitchell of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association said Canadian mills have been using poplar wood in varying quantities for some time and there appeared to be nothing revolutionary in the process.

Mother of Former Boxing Champ Dies in Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—Mrs. Lillie Barrow Brown, mother of former world heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis, died Sunday night, a month to the day before her 66th birthday. The end came. She had been suffering from a stroke of unknown duration more than a year.

Last September, Mrs. Brooks was critically ill in hospital here. But when her condition improved she returned to the home she had bought for her shortly after his first championship fight with Max Baer. About a week ago she went to Mary Wells in daughter, Mrs. Emmarell Davis, and to the home of a home that she died.

Born in the most humble of circumstances in Lafayette, Ala., Mrs. Brooks bore 18 children in two marriages.

She and her large family came to Detroit in 1926.

Though she was her famous son's life, she refused to attend many of his fights.

"I just can't stand to see Joe get hurt," she would say.

Grant Application

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario labor-relations board Saturday granted an application to certify organizing rights of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL) at the No. 1 plant of the Savage Shoe Company at Preston.

In a ballot conducted at the plant by the board Nov. 25, workers voted against the union as its bargaining agent. The vote was 189 against the union and 68 for it. Workers at Kitchener were on strike most of the summer.

Attempted Murder Charged After Bitter Quarrel

WALLACEBURG (CP)— Police said Sunday John Furo, 47, of Wallaceburg, was charged with attempted murder following a quarrel Saturday night in which a visitor to his farm was attacked with a hatchet.

Joe Nagy, of Wallaceburg, was reported in serious condition in Chatham hospital with head injuries, body cuts and a broken left leg, as a result of the attack. Police said Nagy identified Furo as his assailant.

No reason was given for the quarrel.

Police said Furo surrendered quietly when he was found in his car on a sideroad about two miles from his farm. Furo also gave up a shotgun from the luggage compartment of the car.

Furo was taken to jail at Sarnia and was scheduled to appear in court today.

Stormont Mill Canadian Cottons Will Be Closed

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Cott.as Ltd., will cease operations at one of its three mills in Cornwall, it was announced Saturday.

J. Irving Roy, president of the company, said a decision to close Stormont mill, where 385 workers are employed, has taken "with the greatest regret."

"For some months past all the company's mills have operated at a very low rate of production resulting in unsatisfactory operating conditions and abnormally high costs of production," Mr. Roy said. "In the case of the Stormont mill, the resulting losses it has been decided to close the Stormont mill, which is the oldest mills of the company."

Mossadegh's Speaker Praises Former Premier

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ahmad Razavi, who was former premier Mossadegh's strongest defender as speaker in parliament, gave a spirited defense of the late dictator's rule Sunday as the Mossadegh treason trial completed its first day.

Razavi told the court: "Mossadegh was a political leader. A number of people gathered around him with extreme interest. We do not regret co-operating with him nor are we sorry for the services we rendered him. It is not a shame but glory for all of us."

Mossadegh sudden him head vigorously as Razavi paid this tribute.

Opens Art Gallery

HAMILTON (CP) — Governor-General Massey Saturday officially opened the Art Gallery of Hamilton.

"Hamilton has lived up to its great reputation for originality and teamwork in the way you have raised your funds," he said.

The public was admitted Sunday to the new building, contributed chiefly by the efforts of 30 years of effort on the part of many citizens.

Intoxication Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Arthur Laing, leader of the British Columbia Liberal party, was arrested here Saturday night and charged with being intoxicated in a public place.

Police said Laing was charged after an automobile in which he was riding was stopped by traffic officers. He is to appear in court Thursday.

STILL "GAME" AT 73!

Mrs. Rose Spencer Pearson, 73, is given a kiss from her great-grandson, Bruce Hall, two, after she made her first helicopter flight in Los Angeles. Looking on is Pilot Major W. T. Scarborough, USMC. Mrs. Pearson made the trip as part of the nation-wide observance in the United States of the anniversary of the Wright brothers' flight. In 1902, Mrs. Pearson became famous as the world's first "Lady Aircraft Skipper" when she flew alone in a balloon over London. — (Central Press Canadian.)

NATO Ministerial Meeting Will Approve 1954 Goals

By TOM MASTERSON

PARIS (AP)— French foreign minister Georges Bidault told the opening session of the NATO ministerial meeting today that President Eisenhower's plan for an atomic pool for peace would "subvert an immense material power from a deathly destruction toward the peaceful progress of mankind."

Bidault, chairman of the meeting, said to the nearly 50 foreign, defence and finance ministers from the 14 North Atlantic member countries that a positive Soviet reply to the Eisenhower proposal would bring "incalculable political consequences."

"Never before would disarmament convey so many promises of a happy life."

The ministers crowded into the huge conference room of the Palais de Chaillot overlooking the Seine River for their 12th meeting on building up the defence of Western Europe.

Canada's delegation is headed by External Affairs Minister Pearson and Defence Minister Claxton.

Later today U.S. state secretary Dulles was expected to tell them they must press on with their rearmament program no matter what they hope will come out of the Big Four's projected Berlin conference.

DULLES ADDRESS

In his address today, Dulles was to emphasize:

1. That the Russian threat is still very great to the democratic way of life in France and the other NATO nations.

2. That the European army treaty must be ratified.

3. That the 12 German divisions to be raised for the army are not the only important feature of the pact; that equally important is the impetus it will give to the integration of western Europe.

But Dulles also was reported planning to tell the French under the European Defence Community (EDC) treaty is ratified by next spring, he can't promise how much money Congress will be willing to appropriate for European defence bills.

Bidault was expected to ask that the North Atlantic Treaty be extended to 50 years from its present limit of 20 years. That would make its binding ties on the U.S. just as long as the EDC treaty binding Germany and France together. There is an additional obligation on the United States to protect France against any future German invasion.

U.S. sentiment here seemed to indicate a willingness to go along with such a French request.

Hopes of concrete results from the Berlin meeting of the British, French, U.S. and Soviet foreign ministers are a powerful deterrent to French ratification of EDC. French and U.S. officials are aware the French assembly won't approve West German rearmament so long as there appears any chance that the Berlin parley may produce some other road for Germany to go.

Brownell, McCarthy Differ Over Whether All Risks Removed

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Attorney-General Herbert Brownell says he has no suspicion that plants have been cleaned out of the United States government. But Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep., Wis.) disagrees.

Brownell said in a transcribed Texas radio speech Sunday night he believes all federal employees suspected of Communist tendencies have been dismissed.

"We think that they are all out of government now," he said.

"But the president has promised that within the coming year we will have completed the employee security program so that the people can be sure that none of them are in fact subversives."

"And those that are outside, we are going to go after them sep arately," he declared.

McCarthy, Communist hunting chairman of the senate investigations subcommittee, said on the "meet the press" television program Sunday night that more than 1,000 persons are enjoying loyalty grounds every day.

BROWNELL HAS MORE

The administration "is heading in the right direction" in eliminating subversives from government, but "I don't think the job is ended," McCarthy said.

Brownell said "one of the first things that President Eisenhower did when he came into office was to set up an employee security program."

"And I am glad to say when the first report came out about a month ago it showed that the security risks have been fired from the government or have resigned," Brownell said he "brought out those facts" on the Harry Dexter White case because "the people of this country are entitled to know what goes on in their government."

FOOR TURNOUT

ST. GEORGE (CP)—Three trustees turned up for a nomination meeting Friday night but there were no citizens present to nominate them or anyone else. Earl Tansley, chairman of the trustee board, said it was not unusual in this police village He recalled one year when three vacancies were held before enough candidates were nominated to fill the three seats.

YUKON PIONEER DIES

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—Mrs. Mabel A. Simmons, 79, known throughout the north as "the mother of the Yukon," died here Friday. Born in Brantford, Mrs. Simmons came to the Yukon shortly after 1900 with her husband who predeceased her by 25 years. She is survived by two sons, Aubrey, member of the Legislature for Yukon-Mackenzie, and George, of Carcross, Y.T.

TORONTO—A Christmas gift of $40,000 for the needy of Korea, from The United Church of Canada, is announced by Rev. Dr. W. Harold Young, secretary of the Board of Overseas Relief of The United Church of Canada.

Dr. Young said that $13,000 of the gift has gone directly to Korea to be spent by United Church missionaries there on relief among war sufferers.

Another $27,000 has been sent to the World Council of Churches to be spent as follows:

$10,000 among refugees.

$7,000 for Church work in Italy.

Mrs. Janet Jagan And Nine Aides Facing Charges

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—Police Sunday arrested Mrs. Janet Rosenberg Jagan, American born wife of British Guiana's ousted premier, Cheddi Jagan, and other leaders of the leftist Progressive Peoples party. They were charged with holding an illegal meeting.

They were released on bail of $75 ($44.25 U. S.) each. Hearings on the charges were set for Tuesday.

Police said Mrs. Jagan, secretary of the PPP, and her associates were using a loudspeaker to attract a crowd of 200 at a sugar estate village about 15 miles from Georgetown.

Sharply colonial governor, Sir Alfred Savage, early in October banned the ministers' activities after they had police permission at the same time he ousted Mrs. Jagan's husband, Cheddi, and five other PPP government ministers and parliamentary secretaries.

The PPP was charged with leading a Communist plot to make American colony into a Communist state.

The arrest was the first formal action against the 32-year-old Mrs. Jagan since the British said while she was studying nursing in Chicago she met a fellow student, Cheddi.

Her husband, of Indian descent, has been visiting in India, seeking backing for PPP from Prime Minister Nehru, after an unsuccessful attempt in London to get assistance from Britain's opposition Labor party.

India's government has said, however, it will not raise the question before the United Nations.

Liberals Draw Plans of New Party Platform

TORONTO (CP)—Planks of a new party platform will be submitted to an Ontario Liberal Association leadership convention here next April were hammered out by a party policy conference which ended Saturday.

The sessions were held behind closed doors. A statement issued after the meeting said reports of the standing committees were presented at a session of the whole co-ordinating committee on party policy. The reports were made available, particularly on the party's position on health and welfare, housing and municipal affairs.

The Liberal party is devoting all its talents to the solution of the many problems confronting our people," the statement said.

A. P. Cadeau of Burlington, president of the association, said:

"The enthusiasm displayed at the sessions was most encouraging."

The question of finding a leader to succeed Walter Thomson, who resigned after the party's defeat in the provincial general election of 1951, was considered at a meeting of the committee on conventions, which has been given the assignment for a slate of candidates to go before the convention in April.

Lights On Again in Lindsay 10 Minutes After Employees Have Their Union Recognized

CAR-TRAIN COLLISION KILLS THREE AIRMEN.

LINDSAY (CP)—The lights went on in 30 homes and a restaurant in this Peterborough district town early today, shortly after a strike of 13 hydro linemen ended.

Power was off in the homes and Barney O'Neill's restaurant for more than 30 hours after a transformer fuse blew early Saturday night. Mr. O'Neill said he planned to sue the town for loss of business and spoiled food.

UNION RECOGNIZED

The linemen, members of the National Union of Public Service Employes—(ind.), were granted their sole aim in the strike—union recognition—when they met with the Lindsay hydro commission early today. They struck a week ago.

A lineman climbed a pole and replaced the blown fuse in the transformer, restoring power to the blacked-out area less than 10 minutes after the strike ended.

One hundred strikers and sympathizers gathered around the pole in the yard of the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of The United Church of Canada.

TRUCK TURNED AWAY

A hydro truck drove up to replace it but soon left. There was no violence.

Meanwhile hydro officials held continuous talks with the union through the week-end.

Residents of some of the 30 homes in the area in the north end of Peterborough moved in with neighbors when their oil burning furnaces wouldn't operate without electricity. Many of them picketed the pole with the strikers.

Belgian Girl Looks for Job On Canadian Ship

OSTENDE, Belgium (Reuters) — Liliane Soudemonie, 23, the Belgian girl who masqueraded as a boy to get to Canada, is now looking for a job—on a Canadian ship.

She sent a job-hunting letter, to Senator R. B. Horner (PC—Saskatchewan) saying that her parents' desire is to "make the sea my career."

Liliane's ingenuity in getting across the Atlantic to Canada so moved Senator Horner that he offered to pay her passage if she wanted to go again, as a passenger.

Canadian immigration officials sent her home to Belgium because she was using her father's passport with her own picture pasted in where his should have been.

Lindsay Will Select Mayor in 3-Way Fight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

This is civic election day in Port Arthur, Lindsay, Sarnia, Orillia, T. G. Beament, manager of Canadian Legion Band, urged his employees not to vote for Mayor Wilbur M. Cramp who is seeking re-election. Mr. Cramp is in a three-way fight with Hugh Cameron and John MacIsaac. Mr. Beament said he disagrees with the mayors policy in a public utilities dispute.

For the first time, St. Catharines voted Saturday on a date other than New Years Day. Some 40 per cent of the eligible voters turned out, nearly twice as many as last year when there was no mayoralty contest, and they replaced Mayor John Franklin, 38, seeking his third term, with Alderman John Smith, 61, who has served on 11 councils.

Eisenhower Gives World Look Into A-Age Chamber of Horrors

Editor's note: Don Whitehead, veteran Pulitzer Prize winning writer, recalls what he saw when the world's fifth atomic bomb was exploded at Bikini in 1946 and compares this "blast" with the weapons since developed. The story is written against the background of President Eisenhower's speech to the United Nations General Assembly last Tuesday.

By DON WHITEHEAD

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has given the world of glimpses into the "chamber of horrors" of the atomic age.

A single atomic bomb packing the explosive power of more than 500,000 tons of TNT.

The stockpile of potential destruction is increasing daily. In this stockpile lies what the president called "the awful arithmetic of the atomic bomb."

What does the United States have today in this "chamber of horrors" as compared with 1945 and 1946?

BIKINI IN 1946

A little more than seven years ago I rode in a B-29 which cruised just outside Bikini lagoon in the Pacific. We were waiting to see what happened when the world's fifth atomic bomb exploded beneath the waters of the lagoon.

A fleet of warships and smaller vessels rode at anchor, the "guinea pig" fleet for testing the destructive power of the bomb.

Then came the explosion. A massive column of water, perhaps a half-mile wide, shot into the sky. The lagoon was transformed into a cauldron of flame and smoke and steam. Battleships and cruisers were pitched about like playthings.

The water column rose several thousand feet. Then the lagoon erupted with clouds of steam, vapor and gases as though it were boiling over the fires of hell.

The toll: one-fifth of the fleet of 73 ships either sunk or damaged.

NOW 25 TIMES STRONGER

Yet that sight was produced by the early "Model T" bomb—perhaps the only finished bomb in the American stockpile at that time. Today it is believed the United States has a stockpile of more than 1,000 bombs in the "chamber of horrors." The old model which produced the eruption at Bikini now ranks as a comparatively puny thing. It is staggering to think what an atomic bomb 25 times more powerful would have done inside that lagoon.

But the scientists and engineers have not stopped with the building of the new bombs. They also have been busy perfecting the means of delivering those bombs to their targets by planes, rockets, guided missiles and the whole range of fantastic new weapons.

President Eisenhower said: "... atomic weapons have virtually achieved conventional status within our armed services. In the United States services, the army, the navy, the air force and the marine corps are all capable today of pushing this weapon to military use."

KNOWN ADVANCES

Secrecy still hides much of the development in the field of rockets and guided missiles. But here are a few of the known developments:

The Navy "Viking"—a rocket that two years ago had reached an altitude of 125 miles and attained a speed of 4,100 miles an hour. An improved version of the Nazi V-2 but vastly more destructive because it can carry an atomic warhead.

The Navy "Viking"—a fat, stubby, cigar-shaped jet aircraft with swept wings which can be launched from land, ships or specially-equipped submarines. Flies at the speed of sound and can be controlled in any kind of weather by radio from sea, shore or a pilot plane.

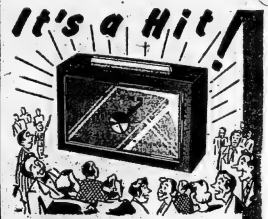
Air Force "Bomarc"—a pilotless fighter designed to locate, track and crash into an invading bomber, all automatically. Said to be capable of speeds over 1,500 miles an hour. In addition, the air force has developed guided aircraft rockets.

The Army "Nike"—a fully automatic anti-aircraft weapon equipped with fins to control flight. Specially trained battalions have been organized for launching the Nike against invading aircraft.

The Army "Corporal"—a pencil-shaped missile with a 100-mile range, guided electronically.

Also an artillery piece which fires an atomic shell.

Spent this year to improve weapons in the field of guided missiles.



DELIVERY ANYWHERE

A few months ago, J. H. Kindleberger, chairman of North American Aviation Corp., said: "Intercontinental missiles are just over the horizon" and they will "deliver accurately to any part of the earth infinite destruction in a few hours."

It was after looking into these depths of potential destruction that President Eisenhower told the UN: "So my country's purpose is to help us move out of this dark chamber of horrors into the light and find a way by which the minds of men, the hopes of men, the souls of men everywhere, can move forward toward peace and happiness and well being."

Canadian Churches, Chapels Get Parts of Coronation Carpet

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Eight Canadian churches and chapels are receiving sections of Westminster Abbey's lush blue and gold Coronation carpet after bidding in a £3,000 jigsaw sale.

The carpet, together with other Coronation furnishings from the Abbey, was sold by the ministry of works to help defray expenses. Prices ranged from £3 to £4 a square yard.

The great carpet, which originally cost £6,600, sold in segments to churches, chapels and schools throughout the Commonwealth and the United States for a profit of almost £2,500.

The ministry advertised soon after the Coronation that the carpet would be put up for sale and almost 5,000 bids poured in. That caused a problem since the carpet covered only 2,330 square yards and officials were anxious that all requests should be filled.

A government expert came up with a plan allowing the irregular-shaped carpet to be cut into smaller complete patterns with minimum wastage.

Canada's largest single section, a rectangle of the gold theatre carpet 26 feet by 15 feet, goes to the chapel of the Victoria Hospital school of nursing, London, Ont., while a church in St. Stephen, N.B., will receive five pieces of varying sizes of the blue carpet from the Abbey apex.

Most of the sections now have been cleaned and relaid and ministry officials say they hope to have them all shipped before the end of the year.

The carpeting is the last of the Coronation furnishings to be sold. The 1,978 chairs, valued at £14,885, and 5,202 stools, worth £21,003, were bought by the peers, peeresses and other British and foreign dignitaries who occupied them during the ceremony.

The two most important chairs, the Coronation chair and the chair of estate, have been sent to Buckingham Palace on permanent loan as souvenirs for the Queen.

The huge coats of arms of Commonwealth countries which decorated Parliament square in front of the Abbey have been sent as gifts to their respective governments.

For the second time this season the Memos, dungeon-dwellers of the Senior "B" group, have risen from their haunches and sling-shotted aspiring Goliaths in effective Davidian style, to hack pedigree temporarily, an unbeaten march to the seats of the mighty.

A short time ago the Oshawa Truckmen, power rocking from all departments, marched unbeaten to five victories. The lowly Memos tacked a 6-5 defeat on them in their own downtown ballyhoo and a dream exploded. Recently the Orillia Pontiacs, after a four-loss, one-tie start embarked on a winning streak that blasted aside all opposition. The Indian hunters racked up six victories, five of them in a row. Then they came to Belleville.

And it looked for thirty minutes of playing time as though the Pontiacs were well on the way to their sixth consecutive victim. The score was 6-1 at the 13-minute mark in the second heat, with a near impregnable Pontiac defence thrusting aside all enemy bids for goals.

Came the third period and the giant-killers started to nibble at the Orillia beanstalk. They whittled the count to four-three when Ken Love struck savagely to tie the count and take the lead. With less than two minutes to go the Pontiacs knotted the count.

Then came one of those Merrivvellian finishes with Duke Dorrah the title role. The Duke, who had 19.39 as Ed and Erwin Dunzsa started a passing play behind their own blue line. Ed tabled a long diagonal pass to the flying Duke racked down the left boards. The Duke took it in stride and let go a blazing low corner shot that had the Orillia goalie beaten from the time it left the Dukian stick. Only it didn't. Another head had bit the dust.

Memorial Arena rang such as it has not rung in years, to the hoarse cheering and stamping of the spectators. They were on their feet for the last five minutes anyway, and the climax to one of the most remarkable comebacks in Belleville hockey history had them gasping for breath and calling for the referee. They held their breath with seven seconds to go as the Orillia coach yanked his goalie. A sliding puck narrowmissed the open Orillia net—then it was over.

It was a rugged battle all the way with Referee Bill Ranson and "Moon" Flanagan, who get their mail and pay cheques in Kingston, ruling with a firm hand. Twenty-three sentences were dished out with the Pontiac pacing in the six-bit fifteen times. Aiken got himself a misconduct when he fired the puck into the crowd in disgust after a play had been stopped. Then he made a reference to Referee Reason's ancestors and was promptly tabbed with a match misconduct. Tommy Schreiber and Payne drew rubbers and majors for rhubarbing, and as another occasion Shropshire, Featy goalie, and Davey Jones tossed their sleeves.

'Twas a right lusty brawl with the ruggedness anti-climaxed by the blazing finish that halted the Pontiacs' unbeaten five-game march to the top spots.

* * *

The victory, the Memos' fifth, gave them ten points, one behind the fourth-place Peterborough Petes. And tonight's battle in Peterborough, where the teams tangle, should considerably alter the set of the standings. Meanwhile the Kingston Goodyears continue their standar ways at the expense of the much-weakened Oshawa Truckmen. The Goodies defeated the Oshawas 6-2 in Bowmanville Saturday night and now share the top rung of the group ladder with the Motor City crew.

* * *

Rumblings from up west have it that all is not well with the Truckmen. In their last five or three games they have been minus four or five of their key men and in the first game with Kingston, the Truckmen showed up minus Colvin, the goalie, playing coach Ernie Dickens, Jack Thaler, Berwick and Williams. Ken Courtney is filling in between the pipes. The defeat Saturday night was the fifth in a row for the erstwhile group leaders.

Ray Gariepy Fractures Jaw

BOSTON (AP) — Ray Gariepy, Canadiens' rookie defenceman, may appeared out of National Hockey League action for an indefinite period.

When Gariepy suffered a facial fracture cut against the Red Wings in Detroit Saturday night. Doctors revealed he had been playing with a fractured left cheekbone and a broken nose much of the time since Dec. 3.

Gariepy's trouble started when he was hit by a shot fired by Milt Schmidt during practice. He suffered more injuries by colliding with referee Bill Chadwick in a game in Montreal before suffering his latest mishap.

Near Free-for-All at Detroit As Red Wings Edge Habs 4-3; Leafs Win Over Blues, Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There's nothing like a high-spirited, colorful team to revive fading interest and that's just what Montreal Canadiens are doing in the National Hockey League.

Fans now expect something out of the ordinary when the Canadiens are involved. It's bound to help the attendance in all the NHL cities, especially those of the United States teams whose smaller crowds over the last few years are causing concern to the league brass.

The league is still buzzing about the record 36 penalties for a total of 204 minutes Canadiens shared in when they played Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday.

The recollection of this probably was the big reason why the largest Detroit crowd of the season, 13,831, turned out last night to see the Red Wings play the Canadiens. The Habitants didn't disappoint them and when the final buzzer went, with a 4-3 victory in Detroit's grasp, a near free-for-all exploded.

Maurice Richard crashed Glen Skov to the ice and players from both benches swarmed on the ice. Before the melting players were parted referee Bill Chadwick slapped a misconduct and a game misconduct on Doug Harvey that will cost the Montreal defenceman an automatic $75 fine.

Earlier, in the third period, Ted Lindsay rapped Chadwick from the penalty box after the Detroit forward was handed a misconduct penalty. The ruling got Lindsay a $75 fine also and ejection from the game after he had been tracked on a game misconduct sentence.

TOOK BIG LEAD

The Wings won the game on two goals each by Lindsay and rookie Bill Dineen. Den but Canadiens stormed back in the third period to make it a real ding-dong battle. Maurice Richard scored the goal when Maurice Richard and Danny Mandell counted within a minute of each other. Eddie Mazur made the other Montreal goal in the first period.

Montreal also was on a scoring spree Saturday, trouncing New York Rangers 7-3 in Montreal. In the other game Saturday night Harry Lumley scored his fifth shutout as Toronto Maple Leafs shut out Chicago Black Hawks 2-0 in Toronto on goals by Harry Watson.

Leafs handed Rangers their second defeat in as many nights when they edged them 2-1 in New York Sunday night. Boston and Chicago each salvaged one point in their week-end action when they played to a 2-2 tie before a Sunday night crowd of 5,902 in Chicago.

Dineen was the big triggerman in the week-end attack. Besides his two goals Sunday night, he banged out counters and set-up assists Saturday night against Boston. Other Detroit scorers were Gordie Howe, Lindsay, Bob Goldham, Dutch Reibel and Glen Skov. The only Boston goal was tallied in the final period by Dave Creighton.

RICHARD GETS TWO

Richard, the league's leading scorer, picked up two goals during the week-end to boost his total to 18. Besides the one he counted against Detroit Sunday night, he banged one in the Canadiens' scoring rampage against New York Saturday night.

Canadiens again lost Jean Beliveau, Montreal centre who returned to action Thursday after an ankle injury kept him out of the line-up for seven weeks. He suffered a fractured cheek-bone when he banged into the goal post and he fell to the ice with defenceman Jack Evans of the Rangers.

The Leafs win over Rangers was their fifth straight. Defenceman Leo Boivin fired one goal and set up Ron Stewart for the other to play a part in both Toronto goals.

Chicago tied Boston Sunday night when Bill Mosienko scored with barely a minute remaining. Gus Bodnar got Chicago's other goal in the second period after Joe Klukay gave Boston a 1-0 first-period lead. Leo Labine counted Boston's second tally.

Barons Win Two; Close in On Slumping Bisons

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland Barons continued their drive towards the top of the American Hockey League by defeating Providence Reds twice over the week-end.

The Barons are now only four points behind the faltering league leaders, Buffalo Bisons, and have two games in hand.

In Providence, Cleveland shaded the fifth-place Reds 5-4, paced by sharpshooter Glen Soomor, who scored three times. It was Cleveland's eighth victory in nine games. Saturday the Barons overcame Providence 6-2 at Cleveland.

BUFFALO IN SLUMP

Buffalo dropped only one point in two week-end outings. At home Sunday, Bisons played a 0-0 overtime tie with Pittsburgh. Hornet defenceman Bill Mayer thwarted numerous Bison scoring efforts.

Saturday the league leaders were humbled 4-2 by Syracuse when Brocco Horvath and Rickie Hogg pumped in half-dozen markers for the cellar-dwelling Warriors.

In the other game Saturday, Hershey Bears dropped to third place when they went under, 5-2, to Pittsburgh Hornets. Earl Balfour and Willie Marshall each had a goal and two assists for the winners.

Circuit Adds New Members

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Harness racing's Grand Circuit admitted two new track members and reelected officers at its annual meeting here Saturday.

New members of the circuit are Vernon Downs, Vernon, N.Y. (July 26-31), and Hazel Park, near Detroit (June 7-12).

Octave Blake, South Plainfield, N.J., was re-elected to his eighth consecutive one-year term as president. Other officers were also re-elected.

The 35-week Grand Circuit stand will open May 10th at Yonkers, N.Y., and close on Dec. 30 at Hollywood Park, Calif.

Citadelles Boss Will Not Sell

QUEBEC (CP) — Frank Byrne, owner of Quebec Citadelles of the Ontario Hockey Association, said Sunday night he is "not interested in selling my club" to Quebec Provincials of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

He was commenting on a report from Kitchener Saturday saying a move will be made at a special meeting of the OHA Junior A council in Toronto Monday to merge the Citadelles with the Provincials.

Byrne said he will not be present at Monday's meeting and will be represented by Windy O'Neill, lawyer and former player with Quebec Aces of the Quebec League.

Emile Couture, president of Provincials, will attend the meeting.

Trafton Will Know Status On Tuesday

CHICAGO. (CP) — George Trafton, who said Friday that he had been fired as coach of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, said yesterday he will return there Tuesday to find out where he stands.

Trafton, a former centre for Chicago Bears of the National pro football league, said he hopes that Tuesday "the whole matter will be cleared up."

Kay Siscomb, Bomber president, refused to comment on Trafton's status Friday. However, Trafton said today that comments had been attributed to Siscomb "that I never was head coach of the Blue Bombers."

"Well, then, who was, if I wasn't," Trafton said.

Trafton said he regretted that his departure from Winnipeg for Chicago "gave the impression that I was job-shopping." His name has been mentioned as a possible successor to Gene Ronzani, who recently resigned as head coach of Green Bay packers.

Trafton, who flew into Chicago to attend the Bears-Chicago Cardinals' 1953 football finals and a re-union of former Bear players, still has one year to go on a three-year contract as coach of the Bombers. His yearly salary was estimated at $12,000.

The Bombers were 1953 Grey Cup finalists.

Hi-Lo Forbes Named Harness Horse of Year

COLUMBUS, O. (AP) — Hi-Lo's Forbes, a black stallion which brought only $300 in the auction ring as a weanling, today was named harness horse of the year for 1953.

The five-year-old pacer, winner of $52,625 in taking 21 of 37 starts, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wagner of Mills, Md.

Hi-Lo's Forbes turned in a number of superlative performances during the 1953 campaign, but the one which sewed up the honors was his 1.58.6 trip at Roosevelt Raceway in New York June 6. By a full second, it was the fastest mile ever registered by a harness horse on a half-mile oval.

Voting on a 10-3-5-1 basis in a poll conducted by the U.S. Trotting Association, 112 turf writers accorded the son of Frisco Forbes a 340-point margin over Proud Don, winner of the No. 1 rating in 1951.

Hi-Lo's Forbes received 653 points to 413 for the trotting gelding from Hayes Fair Acres Stable in Du Quoin, Ill.

Detroit Lions Clinch Western Title, Cleveland Browns Beaten by Eagles

NEW YORK, (UP) — Detroit Lions clinched the National Football League's Western Division title by beating New York Giants, 27-16. Philadelphia Eagles ruined Cleveland Browns' bid for a perfect season by whipping perfect season by whipping the Browns, 42-27, Sunday in the professional circuit ended its 14th season.

Detroit will defend its league title against Cleveland at Briggs Stadium, Dec. 27. The Lions defeated the Browns, 17-7, for the title in 1952.

The Detroit-New York game ended before that of the Forty-Niners, playing Baltimore Colts at San Francisco. The Detroit triumph ended San Francisco's chance of tying for the western title but the Forty-Niners poised it on the Colts, 45-14, to wind up a game behind the Lions. Quarterback Y.A. Tittle threw four touchdown passes for the Forty-Niners, Cleveland, which won the Eastern Conference crown for the fourth consecutive time, finished 8-3-2 game ahead of Philadelphia.

Detroit, pressed to the limit by a New York team that went all out to give Steve Owen a victory in his last game as coach, only clinched victory in the last half minute when halfback Robert L. Smith of the Lions intercepted a Charley Conerly pass on the Detroit 22 and raced 73 yards to the New York five. Halfback Gene Gedman scored from there and halfback Doak Walker, who scored twice for the winners, kicked his third extra point as the game ended.

Cleveland, riding an 11-game victory streak, was bidding for the league's first perfect season since Chicago Bears won 11 in a row in 1942. But the fired-up Eagles came from behind twice and finally reeled off four consecutive touchdowns in the second half to hand the Browns their worst defeat since they entered the NFL in 1950.

"The Stanley Cup Series of 1928 featuring the New York Rangers and the Montreal Maroons will always stand out in my memories as having been the most thrilling of them all—right from the era of the famous Kenora Thistles—Ottawa Silver Seven—Montreal Wanderers to the present time. This was a series in which incidents were numerous, skill was paraded and almost everything that could happen did occur. It was during this set—all games being staged in the Montreal Forum—that Manager Lester Patrick replaced injured goalie, Lorne Chabot. Though he was 45 years old and had never played goal before, Patrick sparked the Blue Shirts to a triumph that prevented the Montreal forces from capturing Lord Stanley's battered trophy."

Memos End Orillia Pontiacs' Unbeaten String At 5 Games With 7-6 Win

The 'Duke's' Last-Second Goal Crowns Sensational Comeback In Rugged Senior 'B' Thriller

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

"Duke" Doran's blazing ankle-high shot with eleven seconds to go in the third period climaxed one of the most remarkable comebacks seen in Belleville hockey history Saturday night when the Memos edged Orillia Pontiacs by a 7-6 score.

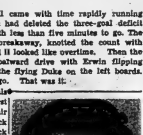
Spoiling the Pontiacs three goals midway through the second period, the Memos unleashed a five-goal third-period offensive to end the Orillians' unbeaten string at five games. The victory gave the Memos ten points, one in arrears of the fourth-place Peterborough Petes.

Doran's game-winning goal came with time rapidly running out. The win-hungry Memos had deleted the three-goal deficit and surged to the front for the first time since the Pontiacs' Nelson, on a clean breakaway, knotted the count with less than two minutes to go and it looked like overtime. Then the Duncan's' twins engineered a goalward drive with Erwin flipping a rink-wide diagonal to Doran flying the flank on the left boards. Doran took it in stride and let go. That was it.

The Memos were two goals down at the end of the first period, one of them a fluky affair when a goalmouth pass struck Duke Doran's skate and the puck was deflected into the net. The Memos matched goal for goal in the second heat and the period ended 4-4. The Memos took second early in the third, then the Memos flashed a three-goal offensive that gave them that 6-5 lead. You know the rest.

The Memos production line again came through with an outstanding effort, accounting for twelve scoring points. Edwin Duncan topped the list with five assists. Brother Ed got a goal and three assists and Duke Doron came through with a goal and two assists. Peter Jones was good for a pair of Memo tallies with brother Davey, Keith MacDonald, and John Wells notching the rest.

The game was no pasty-waist affair. Referees Bill Reason and "Moon" Flanagan let the players listened to plenty of Pontiac accumulated their dished out penalties, fifteen going to the Orillians. Chief of Orillia, fired the puck over the boards in disgust after a play was called and got himself a miscondact. Five pointed words of Referee Reason and Aiken and had a match miscondact to his record.



It was rugged hockey with fights threatening often, especially in that blazing third period. Tommy Schreider and Payne of Orillia drew minors and majors for fighting while Peter Jones peeled his gloves and swapped a couple of punches with the Pontiac goalie as well as being harassed.

The Memos were mainly without the services of Coach "Red" Doran who injured a leg muscle early in the first period and did not reappear until the final faceoff of the game when the Pontiacs ranked their goalie with seven seconds to go.

Pontiacs scored the only two goals of the first period when they were a man short. Half the period had gone when Doran's skate deflected Payne's pass into the net, and Pearsall was sitting out when Purebo and Payne combined close-in for the second tally.

PETER STARTED IT.

Aiken got the gate early in the second and the light behind the Pontiac goal flashed after a Memo gang play. It was ruled no goal and the first of a trio of goal judges behind the Orillia net "got the gate". But a minute later Peter Jones made no mistake with the Duncan twins for the Memos first tally. McCrone went off for hooking and the Memos swarmed over and around the Pontiacs nets, Shropshire kicked out a flurry of rubber with an almost alright defence in front of him.

DUKE DORAN
. . .Giant-Killer

Then Aiken heaved the puck the length of the ice by mistake and a pair of penalties. The infuriated player had to be escorted from the ice by two officials after he secmed heeded for a match sentence. Another goal judge got the gate after a Pontiac protest and the third one lasted the game. MacDonald put the Pontiacs two goals up after a passing play with Duncan and Pearsall and the Orillians' stalk straight victory looked pretty strongly. Even more so when the same player added another on a neat goalmouth combination effort with Shewchuk.

Then Keith MacDonald broke into the scoring column following a three-way effort with Davey Jones and Jackie Wardhaugh to cut the lead to 4-2. That is the way the chukka ended.

The Memos unleashed their driving offensive from the shrill of the opening whistle in a blazing third period. Nine of the 23 penalties were incurred as the teams opened all stops in a fast furious display of hockey. Ed Duncan got the margin to a single goal after 51 seconds of play and Schreider and Payne staged their fisticuffs. Erwin Duncan ripped to all alone but Shropshire turned aside his close-in shot.

The Memos swarmed around the Pontiac net then Payne broke into the clear to beat Sarsaull and extend the Pontiacs lead to two goals. Semark and McLeod got the gate and a minute later Jake Wadds and low shot again cut the margin to one. The "Duke" went in on Shropshire's doorstep but he too was beaten by the goalie.

Within the next three minutes the Jones boys, Peter and Davey, aided by the Duncans and Wardhaugh, had the count and gave Memos the lead for the crowd nearly tore the roof off.

Wells, 1:41 minutes left Nelson broke away from a Memos gang-ling attack, drew Sarrsaull beautifully and again knotted the score. Cleno Doran's game-winning effort with the "Duke's" hand on the goog, and that was that.

Guelph Leafs Hope to Keep Baseball Alive

GUELPH (CP)—Jim Kendrick, president of Guelph Maple Leafs of the senior intercounty baseball league, said Sunday a public meeting is planned for today to find a way of keeping intercounty baseball here next season.
